"From the reports of the proceedings of the Legislative Council, it will be found that the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao moved that the Council meeting be adjourned because of the unsatisfactory reply of the Government to questions on the Kistna floods. It was an admirable move, taken from the British House of Commons, and wholly justifiable. The official explanation is far from satisfactory. The attitude of the Government will create profound disappointment throughout the Province, specially in the flooded regions."

HINDU, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1916.

The Hindu, of the 21st November, writes:—"More than one non-official Honourable Member asked, at the meeting of the Legislative Council held this morning, for information regarding the floods in Kurnool and Guntur districts. In respect of the latter. the information given was that agricultural operations had not been affected very much and that certain men have been appointed for relief work. Loss of life and cattle, the extent of the damage to property and other details were not given, and it is surprising that Government should not yet have been put in possession of facts concerning such a serious matter. On the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao expressing his dissatisfaction at the meagre information given, the Hon'ble Colonel Ellis said virtually that he had no information to give. Mr. Ramachandra Rao then moved the adjournment of the House, which was seconded by the Hon'ble Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar. The motion for adjournment was rightly made, and we believe, this is the first occasion in which it has been invoked in the Council. We could wish that it was duly availed of by non-official members, as only by its fitting use on all proper occasions the necessity for exercising it will become rare. The motion was, however, withdrawn on the assurance given by the Hon'ble Mr. Gillman that a Press Communiqué will be issued as soon as details were received. We think that the answer was anything but satisfactory, and it is a matter for surprise that no member of Government had thought it fit to visit the affected parts in order to see what measures of relief were needed. A good deal of public money is spent on the tours of the Members of Council, and the question as to whether there is an adequate return for this expenditure is open to grave doubt."

WEST COAST SPECTATOR, Calicut, Nov. 21st, 1916.

32. The West Coast Spectator, of the 21st November, states:—"The talk about importing Sir Shams-ul-Huda from Bengal to succeed Sir Sivaswami Ayyar is becoming stronger and widespread. There can be no smoke without fire, and from the feelers let out by the Associated Press under inspirations from above probably, we are to infer that there is fire. The importation, if it comes to pass, will be a most unpopular piece of business any Government can do.

The Madras Executive Council.

"Sir Shamsul has not been very brilliant in Bengal, and the encomiums showered upon him by the officials and their organs make us anxious and suspicious. This Presidency is not barren of Mussalmans if they are bent upon taking in a Mussalman to the Executive Council, and if they go elsewhere it will be an insult to the Presidency as a whole. Now that the suggestion has met with a storm of indignant condemnation, let us hope the Government will not persist in sticking to Sir S. Huda.

"Sir S. Huda himself must feel awkward if he comes to Madras, knowing as he must, that he accepts office without the good will of the people, even of his own commuity, whom he is supposed to represent. In his own interests therefore, it is imperative that the Government should find out one from this Presidency itself. We hope and trust that good sense will prevail."

HINDU, Madras, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

33. The Hindu, of the 22nd November, remarks:—"It would appear from the answer to an interpellation at yesterday's meeting of the local Legislative Council, that one order of internment has been passed in this Presidency under the Defence of India Rules. The Government also stated that they will be pleased to give the honourable member who asked the question, or any other honourable member confidential information about the case. An order of internment, restricting the liberty of the person and putting it out of his power to appeal to a higher tribunal, is a most serious matter; and it is the usual practice, we believe, to publish the names of the persons so dealt with. We fail to understand why such secrecy should be observed in the matter and why the honourable members alone should be chosen for the confidence of the Government. Such a procedure has to be greatly deprecated in the interests of the public."

The Defence of India Act in the Madras Presidency.

34. New India, of the 22nd November, remarks:—"Mrs. Annie Besant has often reminded Hindus of the value of their ancient histories, and a very interesting article, of which we publish a portion to-day, draws some lessons from the Puranas, which show us how plainly subjects spoke out against arbitrary laws and conduct in days in which the royal rule is spoken of as being despotic. When remonstrances failed, our ancestors had another resource, at which modern sceptics may laugh; but none will laugh who know the dynamic force of concentrated thought directed by a strong and steady will. They prayed. Suppose that in this land of prayer we have a Prayer Union, and direct our prayers to the abolition of the Press Act and the modification of the Defence of India Act, now being used to ends never contemplated by their creators? Let us all add to our work against these Acts—since 'God helps those who help themselves'—a daily strong and short appeal to God to relieve us from the oppressive measures under which we suffer. Let every Hindu, Parsi, Jain, Mussalman and Sikh, princes and peasants, add this to their daily prayers, and let us see if the ancient way of correcting the errors of our rulers will bear fruit in modern times. The prayer might run:

New India, Madras, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

The Puranas.

> Most High God, who rulest the kingdoms of men, we pray Thee—as our Rulers do not heed our protests—that Thou wilt so change their hearts that they may refrain from confiscations and internments, that they may punish none without open trial, conviction, and sentences, and that they may repeal the Press Act, and restrict the Defence of India Act to the punishment of treason and rioting, so that these may no longer be turned to the injury of loyal subjects of Thy Servant, the King-Emperor."

35. United India and Native States, for the week ending 23rd November, states:—"The following 'gem' has been culled from the Abhinavasaraswati of Guntur:—

United India and Native States, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

Brahmans and Sudras

> "'A Sudra is born with all vices such as lying which wears out by serving the Brahmans. Such being the case how can a Sudra who altogether hates the Brahmans fail to be a liar simply because he pays a large amount of land tax?'

"We have no hesitating in saying that this is about the most outrageous libel on the Sudras who are falsely asserted to hate Brahmans. It is an equally atrocious calumny to say, as does this Guntur print, that Sudras from their very nature cannot fail to be liars. The insinuation and inuendoes contained in the extract are certainly sickening, for to utter such wholly gratuitous libels against whole communities, be they Brahmans or non-Brahmans, is not to render true service to the country. There are honourable persons among Brahmans as among non-Brahmans while it goes without saying, there are liars among both the communities. The execrable taste underlying the extract deserves the severest condemnation and we are very glad to admit that such wholesale detractors of entire communities without sufficient justification are very few among the educated Indians."

36. The following appears in New India, of the 24th November:—"We are glad to see that Lokamanya Tilak has called this truculent paper to account for to reprint the charges which are the subject of a libel suit against Sir Valentine Chirol is certainly indecent, and, as our readers know, they were taken almost verbally from Sir Valentine's book. The libel law is the right law to appeal to; we, personally, are not able to ask that the Magistrate should put the Mail under security, because although the abstention from doing so shows the partial way in which the Press Act is administered, and thereby increases its injustice, it does not seem consistent or reasonable to ask for the abolition of the law, and also for its enforcement against an opponent. Freedom of the Press, subject to the law of libel and of sedition—the latter as construed in England—is our position."

New India, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The Madras Mail.

NEW INDIA, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The Madras Legislative Council.

37. Writing under the heading "Watering the Milk", New India, of the 24th November, says:—"From a close study of the proceedings of the Legislative Council, it seems to us that the elected members are attaching exaggerated importance to the verbal acceptance of the resolutions, regardless of the form into which they are modified. Consequently some resolutions were passed in a shape which, while convenient to the Government, does not advance the cause the people have at heart to any appreciable extent. What makes this new development even more unfortunate, the final shape is given as a result of a considerable amount of watering down, which ought to be avoided in the interests of Council Government of India. . . . . The Madras Legislative Council has always been noted for its rigid adherence to the rules of debate, and yet on Tuesday last—in the excitement of this new development of watering down—all those rules were so far ignored that at one time not less than three amendments were under discussion; and by some strange rule, the Council voted upon the second amendment—neither the first nor the third. Whatever the reasons be for acting in that fashion, we feel it necessary to protest emphatically at this new mode of transacting business in the Legislative Council."

INDIAN PATRIOT, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The Indian Patriot, of the 24th November, remarks:—"We must give expression to a feeling of dissatisfaction among the non-official members of the Legislative Council that His Excellency the President is stifling free discussion. It is inevitable that the subjects that come up for discussion should increase; subjects, once discussed and suppressed by the overwhelming official majority, crop up year after year with unremitting regularity. The Government must be prepared for it. His Excellency must have heard the arguments that are being advanced in Council many a time; perhaps His Excellency might even be able to repeat by heart the argument in anticipation of any member that might rise. Nothing was again truer than His Excellency's friendly question whether, by replying to the observations of the Government, a non-official ever hoped to alter the decision arrived at. This is our grievance. . . . . This is a new development which is positively dangerous, and we hope that the popular feeling has only to be brought to the notice of the President to avoid any unfortunate situation. Of course, we all know that Lord Pentland is anxious to hurry on business in the best interests of the Government. Time is wasted. Old arguments are trotted out. One resolution drags on for hours. Members paraphrase members. There is often no fresh point after the first two speakers have dealt with the question. It is for the non-official members to take measures among themselves to discourage any valuable speaker, and we have our full sympathy with the President when occasionally His Excellency who has been the best Chairman we ever had, guiding the Council in perfect order, loses temper. . . . . But, all the same, we think that the Governor should resign himself to the situation instead of giving expression to ideas which, in the hands of critics of Government, might be quoted to disadvantage and to mislead the public."

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

UNITED INDIA AND NATIVE STATES, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1916.

The Travancore High Court.

38. United India and Native States, for the week ending 16th November, writes:—"An esteemed correspondent writes:—The Travancore Darbar has sanctioned an increase to the number of Judges of the High Court from four to six, the reason being the usual plea of 'heavy arrears.' We are afraid that His Highness' Government cannot be congratulated on their having arrived at this decision. Travancore is no bigger than two British districts taken together and making full allowance for the dilatory methods apparently prevailing in Travancore a staff of four Judges is a very liberal provision for the needs of the State. It is perfectly incomprehensible how a shrewd administrator, like Diwan Bahadur Krishnan Nayar, was persuaded to accept the recommendation at a time when the State coffers are none too full."

KARNATAKA, Bangalore City, Nov. 18th, 1916.

His Excellency the Viceroy and the Native States.

39. The following appears in the Karnataka of the 18th November:—"The jujune and trivial character of the proceedings of the Chiefs' Conference must have served to teach the people of Native States and their friends not to expect anything bold or extraordinary from His Excellency Lord Chelmsford. So far His Excellency has furnished no proof of a deep insight into the feelings and requirements of the people of this country, or a a zealous determination to carry out radical and substantial reforms."

MALABAR HERALD, British Cochin, Nov. 18th, 1916.

Compulsory recruitment in Travancore.

40. The Malabar Herald, for the week ending 18th November, observes:—"A vernacular paper in Travancore brings to the notice of its readers a method of exaction and oppression practiced by some of the Revenue officials in out-of-the-way places. The report would have it that these Revenue underlings terrorize certain villagers by telling them that they were specially deputed for the compulsory recruitment of men to be sent to the front. These ignorant villagers, not knowing the object of this nefarious practice, satisfy these Revenue officers by giving them what they demand in the shape of cash. The news spreads in other villages with the unfortunate result that the people abandon their dwellings to keep themselves away and thus avoid their being forced to enlist themselves. If these reports are true, the Government ought to take immediate action to stop the villainy of these Revenue subordinates."

MALABAR HERALD, British Cochin, Nov. 18th, 1916.

Political Agents in Native States.

41. In a leader on this subject, the Malabar Herald, for the week ending the 18th November, says:—"The fact that all the Native States without a single exception have progressed considerably both from a political and administrative standpoint need hardly be explained at length, as there is a large volume of opinions expressed by Viceroys and Provincial Governors who have had the opportunity of gaining an intelligent knowledge as to the progressive condition of these States. Consequently, the business of these Political Agents or British Residents has, for the last quarter of a century, been confined to a sphere of activity which was largely associated with social functions and sporting proclivities. On the whole, it may safely be assumed that the need of these Political Agents or British Residents at the Courts of Native States has ceased to be an important factor either for administrative or political purposes. If there is any need of them at all, in face of their progressive condition effected in the majority of cases under the regimè of capable and efficient British officers as their Chief Ministerial and Executive heads, that need ceases to exist absolutely in virtue of the policy that has been laid down at the Delhi Conference to be followed both by the Imperial Government and the Indian Princes. Another circumstance that lends additional weight to the necessity for the dispensation of this extra service may be found in the reflection that when there is to be an annual assemblage of Indian Princes at Delhi presided over by the Viceroy to discuss matters, whether political or administrative, appertaining to these Native States, and when the deliberations of that assemblage are to be conducted on strictly constitutional lines, the continuance of Political Agency or British Residentship as the case may be would be an anomaly."

UNITED INDIA AND NATIVE STATES, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

Mr. V. P. Madhava Rao.

42. United India and Native States, for the week ending 23rd November, remarks:—"Intimation has been received that Mr. V. P. Madhava Rao has resigned the Diwanship of Baroda and the news will hardly create any surprise. It was all along taken for granted that when Mr. Madhava Rao left Baroda on three months' leave it was a prelude to his final departure from that State and that the administration of Baroda will know him no longer. The ostensible reason for the severance of his official connection with Baroda is the trying nature of the climate. We rather prefer to attribute it to his failure to create any impression on the administrative machinery which has been almost revolutionised by the genius of Sayoji Rao Gaekwar."

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1916.

43. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th November, refers to the proceedings of the last meeting of the Ceylon Legislative Council in which a member presented a petition signed by private individuals representing some grievances, and says:—We had before this suggested to our representatives the desirability of their introducing here the Parliamentarian system of presenting to the Government in the Legislative Council petitions from private individuals. The members of the Legislative Council do not seem to have paid any heed to this suggestion. We hope that the people at least will begin to adopt the system of submitting petitions containing facts which have to be brought to the notice of the Government and prevailing upon the elected members of the Legislative Council to present these petitions. The Legislative Council in Ceylon is not even as representative in character as these Councils in India. Still the way in which business is done in it is very satisfactory. Like the Parliament, it meets often, thus preventing accumulation of business and enabling the Government to bestow prompt attention upon every subject. The Government also takes the members into its confidence. Our Madras Legislative Council, on the other hand, meets once in several months. So, the number of questions put by the members swells to hundreds. The replies given by the Government are not always very satisfactory. The authorities seem to be disinclined to give any information to the members about administrative matters and to be doing even the work done as a matter of grace. It is, therefore, very necessary to insist upon the Government convening meetings of the Legislative Council often and giving satisfactory replies to the questions asked therein.

Ceylon Legislative Council.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

44. The Andhrapatrika, of the 22nd November, says:—The Russians and the Rumanians are fighting with valour to check the advance of the Germans in the Rumanian theatre. But the Rumanians are at a disadvantage owing to the Germans possessing a greater supply of war materials here. The winter is approaching. In the meanwhile the Germans are focussing in Rumania armies from different centres to overthrow the Rumanians. The position of the Rumanians is fraught with anxiety. But it seems that time and God are on their side. The enemy Powers possess an advantage by their central position. It is easy to transport munitions and army from one theatre to another. The Allies were able to send munitions to Rumania through Russia. They find it hard to do this on account of submarine scare of the Germans. But as the Germans shift from one theatre to another, they are meeting with reverses. As the armies were taken from the western theatre to the eastern, the allied armies were able to defeat the Germans easily at the Somme front and on the north of the Ancre. While the Germans are protecting one position, the allied armies are besieging another. The Germans are now in constant fear of the Allies' offensive. The region of Picardi which was believed to be impregnable has been easily captured.

Servia which was entirely crushed has now again risen with all force. The armies in Salonika are gradually advancing. The Bulgarians lost Monastir in order to gain the victory in Dobrudja. The Austrians met with a defeat in Carso with a view to win in Transylvania. It is plain from the history of the war during the past two years that the policy of the Allies attending to all theatres at the same time has enabled the Germans to overthrow only small States, but not big ones. The Germans have appointed M. Groiner to make mighty efforts, the results of which remain to be seen. The situation is favourable to the Allies in all theatres except in that of Rumania.

The war.

45. The Keralodayam,* of the 7th November, adversely criticises the order of the Supreme Court of Ceylon, declaring it to be contempt of court to publish plaints, statements, etc., filed by parties in a suit, and observes that it is the duty of Indians to see that this law does not come into force in India, though at present the law here is as it should be.

The order of the Ceylon Supreme Court.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 7th, 1916.

46. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 15th November, after giving a description of the British offensive on the Western Front, writes:—From the anti-peace demonstration which took place at Cardiff on Saturday last, it appears that the British people will have nothing to do with a premature peace. It is certain that Great Britain is actively fighting for and strenuously endeavouring to establish a permanent peace throughout the world after she has thoroughly chastised her enemy.

A sanguinary spectacle.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1916.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th November, demurs to the view expressed by Lord Carmichael, during his visit to the Police Training School at Surda in Bengal, that it was not desirable to publish details of the inquiries made about the misconduct of the Police and that the strictures passed on the Police now and then by the Courts of Law are not always well founded, and observes:—We are surprised at Lord Carmichael finding fault with Courts of Law for criticising the action of the Police. The prestige of the British Government in India depends mainly upon the fair justice administered by these Courts. When the conclusions of the executive officials are deemed to be superior to the decisions of these Courts, it will immediately tell upon the prestige of the British Government. Though it has been usual for many of the executive officials in India to be against the English Courts of Justice, we regret that Lord Carmichael should have given even the least support to this attitude. Public interests demand that, even as the police are praised and rewarded for good conduct publicly, the Government should give publicity to the faults committed by them, whenever their conduct is such as to cause dissatisfaction to the people.

Lord Carmichael on the Police.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 18th, 1916.

48. In condemning the action of the District Magistrate of Ahmedabad in calling upon the Secretaries of the Provincial Conference to provide C.I.D. reporters with seats at its sittings, the Keralodayam,* of the 7th November, incidentally observes that it is regrettable that well-known Indian leaders should be watched and followed by C.I.D. officers.

The C.I.D.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 7th, 1916.

(b) Courts.

49. The Lokopakari, of the 20th November, writes:—It is no surprise that, under the British rule which loves freedom and justice, the security taken from Mr. Tilak for good behaviour has been annulled by the Bombay High Court. The High Courts have been established to administer justice impartially and they have the power to enquire about and set right the mistakes committed by the executive officials. It is only by boldly annulling the illegal acts of the executive officials that the High Courts can acquire the full confidence of the people. The decision of the Bombay High Court in this case should not be taken to affect the dignity of the Bombay Government in any way.

The Bombay High Court.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1916.

50. The Swadeshabhimani, of the 17th November, in a leading article, writes:—The setting aside of the security order against Tilak is of exceptional interest, firstly, because this is the only instance in which he had the good fortune to be acquitted; and secondly, it will serve to remove the erroneous belief that it was a foregone conclusion that every charge of sedition must invariably end in conviction; considering this aspect of the decision we must observe that the Bombay High Court deserve to be congratulated on their courage of conviction far more than Mr. Tilak himself. The Indian press is unanimous in applauding the High Court. It might be said that the High Court exists to administer justice and that there is nothing extraordinary about what they have done, as they could not, in duty, do otherwise. But we know that in numerous cases, particularly in cases of this type, they are not free to do as they think right. That shows how laudable is the courage of conviction displayed by the Judges in the present case. Further, the word "disaffection" had been inordinately stretched in order to put an end to all freedom of speech. This, too, has now been correctly interpreted by Mr. Justice Batchelor. It is no wonder that the whole of India should rejoice at this decision. Some Anglo-Indian journals, however, are showing signs of excessive heart-burning. The Madras Mail is seen to be in indescribable agony. In dwelling on the past history of Tilak, it meanly seeks to trace the Rand and Jackson murders to his preachings. The Bombay Times and the famous Globe of England had to tender their apology for a similar inglorious attack. There will be no need for us to answer these charges of the Mail against him, if the paper should be constrained to apologise of its own accord. Still, the base insinuation against the Chitpavan (Mahratta) Brahmins as a class because the assassins in the two cases mentioned above happened to belong to that community, is most deplorable. The late Messrs. Ranade and Gokhale also belonged to the same community. Would it not be foolish to condemn Englishmen as a race because the forgerer Clive and the notoriously corrupt Crawford of Bombay were Englishmen? For do not Lords Ripon, Minto and Hardinge also come of the same race?

The Tilak appeal case.

SWADESHABHIMANI, Manyalore, Nov. 17th, 1916.

* Received this week.

KERALA SANCHARI, [Calicut, Nov. 15th, 1916.

The Tilak security case.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th November, points out that the decision of the Bombay High Court in the "Tilak security case" has given general satisfaction in India, though a few selfish persons may not like it, and that one result of the case itself was to give those, who had not heard those speeches, an opportunity to read them, and observes that the decision has tended to strengthen the people's belief that justice can always be expected from the High Courts.

(d) Education.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1916.

The Government and education.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th November, says:—It has been observed by experts like Sir Thomas Holland that Indian workmen have enough of intelligence, that, if they are given a good industrial training, they will prove to be in no way inferior to the western workmen and that for this purpose primary education should become more widespread in this country. It is a known fact that education is the basis for everything—industry, trade, social reform and civilisation. We need not say what interest our Government is taking in the improvement of education. In England the Education Act of 1870 made it compulsory for every child to be educated. In 1891 the authorities made arrangements for all children between three and fifteen years to have free education. But it was only in 1906 that the Government of India which takes its cue from England in many matters announced that the practice of collecting fees in primary schools should be abolished in this country, as free primary education had begun to be introduced in England and all civilised countries. In 1912, Sir Harcourt Butler, speaking on primary education in the Imperial Legislative Council, stated that the principle that primary education should be imparted freely had already been accepted by the Government. It is the fact that, while accepting the principle, the Government of India is hesitating to give effect to it in practice that is most surprising. Perhaps the time has not yet come for this principle to take shape. It is to be noted that primary education was free in Mysore as early as 1869. While 46 per cent of the boys and 10 per cent of the girls of school-going age are having education in Mysore, it is seen from the Report of the Educational Department here for 1914–15 that only 18 per cent of the boys and 6 per cent of the girls are receiving education in British India.

The Presidency College and the students.

52. The Kerala Patrika, of the 18th November, expresses surprise at the notice put up in the Presidency College, Madras, in which the peons are asked to watch and report on the conduct of students during the interval hours, and observes that it would be a wonder of wonders, if the present system of education and the rules connected therewith conduce to the improvement of students

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 18th, 1916.

Writing on the same subject, the Keralodayam, of the 21st November, also condemns the action of the Principal in putting up such a notice.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur. Nov. 21st, 1916.

The Punjab University circular.

53. Referring to the circular of the Punjab University regarding the supply of additional answer-books to candidates for examinations, the Keralodayam, of the 21st November, says.—The future of students depends on the results of the University examinations. What the effect of issuing such circulars in this country will be is quite clear. May God protect the students of the Punjab University!

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 21st, 1916.

The Calcutta University enquiry.

54. Referring to the appointment of a committee consisting of six Europeans and three Indians to enquire into the affairs of the Calcutta University, especially into the arrangements made for post-graduate studies, the Keralodayam, of the 21st November, fails to understand the necessity for it, this being the only University which has not been affected by Lord Curzon's Universities Act, and observes that though during the time of Sir Sankaran Nayar nothing will be done, which will have an injurious effect on higher education, want of information as to the object of the enquiry leads to various suspicions, but that it is a consolation to be told that Sir Ashutosh Mukerjee is the President of the Committee.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 21st, 1916.

A Muslim college.

55. The Qaumi Report, of the 15th November, publishes the following from the Hon'ble Mr. Yakūb Hasan:—His Highness the Nizam of his royal favour has sanctioned a monthly grant of Rs. 1,000 to the Muhammadan Educational Society at Vāniyambādi for the purpose of establishing a college for the Mussalmans of Southern India. In addition to this His Highness has graciously given a donation of Rs. 25,000 to the building fund.

QAUMI REPORT, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1916.

The want of a Muslim college has been keenly felt here and Rs. 55,000 were subscribed at the Muhammadan Educational Conference held on the 28th October 1916 at Vāniyambādi under the presidency of Mr. Hyderi.

The society is already maintaining a high school at enormous cost. But for His Highness' generosity the Muhammadans of Southern India would not have been able to found a college for themselves for at least another decade. At the present moment there are only three Muslim colleges in India, all of them in the north, viz., at Alighar, Lahore and Peshawar. The Mussalmans of Madras are more fortunate than their brethren in Bengal and Bombay, who, in spite of its numbers and wealth, have not as yet been able to establish an institution of the kind. The Mussalmans of Southern India generally and those of Vāniyambādi in particular should feel extremely grateful to His Highness the Nizam, who by his generous aid has accelerated the pace of our educational progress.

The editor observes that all over India there are doubtless evidences of the support given to education by His Highness the Nizam, may God cause his kingdom to endure! It was a talismanic secret that the Madras Presidency which is, as far as historical and social traditions are concerned, an old friend and poor brother of the Asafia State, has hitherto been favoured only individually and the generous hand of the Asafia family has not lain national and Muslim educational institutions under any obligation by means of living memorials. But the pain suffered by Islamic hearts in Southern India has been felt by His Highness Mir Usman Ali Khan, may God perpetuate his kingdom! It is now hoped that many Usmania schools and colleges will be established in the Madras Presidency. These are interesting signs of the times, and they show that the Madras Presidency is likely to be benefited from the collective and national point of view more by the generous gift of the Nizam of the Dakhan than by individual gifts.

Every Mussalman holds in high estimation the generous announcement made by His Highness and regards it as an earnest of favours to come from His Highness. In fact boundless gratitude is due to His Highness. The Mussalmans return thanks in the words of Shaikh Saādī:—

The farmer's hat has been exalted to the sun.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1916.

The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 15th November, referring to His Highness's princely gift, writes:—We return respectful and dutiful thanks on behalf of all the Mussalmans of Southern India.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1916.

56. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st November, takes exception to a resolution said to have been passed by this municipality by the casting vote of the President, the majority of the elected members voting against it, that a poll need be taken on any question only if it is demanded by two elected members and, remarking that this resolution is against the accepted principle in all institutions that any member can demand a poll, expresses the hope that the Bombay Government will not approve of it.

The Surat Municipality.

(j) Salt and Abkāri.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 15th, 1916.

57. In commenting upon the report on the working of the Salt department, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th November, points out that the unpopularity of the department is evidenced by the large number of resignations during the year under report, and that it is necessary to hold an enquiry into the causes of the large increase in departmental punishments, to which these resignations may possibly be traced, and hopes that when circumstances are favourable, the duty on salt, without which even the poorest of the poor cannot get on, will be totally abolished.

The Salt Department.

(k) General.

VYSIAMITRAN, Devakotta, Nov. 6th, 1916.

58. The Vysiamitran *, of the 6th November, writes:—In reply to a question by a representative of the Ceylonese published in Colombo, whether Ceylon might not be placed under the Government of India, the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanathan is said to have objected to this proposal on the grounds that the affairs of Ceylon would then become merged in those of India, and that the Ceylonese would then be deprived of certain privileges which they now had over and above those enjoyed by the people of India. With due deference to the opinion of Mr. Ramanathan, we would support the proposal to make Ceylon one of the provinces of British India, for the following reasons. Firstly, there is a longstanding historical connection between India and Ceylon as the Singalese and their kings originally migrated from Northern India. Secondly, the island of Ceylon is no bigger than a large district of this Presidency and yet the Government of this island costs a good deal, as it is treated as a separate colony. Thirdly, though Ceylon is a small island almost adjacent to India and requires the help of the Indians for the daily life of its people, it is the pride of its being a separate self-governing colony that makes it ignore the hardships of the Indians. We do not deny that the people in Ceylon enjoy larger privileges than those of the Indians. But it is at the same time doubtless that in course of time we in India will have all those privileges now enjoyed by the Ceylonese and even more, while it is very doubtful whether the Ceylonese can at any time hope to have larger privileges than those they enjoy now.

India and Ceylon.

* Received in the current week.

59. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th November, expresses its satisfaction at the appointment of the Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar as the Vice-President of the Madras Legislative Council, and feels grateful to His Excellency Lord Pentland for his having recognised the seniority of Sir Sivaswami Ayyar this time, though he ignored it last year.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1916.

The Vice-President of the Madras Legislative Council.

The Hindu Nesan, of the 16th November, also expresses its satisfaction at the appointment of the Hon'ble Mr. P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar as Vice-President of the Madras Legislative Council.

HINDU NESAN, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1916.

The Vice-President of the Madras Legislative Council.

60. The Andhraprakasika, of the 18th November, protests against the proposed appointment of Sir Shamsul Huda to succeed the Hon'ble Sir Sivaswami Ayyar as the Indian Member of the Madras Executive Council and says:—We do not wish to depreciate the qualifications of this gentleman, but whatever they may be, they are not sufficiently attractive to the Madras public. If a Muhammadan is required for the place, it will be best to confer it on the Hon'ble Justice Abdur Rahim. If it is desired to appoint a non-official Muhammadan, there is Nawab Saiyid Muhammad Sahib, who is competent for the post. If the authorities do not wish to appoint either of these gentlemen, but yet want an official they will do well to confer the place on Diwan Bahadur Rajagopala Achariyar. We submit that it is dishonourable for this Presidency which contains such eminent persons, that the authorities should go abegging for competent men in other Provinces.

ANDHRA PRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 18th, 1916.

The Madras Executive Council.

Referring to the rumour regarding the appointment of Sir Shamsul Huda as Sir Sivaswami Ayyar's successor on the local Executive Council, the Kerala Patriku, of the 18th November, points out that, if a Muhammadan has to be appointed to the place, there is Justice Abdur Rahim, whose appointment will certainly give satisfaction to all, and that therefore the importation of one from another Presidency is unnecessary and uncalled for.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 18th, 1916.

The Madras Executive Council.

61. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th November, writes:—An order was recently passed by the Government in England authorising the Home Minister and certain local authorities to prevent public meetings if they had reason to believe that such meetings would tell upon public peace. In replying to a question about this order in Parliament, the Home Minister said that though there were demands from many local authorities for power to give effect to this order, such power was not given, as on enquiry it was found to be unnecessary. This shows how careful the higher authorities are in England in giving effect to any order which may affect the rights of the people. The question is whether the authorities in India are as careful in this matter. In replying to a question in the Central Provinces Legislative Council about the order of that Government prohibiting Mrs. Besant from entering the Central Provinces, it was stated on behalf of the Government that the Reception Committee of the Provincial Conference at Amroati had given an assurance that it would not invite Mrs. Besant to take part in the conference and that the order of that Government on Mrs. Besant should not be taken to mean that it did not believe the assurance given by this committee. We do not know how to reconcile this statement with the action of that Government prohibiting Mrs. Besant from entering the Central Provinces. The fact that even heads of Provinces act so inconsistently in India proves clearly the difference in the exercise of authority by the Government in England and in India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1916.

Difference in the exercise of authority by the Government in England and in India.

VIJAYAVIKATAN, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1916.

62. The Vijayavikatan, of the 15th November, expresses its regret at the dismissal of these appeals by the Judges of the High Court, and in the course of a long leader dwells upon the innocence of Mrs. Besant and her loyalty and ends with the observation that the blow aimed at her by the authorities is felt by all the people of India.

The New India appeals.

VIJAYA VIKATAN, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1916.

63. The Vijaya Vikatan, of the 15th November, writes:—It was the Madras Government that aimed the first blow on Mrs. Besant by suddenly demanding a security of Rs. 2,000 from her and directing its forfeiture. Next came the Bombay Government with its blow preventing her from entering that Presidency. The Central Provinces and Berar Governments have now followed suit and prohibited her from entering their territories. Perhaps the Bengal Government and other Provincial Governments will soon have their turn against her. But who anticipated these things? We need not say that the whole world will regret this state of affairs. Alas! Mrs. Besant in trying to plead for the helpless has become a victim to calumny. Nevertheless, all these will have no effect at all. In ancient days Jesus Christ shed His blood for the sake of sinners. Can we on that account treat Him with contempt? We are ashamed at the Governments in India frequently passing orders against Mrs. Besant. Poor Belgium was ruined by Germany, and it is for the purpose of protecting Belgium that our Great Britain is now attacking Germany. Why should the English Government which always sympathises with the poor be cruel to the poor in India. Why should it not be as compassionate to its own poor Indian subjects as it is to poor Belgians who are foreigners. We cannot talk more freely on this subject for fear of the Press Act. We have said even this only because the Judges of the High Court have held that any number of fair comments might be made, and that this would not amount to an offence. If the authorities continue to act like this, there can be no unity between the rulers and the ruled.

Another blow to Mrs. Besant.

VIJAYA VIKATAN, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1916.

The Vijaya Vikatan also comments in detail upon the order issued on Mrs. Besant by the Central Provinces Government in the same strain as the Swadesamitran of the 2nd November, whose remarks are abstracted in paragraph 46 in report No. 46 of 1916. It also reproduces the comments of the Tribune, the Punjabee, the Bengalee and the Amrita Bazaar Patrika on this subject.

HINDU NESAN, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1916.

64. The Hindu Nesan, of the 15th November, writes:—It has now become a settled rule that every Provincial Government moves to the hills for six months in the year and the efforts of the public to get this system abolished on the grounds that it leads to unnecessary expenditure and to administrative inefficiency have proved in vain. Questions asked on this subject in the Legislative Councils have never elicited satisfactory replies. The public opinion that the annual exodus of the Provincial Governments to the hills leads to accumulation of administrative business is stoutly opposed by the civilians responsible for the conduct of these Governments, who assert that work is done more promptly on the hills than in the capital of the Province. In reply to a question put on this subject at a recent meeting of the United Provinces Legislative Council, the Hon'ble Mr. Burn is reported to have stated that it was with a view to secure efficiency of administration that some of the higher officials had to proceed to the hills during summer, and that the Lieutenant-Governor was not prepared to alter the existing practice. If, instead of this, the Hon'ble Mr. Burn had even taken upon himself the responsibility of stating that the existing system would not be altered, we will not raise any objection to it. But we cannot agree with his view that some of the higher officials find it necessary to go to the hills for a portion of the summer in view to the efficiency of the administration. We do not believe that the higher officials going to the hills for the summer spend their time in discharging their duties efficiently. Our opinion is that their sojourn on the hills gives them an opportunity to spend their time in the gymkhana pleasantly and that they cannot afford to attend to their duties efficiently. Even the Englishman of Calcutta, which always supports the civilian officials, has objected to this annual exodus. We are, therefore, surprised at the opinion of the Hon'ble Mr. Burn, which is refuted, not only by Indian public opinion, but also by an Anglo-Indian paper like the Englishman.

Exodus to the hills.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1916.

Self-government in the Phillipine Islands.

65. Referring to the criticism of some Anglo-Indian papers that the reforms suggested in the memorandum of the non-official members of the Imperial Legislative Council were not reasonable, the Swadesamitran, of the 16th November, observes:—It is now only 18 years since the Phillipine Islands came under the American rule. But it is 150 years since India came under the British rule. A comparison at this juncture of the methods of administration in these two countries will be very instructive. The Central Government of the Phillipine Islands is an association called the Phillipine Commission, consisting of nine members including the Governor-General, who is the head of the administration. It is only three of the eight ordinary members of this association that are Americans, the remaining five being natives of the islands. Of the seven members of the Executive Council of the Viceroy in India, only one is an Indian. All the members of the Legislative Council in the Phillipine Islands are elected by the inhabitants of the islands. It is a known fact that in our Legislative Councils, all the members are not elected. Of the 38 Provinces into which the Phillipine Islands are divided, excluding the six backward Provinces, the Governors of 32 Provinces are elected by the people. Of the seven Judges in the Supreme Court there, the Chief Justice and two other Judges are natives of the place. Half of those holding the higher Judicial appointments there are natives. Generally, more than 60 per cent of the higher appointments in these islands are held by the natives. Coming to the municipalities, all the officials therein are elected by the people. Our readers are aware that a Bill was brought forward recently by the American Parliament to grant complete powers of self-government to these islands within four years and this Bill has now become an Act. In an article contributed by Sir William Wedderburn to the New Statesman about the Government in the Phillipine Islands, he says "Can any one assign a proper reason why the British Government cannot treat India in the same manner as America is treating the Phillipine Islands? Are the inhabitants of these islands in any way superior to the Indians, or is the British Government behind the Americans in acting upon high ideals? The Indians do not want that the British connection should cease altogether. I will surely say that the absence of any pronouncement on the part of the British Government of its view regarding the future Government of India and the increase of the Police restrictions in that country are causing grave dissatisfaction there." We hope the British will note these words. The Indians fully believe that the British statesmen will realise that the desire for Swaraj is becoming deeply rooted in India day by day.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1916.

Troops invalided in the war.

66. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th November, dwells upon the necessity of the British Government making proper provision for those of the troops, both English and Indian, now fighting at the front, who are invalided for active service on account of serious accidents, ekeing out a comfortable livelihood during the rest of their lives, and observes that it is the duty of the Government to prevent these people becoming helpless after they are discharged by the Military authorities.

Travancore Abhimani Travancore, Oct. 28th, 1916.

Home Rule for India.

67. The Travancore Abhimani,* of the 28th October, thinks that India will never be fit for swaraj unless she gets rid of her caste system, and observes that the suggestion of irresponsible journalists like Mrs. Besant that India should be given

* Received, current week.

Home Rule is evidently made without the least consideration being bestowed upon what the effect of it will be on the lower classes.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 18th, 1916.

The Indians in the Civil Service Examination of this year.

68. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th November, writes:—We understand that, though twelve candidates secured more than 2,000 marks in the Civil Service competitive examination this year, only six have been declared to have passed, and it is to be noted that only two of these are Indians. But it is stated that there are five candidates, who have obtained marks next below the six persons noted above and that three of these are Indians. We have to note here the statement made by the Secretary of State when the Indian Civil Service Bill was discussed in the Parliament that, if in any year the number of Indians nominated was less than what was usual, it would be made up by nominating some of the Indians, who, though they did not pass in the examination, were otherwise capable. Nineteen Indians have been nominated to the Indian Civil Service during the four years 1911 to 1914. Thus the average number of nominations each year can be taken to be five. So no one can object to our demand that the promise given by the Secretary of State, that the deficiency in any particular year in the number of Indians nominated will be made up by additional nominations, should be given effect to this year. We cannot but point out here that more than 60 per cent of the Civil Servants in the Philliphine Islands are natives of that country.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1916.

The Government of India on the indentured system of labour.

69. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th November, observes:—We see from a letter addressed by the Government of India to the Secretary of State on the subject of indentured labour that, without stopping with advocating the necessity of abolishing this system, the Government has made a suggestion for avoiding the harm which might result to the colonies by such abolition. It is clear from this that the colonies are averse to the abolition of this system, for they cannot carry on their work without Indian labourers. Now, do the colonies which desire so much to have Indian labourers agree to appreciate the feelings of the Indians? Will they allow the Indian in the Colonies to enjoy all the rights to which they are entitled as British subjects? Will an Indian proceeding to these colonies have all the privileges there which a colonial has in India? The colonials in India enjoy greater privileges than the Indians themselves, though both are equally British subjects. If the colonies concede that the British subjects should have equal privileges everywhere, we are bound to help them to carry on their industries. Unless they do so, the Government of India should abolish the system of indentured labour and wait to see what action they take. Then it can come to any conclusion, acting on the opinion of the Indians. In the letter referred to above, the Government of India says that it was only in appreciation of the feelings of the Indians that it has suggested the abolition of the indentured system. If this is true, we will repeat that it is not the business of the Government of India to propose an alternative method for the Colonies to get Indian labourers.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1916.

The Lucknow Congress.

70. The Lokopakari, of the 20th November, says:—Mrs. Annie Besant has been elected as the President of the Theosophical Conference to be held at Lucknow, along with the Congress at the end of this year. She has also been elected a member of the All-India Congress Committee. So she will also attend the Congress. The Central Provinces Government issued an order preventing Mrs. Besant from entering that Province and thereby made it impossible for her to be present at the Provincial Conference held at Amroati. Some papers say that the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces will also serve a similar notice on Mrs. Besant prohibiting her from attending the Congress. We do not believe that Sir James Meston will act like this. The Defence of India Act is intended to suppress seditionists and not to tease persons like Mrs. Annie Besant, who are loyal to their Sovereign and God. We hope that Lord Chelmsford will check the autocratic acts of the Provincial Administrators.

71. Referring to the necessity which arose at this meeting for the Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao to have recourse to a blocking motion on account of the disinclination of the Government to give full replies to his questions about the floods in the Kistna and Gōdāvari, the Swadesamitran, of the 21st November, remarks:—Occasions may arise like the present one when the Executive officials do not find it possible to prevent the representative members in the Legislative Council discharging the duties entrusted to them by law. But that will not justify an attempt to curtail or take away the rights of the representative members. His Excellency the Governor is in a way responsible to safeguard the rights of both the representative members and the officials in the Council. But, in doing this, he is bound to act impartially. So we have to say that the action of Lord Pentland in having declined to include certain Bills and resolutions sent up by representative members in the agenda for the last meeting has caused much pain and dissatisfaction, not only to the members but also to the people. As His Excellency has the power to disallow questions and resolutions, his decision is final. But the position of our representative members in the matter of legislation is quite different. Neither the Government nor its members have any exclusive privileges in this matter. Therefore Lord Pentland's action regarding the Bills brought up by the members should be deemed to have curtailed the rights not only of these members but also of the public.

The last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras Nov. 21st, 1916.

72. Referring to the statement of Mr. Chamberlain that he was communicating with His Excellency the Viceroy regarding the possibility of further developing the military resources of India voluntarily, the Andhrapatrika, of the 16th November, says:—It is gratifying that Mr. Chamberlain has begun to carry out his responsibility as regards India as Mr. Bonar Law has done in the case of the Colonies. But there is not the same firmness and enthusiasm in the statement of Mr. Chamberlain as in that of Mr. Bonar Law. India has been expecting that Lord Chelmsford, who is a military expert, will form an Indian volunteer corps, and the Indians have now been encouraged in this expectation though very feebly, by the statement of the Secretary of State for India. We trust that Lord Chelmsford will follow the liberal policy of Lord Hardinge and raise an Indian army by introducing the volunteer system of recruitment in this country.

An Indian army.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1916.

73. The Andhrapatrika, of the 17th November, says:—It is gratifying that the kind-hearted Mr. Marjoribanks and the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar, an Indian representative in the Legislative Council, have been deputed to enquire into the question of indentured labour in Ceylon and the Federated Malay States. But it is difficut to understand why the Government should proclaim that the question of abolition of indentured labour will be discussed in London, as if India and the Government of India have no authority to exercise in the matter. We doubt if any good will come out of this enquiry.

Abolition of indentured labour.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1916.

The Andhrapatrika, of the 21st November, says:—It is difficult to understand why the Government who have stated that it is none of their business to supply coolies to the colonies, should declare it their duty to adopt the sirdar policy. As decided by the Government of India, it is but just and fair that the system of indentured labour should be altogether abolished, for it is opposed to the self-respect of the Indians and to the enjoyment of the British rights of citizenship.

Indentured labour.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1916.

Referring to the despatch of the Government of India regarding the system of indentured labour, the Manorama, of the 21st November, heartily endorses their views, and observes that whether the Secretary of State may or may not accept them, the thanks of the Indians are due to the Government of India for what they have done in the matter.

Indentured labour.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 21st, 1916

ANDHRACHANDRIKA, Proddatur, Nov. 16th, 1916.

74. Referring to the order of the Government of the Central Provinces against Mrs. Besant, the Andhrachandrika, of the 16th November, says:—The reason for this attitude of the Government is that she wants self-government for the Indians. But is her agitation unconstitutional? Did she ever suggest that the British nation should be avoided? Do not her actions from the very beginning proclaim her loyalty? Whatever may be her troubles, the desire for swaraj has taken firm root in the minds of the Indians, and it will never disappear. We pray that Lord Chelmsford will consider all the circumstances and do justice.

Mrs. Besant.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1916.

75. Referring to the heavy losses sustained by the people on account of the floods in the Kolleru lake, a correspondent to the Andhrapatrika, of the 17th November, says:—The District authorities cannot but render help to the ryots till the water subsides and transplantation for the second crop takes place. It is not proper for them to be indifferent to the sufferings of the ryots. The Collector has not taken any action relying, perhaps, on the report of the Tahsildar, who is under the wrong impression that there is no urgency about the matter. The District Collector should tour in the lankas for two or three days, ascertain the real state of things and afford the necessary relief.

Kolleru floods.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1916.

The Andhrapatrika, of the 17th November, has a leaderette on this subject in which it says:—The Government cannot but render pecuniary help to the ryots in the shape of loans in the present state of distress. The money-lenders take undue advantage of the situation and demand an inordinately heavy rate of interest. The whole burden of protecting the people now rests on the District authorities, who, we regret, have not taken any action in the matter. The Tahsildar has to submit an explanation for spending only Rs. 50 out of the sanctioned amount of Rs. 500, and the Magistrate for his report that there is no need to take rice and distribute it among the sufferers. In the very lankas in which they have toured two batches of the members of the Social Service League of Bezwada spent Rs. 300, and protected the ryots for four days. From this it will be plain that the indifference of the Taluk authorities is unjustifiable. We are informed that in one lanka, the starving inhabitants had not been given by the Government officers help enough to maintain them for at least four days. The Government should know that there are 35 such lankas.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1916.

76. Writing on the subject of the Kistna floods, the Andhrapatrika, of the 20th November, says:—It is the duty of the rulers to protect the starving cattle by arranging to send fodder to the affected places by rail or boat from where it is available. It is their duty also to provide houses for the houseless, and facilities to those who lost their crops. If this work is deputed to subordinate officers, the people will not be benefited. The Guntūr District Association and the Tenali merchants have distributed 70 bags of rice among the sufferers at Appikatla. It appears that the authorities have distributed only ten bags. They cannot do any good to the afflicted by this miserly policy at a time of trouble like this. They must afford facilities to ryots in rebuilding their houses and allow concessions in the payment of assessment. There can be no good until the officials and the non-officials co-operate with one another and settle this matter.

The Kistna floods.

The people attribute the breach of the Praturu bank and the Appikatla catastrophe to the railway embankments. There is only one sluice in the railroad for the passage of drainage from the Buckingham Canal, Errakalva, and the Tungabhadra at Appikatla. There would not be this trouble if there were five or six such sluices there. An extension of the railway bridge in Bezwada towards the east will save Pratur and its surroundings from trouble. If facilities be provided for the passage of drainage water from Kolleru, Ellore and Kaikalur taluks will escape danger from floods. The rulers and the leaders of people should co-operate with one another, find out the causes of floods, and take steps to prevent them in future. The investigation should not be left in the hands of officials only, for they may report that the people have not been losers by the floods. When water in the affected villages was waist deep, Mr. Lutman reported that it was not more than a few inches deep. Under such circumstances no good can result unless the officials secure the co-operation of the non-officials. No doubt the railways and the anicuts have benefited the people largely, but the omission to make arrangements for the passage of drainage water has been the cause of great loss. The time has now arrived for the rulers and the leaders of the people to find some redress for the present state of things. The Collector of Guntūr appears to have said that the rulers were prepared to spend as much as the people were prepared to give away in charity for the construction of houses. The Collector of Kistna and his subordinates deserve our thanks for the sympathetic aid which they are rendering to the distressed people. But unless the rulers take decisive steps, the sufferers will not be free from troubles in regard to the payment of assessment.

77. A correspondent to the Andhrapatrika, of the 21st November, says: —That the Home Rule League, Guntūr, has passed a resolution expressing its resentment at the "spiteful and abusive" language used by the Madras Mail in its article on Mr. Tilak which appeared in its issue of the 11th November, and requesting the Government to take action against that paper for such "mischievous" writings. He says that the league further hoped that all self-respecting individuals and associations would withhold their patronage from that paper.

The Madras Mail.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1916.

78. In a leader under this heading, the Andhrapatrika, of the 22nd November, has the following comments on the interpellation in the Legislative Council by the Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. Ramachendra Rao on the subject and the reply of the Government thereto:—It is said that, by the breaches, the irrigation—probably, the irrigation which gives the right to collect taxes is meant — has not seriously suffered. Is this statement meant to be taken advantage of when the question of remission arises? Can it mean anything else? Immediately after is added the statement that the details are not known. What is the purpose of this special addition? The Government authorities do not know the exact measure of distress, but they have appointed three Revenue Inspectors in the Kaikalur taluk and one in the Tanuku taluk for attending to remission work from the 15th November in the tracts subject to floods . . . . It is plain that the authorities did not disclose even what they have known in connection with the loss occasioned in Kurnool. . . . . The Collector sent a telegram on the 31st October, and another on the 3rd November giving many details of the distress. On the same day he despatched a long letter containing graphic details of the damage sustained by Kurnool. Are we to suppose that the authority that gave a reply to the Honourable Member had been ignorant of this letter? How the Secretary that had the cleverness to give the Curt reply "flood relief should be like famine relief", to the Collector, has failed to bring to the notice of the member concerned facts that transpired before the 11th and were published in a Government order, dated the 18, why, when the Hon'ble Rao Bahadur Ramachendra Rao expressed his dissatisfaction at the reply given to his question, the Hon'ble Mr. Gillman failed to give him some satisfaction by briefly acquainting him with the contents of the Kurnool Collector's letter, why Mr. Ramachendra Rao had to state that his question referred to Kistna and Guntūr, and how in the light of it the President lost sight of the original question, are things quite strange and unintelligible to us. Is all this confusion on the part of the representatives of the Government due to a fear that the prestige of the Government would be at stake in the event of the Kurnool Collector's liberality coming to light and stimulating a severe criticism of the adverse remarks of the Secretary and the lethargic indifference of the Collectors of Kistna and Guntūr? The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur Ramachendra Rao—we do not know if the Hon'ble Mr. Gillman also who is under the control of the Secretary is labouring under the same difficulty—did not perhaps know anything about the Kurnool Collector's letter, or he did not carefully consider the chronology of the events, and his question, to be satisfied with the easy explanation of the Government.

Floods and the authorities.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras. Nov. 22nd, 1916.

VOKKALIGARA PATRIKE, Bangalore, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

Government aid to industries.

79. The Vokkaligara Patrike, of the 22nd November, writes:—Those who contend that the Government must not directly or indirectly help private industries, will not fail to be astounded by what has been achieved by the Australian Government in this respect. Mr. Hughes was able to tell the representatives of the Agricultural and Trades Associations of Scotland the other day about what has been done by his Government for industries of late. After the outbreak of the war the wheat outturn has nearly doubled. This is wholly due to the encouragement received from Government. Sugar cultivation under similar encouragement has yielded nearly three times the usual outturn. Metal industries have likewise progressed remarkably well. But for Government aid such progress could scarcely have been possible. The economic greatness of European countries is wholly due to the assistance which they receive from Government in regard to trade and industries. Unlike these countries, India has no dearth of raw products. We have, therefore, exceptional advantages for industrial development. Our (Mysore) Government are, no doubt, doing something in this direction through the newly-organised Industries department. It seems to us, however, that in the case of the larger industries it is imperative that the Government should themselves pioneer.

MYSORE STAR, Mysore, Nov. 19th, 1916.

Dacoities in Bengal.

80. Referring to the frequent reports of dacoities in Bengal, the Mysore Star, of the 19th November, writes:—These desperadoes in Bengal are proving a source of terror to rich men, annoyance to the police and panic to the public. Every true lover of the country will naturally condemn these misdeeds as strongly as do the Government themselves. It can scarcely be possible to put an end to their depredations without the active co-operation of the people. As the people are all unarmed owing to the rigour of the Arms Act, these dacoits are free to go on as they like. When Bengal could not be restored to its tranquility even under so popular a Governor as Lord Carmichael, it is impossible to predict what the state of the province will be in future.

SAMPAD ABHYUDAYA, Mysore, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

The internments in Bengal.

81. The Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 23rd November, writes:—Under the British administration ordinarily every one is able to obtain justice. Belgium is under martial law. But owing to the traditions of France and England martial law has not been resorted to as yet in these countries. On discovering signs of anarchist activity in India, some attempts were made here, too, to introduce war measures, to harass innocents (sic). But our benign Government refused to promulgate such measures. As there is no proper defence of realm measure in India, the people are urging the appointment of committees to enquire into the internment orders against a disarmed people. Lord Carmichael assured at a Darbar at Dacca, that no person will be arrested without proper evidence. But despite the kind and generous assurances of Lord Carmichael there has since been an enormous increase in the number of searches, arrests and internments. The Government, perhaps, suppose that anarchy and sedition can be put down by this means. But there is no ground to make this supposition. For when posters headed "Swadina Bharata" were being put up in the streets of Calcutta, the Government did not arrest the culprits while the offence was actually committed. The internment of innocent people, instead, would inevitably have the effect of enraging even those who had the good sense to keep aloof till now.

SWADESHABHIMANI, Mangalore, Nov. 17th, 1916.

Grain compensation to village karnams.

82. In an article dwelling on the grievances of the village karnam, namely, that he is one of the most hard-worked of public servants, that unlike other officers, he is not entitled to privilege leave even during illness, that he must spend from his own pocket for stationery articles, that he is at the mercy of almost every officer of the Land Records, Forest, Police, Abkāri and Revenue departments, that he is forbidden to engage himself in any other occupation during his leisure hours in order to add something to his exceedingly small income, and that he is denied even a second-class travelling batta, a correspondent of the Swadeshabhimani, of the 17th November, observes that while in all other departments, from the officers down to the peon, every servant of the Government gets some allowance appropriate to his station, it is unfortunate that the karnams, who form the foundation, as it were, of the Revenue department which is the most important branch of the administration, notwithstanding their numerous heavy duties which keep them at work day and night, should receive no allowance whatever. The writer urges that as there is no likelihood of their being granted any other concession at present, it may be hoped that at least the privilege of obtaining compensation for dearness of food-stuffs which has just been granted to teachers of Local Board schools may be extended to karnams.

Indian representation in the British Parliament.

83. The Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 23rd November, writes :—The French possessions in India have for many years been sending their representatives to the French Parliament. On the outbreak of the war they admitted their Indian subjects to the army on a footing of perfect equality with their own race in the matter of pay and allowances. Now the Portuguese Government have likewise arranged to admit Indian representatives to their Senate at Lisbon. It is unfortunate that although India is many times larger than Britain in extent, the British Government have bestowed no thought on the question of admitting Indians to the Parliament. When the Indians have made such enormous sacrifices of life and wealth in the present crisis, it would be no great thing to grant this privilege. We hope that the Government will not fail to consider this question.

SAMPAD ABHYUDAYA, Mysore, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

Delay in the disposal of cases.

84. The Yogakshemam, of the 17th November, points out that the delay in the disposal of cases, frequently referred to by the various High Courts, and now severely criticised by the Privy Council itself, is to be attributed to the absence of panchayat courts to try and dispose of petty cases, and not to the increase in the volume of litigation, or to the mode of conducting cases by certain vakils, and hopes that the recommendations of the Decentralisation Commission on this subject will soon be given effect to.

YOGAKSHEMAM, Trichur, Nov. 17th, 1916.

The partition of Malabar.

85. The Bharata Kesari, of the 18th November, refers to the discussions going on regarding the proposed partition of Malabar, and points out that from an administrative point of view, it would be far better to join that portion of the Kasargod taluk, which is occupied by the Malayalies to Malabar than to South Canara.

BHARATA KESARI, Trivandrum, Nov. 18th, 1916.

India needs ships of her own.

86. The Yogakshemam, of the 17th November, points out that, unless and until India possesses a large number of ships of her own, her trade and industries cannot but be in a backward condition, and hopes that endeavours will be made to remedy this evil.

YOGAKSHAMAM, Trichur, Nov. 17th, 1916.

The need for an Indian navy.

Referring to the resolution passed by the people of the Central Provinces regarding the creation of a Naval department in India, the Keralodayam, of the 21st November, points out that it is the duty of the Government of India to do so, and thereby enable themselves not to depend on England for resisting an enemy attack by sea, and believes that, if a similar resolution be passed at the next congress, the authorities will not refuse to grant the prayer of Indians regarding the maintenance of a separate Indian navy as in the other parts of the empire.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 21st, 1916.

Mrs. Besant and the Central Provinces Government.

87. The Keralodayam, of the 21st November, points out that the reply of the Government of the Central Provinces to the interpellation of the Hon'ble Mr. Joshi on the subject of the exclusion of Mrs. Besant from the Central Provinces, makes it clear that they never intended to interfere with the religious liberty of the people, and thinks that, if in the opinion of the Government her speeches are likely to cause trouble, they cannot be said to have been wrong in having taken precautionary measures.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 21st, 1916.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 7th, 1916.

The Industrial Commission.

88. Referring to the sittings of the Industrial Commission, the Keralodayam,* of the 7th November, writes in a strain more or less similar to that of the Hindu of the 31st October reported on page 1918 of report No. 45, and adds that its members should bear in mind that the very object of the Commission is to find out the means of improving Indian industries, and that it is no business of theirs to consider how far the growth of Indian industries will affect English and Colonial trade and industries.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 7th, 1916.

The Chiefs' Conference.

89. Referring to the Chiefs' Conference at Delhi, the Keralodoyam,* of the 7th November, points out that though the Native Chiefs have no right to interfere with the affairs of the Government of India, their advice and co-operation should be sought in all Imperial matters, and observes that for the welfare of India it is highly necessary to make this conference a permanent institution, though some of the congress leaders, who clamour for self-government, may contend that the Native Chiefs should have no voice in the affairs of the empire, because it will tend to delay the granting of self-government to India.

QAUMI REPORT, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1916.

"Madrassi or an outsider."

90. The Qaumi Report, of the 16th November, writes:—We recently drew attention to the fact that there is a rumour that Saiyid Shams-ul-Huda is to be appointed a member of the Madras Council. This was only a rumour, and we were certain that the vacancy would surely be filled up by a Muhammadan this time.

But the Muslim Anjuman of Muthialpet, which always asserts itself out of season, could not listen even to this rumour patiently but expressed the extraordinary opinion that no Muhammadan should be brought in from outside Madras. On the contrary such a Muhammadan should be appointed who is a man of good report among the Hindus and Muhammadans of Southern India. What an excellent suggestion! "I swear by God whatever is said is open to criticism." The Muslim Anjuman is an extraordinary institution with extraordinary views. We wish, however, to inform it that Islam is not extraordinary, it draws no distinction between the indigenous and the foreign article. If it does not approve of a Muhammadan simply because he happens to be a Bengali, Punjabi or a Guzrati, it is dealing a death-blow to the principles of Islam. "In Islam whether Persian or Turanian there should be love."

We regret that the Muslim Anjuman puts forward the argument that an outsider is likely to be unacquainted with our circumstances. But does it mean that there is a separate God and Apostle for us Mussalmans? Surely a Mussalman, whoever and wherever he may be, will always have the characteristics of fraternity and fellow-feeling. It is not necessary, however, for us to labour the point, for the political reasoning of Muslim Anjuman is entirely wrong.

The object of becoming a member of the Government is to render service to the people in general, and it will not matter if one is not well posted in the condition of Southern India.

The Muslim Anjuman has not drawn a distinction between a Mussalman member and a member for Mussalmans and has given an extraordinary colouring to an ordinary matter. Presumably the Muslim Anjuman has not considered the services rendered by the learned Justice Abdur Rahim who, although he is not a native of Madras it is an open secret, is well acquainted with and sympathetic towards the Mussalmans of the Muslim Anjumans. Will the Muslim Anjuman dare to attempt to persuade the public that he possesses any disqualification?

We think it inadvisable to create discord among Mussalmans to separate them according to geographical divisions.

Mussalmans, according to the Koran, are brethren. Neither sea nor mountain, nor colour nor dress can destroy their spiritual brotherhood. What kind of Muslim Anjuman is this that raises the question of local man or an outsider? How can the outsiders, whose hearts have been joined together by God and whose souls have been tinged with unity by the great Apostle and who have been bound together by the cords of the Koran, be separated and regarded as outsiders?

---

* Received this week.

Mussalmans heartily desire and Islam strongly urges that it matters not whether Sir Shams-ul-Huda from Bengal or Mr. Hydari from Hyderabad, who is in every way qualified for the appointment, is brought in. Lord Farukh Hedley may be brought from England, or any one from British Africa who is properly qualified, and appointed a member of the Madras Government. They are all our brethren and we are ready to welcome them.

IV.—Native States.

Economic development in Mysore.

91. In an article dwelling on the poverty of the cultivating classes, the Vokkaligara Patrike, of the 22nd November, says:—The only method of improving the economic condition of our masses is to increase their earning capacity, not through the present policy of putting the cart before the horse, as we see it done by wasting the resources of Government on railway extension and the Industries department, but through more extensive irrigation works and the spread of technical education as they do in western countries. We say this not because we think the Government ignorant of the importance of irrigation and technical education, but because we feel that their policy fails to show that they are sufficiently mindful of it. Further, the down-trodden condition of the peasantry ought to be ascribed chiefly to the present systems of cultivation. The system of granting lands on darkhast to the highest bidder has the serious disadvantage of introducing a middleman who, as a rule, grinds down the real tillers of the soil. It is, therefore, imperative that means should be devised for preventing the idle capitalist from getting the proprietorship of new areas to be brought under cultivation in preference to the actual cultivators

Vokkaligara Patrike, Bangalore, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

Mysore industries.

92. In an article under this heading in English, the Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 22nd November, writes:—It is gratifying to note that the Government have now turned their attention to a large number of subsidiary industries—industries which can be learnt in a few weeks, if not months, and industries which will enable the people who learn them, to earn a decent livelihood. Last year, the Government sanctioned Rs. 10,000 for the purpose. The success of these industries was so manifest at the last Dasara Exhibition, that the Government thought that the amounts spent on these industries would materially add to the wealth of the State. And we are glad to learn that the Government have now sanctioned Rs. 40,000 to encourage these industries. This allotment will enable the Home Industries Committee to minimise the number of idle men and women in the State. They will enable workless people to find profitable engagement. There are some pessimists who indulge in gospels of despair, whenever the employment of State money to such useful purposes is undertaken. They say nothing and they even countenance unproductive expenditure, when lakhs and crores are spent on dinners, amusements, etc. They, however, cry hoarse when works calculated to increase the wealth of the country are intended to be promoted. This is the nature of selfish philosophers. The Government may shut its ears against their croakings and proceed ahead to give life to all subsidiary industries, for which there is a demand. We are confident that most of these subsidiary industries are very useful and deserve encouragement.

Sampad Abyudaya, Mysore, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

"The Hyderabad Residency Plague Regulations need revision by the Honourable the Resident"

93. The Mushir-i-Dakhan, of the 21st November, writes:—The Residency regulations relating to the burial of persons dying from plague have been published for general information in all the local papers.

When these regulations are compared with those of His Highness' Government they are found to be rather severe.

Mushir-i-Dakhan, Hyderabad, Nov. 21st, 1916.

When these regulations were framed it was very essential that consideration should have been shown for the natural feelings of the people. It is only natural that when a death occurs in a person's house he feels it very much and is generally bowed down with grief. To compel him to obtain a certificate at such a time is utterly opposed to what his distressed condition demands. Facilities for the treatment or observation of plague cases and for the burial of the dead, such as have been granted by His Highness' Government, shoul be afforded to the inhabitants of the Residency bazaars. In other words, the regulations that have been enforced in Hyderabad should also be introduced in the Residency, because the people who live in the Residency limits, are also considered to be, if not directly, at any rate, indirectly the subjects of His Highness.

Therefore to subject one section of the people to one sort of regulations and another section to another appears to be legally unsound. It is obvious that regulations which are mild and easy make the people to whom they apply more amenable to law than those upon whom more exacting rules are enforced.

In these circumstances the Mushir-i-Dakhan says "We hope our considerate and popular Resident will issue orders for the introduction of the Nizam's Government Plague Regulations in the Residency limits, and thus place the people of the Residency bazaars under the debt of gratitude to him.

MUSHIR-I-DAKHAN, Hyderabad, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

The Mushir-i-Dukhan, of the 22nd November, reiterates its opinion as regards the Plague Regulations, and adds that the inhabitants of the Residency bazaars intend to submit to the Honourable Resident a petition on the subject which, it is hoped, he will not hesitate to grant.

ERRATA.

Report No. 47.

Page 2022, paragraph 32, line 17, from the bottom, for "indicated" read "vindicated".

" 2029 " 52 " 1, for "reports :—Sir" read "reports Sir".

" 2030 " 53 " 4, for "press" read "Press".

" 2030 " 53, lines 7 and 14, for "Barada" read "Bharata".

Issued, 28th November 1916.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 49 of 1916.

REPORT
ON
ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS EXAMINED BY THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT, MADRAS,
AND ON
VERNACULAR PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS
for the Week ending 2nd December 1916.

District Magistrates and Political Agents are requested to send to the Chief Secretary to Government, Judicial Department, a brief report of any local complaint which appears to them to call for notice, explaining whether the facts are as stated; what action, if any, is being taken; and, if the facts alleged are incorrect, what is believed to be the origin of the report and what the correct facts are.

CONTENTS.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

	PAGE
Another opportunity for Dr. Wilson	2103

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—
The cost of the C.I.D.	ib.
The District Superintendent of Police, Tanjore	ib.
(b) Courts—
New India security case	ib.
The Madras Mail and the Tilak appeal case	2104
The Fort station fracas cases	ib.
(d) Education—
The Convocation address	2105
The Madras University	2106
The Vice-Chancellor of the Madras University	2107
The Indian Institute of Science	ib.
College strikes	ib.
(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—
The re-settlement grievance	2108
Indians and the Board of Revenue	ib.
(j) Salt and Abkāri—
Liquor shops in the Presidency	2109
(k) General—
The Indian Civil Service	ib.
The Madras Executive Council	ib.
The Madras Legislative Council	2110
The increased telegraphic charges	2112
The treatment of wounded soldiers in India	ib.
The stupidities of censors	ib.
The cost of vices	2113
The Animal Show	ib.
The Arms Act	ib.
New India and the Indian Press Act	2114
The Defence of India Act in the Madras Presidency	ib.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur Annamalai Chetti	2115
The Cuddapah District Conference	ib.
Theosophy in neutral countries	ib.
Swiss Missionaries	2116
Resolutions in the Madras Legislative Council	ib.
Brahmans and non-Brahmans	ib.
The Governor-designate of Bengal	2117
Moulana Abul Kalam Asad	2118
The Press Act again	ib.
Indentured emigration	ib.
The Government and the Legislative Council	ib.
Lokamanya Tilak	2120
Government is always by the few	ib.

III.—Legislation.

PAGE

Private Members' Bills 2121

IV.—Native States

The Director of Public Instruction, Travancore 2122

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

The condition of Indian coolies in Ceylon 2123
Rumania .. .. ib.
Self-government and the Phillippine Islands .. .. ib.
The new Belgian armies and the war in Europe 2124

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—
Motor driving .. .. ib.
(b) Courts—
Corruption in some courts in the Guntūr district 2125
Mr. Tilak's appeal .. .. ib.
A Police Superintendent and a boy .. .. ib.
(d) Education—
The last meeting of the Senate of the Madras University .. .. ib.
Educational reforms 2126
The Convocation address .. .. ib.
The Patna University Bill 2127
The Bombay School Final and Matriculation examinations .. .. ib.
A new order .. .. ib.
The generosity of His Highness the Nizam of the Dakhan towards the establishment of a Muslim College in Southern India .. .. ib.
(e) Local and Municipal—
A Unani dispensary at Madura .. .. ib.
Presidents of taluk boards 2128
A new sanction by the Corporation of Madras .. .. ib.
(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—
The rules regarding the remission of taxes 2129
(h) Railways—
The Pakkam and Mailam disasters .. .. ib.
Railway cess in South Canara .. .. ib.
Something calling for the attention of the Railway authorities at Hyderabad .. ib.
(k) General—
Sir Rabindranath Tagore and Canada 2130
Stray notes .. .. ib.
An Indian Member for the Board of Revenue 2131
The last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council .. .. ib.
Damages caused by the floods in the Salem and Kurnool districts 2133
The successor of the Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar .. .. ib.
The Defence of India Act in Madras 2134
Popular freedom in time of war .. .. ib.
The successor of Lord Carmichael in Bengal .. .. ib.
Excise revenue and the Government .. .. ib.
Relief during the time of floods 2135
The Criminal Investigation Department officers and Educational institutions .. ib.
The Madras Mail .. .. ib.
The recent meeting of the Legislative Council .. .. ib.
Touring expenses 2136
The New Statesman .. .. ib.
Indian Civil Service .. .. ib.
Rhodes' scholarships .. .. ib.
The Legislative Council .. .. ib.
The Kistna delta 2137
Floods and cyclone disaster .. .. ib.
Slaughter of cows .. .. ib.
Separation of Judicial and Executive functions .. .. ib.
The partition of the South Canara district 2138
The Oriental Manuscript Library .. .. ib.
The post-war reforms .. .. ib.
The reforms 2139
The Calicut Municipal Hospital 2140
Mr. Tilak and the Madras Mail .. .. ib.
The French Government and the recent cyclone .. .. ib.
The secret of the Muhammadan public library .. .. ib.
Our differences 2141

III.—Legislation.

The Madras Legislative Council .. .. ib.

IV.—Native States.

The Baroda Representative Assembly 2142
The local fund administration in Mysore .. .. ib.
The municipal administration in Mysore 2143

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS PUBLISHED IN THE MADRAS PRESIDENCY, THE NATIVE STATES OF HYDERABAD, MYSORE, TRAVANCORE, COCHIN AND PUDUKKOTTAI, AND THE FRENCH TERRITORIES OF PONDICHERRY AND KARIKAL.

[NOTE.—Among the Indian-owned newspapers, those classed as dealing with politics are printed in big type. Officers, in whose jurisdiction they are published, are requested to pay special attention to these papers, and send immediate reports of any changes in them to the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Railways and Criminal Investigation Department, Madras.]

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
1	Abhinavasaraswati	Telugu.	Chandrika Press, Guntur ..	Monthly ..	Janapati Pattábhiráma Sástri, Brahman, 45 years.	325
2	Adyar Bulletin ..	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	1,200
3	Agricultural Pamphlet.	Tamil ..	Alexandra Press, Kumbakónam.	Do. ..	R. Srinivasa Ayyangar, 43 years, and Subrahmaniya Ayyar, 40 years, Brahmans.	600
4	Agriculture	Telugu.	Published at Ellore, printed at Scape & Co's Press, Cocanada, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Rao Sahib G. Náráyanaswámi Nayudu, B.A., Sudra, 50 years.	255
5	Agriculturist	Tamil .	Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. R. Ranga Raju, Balija, 41 years.	1,000
6	A'in-i-Deccan	Urdu ..	A'in-i-Deccan Press, Begam Bazaar, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Maulvi Inayat Husain Khan Sahib, Afghan, 41 years.	750
7	Aksharanjali	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Sri Kantayya, Brahman, 35 years.	600
8	Al-Mazmún	Urdu ..	Alavi Press, Royapettu, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Ansar-ud-din Sahib Bakhud, Muhammadan, 35 years.	400
9	Ananda*	Canarese	Victoria Printing Works, Bantwal, South Canara district.	Fortnightly.	M. N. Kamath, Brahman ..	Not known.
10	Ananda Bodhini ..	Tamil ..	P. R. Rama Ayyar & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Muniswami Mudaliyar, Vellala, 31 years.	1,000
11	Andra Advocate ..	English.	Basel Printing Works, Vizagapatam.	Weekly ..	Nyayapati Rangamannar, Vyshnava, 30 years.	450
12	Andhra Chandrika	Telugu.	Andhra Chandrika Press, Prodatur, Cuddapah district.	Do. ..	B. Narayanaswami, Brahman, 23 years.	600
13	Andhra Patrika ..	Anglo-Telugu.	Andhra Patrika Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and weekly	K. Nageswara Rao, Brahman, 46 years, and G. Harisarvottama Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	3,000
14	Andhraprakasika.	Telugu.	Hindu Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	A. C. Párthasárathi Nayudu, Balija, 62 years.	500
15	Andhra Sahitya Parishad Patrika.	Do.	Published at the Telugu Academy office, 12 Arunachella Nayakan Road, Chintadripet, printed at Srinivasa Varadachari & Co's Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Surria Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	300
16	Andhra Samrakshani.	Do.	Kamala Printing Works Cocanada, Godávari district.	Do. ..	G. Harischandra Rao, Brahman, 32 years.	500
17	Anglo-Indian ..	English.	Published at the Anglo-Indian Association premises, Egmore, printed at Vest & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	Felix Alexander D'Cruz, Anglo-Indian, 59 years.	800
18	Antiseptic	Do.	Published at No. 323, Thumbu Chetty Street, printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. Nayar, Nayar, 46 years.	400
19	Arogyam	Telugu.	Sarasvati Press, Cocanada ..	Do. ..	V. Gopala Krishna Rao, Brahman, 29 years.	500
20	Arunodayam	Tamil ..	Church of Sweden Mission Press, Tranquebar, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	Rev D. Bexell, European, 54 years.	750
21	Arya	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	Arabindo Ghose, Kayastha, 45 years, Paul Richard, 49 years, and Madame Richard, French.	750
22	Aryabala Samaj Magazine.	Do.	Krishnaraja Vani Vilas Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	G. Virupakshayya, Brahman, 23 years.	100
23	Arya Dharmam ..	Tamil ..	Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	T. K. Balasubrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 48 years.	200
24	Arya Dharma Prakásam.	Canarese	Sri Lakshmi Vilasa Press, Nadahalli, Mysore State.	Do. ..	N. Narasappana Venkappa, Brahman, 34 years.	400

*Started, 3rd April 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
25	Arya Mahilá	Canarese	Published at Nanjangud (Mysore) and printed at the Royal Press, Mysore.	Monthly..	M. Sitarama Jois, Brahman, 22 years.	250
26	Arya Vysya ..	Anglo-Telugu	Arya Vysya Press, Guntur ..	Weekly ..	S. Ramaswami Gupta, Vysya, 52 years.	350
27	Asha	Uriya	Asha Press, Berhampur ..	Do. ..	S. B. Rotho, Brahman, 31 years.	1,000
28	Atma Poshini ..	Malayalam	Akshararatna Prakasika Press, Kunnankulam, Cochin State	Monthly ..	Rev. P. I. Joseph, Syrian Christian, 26 years.	700
29	Bala Dutan or Children's Herald.	Tamil ..	Published at Nazareth, printed at the Darling Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Joseph A. Jesudasan, Indian Christian, 48 years.	3,000
30	Bala Mitra or Children's Friend.	Telugu.	Christain Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, European, 35 years.	2,500
31	Balamitram	Malayalam.	Nicholas Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	G. E. Thadaeus, Indian Christian, 59 years.	500
32	Baliyar Mittiran or Children's Friend.	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. R. Robertson, European ..	7,500
33	Baliyar Nesan or Children's Magazine.	Do. ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Rev. R. V. Asirvadam, Indian Christian, 45 years.	6,500
34	Bar, Platform and Pulpit.	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	J. Dartnell, Eurasian, 39 years..	200
35	Basel Mission College Magazine.*	English and Malayalam occasionally.	Norman Printing Bureau, Calicut.	Eight times a year.	W. E. Hoare, Englishman, 52 years.	300
36	Bhakti Sondeeha † ..	Canarese	Caxton Press, Bangalore City	Monthly ..	Sri Dattabreya Krishna Bharadwaja	Not known.
37	Bhanu ‡	Anglo-Malayalam.	Vidya Vinodhini Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. K. K. Srinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 26 years.	500
38	Bharata Kesari § ..	Do.	Sarasvati Vilasam Press, Puthenchanthai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Velu Pillai, Nayar, 33 years.	1,300
39	Bharatamata ..	Telugu.	Sri Virayogindra Press, Vizianagram.	Weekly ..	Voruganti Venkata Somayajulu, Brahman, 37 years.	400
40	Bharati ‖	Tamil ..	Published at 5, Oolagappa Maistri Street, Chintadripet, and printed at the Visvakulatharana Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Do. ..	T. Krishnaswami Pavalar, Gramani, 27 years.	500
41	Bharati	Canarese	Vani Vilas Press, Bellary ..	Do. ..	K. M. Karibasavayya, Lingayat, 33 years.	200
42	Bhárati Vilás	Do	Bhuvaneswari Press, Mysore..	Monthly..	A. Krishna Dikshit, Brahman, 30 years.	200
43	Bhuloka Vyasan ..	Tamil ..	Bhuloka Vyasan Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Muthuvira Navalar, Valluvan, 52 years.	220
44	Bible Faith Mission Standard.	English.	Hogarth Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Once in two months.	Charles R. Vedanta Achari, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
45	Bódhaka Bôdhini ..	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	225
46	Bodhini	Do.	Prabhakara Press, Udipi, South Canara District.	Do. ..	T. Mangesh Rao, 40 years, and M. N. Kamath, 35 years, Brahmans.	750
47	Brothers of the Star ..	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar, Chingleput district.	Do. ..	Dr. H. Rocke, English, 49 years.	5,000
48	Carlylean	Do.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Fortnightly.	T. Sriramulu, B.A., Brahman, 40 years.	200
49	Catholic Friend. ¶	Do.	Published at the Lus Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. M. Motha Vas, Singhalese Christian, 32 years.	..
50	Catholic Messenger ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Deepika Press, Kuruvalangad, Travancore State.	Do. ..	E. A. Nidhiri, B.A., Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,200
51	Catholic Mitramu or Catholic Friend. ‖	Telugu.	Published at the Lus Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. M. Motha Vas, Singhalese Christian, 32 years.	..
52	Catholic Nesan or Catholic Friend.	Tamil ..	Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	..
53	Catholic Register.	English.	Published at San Thomé, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. M. Teixera, Portuguese, 36 years.	350

* Discontinued, April 1916. † Started, August 1916. ‡ Started, 21st May 1916, and discontinued in July 1916.
§ Started, February 1916. ‖ Temporarily discontinued, April 1916. ¶ Started, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
54	Catholic Watchman.	English.	Published at the Catholic Supply Society, Popham's Broadway, Georgetown, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father Kuss, European ..	400
55	Chakravarthi ..	Malayalam.	Chakravarthi Press, Muttancherry, Cochin State	Do. ..	K. Janadhana Menon, Sudra, 30 years.	550
56	Chakravartini ..	Tamil ..	Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswaran ettah, Madras.	Monthly..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 52 years.	200
57	Childrens' Friend ..	Anglo-Tamil.	St. Mary's School Press, Cuddalore.	Do. ..	Amirdesa Mudali alias Murugesa Mudali, Vallala, 28 years.	Not known.
58	Choudari *	Telugu.	Ramamohan Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Garapati Anjaneya Choudari, Kamma, 30 years.	Do.
59	Christ Church, Madras, Monthly Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras	Do. ..	Rev. F. B. Heiser, M.A., European, 40 years.	250
60	Christian College Magazine.	Do.	Do. do.	Do. ..	S. J. Crawford, M.A., European	400
61	Christian Patriot.	Do.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	R. A. Dason, Indian Christian, 24 years.	600
62	Church Mission College Magazine.	Do.	Darling Printing Press, Tinnevelly.	Quarterly.	J. Jnanamuthu, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 50 years.	550
63	Cochin Argus ..	Do.	Cochin Argus Press, British Cochin.	Weekly .	C. Hamilton Pereira, Anglo-Indian, 47 years.	300
64	Commercial World Advertiser. †	Anglo-Tamil—Telugu	Published at 41, Avadanam Papayya Street, Choolai, printed at the Presidency Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Chakrapani Pillai, Yadhuva, 38 years.	1,000
65	Commonweal ..	English.	Besant Press, New India Buildings, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	7,000
66	Conch ‡	Do.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore.	Do. ..	Raman Pillai, Nayar, 40 years..	400
67	Contemporary Law Review.	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman. 35 years.	600
68	Co-operative Bulletin ..	Canarese	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Do. ..	K. S. Krishna Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	500
69	Criminal Law Reporter.	English.	Law Notes Press, Parvatipur, Vizagapatam district.	Do. ..	P. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 55 years, good.	Not stated.
70	Criminal Law Review..	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	600
71	Daily Post ..	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Daily (two editions).	T. M. Babington, European, 58 years.	3,000
72	Deccan Law Report ..	Urdu ..	Deccan Law Report Press, Troop Bazaar, Jam Bagh, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Akbar Khan Sahib, Muhammadan, 37 years.	1,000
73	Desabhimani ..	Anglo-Tamil.	Patriot Press, Cuddalore New Town.	Weekly ..	P. T. Tiruvenkata Achari, Brahman, 31 years.	465
74	Do. ..	Telugu.	Desabhimani Press, Guntúr ..	Do. ..	D. Séshachalapathi Rao, Brahman. 47 years.	300
75	Do. ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Sri Krishna Vilasam Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do. ..	T. K. Narayanan, Ezhava, 30 years.	1,600
76	Desamata	Telugu.	Manorama Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	Rayavarapu Ramamurti, Brahman, 44 years.	700
77	Desseya Missionary Prakasika.	Do..	Sujanaranjani Press, Cocanada.	Once in two months.	Rev. N. Abraham, Indian Christian, 40 years.	1,000
78	Desseya Missionary Patrika.	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Do.	H. Sumitra, Indian Christian ..	500
79	Dhanurdhari ..	Do.	Sachchidananda Press, Davangere, Mysore State.	Fortnightly.	M. Munjappa Hardaikar, Lingayat, 31 years.	400
80	Dhánvantari	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	P. Sankunni Varriar, Variyan, 46 years.	395
81	Dharma Poshini.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Manomohanam Press, Quilon, Travancore State.	Bi-monthly.	R. Madhavan Onnithan, Nayar, 38 years.	950
82	Dharma Prachara ..	English.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	A Mahadeva Sastri, Brahman, 54 years.	200
83	Dharmaprabhodhini. †	Telugu.	Sita Vilasa Press, Tenali, Guntur district.	Fortnightly.	B. J. Suryaprakasa, Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	250
84	Dharmasadhini ..	Do.	Scope & Co.'s Press, Cocanada.	Do.	P. Narasimham, Brahman, 39 years	500
85	Digest of Indian Case Law.	English.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	1,500
86	Disciple	Do.	Vasantha Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Quarterly.	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	2,000
87	Divyagnana Dipika or Organ of Theosophy.	Telugu.	Victoria Jubilee Press, Chittoor.	Monthly..	P. Narasimhayya, 59 years, and J. Srinivasa Rao, 64 years, Brahmans.	1,200

* Started, June 1916. † Not published for the last two years. ‡ Started, 16th August 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
88	Dravidabhimani ..	Tamil ..	Dravidabhimani Press, Salem.	Weekly ..	D. A. John Nadar, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,000
89	Educational Review.	English.	Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly..	C. Srinivasa Achari, Brahman, 61 years	600
90	Elementary School Journal.	Telugu.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	V. Narasimharayudu, Brahman, 42 years.	1,500
91	Etatkalasatyam or Present Truth.	Malayalam.	Published at the South Indian Mission of Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk, and printed at the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. S. James, European, 37 years.	Not known.
92	Everyman's Review.†	English.	Kanara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Suryanarayanamurti, Brahman, 50 years.	100
93	Findlay College, Magazine.	Do.	Published at Mannargudi, Tanjore district, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Quarterly.	S. Narayana Ayyangar, M.A., and Kadaji Rao, B.A., Brahmans.	400
94	Friendly Instructor ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah,	Monthly..	Rev. D. Pakkianathan, Indian Christian, 63 years.	1,050
95	George Gazette ..	Urdu ..	Muhammadi Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	M. Abdul Basith, Muhammadan, 39 years.	400
96	Gopala Krishnan ..	Malayalam.	M. V. Press, Palghat	Monthly..	P. Chippa Kutty Nayar, Nayar, 25 years.	400
97	Gospel Witness ..	English.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Do. ..	Rev. Victor McCauley, American, 41 years.	350
98	Grihalakshmi	Telugu.	Manjuvani Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	N. Chelapati Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
99	Harvest Field	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	645
100	Hindu	Do.	National Press, Wallajah Road, Madras.	Daily, triweekly & weekly.	S. Kasturiranga Ayyangar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 51 years.	6,100
101	Hindu Nesan ..	Tamil ..	South Indian Press, 13, Narasingapuram Street, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	S. Srinivasa Venkata Achari, Brahman	1,500
102	Hindu Sundari ..	Telugu.	Vidyartini Samaj Press, Cocanada.	Monthly ..	B. Seshamma, 37 years, and M. Chaddamma, 32 years, Brahmans.	500
103	Hitakarini	Tamil ..	Published at 14, Kennedy Street, Mylapore, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	Visalakshi Ammal, Brahman, 36 years.	1,000
104	Do.	Telugu.	Hitakarini Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	M. L. Narasimha Sarma, Brahman, 33 years.	400
105	Hitavadi	Do.	Church Missionary Society, Dove Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly..	Rev. D. Anantam, B.A., Indian Christian, 65 years.	550
106	Humanity	English.	India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Punnayya, Brahman, 29 years.	400
107	Illustrated Criminal Investigation and Law Digest.	Do.	Criminal Investigation Press, Vellore, North Arcot district.	Do.	T. K. Sundara Ayyar, Brahman, 44 years.	1,400
108	Indian Advertiser.	French, English and Tamil.	Jagannatha Press, Pondicherry.	Monthly..	N. Rajalu Reddi, Reddi, 27 years.	100
109	Indian Christian.	English.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	W. C. Irvine, European, 41 years.	1,100
110	Indian Christian Endeavour.	Do.	Published in Bangalore, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Halliwell, European, 44 years.	500
111	Indian Church News and Review. ‡	Do.	Hogarth Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	D. David, Indian Christian, 43 years.	300
112	Indian Emigrant ..	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. K. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 34 years.	300
113	Indian Engineer.	Do.	Published at 2 and 3, Raja's Buildings, Armenian Street, and printed at the Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. R. Venkatesa Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	1,000
114	Indian Interpreter ..	Do.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. N. Macnicol, M.A., 47 years, and Rev. A. Robertson, M.A., 44 years, Europeans.	600
115	Indian Ladies' Magazine.	Do.	Published at "Histoy", San Thomé, Mylapore, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	Mrs. K. Sathianadhan, Indian Christian, 44 years.	300
116	Indian Law Gazette.	Tamil ..	Indian Law Gazette Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly..	C. Paramasiva Mudali, Vellala, 46 years.	130

* Started, July 1916. † Started, January 1916. ‡ Discontinued, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
117	Indian Law Quarterly ..	English.	Published at 14 and 15, Lee Church Road, Mylapore, printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Quarterly.	P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	500
118	Indian Patriot ..	Do.	Indian Patriot Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and tri-weekly.	Diwan Bahadur C. Karunakara Menon, B.A., Nayar, 56 years.	900
119	Indian Railway Journal.	Do.	Published at Triplicane, printed by Pavar & Co.'s Press, Patter's Road, Madras.	Monthly..	S. K. Subba Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	150
120	Indian Review ..	Do.	G. A. Natesan & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Natesa Ayyar, B.A., F.M.U., Brahman, 47 years.	3,000
121	International Police Service Magazine.	Do.	Ambika Press, Park Town, Madras.	Do. ..	G. Kodandaramayya, M.A., Brahman, 56 years.	500
122	Janabhimani or People's Friend.	Tamil ..	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 48 years.	750
123	Jananukulan ..	Do. ..	Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore.	Weekly ..	T. V. Krishna Das, Vellala, 57 years.	1,000
124	Janmi	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	K. C. Manavikraman Tamburan, Samantan, 47 years.	330
125	Janopakari * ..	Tamil ..	Record Press, Vellore ..	Do. ..	V. R. Vaidyananda Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	..
126	Jnana Bhanu ..	Do. ..	Published at 8, Pichu Pillai, Street, Mylapore; printed at the Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswarapet, Madras.	Do. ..	Subrahmanya Siva, Brahman, 38 years.	350
127	Jaridah-i-Rozgar ..	Urdu ..	Hyderi Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Daily and weekly.	Muhammad Abdul Latif Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 37 years.	360
128	Journal of the Madras Agricultural Students' Union.	English.	Published at the Agricultural College, Coimbatore, printed at the Literary Sun Press, Coimbatore.	Monthly ..	D. Ananda Rao, Indian Christian, 34 years.	350
129	Journal of the Muhammadan Educational Association of Southern India.	Urdu ..	Published at 5, Francis Joseph Street, Georgetown, printed at the Islamia Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Abdul Hamid Hasan, B.A., LL.B., Muhammadan, 44 years.	500
130	Journal of the Tamil Scientific Terms Society.‖	Anglo-Tamil.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	C. Rajagopala Achari and R. G. Venkatasubba Ayyar, Brahmans.	100
131	Kadambari Sangraha ..	Canarese	Royal Press, Mysore ..	Do. ..	Venkataramana Sastri, Brahman, 28 years.	400
132	Kairali †	Malayalam.	Published at Ernakulam, printed at the Vidya Vinodhini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Sankara Menon, M.A., L.T., Nayar, 33 years.	800
133	Kalabhimani ‡ ..	Canarese	Caxton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Raghupati Achari, Brahman, 40 years.	1,000
134	Kala Chintamani ..	Tamil ..	Published at 4, Maliswaran Koil Street, Mylapore; printed at the Sivakami Vilasam Press, Choolai, Madras.	Do. ..	T. V. Kaliyana Sundara Mudali, Vellala, 35 years, good.	1,000
135	Kalai Magal ..	Do. ..	Imprimerie Louis Sinnaya de Saigon, Pondicherry.	Do. ..	S. Bangaru Pathar, Kammala, 42 years.	400
136	Kaliyuga Varthamani.	Do. ..	Kaviprakasa Ganeshananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly...	T. Muthuswami Chetti Vaisya, 23 years.	100
137	Kalpaka	English.	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	T. R. Sanjivi Rao, Brahman, 35 years.	730
138	Kannada Kogile § ..	Canarese	M. T. A. Sharada Press, Mangalore.	Do. ..	P. Bhoja Rao and M. Thimmappaya.	Not known.
139	Karnataka	English.	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Bi-weekly.	D. V. Gundappa, Brahman, 29 years.	350
140	Karnátaka Chandrike ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	N. Srikanta Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	600
141	Karnátaka Granthamále.	Do.	Graduates Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	B. Subba Rao, B.A., Brahman, 46 years.	300
142	Karnátaka Kávya Kalánidhi.	Do.	Srinivasa Press, Mysore ..	Do. ..	M. A. Ramanuja Ayyangar, Brahman, 51 years.	250
143	Karnataka Nandini ¶ ..	Do.	Published at the Sati Hitaishini office, Nanjangud, Mysore State; printed at the Sri Krishna Press, Hubli, Bombay Presidency.	Do. ..	N. Tirumalammal	Not known.
144	Karnataka Sahitya Parishad Patrike. §	Do.	Published by the Kannada Academy, and printed at the Irish Press, Bangalore City, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	R. Raghunatha Rao, Brahman ..	Do.

* Started, January 1916.
† Started, February 1916.
‡ Ceased to exist January 1916.
§ Started, April 1916.
‖ Started in 1916.
¶ Started, October 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
145	Katha Ratnakaram.	Tamil ..	Published at 162, Coral Merchant Street; printed at the Swadesamitiran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. A. Nelliappa Mudaliyar, Vellala, 30 years good.	400
146	Kavita .. ..	Telugu.	Vidwajjana Manoranjini Press, Pithapuram, Godavari district.	Do. ..	V. Venkatarama Sastri, 30 years, and V. Ramakrishna Sastri, 27 years, Brahmans.	250
147	Kerala Deepika ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Coronation Memorial Syrian Press, Muvattupuzha, Travancore State.	Fortnightly.	Rev. P. C. John, Indian Christian, 27 years.	300
148	Keralakesari ..	Malayalam.	Perunanam, Kerala Kalpadrum Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Monthly ..	W. Ikkanda Puthuval, Ambalavasi, 35 years, good.	850
149	Keralam *	Malayalam, English, Sanskrit and Tamil.	Sarasvati Vilasam Press, Puthenchandai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	R. Mahadeva Sarma, Brahman, 28 years.	500
150	Kerala Patrika ..	Malayalam.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Weekly ..	C. Kunhiraman Menon, B.A., Nayar, 57 years.	1,250
151	Kerala Sanchari ..	Do.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. P. Govindan Nayar, Nayar, 58 years.	1,150
152	Kerala Vyasan † ..	Do.	Published at Lokamaleswaram, Cranganore, printed at the S. P. Press, Paravur, Cochin State.	Monthly.	N. Padmanabha Menon, Nayar, 25 years.	1,000
153	Keraleeyabhimani	Anglo-Malayalam.	Keraleeyabhimani Press, Mavelikara, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	Jacob Kurien, Indian Christian, 30 years.	750
154	Keralodayam ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Narayana Menon, 57 years, and V. Narayana Menon, 41 years, Nayars.	865
155	Kistnapatrika ..	Telugu.	Kistna Swadeshi Press, Masulipatam.	Do. ..	Mutnuri Krishna Rao, Brahman, 38 years.	2,000
156	Kolar Gold Fields News.	English.	Kolar Gold Fields News Press, Bowringpet, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Cornelius, Anglo-Indian, 64 years.	300
157	Konkani Dirven ..	Konkani in Canarese characters.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Fortnightly.	A. J. Mascarenhas, Indian Christian, 28 years.	600
158	La Gerbe du Maduré ..	French.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	Rev. G. J. Gross, S.J., German, 45 years.	260
159	Lakshmi Bhai .. .	Malayalam.	Vidyavinodini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	V. Narayana Menon, Nayar 39 years.	1,500
160	Lakshmi Vilasam ..	Do.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Do. ..	K. C. Manavikraman Tampuran, Samantan, 47 years.	330
161	Law Weekly .. ..	English.	Published at Vasanta Vilas, Mylapore, printed at Messrs. Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	V. C. Seeba Acharya, Brahman, 58 years.	450
162	Light of Music .. ..	Tamil ..	Sri Gana Vidya Press, Perungalam, Tinnevelly district.	Monthly ..	V. Srinivasa Ayyangar, Brahman, 38 years.	500
163	Literary Journal. ‡	English.	Published at the Young Men's Literary Association, Triplicane; printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	K. S. Venkataraman, Brahman, 24 years.	250
164	Liva-ul-Islam § ..	Tamil ..	Muhammadia Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Moulvi Haji Sheikh Miran Muhi-ud-din, Muhammadan, 39 years.	750
165	Local Self-government Gazette.	English.	Published at No. 7, Badriah Garden Street, Georgetown; printed by Higginbothams, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. C. Desika Achariya, 40 years, and P. Duraiswami Ayyangar, 44 years, Brahmans.	500
166	Loka Mitran ‖ ..	Tamil ..	Union Press, Namakkal, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	V. Govindaraja Ayyangar, Brahman, 38 years.	207
167	Lokaprakasam ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Lokaprakasam Printing Department, Janopakari Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. N. Vaidyeswara Ayyar, Brahman, 33 years.	1,000
168	Lokaranjini ¶ ..	Tamil ..	Saraswathi Vilas Press, Mayavaram, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	P. Sundarama Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	500
169	Lokopakari .. ..	Do. ..	Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswaranpettah, Madras.	Do. ..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 52 years.	1,100
170	Lutheran Sunday Lesson Book for children.	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Monthly ..	Mrs. H. C. Caunaday, B.A., European.	380

* Started, January 1916.
† Started, March 1916.
‡ Discontinued, May 1916.
§ Discontinued, 12th January 1916.
‖ Ceased to exist in June 1914.
¶ Ceased to exist, 29th January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
171	Madar Bodhini	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Soc Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly ..	Miss Inglis, M.A., European ..	700
172	Madar Manoranjani or Tamil and School Zenana Magazine.	Do. ..	Published at 12, Thanikachala Mudali Street, Triplicane; printed at Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Ramaswami Ayyar, Brahman, 40 years.	450
173	Madar Mitri or Tamil Woman's Friend.	Do. ..	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss Grace Stephens, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	700
174	Madhuravani ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	K. Hanuman Doss alias Hanuman, Brahman, 24 years.	250
175	Madhva Sidhanta Prakasini.‡	Do..	Published at the Madhva Sidhanta Prakasini Sabha, Mysore, and printed at the Jayalaya Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Y. Srinivasa Rao and H. Narasinga Rao, Brahmans.	Not known.
176	Madras Bulletin of Co-operation.	English, Tamil and Telugu. (separate editions).	Published by the Madras Provincial Co-operative Union, Limited, Triplicane, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Quarterly.	V. Venkata Subbayya, Brahman, 36 years.	2,000
177	Madras Church Missionary Gleaner.	English.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. Canon E. Sell, D.D. F.M.U., European, 85 years.	300
178	Madras Economic Journal.	Do	Published at the Lady Wenlock Park, Chepauk, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Annually.	S. Krishnaswami Ayyangar, M.A. Brahman.	..
179	Madras Law Journal ..	Do.	Published at Brodie's Road, Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. Varada Achari, Brahman, 41 years.	1,750
180	Madras Law Times ..	Do.	Published at the Law Times office, Georgetown; printed at the Law Printing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	(1) T. Prakasam, Brahman, 43 years; (2) M. Devadoss, Indian Christian, 45 years; and (3) C. Madhavan Nayar, Nayar, 35 years.	800
181	Madras Mail ..	Do.	Madras Mail Press, No. 6, North Beach Road, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily, tri-weekly and weekly.	T. E. Welby, European, 34 years.	5,412
182	Madras Times ..	Do.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	Glyn Barlow, M.A., European, 55 years.	3,200
183	Madras Weekly Notes ..	Do.	Published at Royapetta High Road; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	N. R. K. Tata Acharya, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 35 years.	2,000
184	Madras Young Men.	Do.	Published at the Y.M.C.A., Esplanade Road, Georgetown; printed at Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	H. C. Herman, American, 34 years.	1,000
185	Magazine for Students, Teachers and Children	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Quarterly.	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	300
186	Maharaja's College Magazine.	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do.	T. Denham, M.A., European, 59 years.	900
187	Maha Vikata Dutan.	Tamil ..	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	B. A. A. Rajendram Pillai, Indian Christian, 55 years.	1,050
188	Mahilásakhi	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Mrs. Thorpe, European ..	850
189	Malabar Herald ..	English.	Union Press, British Cochin.	Weekly ..	E. W. Nigli, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	750
190	Malabar Islam ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Bharata Mitram Press, Muttancheri, Cochin State.	Do. ..	C. V. Abdur Rahman Haidros, Muhammadan, 27 years.	1,000
191	Malabar Quarterly Review (formerly the Monthly Review.)	English.	Sundara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Quarterly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 43 years.	500
192	Malayala Manorama.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Malayála Manórama Press, Kóttayam, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. M. Mathula Mappilla, M.R.A.S., Syrian Christian, 45 years.	4,500
193	Malayali	Do.	Manamohan Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do.	K. Kalpu Pillai, B.A., Nayar, 53 years.	1,250
194	Manavasseva† ..	Telugu.	Kalavati Press, Rajahmundry.	Monthly ..	N. Krishna Rao, Vysya, 34 years.	400
195	Mangaladayam	Malayalam.	Kérala Kalpadruma Press, Trichúr, Cochin State.	Do. ..	T. K. Krishna Menon, 46 years and K. Sankara Menon, 33 years, Sudras.	650
196	Mangalore Advertiser.	English.	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Do ..	A. A. Pereira alias Robson, Anglo-Indian, 37 years.	200

* Started, April 1916. † Not published since 7th September 1915. ‡ Started, October 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
197	Mangalore Magazine ..	English.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Annually.	E. Coelho, Indian Christian, 42 years.	600
198	Manju Bhashini ..	Sanskrit.	Sri Sudarsana Press, Little Conjeeveram, Chingleput district.	Weekly ..	C. P. A. Ranga Acharya, Brahman, 44 years.	300
199	Manorama	Malayalam.	Kannanparaparamba, Chalapuram, printed at the Nicholas Printing Works, Calicut.	Bi-weekly.	P. Krishnan Nayar, Nayar, 26 years.	1,500
200	Meraj-i-Khiyal ..	Urdu ..	Published at No. 78, Thayar Sahib Street, printed at Razzakia Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ghaus Sahib, Muhammadan, 63 years.	150
201	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Tamil ..	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Do. ..	Brother Joseph, Indian Christian, 61 years	5,800
202	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Brother Leo, European, 44 years.	400
203	Missionary Intelligencer	Tamil ..	Darling Press, Palamcottah ..	Do. ..	J. A. Ambudayan, Indian Christian, 47 years.	2,500
204	Mission News ..	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. Aberly, D.D., American. 51 years.	600
205	Mission News for Women.	Do.	Do. do.	Monthly ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 36 years.	300
206	Mitavadi	Anglo-Malayalam.	Mitavadi Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. Krishnan, B.A., B.L., Tiyya, 44 years.	1,000
207	Monthly Letter ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	300
208	Morning Star	English.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Six times a year.	Rev. Father L. Lacombe, S.J., Frenchman, 50 years.	1,200
209	Muhammadia Prasanga Nesan (formerly the Islamia Prasanga Nesan). *	Tamil ..	Rivayuth-ul-Islam Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. M. Mustafa Lubbai, Muhammadan, 39 years.	300
210	Mukhbir-i-Deccan.	Urdu ..	Sultani Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Do. ..	Saiyid Muhammad Abdul Qadir Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 47 years.	800
211	Mushir-i-Deccan.	Do. ..	Deccan Punch Press, Mahbubpura (Govliguda), Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Krishna Rao, Brahman, 48 years.	1,200
212	Muslim Dutan ..	Tamil ..	Shah-ul-Hamidiya Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. A. Shah-ul-Hamid, Muhammadan. 43 years.	900
213	My Mother †	English.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, printed at the St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Once in two months.	R. P. Kulandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 39 years.	Not known.
214	Mysore Patriot ..	Do.	Krishnaraja Vanivilas Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	250
215	Mysore Star ..	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	Y. Virupakshayya, Lingayat, 42 years,	3,000
216	Nagai Neelalochani.	Tamil ..	Neelalochani Press, Negapatam.	Do. ..	G. Sadasivam Pillai, Kalla, 55 years.	250
217	Nalla Ayan or Good Pastor.	Do. ..	Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. R. John, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,700
218	Nallasiriyan or Trained Teacher.	Do. ..	Caxton Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. R. Namasivayam Mudaliyar, Vellala, 40 years.	900
219	Nayar Samudaya Parishkari.‡	Malayalam.	Published at Tellicherry, printed at the Spectator Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	K. C. Narayan Nambiyar, Nayar, 41 years.	500
220	National Missionary Intelligencer.	English.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	Mrs. S. G. Heneman, M.A., Indian Christian.	2,400
221	Nattukottai Vaishyam.	Tamil ..	Pentland Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	P. S. Andiappa Pillai, Vellala, 37 years.	1,500
222	Nazrani Deepika.	Anglo-Malayalam.	St. Joseph's Press, Mannanam, Ettumanur, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Govinda Pillai, Sudra, 39 years.	1,500
223	New India ..	English.	New India Power Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	8,000
224	Newington School Magazine.	Do.	Published at "Newington," Teynampet; printed by Higginbotham's, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Half-yearly.	D. L. Blunt, European, 23 years.	50
225	New Reformer ..	Do.	Published at Georgetown; printed by Vest & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	D. Gopal Chetti, Senai Tholavar, 48 years.	500
226	Nigaahkalasatyam or The Present Truth.	Tamil ..	Published at the South Indian Mission of the Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk; printed at the Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. S. James, European, 37 years.	5,000
227	Noble College Leader ..	English.	Church Missionary Society Dove Press, Masulipatam.	Do.	T. V. Narasayya, 24 years, and V. K. Visweswara Rao, Brahmans.	300

* Temporarily discontinued, 28th September 1916. † Started June 1916. ‡ Printer declared on 6th May 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
228	Non-Brahman [formerly the Advertiser's (Free) Manual].	English.	Published at the General Advertising Co. and printed at the Mercury Press, George town, Madras.	Weekly ..	C. Sarangapani Mudaliyar, Vellala, 25 years.	2,000
229	Noor *	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Fortnightly.	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	Not known.
230	Northwick Observer ..	English	Published at the United Free Church of Scotland Mission Girls' Boarding School, Rayapuram; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Quarterly	Miss J. H. Ross, M.A., B.Sc., European, 31 years.	480
231	Our Little Paper †	Do.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, Travancore; printed at St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly..	R P. Kulandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 39 years.	550
232	Outlook †	Do.	Published at the Y.W.C.A., Coonoor, printed at the Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Ootacamund.	Quarterly.	Miss E. A. Waugh, British, 34 years.	Not known.
233	Pandia Nesan ..	Tamil ..	Krishna Vilasam Press, Madura.	Weekly ..	P. George, Indian Christian, 43 years.	400
234	Penkalvi or Female Education.	Do. ..	Published at 27, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the India Printing Works, Madras.	Monthly ..	Revoo Tayarammal, Brahman, 32 years.	1,000
235	People's Opinion (formerly the People's Weekly).	English.	Sundara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 43 years.	500
236	Planters' Chronicle.	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	Fletcher Norton, European, 53 years.	1,000
237	Popular Magazine ..	Tamil ..	Guarothia Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Monthly..	Paul C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 40 years.	500
238	Popular Scientific Journal.	English.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Henry Devadas, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 32 years.	300
239	Prabandhakalpavallari. ‡	Telugu.	Published at Narasaraopet, Guntur district; printed at the Vani Press, Bezwada.	Do. ..	G. Gopalakrishnayya, Brahman, 50 years.	150
240	Prabodhini ..	Do.	Prabodhini Press, Duggirala, Guntur district.	Do. ..	V. Niranjana Sastri, Kammala, 40 years.	350
241	Prajanukulan ..	Tamil ..	Published at Srirangam; printed at the Vaijayanti Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	S. G. Ramanujulu Nayudu, Balija, 29 years.	900
242	Prapanja Mitran §	Do. ..	Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswaranpet, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. Shunmuga Mudaliyar, Vellala.	Not known.
243	Prarambha Vidya.	Telugu.	Rama Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Monthly..	E. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 34 years, and V. Sayanna Sastri, M.A., L.T., Brahman, 36 years.	600
244	Prayer Circular ..	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. R. J. Ward, European, 73 years.	1,000
245	Presentation Annual ..	English.	Published at the Presentation Convent, Georgetown; printed at Raitby & Co.'s Liberty Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Annually.	Rev. Mother Berkmans Murphy, European, 38 years.	300
246	Progress	Do.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. C. Clayton, European.	1,000
247	Promptuariam	Latin ..	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Father Ligory, European, 40 years.	1,050
248	Purna Chandrodayam.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	A. Rangaswami Ayyar, Brahman, 48 years.	1,000
249	Qasim-al-Akhbar ..	Urdu, Tamil and English.	Chamraj Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore	Bi-weekly.	M. Abdul Hameed Sharif Sahib, Muhammadan, 38 years.	757
250	Qaumi Report ..	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Daily ..	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	700
251	Ravi	Telugu.	Sujanaranjani Press, Cocanada.	Weekly ..	Rev. R. E. Smith, European, 43 years.	1,350
252	Rayabhari	Do.	Vadrevupalle, Godavari district; printed at the Braun Industrial Printery, Rajahmundry.	Quarterly.	Rev. E. C. Adams, European, 40 years.	350
253	Roberts' Billiard Notes.	English.	Published by John W. Roberts & Co., 18, Patter's Road, Madras, printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	John W. Roberts, European, 42 years.	1,000

* Printer declared on 16th May 1916.
‡ Not published for the last two years.

† An old paper not previously reported.
§ Started, 23rd June 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
254	Risāla-i-Alhadí ..	Urdu ..	Published at Daricha Bhowra; printed at Ansaria Press, Kasaratta, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Husain, Muhammadan, 38 years.	500
255	Risála-i-Hifázat-o-Parwarish-i-Janwaran.	Urdu and Mahrati.	Deccan Punch Press, Mahbubpura (Govliguda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	R. Ramachandra Joshi, Brahman, 41 years.	125
256	Risala-i-Ifada	Urdu ..	Akhbar-i-Deccan Press, Mahbubpura (Govliguda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Mirza Nisam Shah Sahib, Muhammadan, 30 years.	500
257	Risála-i-Málguzárí ..	Do. ..	Mahbub-ul-Nazair Press, outside the gate of Dabirpura near Alawa-i-Bibi, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Muhammad Wali-ur-rahman, Muhammadan, 38 years.	1,250
258	Risala-i-Rahbar-i-Muzárain.	Do. ..	Sahifa Press, Gun Foundry, Hyderabad, Deccan.	Do.	John Kenny, European, 54 years.	750
259	Risála-i-Táj	Do. ..	Mufid-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Abdul Wafa Ghulam Muhammad Sahib, Ansarí Wafá, Muhammadan, 23 years.	1,000
260	Risála-i-Tarak-i-Usmania.	Do. ..	Palace of Maharaja Sir Kishen Pershad Bahadur, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Sadiq Husain Sahib, Muhammadan, 54 years.	150
261	Risala-i-Zakhira ..	Do. ..	Mufid-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Nasur-ul-Husain, Muhammadan, 30 years.	500
262	Sadguru	Tamil ..	Published at 87, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the Kalaratnakara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. Somasundaram Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	500
263	Sadhvi	Canarese	Krishnaraja Vani Vilasa Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	1,300
264	Sahaya	Telugu.	Braun Industrial Mission Press, Rajahmundry.	Monthly ..	Patagam Paradesi, Indian Christian, 40 years.	300
265	Sahifa	Urdu ..	Sahifa Press, Sultanpura, Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Muhammad Akbar Ali, Muhammadan, 32 years.	1,500
266	Sahridayá or the Sanskrit Journal.	Sanskrit.	Published at No. 65, Vellala Street, Purasawakam, Madras; printed at Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Monthly ..	R. Krishnarma Acharya, M.A., Brahman, 47 years.	500
267	Saiph-ul-Islam ..	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Vellore ..	Weekly ..	S. S. Maulvi Ahmed Saiyid Sahib, Muhammadan, 41 years.	500
268	Saivam	Do. ..	Published at the Chennai Sivanadiar Thirukootam, Georgetown; printed at the Saiva Vidyanupalana Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	I. Adimula Mudaliyar, Vellala, 52 years.	750
269	Sampad Abhyudaya or Wealth of Mysore.	Anglo-Canarese.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Daily ..	M.S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	500
270	Samudaya Deepika ..	Malayalam.	Edward Press, Cannanore ..	Monthly ..	K. Kuttiappa Nambiyar, Nayar, 48 years.	500
271	Samudaya Parishkarini.	Do.	The Travancore Printing and Publishing Company, Limited, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	A. P. Nayar, Nayar, 32 years ..	1,000
272	Sanatana Dharmam ..	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do. ..	M. S. Rama Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	500
273	Sangita Prakasika ..	Tamil and Telugu.	Published at 13, Manibanda Mudali Street, Georgetown; printed at the Chandra Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Audikesavulu Nayudu, Balija, 29 years.	500
274	Sangita Sataampradaya Deepikai.	Do.	Sarathi Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	S. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 39 years.	250
275	Sarva Vyapi ..	Tamil ..	Mission Press, Pondicherry ..	Weekly ..	Catholic priests	410
276	Sasilekha	Telugu.	Sasilekha Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	G. Seeha Acharlu, Brahman, 57 years.	600
277	Satyabadi	Uriya ..	The Asha Press, Berhampur, Ganjam district	Monthly ..	Gopabandu Das, Brahman,	500
278	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Telugu.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. D. Anantam, Indian Christian, 64 years.	4,700
279	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Tamil ..	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. Lazarus, B.A., B.D., Indian Christian, 66 years.	2,300
280	Satyanadam ..	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father F. M. Nilavarath, Indian Christian, 39 years.	1,000
281	Satya Sakshi	Canarese	Published at Diddepura, Chamarajanagar Taluk, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	R. E. Perkins, European ..	600
282	Savinudi	Do.	Sarada Vilasa Press, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	B. Hampangi Ramayya, Brahman, 51 years.	1,000

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
283	School Days and Holidays.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	F. H. Oakley. European, 36 years.	600
284	Scientific Manuring ..	Anglo-Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Published by Parry & Co, printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. Bernard, European, 42 years.	1,000
285	Self-culture	English and Tamil (separate editions).	Excelsior Press, Kizhanattam, Tinnevelly district.	Do. ..	K. T. Ramaswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 33 years.	700
286	Sentamil	Tamil ..	The Tamil Sangam Power Press, Madura.	Do. ..	Tirunarayana Ayyangar, Brahman, 52 years.	400
287	Sentamil Selvi ..	Do. ..	Published and printed at the Scottish Branch Press, Negapatam.	Weekly ..	K. Arunachala Tevan, Agamudaiyan, 46 years.	500
288	Shimoga Vrittanta	Canarese	Shimoga Union Printing Press, Shimoga, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Anantayya, Brahman, 40 years.	700
289	Siddhantam	Tamil ..	M. L. V. Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. P. Kalyanasundara Mudaliyar, Vellala, 61 years.	1,500
290	Sirsneha Jungle Pioneer.	English.	A.E.L.M. Press, Guntur ..	Quarterly.	Miss R. E. Tailer, European ..	250
291	Sivayogi Vilasam ..	Malayalam.	Spectator Press, Calicut ..	Monthly ..	Vaghadanandam V. K. Gurukkal, Tiyya, 27 years.	1,000
292	Social Reform Advocate.	English.	Published at 264, Thumbu Chetti Street, Georgetown, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Madras	Weekly ..	O. Kandaswami Chetti, Chetti, 48 years.	1,000
293	South Indian Mail.	Do.	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	R. Sundaram Ayyar, Brahman, 31 years.	600
294	South Indian Trade Journal.	Do.	Published at the South Indian Chamber of Commerce, Georgetown; printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road.	Monthly ..	P. N. Muthuswami Nayudu, Balija, 50 years.	1,000
295	South of India Observer.	Do.	Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Cranley Chambers, Ootacamund.	Weekly ..	J. A. Davies, European, 42 years.	600
296	Sowrashtrabhivirdhini.*	Tamil ..	Shanmugha Vilasam Press, Salem.	Monthly ..	V. K. Nannayya, Sowrashtra, 35 years.	150
297	S.P.G. College Magazine.	English.	Dodson Press, Trichinopoly.	Quarterly.	T. R. Ekambara Ayyar, Indian Christian, 37 years.	300
298	S.P.G. High School Magazine.	Do.	Published at Trichinopoly, printed by the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do.	S. K. Daivasikamani, Indian Christian, 43 years.	500
299	Sri Krishna †	Canarese	Kaheera Sagara Press, Balepet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	B. C. S. Rajagopala Sarma ..	Not known.
300	Sri Krishna Raja Vijnana Vaibhava.	Canarese and Sanskrit.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Pandit D. Gunda Sastri, Brahman, 47 years.	400
301	Sri Krishna Sookti.	Canarese	Sadananda Press, Udipi, South Canara district.	Do. ..	K. Subba Rao, 52 years, and N. Rajagopala Krishna Rao, 33 years, Brahmans.	1,000
302	Sri Narasimha Prayoga Parijata Praharanam.	Sanskrit.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Venkatesa Joia, 43 years, and Ramakrishna Bhatta, 43 years, Brahmans.	300
303	Sri Sankara Acharya.	Malayalam.	Published at Haripad, printed at the Keraleya Abimani Press, Mavalikara, Travancore State.	Do. ..	G. Govindan Namburi, Brahman, 27 years.	410
304	Sri Savitri	Telugu.	Savitri Press, Jaganayakpur, Godavari district.	Do. ..	P. Lakshmi Narasamamba, Brahman, 35 years.	500
305	Sri Vani Vilasini.	Tamil ..	Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly dist.	Do. ..	T. K. Balasubrahmanya Ayyar, B.A., Brahman, 42 years.	1,000
306	St. Andrew's Church (The Kirk) Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. N. Meldrum, European, 34 years	150
307	St. Mary's Magazine ..	Do.	Published at St. Mary's European High School, Georgetown, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Twice a year.	Rev. A. J. Vanderburg, European, 46 years.	300
308	Students' Own Magazine. ‡	Do.	Published at Messrs. T. S. Subrahmanya & Co., Georgetown; printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	P. Seshadri, Brahman, 24 years.	3,000

* Started, 4th May 1916. † Revived, August 1916. ‡ Revived, February 1916

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
309	Subhashini	Anglo-Malayalam.	Srimulam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	P. K. Govinda Pillai, Nayar, 41 years.	1,240
310	Subh-i-Bahar	Urdu ..	Ahamadia Press, Mysore ..	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ali Sahib Azad, Muhammadan, 28 years.	550
311	Sudarsini	Telugu.	Sudarsini Press, Viswasarayapuram, Godavari district	Fortnightly.	Kasturi Sivasankara Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	Not known.
312	Sujanamitram ..	Malayalam.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	K. P. K. Raphael, Indian Christian, 27 years.	800
313	Sukhabi Vridhini.	Tamil ..	Sukhabi Vridhini Press, Pondicherry.	Fortnightly.	Venkatachella Nayakar, Vanniya, 50 years.	100
314	Sukhadara Bodhini	Do. ..	Muslim Abhimani Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	H. B. Muhammad 'Abd-ul-lah, Muhammadan, 60 years.	250
315	Sunday School Lessons.	Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss H[a] McGregor and Mrs. Owen, Europeans.	4,000
316	Supantha	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	A. Mahadeva Sastri 54 years, and A. Venkatesayya, 49 years, Brahmans.	1,000
317	Suvarnalekha ..	Telugu.	Soudamini Press, Tanuku, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	D. V. Ramana Rao, Brahman, 34 years.	425
318	Svadharmaprakasini.	Do.	Chandrika Press, Guntur ..	Monthly ..	K. Keteswara Sarma, Brahman, 37 years.	500
319	Swadesamittiran ..	Tamil ..	Swadesamittiran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and Triweekly.	T. Visvanatha Ayyar, Brahman, 27 years, and A. Rangaswami Ayyangar, Brahman.	5,600
320	Swadesha Bandhu.	Do. ..	Mathukaravani Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	R. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 43 years.	600
321	Swadeshabhimani.	Canarese	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Weekly ..	V. Shrinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 34 years.	1,600
322	Swadeshi (formerly the Bhagyodayam).	Anglo-Malayalam.	Sarasvati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	K. Palpu Pillai, Nayar, 53 years, and A. Padmanabha Ayyar, Brahman, 40 years.	800
323	Tamilian	Tamil ..	Gautama Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	C. I. Pattabhiraman, Buddhist, 31 years.	500
324	Do.	Do. ..	Bhaskara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	S. Muthuswami Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	600
325	Tamil Perumatti * ..	Do. ..	Published at 386, Mint Street, Georgetown, printed at the Sri Subrahmanya Vilasam Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	V. R. Gaekwad alias Vasudeva Rao Gaekwad, Mahratti, 30 years.	Not known.
326	Taylor High School Magazine. †	English.	Published at the Taylor High School, Narsapur, Kistna district, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	A. Jayaram Rao, B.A., L.T., Brahman, 40 years.	Do
327	Telugu Baptist ..	Telugu.	Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. E. E. Gullison, American, 49 years.	750
328	Telugu Churchman ‡ ..	Do.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Gondi David, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 33 years.	400
329	Telugu Law Journal ..	Do.	Telugu Law Journal Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly ..	T. Purushottam Pantulu, Brahman, 50 years.	300
330	Telugu Officer	Do.	Sri Kanyakaparameswari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district.	Do. ..	Brigadier Yesudasan, European, 45 years.	150
331	Temperance News. §	English.	Published at "Bonaly", Egmore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s, Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. Moffat, M.A., B.Sc., Scotch.	Not known.
332	Ten India Vyavaharachintamani.	Tamil ..	Published in Purasawalkam, printed by the Penrose & Co.'s Nurjahan Press, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 42 years.	500
333	Then and Now	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. E. E. Berry, European ..	250
334	Theological Journal ..	Grantham, Nagari and Tamil.	Kalpadruman Press, Madura ..	Monthly ..	P. J. N. Srinivasa Sarma, Brahman.	900
335	Theory and Practice in Engineering. †	English.	Horsfall & Co.'s Press, Phillips Street, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Padmanabha Mudaliyar, Vellala, 43 years.	1,000
336	Theosophist ..	Do.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	3,500
337	Travancore Abhimani.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	D. C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 30 years.	150
338	Travancore Times.	English.	Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	250
339	Trichinopoly Magazine.	Do.	Southern Star Press, Cantonment, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	The Chaplain of Trichinopoly ..	60

* Publisher declared on 29th May 1916. † Started, April 1916. ‡ Started, October 1916. § Started, September 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
340	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Tamil, and Tamil.	American Mission Lenox Press, Pasumalai, Madura district.	Monthly ..	Rev. J. J. Baninga, American, 38 years.	1,800
341	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Telugu and Telugu.	Published at Pasumalai, Madura district, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. Aaron Arthur, Indian Christian, 36 years.	525
342	United India and Native States.	English.	Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. K. S. Krishnaswami Ayyar Indian Christian, 50 years.	350
343	Utkal Madupa	Uriya.	Sri Gazapati Bhima Deo Press, Digupudi, Ganjam district.	Monthly ..	Neelamoni Bidyaratno, Brahman, 49 years.	1,225
344	Uttara Tharaka.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Basha Bhoosbanam Press, Parur, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	C. M. Narayana Panikar, B.A., Nayar, 37 years.	1,200
345	Vaidyakalanidhi.	Tamil ..	Published at 7, Audiappa Mudali Street, Pursawakkam; printed by Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Pandit M. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 32 years.	400
346	Vaidya Sindhu	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at Bangalore City, printed at Caxton Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Do. ..	V. D. Pandit, Brahman, 44 years.	3,000
347	Vaisya Mittiran ..	Tamil ..	Vaisya Mittiran Press, Devakottai, Ramnad district.	Weekly ..	S. T. Ramanatham Chetti, Nattukottai Chetti, 43 years.	450
348	Vannikula Mittiran.	Do. ..	Published at Perambur Barracks, (Kosapet); printed at T. A. Krishna & Co.'s Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. Subrahmanya Nayakar, Vannia. 36 years.	1,000
349	Varnasrama Dharmam.	English and Tamil (separate editions.)	Published at the Varnasrama Dharma Rakshini Sabha, The Luz, Teynampet; printed at the Sivarahasyan Press, Park Town, Madras.	Do. ..	Managing Editor:—P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	1,000
350	Vartakamitran or Merchants' Friend.	Tamil ..	Commercial Press, Triplicane Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Natesa Ayyar, Brahman, 28 years.	..
351	Vedanta Dipika ..	Tamil with intermixture of Grantha types.	Kalâratnâkaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Diwan Bahadur T. T. Ranga Acharya, Brahman.	600
352	Vedanta Kesari. ..	English.	Published at the Ramakrishna Mission, Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Swami Sarvananda (Bengali), Brahman, 31 years.	1,000
353	Vediar Vilakku or The Tamil Preacher's Magazine.	Anglo-Tamil.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. P. Shrimpton, B.A., European, 40 years.	400
354	Vidya Bhanu ..	Tamil ..	Dhana Vaisiyan Press, Konapet, Pudukkottai State.	Bi-weekly.	S. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 53 years, and A. R. R. M. Subramanian Chettiar, Nattukottai Chetti, 24 years.	700
355	Vidyadayini	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	B. Subba Rao, Brahman, 45 years.	1,781
356	Vidyananda	Sanskrit and Canarese	Caxton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Audinarayana Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	400
357	Vidya Nidhi	Telugu.	Published at N. Venkatarayulu & Sons, 871, Ramaswami Street, and printed at the Kalaratnakaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Appayya, Brahman, 26 years.	500
358	Vignana Chintamani ..	Sanskrit.	Vignana Chintamani Press, Kodaparamba in Perumudiyur amsam, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	P. N. Nilakantha Sarma, Musaad, 58 years.	150
359	Vijaya Vikatan. ..	Tamil ..	Vijaya Vikatan Press, Royapuram, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	K. S. Kathirvelu Nadar, Nadar, 38 years.	700
360	Vikata Pratapa † ..	Canarese	Kolar Town Press, Kolar, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	B. M. Chakrapanayya, Balija, 36 years.	1,000
361	Vikata Vinodini ..	Do.	S.G.N. Press, Arlepet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	N. Sivarama Sastri, Brahman, 44 years.	900

* Temporarily discontinued, 28th September 1916. † Not published since 30th September 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
362	Vira Kesari ..	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at 2, Banmalayar Street near Elephant Gate Street, Georgetown; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Fortnightly.	G. Thulasi Ram Doss, Brahman, 42 years.	900
363	Visvakarma Kulopakari.	Tamil ..	Visvakulotharana Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Kanniappa Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	400
364	Visvakarman * ..	Do. ..	Published at the Visvakarma Kulotharana Sabha, Mint Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Kalyanasundra Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	600
365	Viveka Bodhini ..	Do. ..	Published at the General Supplies Co., Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	V. Kuppuswami Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	1,500
366	Viveka Chintamani.	Anglo-Tamil.	Published at Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. V. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 50 years.	700
367	Vivekavati	Telugu.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 36 years.	1,250
368	Vivekodayam	Malayalam.	Ananda Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	N. Kumaran Asan, Ezhuvan, 41 years.	600
369	Vokkaligara Patrike.	Canarese	Vokkaligara Sangha Press, Bangalore City.	Weekly ..	S. V. Venkataramayya, Vokkaliga, 37 years.	2,500
370	Vrittantamu or The News. †	Telugu.	Srinivasa Press, 185, Mount Road, Madras	Daily ..	S. Seshachallam Ayyar, Brahman, 35 years.	200
371	Vrittanta Patrike.	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	7,000
372	Vyasa Nesan	Tamil ..	Published at 34, Thyagaraya Pillai Street, Mint Buildings Post office; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. A Tirugnanam Sambanda Chetti, Vaisya, 30 years.	300
373	Vyavasaya Mitram	Malayalam.	Taliparamba; printed at the Edward Press, Cannanore, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	K. Ryru Nambiar, Nayar, 50 years.	400
374	Water of Life	Tamil ..	Published by the Christian Brotherhood Association, printed by the Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	G. D. Devadasan, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
375	Wealth of India ..	English.	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, Georgetown; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 48 years.	750
376	Wednesday Review.	Do.	Wednesday Review Press, Trichinopoly.	Weekly .	Rao Sahib S. M. Rajaram Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
377	Wesleyan Methodist Church Record.	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. O. Brown, European, 40 years.	350
378	West Coast Bulletin.	Do.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Alexander V. Kakrancheri, Indian Christian, 29 years.	800
379	West Coast Reformer.	Do.	Reformer Press, Calicut ..	Tri-weekly.	P. A. Sankara Sastri, Brahman, 30 years.	1,200
380	West Coast Spectater.	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do.	M. S. Damodaran Nayar, Nayar, 33 years.	800
381	Western Star ..	Do.	Western Star Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do.	C. J. Kurian, Syrian Christian, 55 years.	600
382	Yathartha Vachani	Tamil ..	Published at Kumbakonam; printed at Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore	Weekly ..	T. V. Govindaswami Pillai, Vellala, 42 years	1,000
383	Yearly Digest of Indian and English cases.	English.	Published at Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, and the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly, Quarterly and Annually.	R. Narayanaswami Ayyar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 33 years.	650
384	Yogakshemam ..	Malayalam.	Kalpadruma Press of the Mangalodayam Company (Limited), Trichur, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Paravil Raman Namburipad, Brahman, 30 years.	1,000
385	Young Men of India.	English.	Published at No. 86, College Street, Calcutta; printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	C. Carter, American	1,700
386	Yuddha Dhvani ..	Telugu.	Sri Kanyakaparameswari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district.	Do. ..	Brigadier Yesudasan, European, 48 years.	600

* Revived, January 1916.

† Temporarily discontinued, July 1916.

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. New India, of the 30th November, writes:—"In our telegraphic news will be found the announcement that yet another American steamer has been sunk, this time with the American flag flying at the masthead, the Captain refusing to haul it down. We do not know how many American vessels have been sunk by German submarines, but we presume the loss does not matter, since a note of protest is apparently considered the equivalent of the lives of the American citizens who have been drowned. We are aware of the political difficulties which surround the President of the United States, but we had hoped that the American people would have given the world a lead on the principle that morality and national honour are above all questions of politics."

New India, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

Another opportunity for Dr. Wilson.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

2. New India, of the 27th November, has the following:—

"The Amrita Bazaar Patrika writes:—

It goes without saying that no department just now is more unpopular in India than the Department of Criminal Intelligence or Investigation, generally known as the C.I.D. The figures, which do not include that part of the department directly under the Government of India, exhibit an increase of ten lakhs of rupees in as many years.

"Meanwhile, we may add, the really useful section of the police, the constables, who do work to suppress crime rather than to invent it, is starved, and has to exist on wages which make petty corruption the alternative to starvation. The best plan to improve the force would be to abolish the present C.I.D., so as to get rid of its evil traditions, and start a body of decent men, whose functions should be confined to the detection of crime."

New India, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

The cost of the C.I.D.

3. The following appears in New India of the 27th November:—

"A D.S.P. and a little child.

"The District Magistrate of Tanjore has decided that a District Superintendent of Police may hit a little boy of seven years old with a cane, leaving traces of three blows distinguishable later by a doctor on the poor little body, provided the injuries caused were too slight, in the Magistrate's opinion—despite the doctor's certificate—to be taken notice of. We were not before aware that hitting a little child with a cane was among the privileges of a District Superintendent of Police. The Vakil, Mr. N. K. Ramaswami, states that the Hindu public is indignant, and that the matter will be taken before a High Court."

New India, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

The District Superintendent of Police, Tanjore.

(b) Courts.

4. The following appears in New India of the 25th November:—

"England to the rescue.

"Gradually the facts about our New India case are filtering through to England, and as they penetrate into the English mind, it will gradually be aroused to indignation and redress. England knows our editor, and knows that though she has fought for liberty all her life, she is loyal to the empire, and seeks to save India to the empire in the only way, by helping her to win liberty. . . . . As often happens, the vanguard of an army may be cut up, but the army behind it marches to victory. The Home Rule cause is won in India, whatever may be the severities with which its foremost advocates are treated. . . . . Mrs. Besant's support of the war was due to her belief that England had entered into it for the sake of liberty, for defending the sanctity of treaties, and for protecting small nationalities. For the discharge of these sacred duties, Mrs. Besant applauded the entry of Great Britain into the war. She believed that the step taken meant liberty in Asia as well as in Europe, and that, as the Bishop of Madras put it, England could not fight for principles in Europe and deny them in India. Her representatives here, however, can deny and repress the principles for which she fights in Europe, and Indian enthusiasm has been chilled down not only by the refusal to allow volunteering and entry into the struggle, but also by the increase of coercion here, the contemptuous rejection of India's claims by Anglo-Indian organs, and the repression of free speech. . . . . The utter indifference with which all the protests of the Indian press and of public meetings are ignored adds to the feeling of hopelessness as regards any changes here. But hope still remains that when England has time to think, she will, with a strong hand, remedy the wrongs inflicted here, and give us the freedom which should be enjoyed by British subjects, and the enjoyment of which has been regarded as the value of the British connection."

New India, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

New India security case.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The Madras Mail and the Tilak appeal case.

5. In a leader under the heading "Political Hysterics", the West Coast Spectator, of the 25th November, says:—"The recent attacks of an Anglo-Indian contemporary on Mr. Bal Gangadar Tilak, following so close upon the vindication of his character by a divisional bench of the Bombay High Court, have naturally attracted widespread attention in the Indian press. The note of regret at the sudden outburst of hysteria is coupled with appeals to the Government to curb the spirit of violence that underlies it. For ourselves, we are familiar with this type of writing in a certain section of the Anglo-Indian press, but we must confess we were not prepared for the outburst of vindictiveness and malevolent criticism which could have emanated with better grace from newspapers printed and published in the back-woods of America for the instruction and edification of ranchers and cow-boys. . . . . The Anglo-Indian extremist feels that Mr. Tilak wields a power and influence not conducive to the growth and development of vested interests, but calculated to strengthen Indian nationalism whose growth must necessarily encroach upon the preserves of a handful. The demand for Home Rule is opposed, because that system of Government must necessarily injure the interests of the foreign element now uppermost in the services and in every walk of life. The best way to stunt the growth of nationalism and to stifle the cry for Home Rule lies, argues the Anglo-Indian extremist, in curbing the leaders, in binding them hand and foot. It must be now clear why we hear so much gnashing of teeth, shaking of fists, a tremendous flow of frothy verbiage and much show of virtuous indignation. Happily, the hysteria is confined to a small band of extremists whose liberal instincts, of liberty and fair play, have been stunted or obliterated by the tropical sun and liver. . . . . When such reckless writings go on unchecked, while Indian papers are sharply hauled over the coals for the slightest transgression of the laws, the feeling is apt to gain ground, wrongly we admit, that there is one law for the Anglo-Indian extremist and another for the Indian. This feeling does exist, it must regretfully be admitted, and it must be removed. It is for this reason some of our contemporaries have appealed to the Government to put the law into motion against those Anglo-Indians who proceed to act and write on the belief that they are immune from the provisions of the Press Act and the Penal Code."

New India, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

6. The following appears in New India of the 1st December :—

"Unfair comment.

The Fort station fracas cases.

"Mr. Nugent Grant, in a way that very few of the Honourable Members of the Bar would, we think, approve, made a violent attack on an imaginary 'pamphlet', in the Fort affray case. The minute leaflet thus described was an extract from the Bombay Chronicle, reprinted in the ordinary course of journalism by New India, with, on July 5th, four lines of comment. It is pretended that the reservation of third-class compartments for Eurasians and Europeans is not illegal. It may be so, but a Stationmaster the other day was fined for pulling an Indian out of such a compartment on the ground that the reservation was illegal. Be that as it may, it justifies neither Mr. Grant nor the Georgetown Magistrate in their attack on this paper, however much they may hate it. . . . . We will say now what we did not care to say before, that Mrs. Annie Besant, though she had done nothing to incite the students, begged them very earnestly to leave the legal question to be decided by older men, and to take absolutely no part in the matter. But Mrs. Besant is a Home Ruler, and any available way of injuring her, fair or foul, is eagerly caught up by Anglo-Indians."

Writing on this subject, the Hindu, of the 1st December, says:—"The judgment of the Senior Presidency Magistrate in the cases which arose out of what is called the Fort station fracas is a very unsatisfactory performance. The Magistrate took an unconscionably long time in disposing of the matter, and has concluded it by a judgment which, in the sentence imposed and the arguments made use of, appears as if it were a tissue of special pleading on behalf of the Anglo-Indian accused. . . . . For serious offence and for having committed affray, a responsible Railway officer whose duty it was to preserve order, has been punished by the Magistrate with a fine of Rs. 40 on paltry plea 'in view of the extenuating circumstances under which Mr. Richards appeared to have committed the offence.' Further comments are scarcely necessary." HINDU, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

The Indian Patriot, of the 1st December, observes:—"The case called 'The Fort station fracas' was terminated yesterday at the Police Court, the several accused who were convicted being punished with nominal fines. It could have been as well ended in a more agreeable manner, if a compromise had been effected, and both parties parted as friends. . . . . There was no kind of bitterness of feeling between Anglo-Indians and Indians as such in this Presidency. There was no superior pretension on the part of Anglo-Indians and nothing calculated to cause resentment in Indians against them. But a leaflet was circulated widely among students telling them that the Sindh Court had decided against the right of Railway Companies to reserve compartments for any class of people, which statement the Magistrate characterises as 'mischievous and misleading'. However, from this mischievous and misleading leaflet arose the whole trouble. . . . . The author, whoever he was, thought that it constitued a racial distinction in favour of one class, and the leaflet told them that the distinction was illegal according to a decision of the Sindh Court. The students thereupon proceeded to vindicate the right of Indians to equal privileges with Anglo-Indians. Frequent conflicts occurred between the two, culminating in the Fort station fracas, in the course of which injuries were caused more to Indians than to Anglo-Indians. INDIAN PATRIOT, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

"The Magistrate's judgment is a lucid exposition of the case, its genesis and results. We need not deal with the evidence in the case, for we accept the Magistrate's view of it, arrived at in a thoroughly judicial spirit. . . . . The Magistrate has taken a very commonsense view of the case, and treated it as a light matter as it undoubtedly was, so far as the accused were concerned. They did not mean any disregard of the law, but only the insistance of what they considered their rights. The Indians honestly believed that they had a right under the law to invade the reserved compartment. The Anglo-Indians equally honestly believed in their right to resist the invasion. The belief on one side was wrong. The leaflet is responsible for it; and whoever issued it must regret what followed."

(d) Education.

7. The West Coast Spectator, of the 25th November, remarks:—"The Convocation address of the Madras University, delivered on Thursday last by Mr. Saiyid WEST COAST SPECTATOR, Calicut, Nov. 25th, 1916.]

The Convocation address.

Hussain Bilgrami, will not, we are afraid, excite any interest outside the portals of the Senate House. The Convocation addresses of late have been insipid and lifeless teeming with ponderous platitudes, and the lastest is no exception to the rule. Mr. Bilgrami himself has embellished his harangue with a novel feature, namely, a dose of political cant, and makes a fling at Home Rule, trotting out the old, old official theory of India's warring elements and general unfitness to rule herself.

"It is rather unfortunate that he should have trodden upon controversial ground which could better have been avoided. We are disposed to think that whether Mr. Bilgrami likes or dislikes Home Rule, the new graduates are not very likely to view self-government through borrowed spectacles. Time was when Convocation addresses were scholarly, brilliant, original and free from political cant, but in those days they were delivered by people like John Bruce Norton, Sir T. Madhava Rao, Hughes Hallet and Muttuswami Ayyar—whose likes we may, probably, not see again."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1916.

The West Coast Spectator, of the 28th November, states:—"As we anticipated, Mr. Bilgrami's Convocation address has received encomiums from the Anglo-Indian press for the political platitudes he has spouted out. Mr. Bilgrami has asked us not to cry for the moon—for self-government as 'all political development is gradual and evolutionary'. We quite admit. But without cry how are these developments and evolution to come in? We know that left to themselves the bureaucrats will give us nothing, as they seem to think that evolution and development take a long time to come in India.

"No reform was achieved in the past without agitation, and no reform will come in in the future without this valuable adjunct to political progress. See how persistent and noisy was the opposition to Minto cum Morley reforms, though they were very modest in their scope. There were people who thought that India was not fit even for this modest instalment. We do not, of course, cry for the moon, knowing as we do that it is a celestial body but we are not prepared to be led by those yesterdays who borrow their views from Anglo-Indian prints and seem to think that political concessions will come in unasked.

"It is an ill bird that fouls its own nest, and he is an enemy to the interests of his country who proclaims in season and out of season that his countrymen are unfit for any measure of self-rule, that they should remain in their swaddling clothes till it pleases the ruling caste to remove them and put on manly dress. Mr. Bilgrami asks us to wait till 'that day'—by which we mean the day when we shall become terrestrial angles,—and tells us that it is futile to 'agitate and clamour' till then. The advent of that day will certainly not be expedited by dogmatic assertions, if people who are old enough to know better, are never tired of telling us that self-government is for those whose likes can only be found in heaven."

New India, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

8. New India, of the 27th November, writes:—"The expert majority in the Senate was determined from the very beginning of the present session not to consent to any drastic change in the present state of affairs; and they had their way even with regard to those unofficial resolutions which had the support of the Director of Public Instruction. That is the strength of the obstacle which the popular Senators have to overcome, before they can aspire to reform the University in any important respect. It is difficult to understand even by what principles the experts are being swayed in their considerations, unless it be one of opposing every resolution which the popular representatives bring forward. . . . . If, in the twentieth century, a set of people that aspire to mould by example as well as precept the lives of thousands of young Indians perceive no monstrosity in their voting to themselves public money in one capacity or other, we confess we are not able to see the wisdom of permitting them to govern an institution like the University."

The Madras University.

West Coast Reformer, Calicut, Nov. 29th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the West Coast Reformer, of the 29th November, says:—"There seems to be no other important public institution which is given so much to violent convulsions as the Senate of the Madras University. Every session of the Senate provides ample sensation and flings surprises upon an astounded world. The Senate is ailing seriously and the malady seems to be mental, not financial as sometimes appeared. A sheaf of resolutions are passed at every session in an amazingly irresolute manner. . . . . Regulations formulated yesterday may be broken up and thrown to the winds tomorrow. Hopes and promises given to thousands of young souls may be shattered without fear of consequences. There is no settled fact in our academy. The university air is surcharged with uncertainty. Things are decided evidently in an atmosphere of mental aberrations instead of harmonious and dispassionate deliberations. Beneath all the sea of talk there chafes a strong current of thoughts which occasionally secures an eruption and reveals its offensive odour. The maddening convulsions of the Senate are, we think, signs of life, of a struggle for liberation and progress against heavy odds. . . . . The success which has attended the party of progress and liberalism in the Senate after continuous defeat and sickly convulsions assures us that the forthcoming proposals are also bound to be realised. The proceedings of the Senate's meeting on Friday and Saturday last strengthen the hope of gradual redemption from the oppressing and restricting elements"

9. New India, of the 27th November, observes:—"The new Vice-Chancellor is showing what English slang calls a 'stiff upper lip' with regard to his unruly flock of expert Senators. He has to decide many points of order, raised against the proposals moved by Indians, and has been firm and clear in his rulings. The band of experts and its followers are evidently very angry that they cannot have everything their own way, but the Indians 'put up'—how very prize-ringy this is—a good fight and are showing vigour, combination and discipline."

New India, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

The Vice-Chancellor of the Madras University.

10. The Hindu, of the 28th November, states:—"Dr. P. C. Roy, the eminent Indian scientist, has done a public service by making to the Indian Industries Commission now sitting at Calcutta, a full and frank statement of his views regarding the Indian Institute of Science at Bangalore . . . . Dr. Roy is a visitor to the institute appointed by the Calcutta University, and as such he visited the institute only last month. He said in the course of his evidence that the Institute of Science was located in a place quite out of touch with industries and beyond the pale of public opinion. There was no proper controlling authority and it was, he said, a matter of regret that vast sums of money had been lavished—almost recklessly spent, not commensurate with the real work taken in hand. . . . . Considering that Dr. Roy holds a most responsible position, that he is a high authority and that his criticisms agree with those made previously, it behoves the Government to change their attitude of indifference and direct a searching inquiry to be made into the affairs of the institute. We hope that Non-official Members of the Imperial Legislative Council will elicit further information on the subject at the Delhi session and be able to persuade the Government to take a more serious view of the matter, in view of Dr. Roy's statements."

Hindu, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Indian Institute of Science.

11. Referring to the comments of the Madras Mail, on the action taken in Burma regarding the suppression of strikes among students, New India of the 1st December, remarks:—"A few lads, suffering from some real or fancied wrong, go on strike. They are not only expelled, but they are debarred from all schools and colleges and public examinations. That is to say, the boys are shut out from the education which might improve them, and their whole life is ruined for a boyish naughtiness. Thank God, we are not 'right-minded' a la Madras Mail, and we think the order cruel. We wonder if Sir Harcourt Butler has any sons, and, if he has, how he would like them to be ruined for life because of a boyish escapade. No Englishman would tolerate such action where his own sons were concerned. And quite rightly. It was this kind of 'drastic action' which drove the Bengal lads into anarchism. The first bomb thrown was thrown by a boy who had been treated to such exclusion, because he did not bow to the Lieutenant-Governor, and who, desperate and hopeless, fell into the hands of criminals who made him their tool. It is quite likely that Sir Harcourt Butler's action will cow the boys for the time. But he is sowing, in those young hearts, the seeds which will spring up in crime. Does he wish Burma to become another Bengal? He has begun the work."

New India, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

College strikes.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

INDIAN PATRIOT, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The re-settlement grievance.

12. The Indian Patriot, of the 25th November, remarks:—"We fear very much that the Government let slip an opportunity to satisfy the people over a very serious grievance, when the resolution of Diwan Bahadur A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar was rejected by the hand of official majority. Every non-official Indian member voted for it; and, indeed, no one could help being convinced of the sheer injustice of the situation. . . . . The Settlement officer recommended a fifteen per cent increase; he was the man on the spot. The Board of Revenue recommended a twenty per cent increase. They were experts who, we were told during the discussion over an Indian membership of the Revenue Board, were officers of exceptional ability, selected on account of acknowledged merit. But the Government always know more than the experts, and the twenty per cent of the Board of Revenue swelled into twenty-five per cent when the Government passed its final order. The entire Presidency received the announcement with surprise; the details of the re-settlement added to popular indignation which beat powerfully against the Government. . . . . We very much regret that in the face of such unrefutable arguments the Government should indifferently raise its hand and outvote the representatives of the people, without the least concern for the effect it may have on public opinion."

UNITED INDIA AND NATIVE STATES, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

Indians and the Board of Revenue.

13. United India and Native States, for the week ending 30th November, states:—"At the last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council, the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar moved a resolution advocating the early employment of an Indian member in the Board of Revenue. Whatever objection to the proposal may have existed ten years ago there can be none at the present time when there is no scarcity of eligible Indians. It seems rather anamolous that at a time when some of the highest appointments in administration are thrown open to Indians they should be shut out of the Board of Revenue. In this connection we feel bound to refer to certain remarks of the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew during the discussion on the question. . . . . Sir Alexander Cardew, somewhat went out of his way in the course of the discussion, to refer to the Proclamation in what Lord Morley would call a pettifogging spirit and to explain it away in much the same way as Lord Curzon did on a memorable occassion. . . . . It passes our comprehension why an eminent student of history like Sir Alexander Cardew should read into the Queen's Proclamation sentiments and restrictions they were never intended to convey, and it would be interesting to know the authority on which such a narrow and restricted interpretation was sought to be placed on a historical document.

"The Proclamation should be interpreted in a broad and statesmanlike manner as pointed out by Lord Morley and any attempt to interpret its provisions in a manner guaranteeing the perpetuation of inequalities and class and race privileges is bound to prove futile. To us the inviolability of Victoria's pledges to her Indian subjects on a solemn occasion oughtweighs all considerations of the prestige of the Civil Service and the perpetuation of vested interests, and it is on this account we strongly deprecate the tone adopted by Sir Alexander Cardew in the course of an otherwise admirable speech."

(j) Salt and Abkāri.

Liquor shops in the Presidency.

14. New India, of the 1st December, writes:—"The Government of Madras is very enthusiastic in praising the Board of Revenue for the steps taken by them during 1915–16 to reduce drunkenness in this Province. They 'are gratified to observe from the Board's report that every effort has been made to obtain local opinion in determining the number and location of liquor shops,' and are equally pleased to note the efforts made to spread the cause of temperance in other ways. Encouraged by this lavish style, we studied the report minutely; but to our disappointment, we did not find much on which to congratulate the department."

NEW INDIA, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

(k) General.

The Indian Civil Service.

15. The West Coast Spectator, of the 23rd November, observes:—"The admirers of the Indian Civil Service are not confined to the Service and Anglo-Indian press alone: there are certain Indians also who find divinity incarnate in the Civilian. A certain Diwan Bahadur, we have forgotten his name, giving evidence before the Industries Commission at Lucknow went into ecstacies. He said the Civilian was best fitted to be placed in charge of the Department of Industries. But a Civilian to any work, he said, and he is up to it. The Madras Government also seem to share the Diwan Bahadur's belief, as they have appointed a Civilian as head of the Industries Department. We have always held that there is nothing under the sun the Civilian is not acquainted with—from agriculture to astronomy. He can play the rôle of poet, philosopher, lawyer, statesman, fiddler and baffoon—and that too successfully."

WEST COAST SPECTATOR, Calicut, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

The Madras Executive Council.

16. The West Coast Spectator, of the 23rd November, remarks:—"Commenting upon the rumoured importation of Sir Shamsul Huda to Madras, a Bengal contemporary says that Bengal is 'loath to part company with Sir S. Huda and allow him to go all the way to the Southern Presidency.' We have absolutely no desire to rob Bengal of the 'rich experience' of Sir Shamsul, and we would, indeed, politely decline his services, which the Madras press and public bodies have made very clear. We would be content with one of our own men, though he may not be so 'brilliant' as Sir Shamsul, for there is such a thing as territorial patriotism, referred to with approval by Sir Ali Imam in his farewell speech at Simla."

WEST COAST SPECTATOR, Calicut, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

The West Coast Spectator, of the 25th November, observes:—"A Travancore paper gravely tells its readers that Diwan Bahadur Krishnan Nayar succeeds Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar! We, in this Presidency, have heard nothing about this appointment, but the wish is, perhaps, father to the thought in the case of our contemporary. Of course, the Diwan Bahadur will be far better than any gilded nonentity in whom a certain type of administrator finds peculiar charm."

WEST COAST SPECTATOR, Calicut, Nov. 25th, 1916.

United India and Native States, for the week ending 30th November, writes:—"The latest accession to the ranks of Madras journalism is the Non-Brahmin. In the opening article the aim of the paper is stated to be the championing of the interests of all communities other than the Brahmins. Nevertheless we find that for the impending vacancy in the Madras Council due to the retirement of Sir Sivaswami Ayyar our contemporary recommends with strange inconsistency the appointment of a Brahmin gentleman, Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achari, of Travancore fame. This is done for reasons which will not bear close scrutiny. We are told that the retired Travancore Diwan has been a friend of the friendless while his work in Travancore claims him as a champion of the Non-Brahmins. It is news to us that Mr. Achari has been a champion of the non-Brahmins while as regards his work in Travancore the less said the better. . . . . Speaking seriously, we should say that our contemporary has not made a good beginning, judging by the glaring manner in which it has stultified itself at the very outset."

UNITED INDIA AND NATIVE STATES, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

WEST COAST SPECTATOR, Calicut, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

17. The West Coast Spectator, of the 23rd November, writes:—"The Madras Legislative Council is in session and from the abnormally heavy number of interpellations and resolutions one is to infer that the new Councillors, like new brooms, are determined to show a heavy record of work to their constituents. The full text of the interpellations and answers are not before us, as we write this, but from the number already published in the daily press we find that very many of these interrogatories could have been left unasked, as many are so trivial that information could have been secured easily from elsewhere without putting an extra strain on the already over-worked Legislative Department, unless the authors thereof are particularly anxious to show themselves off as wideawake representatives of the body politic. . . . . We notice a tired feeling in the replies, rather in the officials making them as if they felt that this eternal interpellations were a sort of nuisance that had to be put up with. Indeed, some of the questions really verged on the borderland of nuisance, and we hope that as the new members gathered in experience we will hear less of bad, or indifferent or useless questions."

The Madras Legislative Council.

HINDU, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the Hindu, of the 25th November, says:—"The proceedings of the Legislative Council yesterday were rendered somewhat exciting and hardly edifying by the attitude which the Members of the Government and His Excellency took up in regard to the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar on the question of supplies to officers on tour; and as this is typical of the recent reactionary development which has come about in the methods pursued by the Government towards the elective element in the Council we are compelled to refer to it in somewhat greater detail than we intended to. In moving his resolution for specific rules being made so that subordinate officers are not made responsible for the supplies to superior officers and to ensure that village officers should be duly notified of the supply demanded by touring officials, Mr. Rama Ayyangar proceeded to prove his case by citing instances which not merely justified the framing of the rules he desired but also showed that the existing rules were not sufficiently deterrent. The instances he quoted were no doubt recent and perhaps related to some high-placed officers, but that by no means imposed on him the responsibility to maintain and prove them as formal charges. They were merely cited with a view to exemplify the evils of the present system and to improve the same. Sir Alexander Cardew, however, thought it necessary to take serious objection to the mention of the instances which on the face of them bore no trace of the names of places concerned, and he so far lost his equanimity and sense of proportion as to state that it was clearly an improper use of the privileges of Members to bring forward a resolution nominally to alter the rules but really to make personal attacks, and he admonished the member not to proceed with the resolution but to make formal charges to Government privately and with proofs. What is more surprising is that His Excellency went further and said that he was scrutinising the speech to see how far it was intended to cover the resolution, and added that the Honourable Member would be acting in the interests of the Council and himself if he withdrew the resolution. Mr. Rama Ayyangar was taken aback at the tone thus assumed on behalf of the Government, and after taking time during the luncheon interval very properly stuck to his guns. . . . . We are surprised that His Excellency should have so far fallen in with the bureaucratic views of the rights of Non-official Members as to feel that the discussion in Council of matters relating to superior officers was in the nature of a sacrilege upon the members of distinguished services in India, and we must point out that at the time when the reforms were introduced and the power to raise discussions on administrative matters was conceded the attempt on the part of the Government of India to obtain such immunity for the services was expressly negatived by Lord Morley in his Reform Despatch. . . . . Can it be denied that this vexed question of supplies to touring officers in this country and isolated incidents or instances of personal conduct in connection therewith are matters of public and general importance? If His Excellency does not think so, then we can only say that he has been seriously misinformed or kept uninformed of one of the most important matters in the every-day administration of the country. As will also appear from the following article the entire question of the relations of the Government and the Governor as President towards the Council, seems to us to require serious attention at the hands of all people who have or profess to have any real sympathy with progressive ideals in Indian administration."

The West Coast Spectator, of the 28th November, remarks:—"The proceedings of the Madras Legislative Council amply demonstrate that in spite of the expansion of the Councils, and the pious expressions of hope by Lords Minto and Morley, we still remain where we were in the good old days. The reduction of the so-called official majority into a pretentious sham, and the preponderance of the official and quasi-official element together with the patronising airs put on by the officials towards the non-officials—have all combined together to reduce the latter to mere non-entities who cannot achieve anything unless they assume, on their part, a mendicant attitude. The whole thing, the utter helplessness of the non-officials, has been brought into bold relief by the discussion on Mr. Rama Ayyangar's resolution on supplies to touring officers which must afford melancholy reading to the general public. The matter will be fround reproduced elsewhere, and the reader will see why the demand for Home Rule is becoming more and more insistent and widespread. . . . . The most surprising part of the procee ings is the strange attitude of, and the speech made by, Sir Alexander Cardew. This Member of Council lost temper, found in Mr. Ayyangar's resolution a personal attack on absent officers, nothing of a general character of public grievance in the said motion before the House: it was entirely a personal attack and 'it would be absurd to convert the Council into an arena' for such personal attacks. His Excellency immediately rose and evidently agreeing with Sir Alexander, asked Mr. Ayyangar to withdraw the resolution 'in fairness and justice to the Council'—that is to the officials, we believe. . . . . Mr. Ayyangar naturally indignant at the ungracious and unjust interpretation put upon his motive and resolution by Sir Alexander said that he knew his responsibility as much as the official members and that the officials had totally misunderstood his motive. His Excellency immediately rose and said that he had nothing to do with Sir Alexander Cardew, but was concerned only with the rules of debate in the Council, one of which laid it down that 'nothing defamatory, either by inference, irony or otherwise should be admitted'. We are afraid that His Excellency has misapplied this rule, for, we can see nothing defamatory or ironical in Mr. Ayyangar's resolution or speech, and to stretch this rule against them is certainly unjust to say the least. . . . . Non-official member after member supported Mr. Ayyangar, but what could they do against the solid official phalanx? Sir Alexander still stuck to the personal attack theory, and the mover of the resolution had to withdraw it after, what we are constrained to call, a fruitless debate. . . . . The non-officials have most thankless work to perform, they get blows from both sides, from the officials as well as their constituents without any material benefits, while the officials get paid—and that too very substantially—for the work they do. It is rather unfortunate that the officials cannot bring themselves round to appreciate the true motive that underlies such resolutions as the one under reference and should read into them sinister meanings. It is, also, unfortunate that His Excellency Lord Pentland also, an old Parliamentary hand, who must be familiar with the principle of give and take, a prominent feature of the House of Commons, should have taken an ungenerous view of Mr. Rama Ayyangar's resolution and speech, and contributed to the bitterness of the debate. On the whole, it is mournful that after nearly seven years of actual work and experience in the expanded Councils, the relation between the official and the non-official, should continue what it is, that the former should still look upon the latter as an irresponsible individual whose end and aim is to be always hostile to the Government.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1916.

Western Star, Trivandrum, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

The increased telegraphic charges.

18. In a leader on this subject, the Western Star, of the 23rd November, says:—"It is unnecessary for us to say that the announcement of the Government's decision to increase the cost of ordinary telegrams has come as a painful surprise upon the general public, but, above all, on the smaller classes of merchants, traders and business men, as well as private individuals, among all of whom the 6-anna telegram has been a most popular, convenient and useful institution, as is eloquently testified to by the Government's own statistics relating to the growth of the traffic in this one single respect itself. Here, in Travancore, as we have ascertained, the news of the Government's determination to withdraw a concession which has so strongly established itself, and the introduction of which had certainly not taken place before it had been justified by the growing needs and requirements of the Indian business world, has been received with very considerable disappointment and perturbation, all the more so because there had been nothing to prepare the public for what was coming. It appears to be generally felt that the step to be taken is of a decidedly retrograde character, for which sufficient warrant has not been shown and does not really exist. We fear that we cannot dissociate ourselves from this public feeling. . . . . As a remedy, the Government of India's present plan is utterly indefensible. In our own opinion, although, perhaps, many of our contemporaries may rebuke us for expressing it, the Government of India would have done very much better, if checking of traffic were really found necessary, to place some check upon press traffic rather than upon the most popular class of inland telegram. The inland telegraph wires for some time past have been a good deal too much used for the transmission, day and night, of press messages containing news, that is neither edifying nor interesting. While the general public could get on with very much less telegraphic intelligence of this sort, it will very keenly miss the convenience and utility of the 6-anna telegram. The Government's decision, it is to be feared, will not be withdrawn, but it is necessary that the Government should know that this measure of war economy does not commend itself in the slightest degree to a discerning public."

New India, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The treatment of wounded soldiers in India.

19. New India, of the 25th November, has the following:—

"The 'Morning Post' again.

"This delightful paper has an article, 'And fell among thieves'. Among other gems of journalese we read of the soldiers (English, of course) returning from Mesopotamia:

> When they get to India they expect some little care, some taste of comfort and tenderness, yet they are treated in a way which would be inhumane towards wounded dacoits in a gaol. They are neglected; they are tortured; they are murdered. The men who are responsible for this state of things ought to be hanged. They are high officials; they draw high pay; they live upon the tops of high mountains; and they indite lofty explanations. When they come down to the plain they sleep and live under punkahs; they have iced drinks; all things are done for them by silently efficient servants. And they allow our soldiers, whom they should esteem it a privilege to serve, to die for the want of the most elementary comforts. Who is responsible for it all? We demand to know, and we want to see somebody hanged for it.

"This is the foulest slander, yet the Censor allows it to pass unchallenged, while he occasionally stops on odd telegram of protest against the order of a high official, and New India has its security forfeited for paragraphs that are mild praise of Anglo-Indians compared with the above. Nor does the British Government intervene. The ways of Governments are strange and mysterious. As of old, they strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel."

New India, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The stupidities of censors.

20. Referring to the suppression, by the Cawnpur Censor, of a press telegram containing a resolution of the Cawnpur Branch of the Home Rule League, New India, of the 25th November, says:—"We are tired of calling attention to the stupidities of Censors, but the above example shows that they have not yet learned to mend their ways. The comic part of the matter is that the telegram arrived here on the 21st, and was printed! Apart from this little joke, the Censor presumably exists to prevent information penetrating to the enemy, and we are entitled from recent pronouncements by judicial authority, as well as from the statement of Lord Hardinge, to conclude that Germany is the enemy, not the Home Rule League or its members. If the Cawnpur telegram would hearten the Germans, then every letter ought to be censored as well, for it is not unusual to send a letter in confirmation of a previous telegram. We wonder, too, what the Censor was doing between the 14th and the 19th. Had the local or Supreme Government to be consulted, or was it sheer want of business capacity? Anyhow, the result is ridiculous from the Censor's point of view, for the very action which is taken to avoid publicity will make the Cawnpur resolution stand out from among all the others. We have already thanked Sir Benjamin for his effective action in popularising our movement. We have now much pleasure in adding to the list of those to whom we are in debt the name of the Censor of Cawnpur. We may add that about ninety and nine telegrams censuring Sir Benjamin have passed the Censors; why stop this hundredth? And having stopped it for five days, why forward it on the sixth?"

21. New India, of the 25th November, observes:—"The report on the trade of India during 1915-16 gives some interesting information on two vices that are now having an increased number of slaves in India, viz., drinking and smoking. . . . . In spite of the war, the consumption of foreign tobacco—mainly cigarettes—has increased by 20 per cent in five years. Perhaps when the war is over, an even more unhappy tale will come to light; even if that were not to be, the situation is certainly not satisfactory. That India should be sending out no less than 80 lakhs of rupees just to satisfy a vicious craving is a most alarming indication of the times. And when we remind ourselves that most of it comes from our young men, who are thereby spoiling their bodies, the picture becomes most tragic. Cannot something be done to remedy the situation? Are we to permit the vice to extend its sway year after year over the most valued assets of the motherland? That is the question which the above statistics unmistakably ask; and it is for our leaders and legislators to reply."

The cost of vices.

NEW INDIA, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

22. New India, of the 25th November, remarks:—"We publish elsewhere the appeal of Mr. Justice Trotter for the Animal Show. It is a praiseworthy and useful undertaking, and we regret that the editor of this journal is, for the first time, shut out from it, as she cannot attend any function patronised by His Excellency and by members of his Government, while the brand of disloyalty, which they have so unjustly fixed on her remains unremoved by them."

The Animal Show.

NEW INDIA, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

23. The Cochin Argus, for the week ending 25th November, observes:—"We have always conceded the point, urged by those who profess to speak disinterestedly on behalf of the masses and, in particular, of the teeming agricultural population of this essentially agricultural country, that there is necessity for an appreciable measure of relaxation in the administration of the Arms Act. . . . . To take only the case of Malabar, South Canara and the Nilgiris, it is admitted, even by the authorities, that wild pig, wild dogs, tigers, cheetahs and hyenas have of late years been a good deal more in evidence than is desirable from the point of view of their human neighbours. While all this is so, it is certainly reasonable to criticise the severity with which the Arms Act is administered, particularly with reference to the distribution of that class of licenses, intended to arm the cultivating classes for the better protection of their crops and live-stock, as well as their own lives. Taking the case of a district like Malabar, and allowing for its cultivated surface, the proportion of this surface, which is within or in the vicinity of forest and jungle country, the large scale on which predacious creatures are represented in the fauna and avifauna, the character and habits of the peasantry, with, perhaps, the exception of portion of a certain class, and, last but not least, the circumstances that licenses for the protection of crops and life invariably cover only antiquated, slow-firing muzzle loaders, there is very much force in the argument that the administration of the Act is a good deal severer than it need be. . . . . The present administration of the district is by no means deficient in sympathy of the judicious type, but when all is said and done, District and Divisional officers rely, as a rule, to a considerable extent on the reports and recommendations of their responsible subordinate officers, and it is problematical whether, in matters relating to the working of so delicate an enactment as the Arms Act, these subordinate officers always acquaint the higher authorities quite correctly regarding the disabilities and protective needs and requirements of the cultivating classes. There is the prevalent notion that the Government is strongly averse from making the administration of the Act elastic and from increasing the numbers of gun licenses, but whether this notion is real or only imaginary, we fear it consciously or unconsciously influences the attitude of the average responsible subordinate officer towards the people committed to his care, in reference to problems of Arms Act administration. For our part, we hold very strongly that the repeal of the Arms Act would be a measure of the grossest unwisdom, for a great many reasons, which we have no space to-day to discuss, but, at the same time, we fully concede the strong reasonableness of the demand for a relaxation of the Act in areas like Malabar, in view to affording our cultivating classes a more adequate amount of protection against the several footed and winged pests, which ravage their crops and cattle and altogether make existence for them very disagreeably exciting and risky. We trust the responsible authorities in the district will take this matter into their very serious and earnest consideration and effect a modification of the Arms Act policy which is now in vogue."

The Arms Act.

COCHIN ARGUS, British Cochin, Nov. 25th, 1916.

Malabar Herald, British Cochin, Nov. 25th, 1916.

New India and the Indian Press Act.

24. The Malabar Herald, for the week ending 25th November, writes:—"Mrs. Besant is nearing the scaffold if we may use that phrase with a degree of indulgence for which she will excuse us. In a recent issue of her paper she throws the uncomfortable hint for the information of its subscribers when she tells them that the paper would be suddenly stopped. In that case the incident must be taken to mean that the press and the paper will be confiscated by Government. According to her, rumours are very busy that something is imminent, and the probability is that she will be interned. . . . . For aught we know Mrs. Besant is not alarmed at the approach of this tempestuous weather, as she is quite confident of winning her laurels in the free soil of England where she expects to fight a fierce battle. . . . . The whole of India will watch with interest the developments that are likely to follow the confiscation of New India with the press and the internment of Mrs. Besant with whom many an Indian will sympathise in her present predicament brought on by her political campaign."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Nov. 25th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the West Coast Spectator, of the 25th November, says:—"The atmosphere is thick with rumours about the probable internment of Mrs. Besant under the Defence Act, and in a pathetic, but 'manly'. Ourselves Mrs. Besant warns the subscribers of New India to be prepared to see the paper stopped at any moment under executive order. We are not prepared to place faith in the rumours as it is difficult to believe that the Government of Lord Pentland will take action at least against New India when they have received a notice of appeal in connection with the recent case."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The Defence of India Act in the Madras Presidency.

25. The West Coast Spectator, of the 25th November, states:—"It is news to us that one order of internment under the Defence Act has been passed in this Presidency. This has been officially announced in the Legislative Council. We do not know who the unfortunate individual is, and cannot congratulate the Government on their having managed the business in secret without even announcing the man's name. It is necessary that when action is taken under a dangerous war measure it should be public especially when there is no appeal to the judicial tribunals."

NON-BRAHMIN, Madras, Nov. 26th, 1916.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur Annamalai Chetti.

26. The following appears in the Non-Brahmin for the week ending 26th November:—"Rao Bahadur Annamalai Chetti has shown that he would not be a silent member in the Council, rallying out of his retreat on the budget day with a printer's sheet. His interpellation, especially on commercial and industrial subjects, show the trend of his thought. He has it in his hands to do much more for India than half a dozen prancing agitators can do in thirty years. If he would lead, his great community would follow, and almost at the first meeting he has displayed signs of leadership. His independence and freedom from the superstition that he should vote with the Honourable Members who pass for public men were seen when he practically opposed Mr. Ramachandra Rao's resolution on public charities. His community could not help thanking him for the brilliant stand he made for them."

NON-BRAHMIN, Madras, Nov. 26th, 1916.

The Cuddapah District Conference.

27. The Non-Brahmin, for the week ending 26th November, writes:—"The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Asad Ali Khan's presidential address at the Cuddapah Conference is a model worthy of imitation. It was not a long speech surveying the situation from Mount Everest to Cape Comorin. It was not a passionate tirade against the Government; it was not an immediate demand for Home Rule and self-government. It was never the irresponsible picture of the Government that can do nothing right and the people that can do nothing wrong. His was a face to face harangue to the people to aim high and act high; to the official also it was a harangue to put a larger construction upon his duties than merely to sign the papers and be done with them. We wish that more of our leaders will show the same high sense of public duty. To abuse the Government, to quote, in the words of His Excellency Lord Pentland, the third kind of lie—the black lie, the white lie and statistics—and to think that one has done his duty is not public work. Blow into brilliance the spark of spirit in every youth. Strive to collect the great force in our community, and then, when any demand is made by us, the Government will have to hear it."

NEW INDIA, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

Theosophy in neutral countries.

28. New India, of the 27th November, remarks:—"We have mentioned the value of the Swiss Section of the Theosophical Society, as belonging to a neutral country, in showing its wrong sympathy with the cause of the Allies, as the cause of the Right and the Just against German militarism. A service done by the Theosophical Society more especially to India in such countries is that they create a public opinion in favour of Indian liberty, and realise that those who are fighting for freedom in Europe cannot consistently deny freedom to India. . . . . Thanks to Mrs. Besant's position in all civilised countries as President of the Theosophical Society, the attack made on her papers, religious and secular—to use the cant western phrase—echoes all round the world. All these countries, except the Central Powers and Russia, enjoy freedom of the press, and they cannot understand how, within the British Empire, hitherto regarded as the citadel of freedom, such a law as our Press Act can exist. Moreover, they know the law is used to penalise our theosophical as well as our political press, that religious as well as secular freedom of printing is hampered. . . . . The action taken shows that, as with the order of the Central Provinces Government, religious neutrality is infringed, and religious as well as civil freedom of speech is penalised. . . . . No greater disservice could have been done to the reputation for liberty enjoyed by the British Empire and supposed to be its glory, than has been inflicted on it by the Government of India in passing the Press Act, and by the Local Governments that have used it to destroy the liberty of the Indian press. While the latter confined their attention to papers little known, or unknown, outside India, the harm done to the empire in the outside world was not so great. But their attacks on New India, the Vasanta and Besant Presses have drawn on them the attention not only of the Allies, but also of the neutral nations, whose good opinion and respect are so vital to Great Britain in the coming days. Those who have thus weakened her position as the champion and guardian of liberty, and who have enabled her enemies to point to the blots they have thrown on her fair escutcheon, will be called to strict account. That Mrs. Besant may be ruined matters little. That England's good name should be smirched in the process is of far-reaching importance."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1916.

Swiss Missionaries.

29. The West Coast Spectator, of the 28th November, remarks:—"Some of our contemporaries have of late been publishing—and we ourselves have received several communications—serious allegations against some of the Swiss Missionaries who run the Basel German Mission industrial concerns. The Missionary in charge of the local tile works comes in for several allegations of a serious nature. We have no desire to add to the bitterness of the controversy, but would desire the Collector to institute a searching enquiry into the charges."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1916.

Resolutions in the Madras Legislative Council.

30. The following appears in the West Coast Spectator of the 28th November:—"Anybody who reads the proceedings of the Madras Legislative Council must come to the irresistible conclusion that the non-officials simply waste time and energy in moving resolutions, ninety-nine per cent of which are simply rejected by the official majority. Much public time and public money would be saved were the officials to intimate beforehand whether they would accept or reject the resolutions, in which case we would not see the undignified and unfortunate spectacle of resolution after resolution being thrown out after much ponderous discussion."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1916.

Brahmans and non-Brahmans.

31. The West Coast Spectator, of the 28th November, observes:—"A writer in the Madras Mail repeats the protest we made the other day against the practical exclusion of non-Brahmins from the All-India Congress Committee. On going through the list of names published by the Provincial Committee we find the names of Mr. Patro of Berhampur, who, we now learn, is a non-Brahmin. Even then, our protest holds good, for the numerical strength of the Brahmins in this Presidency does not warrant the filling up of ninety-eight per cent of the seats in the committee allotted to Madras with Brahmins. Naturally the Brahmin supremacy has created a good deal of adverse comment and, as the writer in the Madras Mail very rightly says the action of the Madras committee only confirms the feeling that Home Rule will but degenerate into Brahmin rule. . . . . In Madras itself is Diwan Bahadur Karunakara Menon, while in the mofussal there is Mr. Kesava Pillai and a whole regiment of non-Brahmins who are not in any way inferior either to the Triplicane clique or Mylapore cabal. The indignation and regret become the keener when we find the names of certain Brahmin gentlemen, mere non-entities, included in the list as against their betters like Pillai and Menon. . . . . We had noticed this Brahmin supremacy last year as well, and we thought that the adverse criticism it excited would rectify the mistake and lead the Brahmin boss-alls and bang-alls of the Mahajana Sabha and the Congress Committee into taking up a more generous attitude towards the non-Brahmins. . . . . People who cry for Home Rule and representative institutions—and the Brahmins are the loudest—must themselves cultivate a little respect for the feelings of others and practise those virtues they expect in the Government. If this aggression goes on, and the spirit of toleration and compromise does not dominate the political atmosphere, we shall not be surprised if we see in the near future a sharp division in the political camp, as between Brahmins and non-Brahmins. The feeling of irritation now created must be removed, and this is possibly only if the Brahmin 'leaders' who pull the string led in non-Brahmins into the camp, at least for the sake of common decency."

32. The Hindu, of the 29th November, writes:—"His Majesty the King-Emperor has approved of the appointment of the Earl of Ronaldshay as Governor of Bengal in succession to Lord Carmichael. The announcement will arouse but little popular enthusiasm in India and less in Bengal. The Earl is a typical conservative in politics and is also, if we are not mistaken, an imperialist of the school of Lord Milner. His Lordship has had some idea of life in the east, having toured through India, Ceylon and Persia a decade and a half ago and having served as Aide-de-Camp on the staff of Lord Curzon, the then Viceroy. That this experience, however, was confined to conditions in India that have now happily passed away was evident from his Lordship's activities as a member of the recent Public Services Commission. It is this fact of the lack of progressive tendencies so much to be desired in administrators in this country that, more than any other, makes the choice not quite acceptable. His Lordship is comparatively young, of active habits and possesses a striking personality, and it is to be hoped that he will prove the wisdom of the choice to popular satisfaction."

HINDU, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Governor-designate of Bengal.

Writing on this subject, New India, of the 29th November, says:—"We regret to learn that Earl Ronaldshay, who was Aide-de-Camp of Lord Curzon in 1900, has been appointed to succeed Lord Carmichael as Governor of Bengal. He is a staunch Conservative and as a member of the Public Services Commission, he did not show any conspicuous broad-mindedness, nor any love for Indian aspirations. We do not know what stood in the way of extending Lord Carmichael's term of office, unless the coalition demanded its share of the loaves and fishes. But we are not sorry that he is going; for we believe that Lord Carmichael can serve India better in Westminster than in Bengal. We look forward to some plain speaking in the House of Lords."

NEW INDIA, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Indian Patriot, of the 29th November, observes:—"A telegram from Simla informs us to-day that the Earl of Ranoldshay has been appointed Governor of Bengal in succession to Lord Carmichael who retires towards the end of March next. We do not know whether the news will be received with exhilaration in Bengal. The fact that he was for some time Aide-de-Camp to Lord Curzon during his Indian Viceroyalty will not make him specially acceptable. He was in India as a member of the Public Services Commission, and nobody outside the Commission knows anything about his views on Indian aspirations. . . . . We hope that Lord Ronaldshay's term of office will prove beneficial to Bengal, though we realise the difficulties of a successor of Lord Carmichael in Bengal. Lord Carmichael required no previous experience to know the conditions with which he had to deal. Lord Ronaldshay does not possess the same genius."

INDIAN PATRIOT, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The following appears in New India of the 1st December:—

NEW INDIA, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

"Lord Ronaldshay.

"This is the young and untried gentleman who has been chosen for the most difficult gift in the hands of the Crown, the Governorship of Bengal. It is a post which requires a close and sympathetic knowledge of the Bengali character, an understanding of its proud sensitiveness, its self-respect, its sense of personal dignity, and above all a realisation of its deeply rooted hope of National and Provincial Autonomy. A 'douche of commonsense,' as recommended by the Statesman, will mean dangerous and sullen anger; the Civil and Military Gazette thinks that his most fatal disqualification is his highest recommendation:

> It is much in his favour that almost his first acquaintance with the administrative machine in India was gained in a sound school, when he served as A.D.C. on Lord Curzon's staff in 1900.

"Curzonian methods drove Young Bengal into violence; a repetition of them will have far worse results, for Bengal was only awakened by Lord Curzon, whereas Bengal is now awake. . . . . We cordially hope that when peace is secure, the present Government may be bundled out, and we may return to the much decried party system. At present we get the worst of both the parties."

NEW INDIA, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

Moulana Abul Kalam Azad.

33. New India, of the 29th November, remarks:—"This unfortunate man, interned by the Behar and Orissa Government, protests solemnly and bitterly against the imputation made by the Government that they had received reliable information that he was in treasonable communication with the enemies of the King-Emperor. Why then not prosecute him and give him a chance of clearing himself? It is useless to protest, though it must be done for duty's sake, lest any should say that we connive at these internments and confiscations."

NEW INDIA, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Press Act again.

34. New India, of the 29th November, observes:—"The Bombay Government is becoming more and more severe, and is evidently intent on crushing political discussion. It has forfeited the security of the 'Jain Vijaya Press' for the publication, some four months ago, of a book entitled Bharat Durdasa Darshan. Judging from the description given by the Local Government—and we have nothing else to judge by—it was a political treatise written on the lines of the books of Dadabhai Naoroji, R. C. Datta and William Digby. There is no charge of violence, of incitement to riot, or the like. If no such charges would lie, and we may presume that they would have been made if possible, dwellers in the Bombay Presidency must avoid statistics in their articles. How far is this to go?"

NEW INDIA, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

Indentured emigration.

35. The following appears in New India of the 29th November:—

"The indenture despatch.

"AN ARGUMENT FOR HOME RULE.

"The belated publication of the Government of India's Despatch to the Secretary of State on the subject of Indentured Labour, dated October 1915, will stir up in the hearts of Indian political reformers a sad but grateful reminder of what India lost in the retirement of Lord Hardinge. . . . . The Despatch is noteworthy in its free admission that its urgency has been stimulated by Indian educated opinion. This should put an end to talk, by the Anglo-Indian press, of 'only a small section of the vast Indian public wanting Home Rule,' or any other reform.

"Everyone, except self-blinded reactionaries, knows that a country's true voice is that of its mentally awake and articulate class, and this official acknowledgment of the weight that must be attached to the demands of this class in India should encourage waverers to join the Home Rule League, and so take their place among the country's best helpers and swell their numbers and influence.

"Another point of value is the statement that the indentured labour scandal has been forced to a head because it had, at the date of the Despatch, become the most burning question in Indian political circles. Much water has come down from the Himalayas since then, and in urgency and prominence, the indentured evil is far behind the question of self-government. It is almost too much to hope that another despatch has gone to the Secretary of State for India informing him that Indian educated opinion demands a voice in the governing of the country, and asking His Majesty's Government to give the demand legislative effect after the war, so as to remove what Lord Hardinge's document refers to as 'the stigma of helotry,' a stigma that exists no less, but rather more, under a condition of political powerlessness than under indentured labour. . . . . The fact that a crying evil against humanity should have to wait for its extirpation until a Government seven thousand miles away has time to attend to it, is as neat a point as the most ardent Home Ruler could ask for, in support of his claim for a representative assembly empowered to deal with the domestic affairs of India."

HINDU, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

The Government and the Legislative Council.

36. In a leader on this subject, the Hindu, of the 30th November, says:—"The necessity for revising the Rules of Procedure by which very wide powers are vested in His Excellency the President for controlling the conduct of business, legislative and otherwise, in the local

Legislative Council has already been pointed out in these columns. It seems to us high time also that a limit should also be put on the amount of interference which the Government, through its Official Members and the Governor as President of the Council, could be permitted legally to exercise. . . . . We have had brought to our notice a number of instances in which the discretion vested in His Excellency the President to admit resolutions or interpellations to be brought up out of time or with previous permission, has not been exercised in favour of the proposers. Indeed, we have not come across till now any one case in regard to the business of the Council in which such previous permission or such discretion has been accorded or exercised in favour of the Non-official Members of the Council, even where matters of urgent general public interest were concerned. . . . . We wish, however, to-day more particularly to draw attention to an extremely undesirable and anomalous development which seems likely to creep into the proceedings of the Legislative Council in the discussion of resolutions and which, if not immediately modified, is bound to impair seriously, one of the most valuable privileges conferred by the Reforms of 1909. . . . . The unfettered discretion reserved to the Government in respect of resolutions moved and carried in Council has further been sought to be buttressed by the provision that any resolution can be previously disallowed by the President for no other reason than that in his opinion it cannot be moved and discussed consistently with the public interest. With such large outside powers vested in the Executive Government and its head, it must be absolutely unnecessary for them to seek to obtain inside control also or to actively interfere with the moving or the discussion of resolutions within the Council Hall itself . . . . It is a matter of concern and surprise to all who have cared to look at this matter beneath the surface, to find that the Government and its head should be so constantly interfering with the progress of debates within the Council—not with a view to preserve order or to make progress in business, but with a view to shape or to render out of shape, the motions brought forward by Non-official Members. That it should have been thought necessary as a matter of tactics for the Government to get resolutions defeated at all in the local Legislative Council is itself, in our view, an indication of weakness on the part of the Government. But that it should have proceeded by several stages so far as to make the Government itself bring forward amendments to motions made by non-official members, seems to us the culmination of a retrogressive policy. . . . . A very novel method of interference on the official side with the resolutions has taken place which seems to reduce the whole thing to an absurdity. Where non-official members would not accept suggested amendments or could not be persuaded to withdraw on assurances, the Government still seem anxious not to allow the resolutions to proceed to a division. At the last meeting of the Legislative Council, it was found not only that attempts were made on the official side to induce one or other pliable non-official member to move amendments suggested on the official side, but an amendment to a non-official resolution came to be actually moved and seconded by officials on behalf of the Government when the Hon'ble Mr. Subbarayalu Reddiyar's resolution on re-settlement was under debate. Not merely this, but when this was thought insufficient. His Excellency the President himself from the chair suggested an amendment to the accepted resolution which, as so amended, was then put to the meeting and carried. It seems to us that this is an extension of procedure and interference unwarranted by the rules and unconstitutional in effect. If every resolution moved on the non-official side is in the nature of 'a recommendation to the Government,' how can the Government move any amendments? Can the Government or its members or Secretaries on their behalf move a resolution making a recommendation to themselves? Or can the Government, with a view to defeat non-official members' resolutions, put on the agenda whatever blocking resolutions they may find necessary for the purpose? . . . . If the Government claim such a right, then the significance and the constitutional character of the resolutions must radically alter. Resolutions should then merely be expressions of the opinions of the House on all matters of administration and they ought not to be then 'mere recommendations to Government.' The latter implies that the Government as such have no part or lot in the framing or the discussion of resolutions. They may oppose or express sympathy with them in Council, but they should leave the Council in the light of the explanations afforded and the debate raised, to vote on the matter, keeping themselves entirely free to deal with them afterwards. . . . . The powers of the President in regulating the discussion of resolutions are entirely of the nature of maintaining order and the forms of procedure in deliberative assemblies. They by no means place the President in a position either to take part in the debate as the exponent of Government's views or to influence the sense of the assembly by any course which he may think fit to adopt. And though His Excellency Lord Pentland did lay down the dictum in the course of the debate that as President he had nothing to do in the Council with the Government or with the Official Members, yet it is to be regretted that he should have found it necessary to buttress the official side by any final speech on resolutions or by propounding amendments at his own instance. With a previous power of disallowance of debates on public questions so fully and freely exercised, with a mode of dealing with resolutions within the council by which non-official members often withdraw them at the slightest expression of sympathy or indication of acceptance of some harmless part thereof, with the influence which the Government command over the votes of non-official nominated members and, finally with the attempt now made to move amendments on the Government side to recommendations made to themselves, it cannot be said that there is really any serious desire on the part of Lord Pentland's Government to permit free discussion, and voting and to give the legitimate scope for the expression of popular opinion in the Legislative Council contemplated by the Reform Scheme."

New India, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

Lokamanya Tilak.

37. New India, of the 1st December, has the following:—"We record with joy the election of Lokamanya Tilak on the All-India Congress Committee for 1917, less for the sake of his presence on the committee, invaluable as we believe it will prove to be, as for the clear proof that the days are past when the displeasure of Governments was regarded as a disqualification for the service of the nation in any post in the gift of Congress 'official' circles. We are all drawing closer together, realising that we form one national army, with its center and its two wings. No longer is one wing quarrelling with the other; we struggle for one victory, freedom; we shout one war-cry, the motherland; we have one aspiration, Home Rule."

New India, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

Government is always by the few.

38. In concluding a leader on this subject, New India, of the 1st December, says:—"When we are told that India is not yet fit for self-governmet, it is intended to be conveyed to us that the masses of the people are not yet ready to understand national questions, and that it would be impossible to introduce into this country a Parliamentary system similar to that in force in Great Britain. We do not, however, think that the Indian voter would do worse with this vote than does the British voter. The British voter is more or less at the mercy of the clever orator and the forceful leader. So would the Indian voter be, too. The only question remains as to whether the leaders in India are inferior to those in Great Britain, as to whether, that is, the Indian leader is likely to lead the Indian voter more astray, to consider more his personal advantage, than the British leader is likely to do with regard to his fellow countrymen. The past few years have shown that there is not an inconsiderable number of Indian statesmen qualified to govern this country. Almost every position of importance in Indian administration has, at one time or another, been occupied by an Indian, and there is no reason to suggest that the tyranny of the few in India would be worse than the tyranny of the few in Great Britain. We might, however, in two directions improve upon the British system. In the first place, we might establish, but not from among the Indian Princes, a body similar to the 'Conseil d'Etat' in France—a body of experts in the various departments of administration, having power to modify the decisions of the Executive in the light of their expert knowledge. In the second place, when the Indian Parliament comes into existence, we might do much to mitigate the evils of the party system by introducing vote by ballot on the measures before the house. In this way our Indian Parliament would be, what the British is not, a truly Legislative Assembly with comparatively free power of discussion. It is true that the few must always lead the many; it has always been so in the past, and it must be so in the immediate future. But provision must always be made for the free expression of opinion by the humblest member of the nation, leaving its weight and influence to be determined by its moral worth, and our system of Government must so be improved that in increasing measure both Executive and the Legislature are swayed by wisdom rather than by force."

III.—Legislation.

Private Members' Bills.

39. The Hindu, of the 25th November, states:—"We publish elsewhere a communication from the Hon'ble Mr. T. Ranga Acharya relative to the procedure governing motions for leave to introduce Bills by Members of the Legislative Council. The letter raises an important issue affecting the rights of Members which requires earnest consideration at the hands of those who are anxious that the privileges of members should be preserved from executive inroads and that the reforms should be worked in the spirit in which they were introduced. A perusal of the letter and a consideration of certain other facts will show how the Local Government are exhibiting impatience at legislation by private members and how the rules regulating legislative business are narrowly and illiberally interpreted. . . . . It is a most erroneous view of the law and the rules governing legislative business that the Government have taken, the consequence of which is that a valued right of private members is sought to be taken away. It appears to us that the Secretary's action in refusing to allow the motion to appear on the agenda paper is illegal, and Mr. Ranga Acharya has obtained the opinions of Messrs. Nugent Grant and T. R. Venkatarama Sastri on the question. They are of opinion that the interpretation put on the rules is clearly illegal, the distinction between a motion for leave to introduce and one for introduction, which is clearly recognised by the rules, having been ignored by the Government. We wonder too how, in the face of the well-known parliamentary practice about the matter, the Local Government have come to take such an untenable position. The Local Government would seem to be developing an unfortunate tendency to look at such matters from an extremely narrow point of view. . . . . It appears to us that the Local Government, in bringing such pressure to bear upon Honourable Members and in placing such forced and unwarranted construction on the Act and the rules governing legislation, act in a spirit which is not in consonance with that which underlies the reform scheme. Such obstacles cannot promote that amity of feeling between the executive and representatives of the people that it was the declared policy of Lord Morley to promote."

Hindu, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, New India, of the 27th November, says:—"We received at 4 p.m. on Saturday, when the paper was arranged for its final make-up, a long and interesting letter from the Hon'ble Mr. T. Ranga Acharya on the refusal of the Government to grant him leave to introduce a Bill on Village Panchayats. . . . . The powers of non-official members are so small that the Hon'ble Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Acharya has bitterly said that the Councils are a farce. If they are to be still further restricted, will anything be left to them except the right of occasionally passing useless resolutions, and voting in the minority on Government measures? We congratulate Mr. Ranga Acharya on his courage in making this matter public, and we sincerely trust that he will submit the question to a court of law."

New India, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

IV.—Native States.

The Director of Public Instruction, Travancore.

40. In the fifth of a series of articles on this subject, the People's Opinion, of the 29th November, remarks:—"Since Mr. L. C. Hodgson has shown more than an ordinary solicitude in getting himself confirmed in his new appointment it behoves us to see whether he has qualities indispensable for the head of a large department of State, especially the Education Department. We have till now discussed the question from pure principles and abstract considerations, a comparatively easy matter from one point of view, and avoided as much as possible entering into any personal valuation. . . . . In judging Mr. Hodgson's work in the Education Department, with all our sympathy we fear we have to give a very unfavourable verdict. His administration of the department, excepting the change in the educational policy for which Government and not he is responsible, has been wholly uneventful. He has been running in the old rut and has failed to make his mark in any large measure of reform effected or in improving the efficiency of the departmental machinery he has been driving all this while. . . . . While all around lies a vast field of labour lying practically unexplored, Mr Hodgson, we are sorry to note, has not been busy with any scheme to take us a step higher in any branch of education. He sits at the top of the department and is fearfully engaged in calling for reports and explanations and passing proceedings, orders and what not, with the result that real educational work is made to mark time and not allowed to progress. Solid work of spreading education in the nooks and corners of the country has been replaced by routine and red-tape. Like Æsop's fly sitting on the wheel and exulting on the amount of dust it was raising Mr. Hodgson could conscientiously say that he had been keeping the whole department in a tremendous pother; but the net result of all his efforts seems, after all, to be precious little for the noise he has been able to make. . . . . The want of a large intellectual vision is the great defect in Mr. Hodgson's mental make-up and it is to this primarily we ascribe his failure to enunciate a policy or carry out a large measure of reform. He may be a brilliant man in details, and an able scholar fit to expound the beauties of a passage from Sakespeare or Milton or to pick out the 'grievances of grammar, idiom and punctuation' in a report. But these secondary qualities of the intellect will hardly make up for the absence of a breadth of intellectual outlook which is absolutely necessary in one who has to control and direct a large department of the State. . . . . Over and above this lack of an intellectual vision, Mr. Hodgson evidently suffers from a lack of sympathy towards educated Indian aspirations, which now and then lead him to assume false positions. His hostile attitude towards the Vernacular Jubilee celebration movement, his ill-concealed indifferentism towards the scheme of foreign scholarships, his opposition to the liberalisation of the restrictive provisions of the Education Code which hamper the spread of education in the land, his defiance of popular opinion and popular leaders, all these have only one tale to tell, viz., that Mr. Hodgson, unlike the great educational pioneers Mr. Ross, Dr. Harvey, Mr. Reid, and in a lesser degree Dr. Mitchell and Dr. Bishop, has somehow imbibed the true latter day Anglo-Indian spirit and does not set much store by the dissemination of education, both literary and technical, broadcast among the masses. . . . . Judged from another point of view also Mr. Hodgson, we regret to say, has not been a success as a departmental head. His want of tact and of a sense of proportion has led him to magnify slight errors into grave offences, so much so that his subordinates have become dissatisfied under his pinpricks and speak more of their worry than of their work. Mr. Hodgson is such a stickler at discipline that—if our information is correct—there is no discipline kept in the offices subordinate to him. His relations with the Deputy Director of Public Instruction and with the Inspector of Secondary Schools are anything but amicable. . . . . Capacity to control a big department does not consist in an ostentatious display of power on every little occasion but in a silent reserve of strength which keeps the subordinates in awe by its very unknown character. The fussy sort of individual, however clever he may be, will be a stupendous failure in the control of a department, and Mr. Hodgson has not shown himself to be any other. In these circumstances we have our grave doubts whether the confirmation of Mr. Hodgson as the Director of Public Instruction is an unmixed blessing for Travancore education."

People's Opinion, Trivandrum, Nov. 29th, 1916.

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

The condition of Indian coolies in Ceylon.

41. Adverting to the deputation of Messrs. Marjori banks and Ahmed Tambi Marakkayar to enquire into the condition of the Indian coolies in Ceylon, the Swadesamitran, of the 27th November, says:—We hope these two gentlemen would have by now ascertained many facts on this subject from the authorities in Ceylon. We would repeat that, though the object of their inquiry is not to improve the condition of the coolies in Ceylon, it is their duty to ascertain the true state of affairs and to intimate the same to the Government of India. The Ceylon papers are every day reporting cases of cruelty to the coolies on the part of the planters, the worst being those in which women are concerned. If at the very time when a Bill to prevent women coolies being punished with imprisonment is on the anvil in Ceylon, women are punished by the Courts of Law at the instance of the planters, much need not be said of the sympathy of the planters and officials towards the coolies. In introducing the above Bill in the Ceylon Legislative Council, the Attorney-General declared that it was not possible to do away altogether with imprisonment as a punishment in the case of women, on the ground that the ordinary relation between a master and a servant implied a right on the part of the master to punish his servant in some form or other for neglect of work and that imprisonment was the only form of punishment which instilled some fear in the minds of the coolies. It is for our Government to consider whether this principle, that the relation between a master and a servant entitles a master to inflict corporal punishment on the servant for any kind of mistake, is in consonance with the glorious English civilisation. Is this state of affairs superior to the condition of a cooly in the indentured labour system? Moreover, the Ceylon Government is helping the planters there to take work from the coolies thus by threatening them with corporal punishment for any mistake and to reap enormous profits on their capital. This cannot help every one in the Empire to live in harmony. As far as our Presidency is concerned, the Government of Madras is bound to inquire into the hardships suffered by the Tamilian coolies in Ceylon by the cruel laws in force there and seek proper remedies for the same. We, therefore, hope that the two gentlemen, who have been sent to Ceylon by this Government, will ascertain fully the grievances of our people there and communicate the same to the Government.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

Rumania.

42. The Kistnapatrika, of the 25th November, says:—It is being made impossible for the enemy to collect any large army in any quarter. It must be admitted, however, that Rumania is in a sad plight. But the Rumanian soldiers are exhibiting unparallelled boldness in defending their country. The Russians are helping the Rumanians with men and munitions. The western part of Rumania, which is a fertile country, may fall into the hands of the enemy.

Kistnapatrika, Masulipatam, Nov. 26th, 1916.

Self-government and the Phillippine Islands.

43. *Referring to the prospect of self-government being granted to the Filipinos in the near future, the Lokaprakasam, of the 20th November, observes that, while these people, who had till recently been treated by Spain as slaves, are now fortunate enough to be considered fit for self-government, it is regrettable that not only the British Government, but even some of the unpatriotic Indian youths, should contend that Indians are not as yet fit for it.

Lokaprakasam, Trichur, Nov. 20th, 1916.

---

* Received in the current week.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1916.

The new Belgian armies and the war in Europe.

44. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 20th November, writes:—Our gallant Allies (Belgians) destroyed hundreds of thousands of German forces and are still adding to the number of the slain. They are cutting them up like radishes and carrots and are performing brilliant deeds which are upsetting all the enemy's plans. But the memory of the first of our brave and valiant Allies (Belgians) cannot be effaced from our minds. The brilliant stand they made in defence of their country against a powerful friend like Germany, their glorious self-sacrifice in the interests of valour, honour and true friendship and their unflinching fidelity to their pledged words in spite of dire calamity and untold suffering evoke from us exclamations of appreciation. Their country is almost entirely in the hands of the German tyrants and a large number of their young men have quaffed the bitter draught of death for the sake of national honour and independence. In spite of all this those who are left have not lost their courage. They have proved themselves to be indeed loyal and devoted sons of the soil. Although they have endured countless hardships they held the enemy in check at an important point in the Western Front. They have closed the roads to Calais against the enemy who had made it his objective ever since the war began. Nor is this all, they are firmly holding on what is left of their country and defending a corner of North-Western France. Notwithstanding all this and their deplorable plight at Ypres they never lost heart. Their munitions and provisions were rapidly running short, their brave soldiers were in urgent need of uniform and provisions, but all those privations counted as nothing compared with the hope of recapturing their country. Buoyed up with this thought, their bravery, steadfastness and firmness increased more and more. They clothed themselves with British khaki uniforms and French helmets and all their young men joined the colours, prepared to lay down their precious lives for their country. All these constitute a formidable body pledged to wrest their country from the clutches of the enemy.

The Belgians have a firm grip of what remains of the important territories in their country. Railway lines have been laid down everywhere, munition and other factories have been opened and are working day and night; everywhere people appear in khaki uniforms and the whole country works like an armed camp.

The Belgian forces are not only defending their own country, but are also rendering valuable aid to the French and the British armies For instance, in the air they have proved themselves to be the bravest of aviators; their air raids and fearless attacks have been very successful, and effective on the enemy's aerodromes.

They supply us with excellent air photographs of the movements of the enemy and of his important positions. Belgians who are admittedly engineering experts and have escaped from the clutches of the enemy, are very useful to the army. Many inventions have been made and used against the enemy. In short, these valiant Belgians have behaved with such enthusiasm that the Germans alone know the full measure of Belgian valour. All this they have done to maintain their independence, to preserve their honour and to demonstrate their loyalty to their Allies. Their motto is "The word of worthy men is a vital thing". Is not the nation with such a motto, worthy to be admired, encouraged, appreciated and helped by the whole world?

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1916.

Motor driving.

45. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 21st November, writes:—In the construction and mending of roads great attention is paid to the facilitating of the traffic of motors and daily some sort of repairs or other are being carried out on the public roads. If the road happens to be broken or uneven, motorists start to complaining and call upon the Municipality to attend to the necessary repairs immediately.

Very few people are aware of the enormous expenditure that is being incurred every year by the Municipality on account of repairs to roads, but they do know that the Government always considers the comfort and convenience of the people.

It is a matter of very great regret that some rich motorists, although they enjoy advantage of good roads, are a source of danger to poor pedestrians. Chaffeurs drive their cars so recklessly that they cannot realise the seriousness of the injury they are doing to the feeble and slow pedestrians.

It has been frequently noticed that during the rainy season cars splash mud on people as they move along and foot-passengers have to consign their shoes to the mud. In summer they raise the dust in clouds and fill the eyes of the spectators and pass like the whirlwind at times. On dark nights this conveyance with its strong lights makes matters worse, viz., the light of the lamps is so powerful that it dazzles and blinds the eyes of the spectators.

We are thankful to the efficient and vigilant Police for having reduced the speed of motor cars to a certain extent on public roads and for having prosecuted many motor drivers for rash driving. There are, however, many ways in which the lives of poor pedestrians are endangered and which call for attention.

Everyone is aware how many people have been killed as the direct consequence of this reckless driving of motor vehicles and how many have had their legs broken and made cripples for life.

The editor asks the learned Muhammadan Member of the Legislative Council to move a resolution in the Council to reduce the speed and the dazzling light of motor cars and to make them behave so as not to be a source of danger to the public.

(b) Courts.

Corruption in some courts in the Guntūr district.

46. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 25th November, invites the attention of the Government to the corrupt practices of the gumastas in some offices and courts in the Guntūr district and to the great annoyance they thus cause to the parties, and requests the Government to take steps to prevent the evil.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

Mr. Tilak's appeal.

47. The Desamata, of the 22nd November, says:—The judgment in Mr. Tilak's appeal has been a source of gratification to the whole of India. We congratulate Mr. Tilak on this judgment and express our gratitude to the Bombay High Court. Nobody need hereafter fear to express his desire for Home Rule or to join any association agitating for it in a constitutional way. The Madras High Court in the New India case and the Bombay High Court in Mr. Tilak's appeal have declared that the desire for swaraj is a legitimate one.

DESAMATA, Rajahmundry, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

A Police Superintendent and a boy.

48. Referring to the dismissal of the case by the District Magistrate of Tanjore against the District Superintendent of Police, thereof who had been charged with caning a boy of seven years of age, the Mavorama, of the 28th November, says:—What the District Superintendent of Police did was extremely unreasonable (harsh ?), and the decision of the District Magistrate is quite consistent with it. We shall see in due course what the High Court's decision will be.

MAVORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1916.

(d) Education.

The last meeting of the Senate of the Madras University.

49. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th November, comments as follows upon the proceedings of this meeting:—Those who watched these proceedings could have seen that, as there is an official and a non-official party in the Legislative Council, there is a popular and an official party in the Senate. Just as the resolutions moved by the non-official party are not easily passed in the Legislative Councils, those brought forward by the popular party in the Senate share the same fate. Thus the majority of the resolutions moved by the popular party in the Senate at the last meeting fell through owing to the opposition of the experts. But instead of being sorry for the resolutions which were lost, we are glad that one or two at least were passed. It is also a matter for gratification that the attitude of the Vice-Chancellor was not against the popular party. Of the resolutions that were lost, one referred to the constitution of a Board of Accounts to attend to the financial work of the University. We cannot understand why this resolution, which merely suggested the copying of a system in force already in the Calcutta University, was thrown out. The fact that another resolution, that the Syndicate should prepare the budget for every year and submit it for approval before the Senate, also fell through shows that those who voted against it are not aware of modern methods. Even the all-powerful British Government submits its budget to the scrutiny of the Parliament. How will the Syndicate lose its prestige by adopting a system in force in every country in the world? We have often heard of the civilians as a class being disinclined to give up their powers. Even teachers now refuse to do so. Unless there is a change in the constitution of both the Senate and the Syndicate, the rule of the experts in the Syndicate will not cease to exist.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 28th, 1916.

KRISHNAPATRIKA, Masulipatam, Nov. 18th, 1916.

Educational reforms.

50. Writing on the subject of educational reforms, the Krishnapatrika, of the 18th November, says:—Superficial reforms in educational matters will not do any permanent good. It is essential that self-government should be granted at least so far as education is concerned. The present educational policy should undergo a thorough transformation. The work of spreading education must be entrusted to the Indians only. The number of schools and colleges should be increased. Commercial, agricultural and industrial schools should be established in every town. The indifference of the leaders of the people in this matter is dangerous. The Government do not appear to foresee the evil that is to come. It remains to be seen what the Directors of Public Instruction are going to do at Simla. They will support old methods. However sympathetic and well-intentioned they may be, they will not be able to understand the condition of Indian society and recognise its requirements as the Indians. However kind and fair they may be their control is foreign. No doubt there is Sir Sankaran Nayar at Simla. But what can he, a single person do? He will also fall under the influence of the atmosphere at Simla. The only way of obviating these difficulties is to grant the people full authority in educational matters.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The Convocation address.

51. In commenting on the speech of Nawab Imad-ul-Mulk Bahadur Syed Hussain Bilgrami at the Convocation, the Andhraprakasika, of the 25th November, says:—The speaker expressed his desire that the Indians should contribute anything they could spare towards the upkeep of an Indian Navy. He also said that the help that we rendered to the British was quite inadequate. The speaker does not appear to have taken into consideration the economical condition of India. The Government themselves have stated that a large amount of Indian money has already been spent for the war. Rich men who could not see their way to contribute large sums for the relief of the people suffering from plague or from the effects of floods, contributed lakhs of rupees for the war. By his utterances, the Nawab has betrayed his utter ignorance of the financial situation of this country.

YOGAKSHEMAM, Trichur, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The Convocation address.

The Yogakshemam, of the 24th November, points out that Mr. Bilgrami's Convocation address was, on the whole, a good one, and observes that the present system of University education, which does not touch the hearts of the students, tends only to produce a number of small-minded citizens.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 28th, 1916.

The Convocation address.

In expressing its disapproval of Mr. Bilgrami's Convocation address, which, it thinks, is full of irrelevant matters, the Keralodayam, of the 28th November, points out that it is no wonder that Mr. Bilgrami, who was a member of Lord

Curzon's University Commission, should remark that the "Universities Act" has done much for the advancement of education in this country, and that in the course of his speech he should have referred to the necessity of giving naval training to Indians, dwells upon the necessity of converting the present examining University into a teaching University, and observes that, though he despises Indians' clamour for self-government, it is a matter for satisfaction that he advocates the granting of certain privileges to Indians in the administration of their country, as in the other parts of the empire.

The Convocation address.

In commenting upon the address delivered by Nawab Saiyid Hussain Bilgrami, C.S.I., at the last Convocation of this University, the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd November, takes exception to his statements that, in aspiring for swaraj the Indians were crying for the moon, and that the pecuniary aid rendered by us to Britain in this war was not sufficient, and observes that there is no foundation whatever for these statements.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

The Patna University Bill.

52. The Andhrapatrika, of the 28th November, refers to the restrictions which the Patna University Bill seeks to impose on the proposed Patna University and exhorts the public to protest against it, as the Patna University is to act as pioneer to other Universities which are to come into existence, including the Andhra University.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 28th, 1916.

The Bombay School Final and Matriculation examinations.

53. After a reference to the proposed amalgamation of the Bombay School Final and the Matriculation examinations about which there seem to be serious differences of opinion between the Government and the University, the Keralodayam, of the 28th November, approves of the action of the Punjab University in styling the "Matriculation examination" the "Matriculation and School Final examination," and in appointing a Board consisting of the Director of Public Instruction and a few Senate members for its conduct, and hopes that this course will be followed by the other Universities and Governments in India.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 28th, 1916.

A new order.

54. The Manorama, of the 28th November, rejoices that hereafter the Intermediate students who fail in any subject at the examination, have to appear for it again only in that subject.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1916.

The generosity of His Highness the Nizam of the Dakhan towards the establishment of a Muslim College in Southern India.

55. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 18th November, refers to the generous donation and monthly grant made by His Highness the Nizam to the Muslim College at Vāniyambādi, and says that Madras has surpassed the large cities of Bombay and Calcutta, in starting a Muslim College. This will probably inspire the rich Mussalmans of these cities with spirit of emulation and encourage them to imitate their brethren in Southern India in establishing a special college for themselves.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Nov. 18th, 1916.

(e) Local and Municipal.

A Unani dispensary at Madura.

56. The Prapanchamitran,* of the 17th November, takes exception to the Government having directed the Madura Municipality to stop the grant that was being given by it to a Unani dispensary at Madura, on the ground that the doctor therein performed some operations and gave some medicines which he was not competent to do and observes:—It is curious that, while the Government has found fault with the doctor at this dispensary, the Chairman of the municipality has reported that the dispensary has given immense satisfaction to the people. It may be true that the unani doctor dabbled in things which he was not competent to do without a certificate from the Government. But it is because he is really a capable doctor that his dispensary is liked by the people. So the Government could have, instead of taking the arbitrary step, which it has taken, directed him to undergo an examination in surgery, etc., and condemned him, if he failed therein. We do not think it is fair on the part of the Government to suddenly stop the grant given to a useful dispensary and to deny a capable doctor opportunities to show his capability.

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1916.

* Received in the current week.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

Presidents of taluk boards.

57. In commenting on the resolution moved in the Legislative Council requesting the Government to empower the taluk boards which have nominated non-official presidents to elect their own non-official presidents, the Andhrapatrika, of the 25th November, remarks that it is surprising that the Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar did not accept the resolution even as amended. It says that when the Government are so very stubborn even in the matter of taluk boards, the people must give up all hope of gaining any independence in administration after the war. It is regrettable that the Hon'ble Sir Sivaswami Ayyar has not seen this.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

A new sanction by the Corporation of Madras.

58. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 23rd November, writes:—The vigilant and energetic officers of the corporation, its hardworking commissioners and especially its responsible President are fully acquainted with the conservancy of the city, the state of the health of the people and local needs and wants. The well-being of the country and the comfort of people constitute their first aim.

All the commissioners know the state of each quarter, are fully alive to the hardships the people have to endure and are concerned about their needs.

Whenever these capable commissioners fail to appreciate their responsibility, their attention is generally drawn to the fact and we are glad to observe they do to a certain extent try to redress grievances.

With these introductory remarks the editor refers to the resolution passed at the meeting of the corporation held on the 20th instant for the provision of electric street lighting at an annual cost of Rs. 14,784 and adds "We remember that a few months ago in order to curtailing expenditure the corporation removed lamps from most of the roads, streets and lanes and especially from the quarters of poor people. But now it appears to be very liberal in the matter of these electric lights. It is not known from what source the expenditure is to be met and whether the poor will also be benefited by such lights to whose houses the following lines are peculiarly applicable:—

> How dreadful is our dark house
> Into which the sun and the moon fear to enter.

The editor thinks that it was the duty of the responsible officers of the corporation to have considered the poor living in streets and bye-lanes first and to have provided them with ordinary if not electric lights. These poor helpless people alone know how difficult it is for them to find their way to their homes in these dark nights and during this wet weather. As Hafiz sings:

> What with the dark night the danger of the waves and the awful vortex.
> How can the swift travellers on land know anything about our condition.

The commissioners know that the people residing in these streets and lanes also pay taxes to the corporation. The Government recognises their rights and considers that their rights are equal to the rights of the rich who live on the main roads.

This being the case are they not entitled to have ordinary lights or at least to have the lights that have been removed?

The editor concludes the article with this remark "We believe that the corporation will first of all direct its attention to the dark quarters and then make provision for electric lighting."

59. Referring to the rejection of the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao demanding the appointment of a committee to enquire into and report on the rules regarding the remission of taxes, the Manorama, of the 28th November, observes that it is very regrettable indeed that the Government should hesitate to take a step, which is highly beneficial to a large majority of the people, on the plea that it would lead to many a jobbery on the part of the lower officials.

The rules regarding the remission of taxes.

Manorama, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1916.

(h) Railways.

60. Referring to these disasters, the Hindu Nesan, of the 27th November, says:—Though these disasters may be attributed to unavoidable causes, it cannot be said that they were due to unexpected causes. Signs of an impending storm were not wanting on the day in question. There was continuous rain throughout the day and the velocity of the wind was increasing by leaps and bounds towards the evening. Though the Railway officials at Trichinopoly might not have been aware of this, those at Egmore should have known it well. It was their duty to have prevented the departure of the boat mail and express that night. They should have at least warned the passengers proceeding by these trains of the probable danger. Even after these trains left Egmore, seeing that the wind was growing more and more furious, they could have been stopped at Chingleput. If the District Traffic Superintendent here had taken any one of these precautions, we are sure these disasters would not have occurred. We wonder what the high officials on this railway are for, if it is not for acting with forethought on occasions like this. We are surprised at the statement of the Agent of this Railway that he knew of the accidents only after he came to Villupuram on the 24th November. The accidents at Pakkam and Mailam cannot be taken as ordinary ones. It cannot be believed that, when the carriages were turned upside down, there was no loss of life whatever and that only a few received serious injuries. We think that the Government should appoint a committee to inquire into the details of the disasters and publish a report about it to the public. A member of the Legislative Council also should be on this committee.

The Pakkam and Mailam isasters.

Hindu Nesan, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

61. A correspondent of the Swadeshabhimani, of the 24th November, writes that although a railway cess is being collected in South Canara for the past three years and the amount has reached nearly a lakh and eleven thousand, it is unfortunate that the district board is still inert in the matter of utilising these funds and is latterly thinking of multiplying them by placing the same at interest. The writer says that if the district board should construct a line from Mangalore to Panemangalore for the present and eventually extend it to Manjarabad, i.e., the border of the Mysore territory, the Mysore Government would be sure to link it with the Arsikere line which is being extended to Hassan, and that, if on the other hand, the district board should defer their portion of the work, it might lessen the chances of direct railway communication with Mysore and the district might suffer heavily in consequence.

Railway cess in South Canara.

Swadeshabhimani, Mangalore, Nov. 24th, 1916.

62. The Mushir-i-Dakhan, of the 19th November, writes:—Most of the inhabitants of the city of Hyderabad are anxious to change their residence as a precautionary measure. Although the Plague Committee has put up huts in the suburbs to enable the rich and the poor to make arrangements for their temporary stay at their own cost and that of the State respectively. Certain people are desirous of staying at Railway stations, some thirty or forty koss from the city and hence requests that the Railway authorities may arrange for the running of local trains between Hyderabad and stations twenty to forty Something calling for the attention of the Railway authorities at Hyderabad.

Mushir-i-Dakhan, Hyderabad, Nov. 19th, 1916.

koss on the Bezwada-Wadi line, Hyderabad-Godavari line and Secunderabad-Gudak Railway and arrival at and departure from the city station at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m., respectively.

This would enable people to arrive at Hyderabad daily for the performance of their duty.

The paper says that it has already repeatedly drawn the attention of the authorities to this matter, and that it is now drawing their attention again because a large number of the people desire it. It hopes that the authorities will direct their early attention to this matter.

(k) General.

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1916.

Sir Rabindranath Tagore and Canada.

63. Referring to the refusal of Sir Rabindranath Tagore to proceed to Canada for the purpose of giving some lectures, on the ground that his countrymen were being treated badly by the Canadians, the Prapanchamitran,* of the 17th November, says:—Oh, Rabindra! By your culture, you raised us in the estimation of the world. By your sense of self-respect, you have honoured us now and, by your courage, you have infused a spirit of enthusiasm in us. Our people have no sense of self-respect. If we have no respect for ourselves, how can we expect others to have a respect for us? Who does not know that the people of other countries treat us with contempt? Who does not know that the Colonies like Australia and Canada have imposed the worst restrictions upon the Indians proceeding thereto? But what can we do? Beyond criticising these restrictions in public meetings, we are not able to do anything. Though we cannot insult those who insult us, can we not preserve our own respect and keep aloof from those who treat us with contempt? May the Almighty bless our country with many more sons like Sir Rabindra!

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1916.

Stray notes.

64. The correspondent to the Prapanchamitran * with the nom-de-plume of Narada, writes in the issue of the 17th November:—Mr. Tilak is determined to fight to the end. In our country, many useless men try to pose as leaders and deceive the people. But can any one lay claim to the courage of Mr. Tilak? Though a few officials and weak-kneed people regard him as an enemy of the Government, the majority of the Indians doubtless applaud him as an eminent patriot. May he live long!

* * * * * *

The head of the Central Provinces Government has now come out with an explanation for the order issued on Mrs. Besant, prohibiting her entry into that Province. The blabbering of the Chief Secretary to that Government resembles the disconnected statements of some who, after uttering a lie carelessly, try to escape out of the difficulty, when it is found out, by saying something or other. The Press Act and the Defence of India Act reign supreme in this country after the advent of Lord Chelmsford as our Viceroy. Is he enjoying the fun of it?

* * * * * *

Whoever among the Indians is prepared for swaraj, the Raja of Rāmnād is not, nor Mr. Varadarajulu Nayudu of Tiruppur. But the world will not cease to exist, if the cat shuts its eyes and the empty words of these men will not prevent our having swaraj. One who does not love liberty cannot be a patriot. Of course, everyone loves liberty. But some begin to tremble from head to foot on hearing the word swaraj. This may be due either to their love of liberty being tinged with selfishness or blinded by arrogance or to their being afraid of the displeasure of the Englishmen. I will not be angry with any one for admitting that he is not fit to be given freedom. But no one has a right to declare that others are equally unfit. So my heart flutters when any one declares that the Indians are not fit to have freedom.

---

* Received on the current week.

An Indian Member for the Board of Revenue.

65. Referring to the discussion at the last meeting of the local Legislative Council on the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar, suggesting that an Indian should be appointed as a Member of the Board of Revenue, the Swadesamitran, of the 22nd November, writes:—We are sorry that this resolution has not been accepted by the Government in the form in which it was brought up. As early as 1910, in reply to a question on the same subject by the late Diwan Bahadur Raghunatha Rao, Sir Murray Hammick gave the assurance that, as soon as the Indian Collectors reach the higher grades of service, one of them would be appointed to the Board of Revenue. Though, according to law, the Membership of the Board of Revenue is reserved to the Indian Civil Service, the Government has the power to depart from this rule occasionally. It is in exercise of this power that Sir Murray Hammick promised six years back to appoint a Member of the Provincial Service to the Board. Two vacancies occurred in the Board recently and yet the promise of the Government is unfulfilled. When the attention of the Government was invited to the promise of Sir Murray Hammick, Sir Alexander Cardew, while not denying it, gave a curious interpretation to it, by saying that the promise implied that the Indians in the higher grades of the Provincial Service were fit to be appointed to the Board of Revenue. Is it his contention that the Indians who are now employed in the higher grades of the Provincial Service are not capable men? Why should you make an insinuation without expressing his view openly? Now coming to the amended form in which the resolution has been accepted, we do not approve of the addition of the phrase "whenever a suitable opportunity occurs" in the amendment. Lord Pentland himself admitted that the Government could not predict the time which it would deem to be a "suitable opportunity." The two opportunities which recently occurred have not been deemed to be "suitable" by it. We do not know if it will occur in this life. If the Civil Servants are to be allowed to decide which is the best opportunity for nominating outsiders to appointments which have been reserved to them, we doubt if such an opportunity will ever occur. The discussion on this subject at the last meeting was not conducted by Sir Alexander Cardew in a liberal spirit. He did not lay bare the idea of the Government clearly and definitely. It is really surprising that Lord Pentland has evinced no anxiety and sympathy in this matter as yet. We learn that there is to be a vacancy in the Board shortly, and we hope that our expectation that an Indian will be appointed to this vacancy at least will not end in disappointment.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 22nd 1916.

An Indian Member for the Board of Revenue.

The Lokopakari, of the 27th November, also takes exception to the modification of the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar on this subject and observes:—It was in 1910 that Sir Murray Hammick declared that, if a competent Indian were available, he would be appointed to the Revenue Board. After this, two Indians rose to the position of first-grade Collector, and yet it was their juniors who were appointed as Members of the Board of Revenue. We cannot understand why the Government is acting like this. Does it consider the Indians to be unfit to be Members of the Board of Revenue? When the Indians are filling the post of Member of the Executive Council with credit, there is no meaning in saying that they are not fit to occupy the position of a Member of the Board of Revenue. It is clear that it is nothing but the disinclination of the Englishmen to give up one of the appointments deemed to be reserved for them that stands in the way of Sir Hammick's promise being fulfilled. We hope that the Government will try to carry out this promise at least hereafter.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

The last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council.

66. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd November, writes:—The first thing that strikes one who has watched the proceedings of the last meeting is that the elected members of the new Council are not as unanimous as those of the old Council. But this is the first meeting at which the new members attended and the want of unanimity among them may disappear as they gain experience. On the side of the Government, we have to note that there was a greater disinclination on the part of the officials to treat the elected members with sympathy than was usual. The knowledge acquired by the elected members in administrative matters and the importunity with which they press the grievances, wants and aspirations of the people on the attention of the Government no doubt cause some inconvenience to the officials. Sound statesmanship demands that the officials should realise that this is a necessary sequel to the development of self-government and adopt themselves to the situation. If, instead of doing this and treating the elected members with sympathy, the officials always object to their proposals and make their task impossible, it indicates only their own narrow spirit. We regret to note this narrow spirit now and again during the proceedings of the last meeting.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council.

The Swadesamitran, of the 25th November, comments as follows upon some of the resolutions brought forward at the meeting:—The Hon'ble Mr. Suryanarayana Rao moved that, as the non-official Presidents nominated by Government to 27 out of 96 Taluk Boards in this Presidency have been discharging their duties as efficiently as the official Presidents of the other Taluk Boards, the 27 Boards referred to above should be given the privilege of electing their Presidents. In opposing this resolution, the Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar observed that, though it was true that capable men were available for being Presidents of Taluk Boards, it was found difficult to get men, who had both the capacity and the time to discharge the duties of this post, and that as the Government had to choose only men having both these qualifications, it could not accept the resolution. We cannot understand the rationale of this argument. It is clear from Sir Sivaswami Ayyar's observation that the non-officials who are now Presidents of Taluk Boards possess both the qualifications noted by him. If the Government could get such men, why cannot the members of the Taluk Boards do so? The Government nominates the President of a Taluk Board on the recommendation of the District Collector. This official may recommend one whom he wishes to honour and therefore even one who has not the qualifications noted above stands a chance of being recommended, if he is in the good books of the Collector. But, in an Election, this can never happen. When the same question was brought up in the time of the late Sir V. Krishnaswami Ayyar, Sir Murray Hammick agreed to try the system of electing the Presidents of Taluk Boards as an experiment in three of these Boards and, though it is now six years since this experiment was begun, it has not been extended to any other Board. But the system of Government nominating Presidents of Taluk Boards, which was begun subsequently, has been gradually extended. Thus, while a system implying the grant of a privilege to the people which was begun six years back is still where it was, a system under which the Government can help its favourites has progressed fast. When the Government admits that the three Taluk Boards, which have been given the privilege of electing their Presidents, have been choosing capable men for the place, there is no reason to suspect that the other Boards will not do so. It is not fair on the part of either the Madras Government or Sir Sivaswami Ayyar to be unnecessarily diffident like this in the matter of granting rights of self-government to the people. We would, therefore, impress on the Government the desirability of extending the privilege of election to several Taluk Boards.

Another resolution rejected by the Government was that brought forward by the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar about the duty of the village officers to supply articles to high officials while on tour. We are surprised at Sir Alexander Cardew and even the Governor having taken exception to the mover of the resolution having quoted some concrete instances to prove his case. His Excellency the Governor and Sir Alexander Cardew are evidently unaware of the fact that, when the question of reforming the constitution of the Legislative Councils in India was discussed some years back by the Government of India and the Secretary of State, the latter plainly negatived the proposal of the former that no discussion should be allowed in the Legislative Councils either about specific acts of administration or about the conduct of individual officers. Judging from this view of the Secretary of State, there is nothing wrong in the observations made by Mr. Rama Ayyangar. It is quite natural that Sir Alexander Cardew, being a Civilian himself, should try to spare the prestige of other Civilians. But it is really surprising that Lord Pentland, who as a member of Parliament for many years, should have been aware of the conduct of many officials having been criticised therein, ventured to object to the observations of Mr. Rama Ayyangar. It is necessary that the officials should always have the fear that, if they contravene the rules framed by the Government about the conduct of Government servants, they would be taken to task for it, and it is not at all desirable that they should feel that they would not be betrayed even if they commit any mistakes.

Damages caused by the floods in the Salem and Kurnool districts.

67. The Hindu Nesan, of the 23rd November, is surprised at the statement on behalf of the Government at the last meeting of the Legislative Council that it was not in receipt of information regarding the damages caused by these floods and observes:—We cannot say that our Government fully realises its responsibility on occasions like this and takes prompt action. We do not at all approve of the policy of the Government in waiting for a formal report from the District Collectors when there are great floods like this and then passing orders thereon. A Member of the Executive Council and a Member of the Revenue Board are bound to proceed to the spot immediately and, after ascertaining personally the extent of the distress caused, issue on official communiqué for the information of the public.

HINDU NESAN, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

The successor of the Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar.

68. The Prapanchamitran, of the 24th November, says:—Though we did not at first believe the rumour that Sir Shamshul Huda will succeed the Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar, information subsequently received makes us think that there may be some truth in it. Of course, it will be time enough to discuss the merits and demerits of the regime of Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar after he has laid down his office. But we think it will not be an exaggeration to say that he has so conducted himself as to make it possible for any successor of his to get the credit of being a capable administrator. Though the Anjumani-Islam prays for a Muhammadan being chosen for this place, the Madras Mahajana Sabha wants the vacancy to be filled by an Indian, be he a Hindu or a Muhammadan. Thus everyone here is for an Indian of this Province being chosen for the place, and no one wants one from an other Province to be imported for this purpose. Apart from the fact that the appointment of Sir Shamshul Huda to the Local Executive Council will be an insult to the many capable Indians available in this Province, Sir Shamshul's regime in Bengal cannot be said to have been very beneficial to the people there. So his nomination is bound to cause immense dissatisfaction to the people of this country.

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The successor of the Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar.

Referring to the prayer of the Muhammadans that one of their community should be chosen to succeed Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar, the Lokopakari, of the 27th November, says:—The Muhammadans comprise only 6 per cent of the population of this Presidency and it is not therefore fair on their part to demand that the next Member of the Executive Council should be a Muhammadan. It is educational attainments and not caste that should be the qualification for the higher appointments. If the Government yields to the demand of the Eurasians and Muhammadans that they should be given exclusive privileges, it will be acting partially and causing immense dissatisfaction to the other classes.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The Defence of India Act in Madras.

69. The Prapanchamitran, of the 24th November, expresses its surprise at the statement of the Government in reply to a question by the Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao that one individual has been interned in this Province under this Act, and that information would be given confidentially, if required, and remarks that it is curious indeed that the elected members in the Council can have any information confidentially which the public who elect them have not the right to know.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

Popular freedom in time of war.

70. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th November, refers to the internment of Mr. Russell under the Defence of the Realm Act in England, about which Mr. Lloyd George was not in a position to furnish any more details in Parliament than the fact that it was reported to him confidentially that Mr. Russell's lectures would hamper recruitment for the army, and observes:—The official who gave this confidential information to Mr. Lloyd George has not evidently realised his responsibility in the matter of offering a satisfactory explanation for his conduct to the Members of Parliament. Granting that the Government bona fide thought that certain lectures would be productive of evil results, it is its duty to publish the reasons for its having come to this conclusion. Though the people are prepared to give up their liberty during the time of war, we think that, whenever they are deprived of it, they are entitled to know the reasons for it. But we have already remarked that, since this war began, the rights of the people are being curtailed and the power of the officials is increasing. It cannot be stated that, in India, this power is being exercised only for military exigencies. As the ordinary officials here enjoy larger powers than the military authorities, the Defence of India Act, which was passed for military purposes, has been applied often to prevent lectures which have no connection whatever to military matters. But, in England, certain safeguards have been introduced to prevent the operation of the Defence of the Realm Act being unnecessarily prejudicial to the people. There is a committee consisting of two Judges and some Ministers, whose duty it is to go into the merits of each case under the Act, before action is taken on the individuals concerned. Though the Indian Act is said to be modelled on the English one, the institution of this important Advisory Committee has not been copied here. Seeing that the popular representatives in India have not the same privilege of freely criticising the action of the officials, which the Members of Parliament have, we have to say that the Defence of India Act has curtailed popular rights to a greater extent here than its original has done in England. This is one of the many evils caused to us by the war.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The successor of Lord Carmichael in Bengal.

71. Adverting to the appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as the successor of Lord Carmichael in Bengal, the Swadesamitran, of the 29th November, observes:—This appointment cannot give satisfaction to the Indians. Lord Ronaldshay is a leading member of the Unionist Party, which is against the grant of Home Rule to Ireland. Though as a Member of the Public Service Commission, he had ample opportunities of knowing India, we fear that his experience may not prove very beneficial to the people of Bengal, as he is bound to abide by the principles of his Party. Though the Prime Minister of England is a Liberal, the result of the Secretary of State for India being a Unionist is the nomination of Unionists for appointments in this country. But we hail even the present nomination, as the choice has fallen upon the member of an ancient aristocratic family and not upon civilians like Sir Robert Chalmers.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

Excise revenue and the Government.

72. The Swadesamitran, of the 29th November, refers to the complete stoppage of the sale of liquor in Russia and the efforts made in this direction in England, without caring for the loss of revenue thus caused to the Government, and suggests the necessity and desirability of the Government taking similar action in India, in the interests of the health and moral well-being of the people.

73. In its leader on the subject of floods, the Andhrapatrika, of the 23rd November, says:—The principle upon which relief during the time of floods should be based, which the Secretary to Government asked the Collector of Kurnool to remember, appears to be one that has been suggested in a moment of haste. Even ordinary men cannot but admit that there ought to be a great difference between relief given during famine and that given at a time of floods. It is not the poor only that become destitute owing to floods. Even princes are then reduced to poverty. The Diwan of the Nawab of Banganapalle lost his house and other property in the floods and is now in a very destitute condition. The same fate has overtaken many a merchant in Kurnool. The Government ought to render pecuniary help to the poorer classes especially for the reconstruction of their houses and for the maintenance of their cattle. The suggestion of the Secretary to Government that the relief given should not exceed famine relief is under the circumstances fraught with evil. The Collector of Kurnool knows every circumstance; because he is present in the affected part of his district. It is unfortunate that the Government who vest the Collector with full powers in other matters should try to restrain his freedom of action in a matter with which he is fully acquainted. We hope that the authorities will not insist on the adoption of the principle that relief should be given only when the subjects are in imminent danger of losing their lives, but will help them in every way and gain their thanks.

Relief during the time of floods.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

74. The Andhrapatrika, of the 23rd November, refers to the fact that the Criminal Investigation Department officers entered the hostel attached to the Central Hindu College, Benares, with a view to arrest certain students suspected of some political offence, and remarks:—The officers do not appear to have informed the College authorities about the matter. Would not the latter help the Government as the Criminal Investigation Department officers? Is it just that the Police should take action in the case of students without the College authorities having anything to do in the matter? May the Government and the leaders of the people consider about this!

The Criminal Investigation Department officers and Educational institutions.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 23rd 1916.

75. Referring to the article in the Madras Mail on Mr. Tilak, the Kistnapatrika, of the 18th November, says:—The Madras Mail forgot that this is British Government. We suspect that the editor of that paper is a German. Otherwise will he be so very acrimonious and wrathful?

The Madras Mail.

KISTNAPATRIKA, Masulipatam, Nov. 18th, 1916.

The Andhrapatrika, of the 27th November, regrets that the Madras Government have not as yet taken any action against the Madras Mail for its article on Mr. Tilak's appeal, which incites race hatred.

The Madras Mail.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

76. In commenting on the proceedings of the recent meeting of the Legislative Council, the Andhraprakasika, of the 22nd November, says:—Great has been the loss of life and property in the Kistna, Guntūr, Kurnool and Salem districts on account of floods. It is surprising that the Government stated that they knew nothing about it in spite of the fact that the papers contained much information thereon. It is not only regrettable but also unjust that no member of the Government went to the affected parts and rendered any help to the sufferers. His Excellency the Governor and the members of his Executive Council spend large sums of money every year on tours from which the people do not derive any benefit. It is not known when they will learn to go on tour to places like those now affected by floods, make personal enquiries, and give the suffering all possible relief. It is unsatisfactory that the Government opposed the resolution requesting them to appoint an Indian member to the Revenue Board. It is curious that the Indians who are found fit to hold the office of a High Court

The recent meeting of the Legislative Council.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

Judge, a Member of the Executive Council, and an Advocate-General, are deemed incompetent to serve on the Board of Revenue.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

Touring expenses.

77. The Andhraprakasika, of the 22nd November, says that in India the Viceroy and the Governors visit big towns in their tours and do not bother themselves about going to villages and seeing for themselves the miserable condition of the ryots. It suggests that, as the ryots are in no way benefited by these tours, a portion of the touring expenses may be saved and utilised for the establishment of vernacular industrial schools in the country.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The New Statesman.

78. The Andhrapatrika, of the 25th November, reports the New Statesman to have said as follows in the course of its comments on the New India case :—Mrs. Besant argued her own case and has published her articles to the world in the form of a booklet, which brings out the true character of the Madras Government. It can be inferred from it that the Government are intending to suppress the agitation for Home Rule, which the two papers of Mrs. Besant are carrying on. The policy pursued by the Government is not good.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

Indian Civil Service.

79. The Andhrapatrika, of the 25th November, expresses its dissatisfaction at the curtailment of the proportion of admission of Indians into the Indian Civil Service in 1916 in contravention of the promise made by Mr. Chamberlain that the Indians were to have their full measure of justice in the matter and asks if under such circumstances the Indians will desist from agitating.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

Rhodes scholarships.

80. The Andhrapatrika, of the 27th November, requests the authorities to consider the claims of India for the Rhodes scholarships and prays that all or some of the scholarships discontinued to be given to German students may be granted to Indian students applying for them.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Legislative Council.

81. The Andhrapatrika, of the 29th November, says :—It was hoped that the Morley-Minto reforms were a stepping stone to representative Government. But official intolerance has blighted that hope. When the Hon'ble Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar wanted to introduce a Bill relating to village panchayats, the Secretary did not permit him to do so. In the former meetings too, the rulers showed the same narrowness of policy and defeated the object of the reformers. It is regrettable that even the President was not liberal minded. The Government have rejected the request of the representatives of the people that the appointment of one Indian member to the Board of Revenue might be recommended as early as possible. The view that Indians who are fit to be Collectors, High Court Judges and Executive Council Members are unfit to hold the office of member of the Board of Revenue is untenable. The rulers are evidently unwilling to open the portals of their official edifice and admit Indians. During the course of the discussion on the question of the improvement of the drainage system in the Gōdāvari and Kistna deltas, the Hon'ble Colonel Ellis said that it was not fair that the cultivators in Koller should have their drainage set right at the cost of the people living elsewhere. But those who know the conditions of the Kistna and the Gōdāvari canals will see that this contention is wrong. The rulers excavated canals and arranged for the flow of the drainage water into the Koller lake. Why should not those who have profited by this arrangement make good the loss of those who suffer by it? . . . . As regards provisions supplied to officers by the villagers, it is true that some of them pay for what they receive, but it is doubtful if the money reaches the ryot. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew failed to recognise this fact and remarked that the non-officials had set about finding fault with officials. His Excellency the Governor tried to support him. . . . . The reason why the resolutions of non-officials are either accepted in part or rejected altogether is that the bureaucracy is strong. The constitution of the Council should undergo a change so that it may wholly or mostly consist of representatives of the people. It is not known why His Excellency the President showed rather an intolerant attitude towards the resolutions moved by the representatives of the people in the last meeting of the Council.

82. In its leader on the Kistna delta, the Kistnapatrika, of the 25th November, says:—No body will deny the usefulness of the automatic system proposed to be introduced into the delta. But if the system be brought into existence before the condition of the canals in the delta and the water-supply are improved, the ryots will be put to great inconvenience, and none will be satisfied. In the matter of water-supply there is a gulf of difference between the rivers, the Kistna and the Gōdāvari. It is well to consider the matter carefully before it is decided upon. Not only field channels, but also the main channels are on a low level. Instead of deepening them any more, it will be well to raise the bunds and maintain a high level of water. As the water now flows on a low level, the ryot can use only the surface water and the water below flows into the drainage channels. As for drainage channels, it is essential that the wet lands should have them. It does not appear that the P.W.D. authorities evince any interest in this matter. The reason why the amounts sanctioned have not been utilised is the low rates offered by the department and not a paucity of contractors. Owing to defective drainage, the ryots have suffered heavily. When His Excellency the Governor visited Masulipatam, he seems to have said that the improvement of the drainage system would cost a crore of rupees, but the benefit will not be commensurate with the expenditure. But we learn that the cost is now estimated to be three lakhs. The members of the Legislative Council have to ascertain the correct figure. . . . . Unless there be irrigation facilities, the ryot will not profit by cultivation. The Government should, therefore, take special interest in the matter of providing the ryots with sufficient water for their lands by granting water applications.

The Kistna delta.

KISTNAPATRIKA, Masulipatam, Nov. 25th, 1916.

83. Referring to the havoc caused by floods and cyclone in the Madras Presidency, the Andhraprakasika, of the 29th November, states that nothing substantial can be done by way of relief to the sufferers unless His Excellency the Governor himself starts a relief fund, sends an appeal to the rich men and the zamindars, and collects one or two lakhs of rupees at least.

Floods and cyclone disaster.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

84. The Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 29th November, in a leading article, gives a summary of a letter, addressed by Rai Bahadur Shasi Bhusan Chatterjea to the Secretary to the Agricultural Association, Calcutta Presidency Division, purporting to point out the enormous loss and distress caused to the peasantry in India by the depletion of the agricultural stock consequent on the extensive slaughter of cows for food. The paper says that when it is seen that, according to the Times of India, about a lakh and a half of cattle are being slaughtered every year in the three principal cities of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay alone, it is easy to see how appalling the depletion must be in the whole of India, and that the result of it is that the price of cattle has gone up nearly four times during the past ten years, milk has become so dear as to be beyond the means of the poorer classes, and the whole nation is becoming weak and stunted in growth owing to the inability of parents to procure milk for their infants, and further, the slaughter of bulls is proving detrimental to the improvement of the breed, with the result that the entire stock is becoming degenerated. The paper hopes that the Government will take prompt measures to ward off these evils.

Slaughter of cows.

SAMPAD ABHYUDAYA, Mysore, Nov. 29th, 1916.

85. In a leading article, under the heading "Mysore has set an example," the Swadeshabhimani, of the 24th November, says:—The Government has turned a deaf ear to the resolution which the Indian National Congress has been passing, year after year, since 1892, urging the separation of judicial and executive functions. Although the seeds of reform which the Separation of Judicial and Executive functions.

SWADESHABHIMANI, Mangalore, Nov. 24th, 1916.

congress has been sowing broadcast have yielded no result in British territory, it is gratifying to see that they are showing signs of germination at least in some of the Native States like Baroda and Mysore. Those who live in British territory have no reason to be jealous on that account; for, when their neighbours are enjoying these privileges, they may expect that, sooner or later, they too will have them. The paper next gives a summary of the Bill proposed to be introduced by the Mysore Government on this subject, and remarks:—Although it should be welcomed on the principle that something is better than nothing, it cannot be called a true separation of the judicial and executive functions, so long as the Collector of the district continues to exercise magisterial powers. Even if the Government are not prepared to effect so radical a change as to completely divest the Collector of his judicial powers, they should at least have removed his appellate authority over the decisions of the second and third class magistrates. So long as the Collector continues to exercise this authority, it is impossible to ensure perfect independence among the subordinate judiciary. We may expect, however, that educated public opinion in Mysore and the members of the Legislative Council may succeed in effecting the necessary amendments in order to remove this shortcoming. Even as it stands at present, the Bill proposes to effect changes in the judicial administration of the State which would place it on a footing which is far more laudable than the state of things obtaining in British territory. The responsible authorities here are telling us that any reform in this direction is impracticable, while the Native States are proving to us that the reforms which these call impracticable are quite practicable there.

Swadeshabhimani, Mangalore, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The partition of the South Canara district.

86. Referring to a rumour that the Government propose to add the Kasaragod taluk (South Canara) to the Malabar district, a correspondent of the Swadeshabhimani, of the 24th November, says:—South Canara will doubtless suffer heavily in consequence of the severance of a portion of the district. There is no need to recount the hardships arising from this change, as the leaders of the district have already brought them to the notice of the Government. It would however be pertinent to enquire in this connection whether it would not be better to restore to South Canara the portion comprising North Canara which was severed from it some years ago or to annex South Canara to North Canara of the Bombay Presidency. In point of language, customs and manners of the people, geographical situation, climate, trade, etc., South Canara is more akin to Bombay than Madras. Under the Bombay Presidency the people of our district would be able to mix more freely with the residents of North Canara and the Southern Mahratta districts and would thrive better in trade and industries as a result of the closer affinity between the two peoples. Further, the new railway line proposed to be constructed by the Mysore Government to the coast town of Bhatkal in the Bombay Presidency would also bring our district into closer touch with Mysore. It would therefore be well to consider the advantages of annexing South Canara to the Bombay Presidency.

Yogakshemam, Trichur, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The Oriental Manuscript Library.

87. In commenting upon the report of the Curator of the Oriental Manuscripts Library, the Yogakshemam, of the 24th November, endorses the opinion of the Director of Public Instruction that it will take a long time for the committee to travel over the whole Presidency and examine and collect manuscripts, if their search is confined to one district at a time, and demands the entertainment of a Malayalee in the department to examine and collect Malayalam manuscripts.

Manorama, Cottayam, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The post-war reforms.

88. The Manorama, of the 24th November, rejoices that the All-India Congress Committee and the All-India Muslim League are agreed as to the post-war reforms, and hopes that the British Government will attach due weight to the united prayers of these committees, which may certainly be regarded as those of India as a whole.

Referring to the post-war reforms, the Keralodayam, of the 28th November, thinks that it will not be easy for the Government to reject the united prayers of the "All-India Congress Committee" and that of the "All-India Muslim League."

Post-war reforms.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 28th, 1916.

89. Under the heading "Reforms," the Lokaprakasam *, of the 20th November, has the following in English :—. Elsewhere we publish in Malayalam a summary of the post-war reforms submitted to His Excellency the Viceroy of India by the nineteen non-official members of the Imperial Legislative Council, and glad are we to be able to find that the joint scheme on the same all-important subject submitted by the two great national bodies of India, the Congress Committee and the Moslem League Committee, is almost identical in all-important points. So the joint Conference of the All-India Congress Committee and Reform Sub-Committee of the All-India Moslem League, that met last Friday and Saturday, in the rooms of the Indian Association at Calcutta, under the distinguished presidency of Babu Surendranath Banerjea should be said to have done their great work, to the entire satisfaction of United India. To be precise, we shall pubish that portion of the telegram sent by the Associated Press which relates to the important changes.

The Reforms.

LOKAPRAKASAM, Trichur, Nov. 20th, 1916.

* * * * * *

The decision arrived at, is of supreme importance in more respects than one, especially of the fact that the only two great communities that are freely elected by the people of the country, have assembled on a common platform and have agreed upon self-government as the ultimate goal of India's demands. They have cheerfully come to an agreement on the vexed and unwholesome question of representation, and by mutual concessions actuated by a spirit of conciliation and forbearance arrived at a unanimous conclusion. Anglo-India will doubtless set up a howl and proclaim to the non-Indian public afar that these two committees do not represent India but only the educated classes. But as Mrs. Annie Besant says the "freedon of a nation has always been won by an educated minority, for they alone can formulate a definite thought-out scheme ; the uneducated mass can only riot or revolt ; they can destroy, they cannot build. they suffer dumbly until the suffering of revolt seems to be less than the suffering of endurance, and then they flame out and destroy. Chaos ensues to be ended by a dictatorship. Only the educated can lead their nation along the path to freedom by peaceful reforms. To depreciate their leading, to scoff at them as a minority, is to invite revolution. The committees are elected annually by as full a representation as is possible, and the congress and the league which will endorse their demands, are assemblies of delegates duly elected. Even in the villages Home Rule is now recognised as the one hope for India and the villagers are more articulate than were the masses of the United Kingdom before 1832, and are far more educated".

Thus we have now before the country the united demand of the representatives in the Supreme Council, the All-India Congress Committee and the All-India Muslim League, who alone are the proxies of the people that have a right to speak responsibly for her. Most of these reasonable demands have been made both by the Indian press and the platform, more often since two years, and they owe their origin and formulation to the moderates who are more anxious for the continuance of British rule. There has of late been a good deal of talk regarding a change in the 'angle of vision,' and it is now time for us to see how far the Secretary of State and the British public translate it into practicalities. If British statesmanship is far-seeing and truly great, if the lofty principles of British administration are still to be maintained in this country, if England desires to rule India successfully on the old pledges in the interests both of India and herself, if the extremist reaction discernible is to be strongly combated, those responsible have, without much ado, to bestow the scheme of the long-cherished post-war reforms their immediate and earnest consideration. We shall await Great Britain's say.

* Received in the current week.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The Calicut Municipal Hospital.

90. The Kerala Patrika, of the 25th November, points out that the people of Calicut who recently met in the Town Hall condemned the decision of the Municipal Council, regarding the removal of the Municipal Hospital to Vellayil, the hospital, as at present situated, being more convenient to the people of the place and to those coming from outside, draws attention to the opinion of the Surgeon-General and of other medical men regarding the suitability of the present locality, and to the desirability of the existing building being extended by acquiring the lands to the east of it in case the Basel Mission authorities object to the acquisition of lands to the south of it, and hopes that the Municipal Council will reconsider their decision, and that the Collector and the Government will pay due regard to the convenience of the people in the matter.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 28th, 1916.

Mr. Tilak and the Madras Mail.

91. Referring to the Madras Mail's attack on Mr. Tilak, the Keralodayam, of the 28th November, points out that, though the Government take no action in such matters, happily the Indians can, through the Courts of Justice, teach a good lesson to those Anglo-Indian papers, which rail at Indian leaders with impunity, and observes that the notice served by Mr. Tilak on the editor of the Madras Mail will convince the white people, who presume to know everything about India, that, though Indians have no self-government, they will not sit unconcerned when their honour or honesty is impugned.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1916.

The French Government and the recent cyclone.

92. Referring to the havoc caused by the recent cyclone in Pondicherry and in Madras and other parts of this Presidency, and to the steps taken by the French Government to alleviate the sufferings of their subjects, the Manorama, of the 28th November, observes that the Madras Government will do well to follow in the footsteps of the French Government in this matter.

QAUMI RAFIQUE, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1916.

The secret of a Muhammadan public library.

93. The Qaumi Report, of the 16th November, has the following letter from a correspondent under the nom de plume of Razdar:—The day before yesterday you pointed out "I have taken the responsibility of throwing light on the secrets of the Muhammadan public library." I am undoubtedly prepared, but allow me for the present not to disclose my identity and to see which way the library question turns. It would be well if the members of the managing committee, myself and yourself also, should go to a court where my name should be disclosed.

2. You must remember that the affairs of the library is not a matter to be lost sight of, but that the attention of the Hon'ble the Prince of Arcot, the Collector, the Commissioner of Police and the pride of the nation Maulavi Justice Abdur Rahim Sahib should be invited. I, therefore, invite the attention of these personages in particular.

3. The Government think and with this object in view continues its grant with the best of intentions, that Mussalmans in general and students in particular are deriving literary advantage therefrom, but the state of affairs here is such that students are not considered at all.

4. The library does not contain a store of religious or national books nor do any of the proprietors give this a thought. The question is at whose suggestion are books bought. How can those who have not read the books know anything about their utility or otherwise? Cases are filled up with books purchased indiscriminately.

5. For instance, one or two cases in the library are full of Turkish books on Military subjects which are perhaps accessible to insects only. Is this a sacred thing which is being carefully preserved?

6. There is not one but several catalogues of books in the library, but to find books relating to the same subject one has to search in several lists. The managers of the library are not concerned in the least.

7. There is a general index in every library, but our library is indifferent to universal practice. This difficulty already existed and has now been aggravated by the fact that when a book is demanded its number and name are shown, but the librarian says that a fresh list of the numbers is being prepared and the book cannot be traced. In this way readers are put off for weeks together. But the question is whether this work is being done gratuitously or as a meritorious act or whether the people whose business it is to trace the books are in receipt of remuneration.

Our differences.

94. The Qaumi Report, of the 20th November, writes:—Although the religious differences among the seventy-two sects of the Muhammadan community are imperceptible, the differences in social and domestic matters are so great that all hope of agreement is being abandoned.

Qaumi Report, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1916.

Indian civilization has divided our affairs into three parts, viz., political, religious and educational. Our advancement and prosperity depend on the correct adjustment of these matters, and our civilized feelings prompt us to make all legitimate endeavours to realise these objects.

In opposition to us the Hindus have established the National Congress as a great centre for the civilization of this triple aim. It is, as it were, their national parliament where they assemble every year to discuss and consider their demands. The only difference among them is the existence of two parties, viz., the moderates and the extremists.

But in the attainment of these three objects, Muhammadans have their distinct institutions. For educational matters we have formed an Educational Conference. For political affairs we have a separate Muslim League, while for things religious there is a Nudvat-ul-Ulama. But the beauty of it is the managers of the conference have nothing to do with the promoters of the league or the members of the Nudva and vice versâ.

Such are the differences in the community which believes in one God, one prophet, one book and one Kibla (prayer point).

III.—Legislation.

The Madras Legislative Council.

95. In commenting upon the proceedings at the last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council, the Manorama, of the 24th November, points out that some of the replies to the interpellations were not satisfactory, and that it is regrettable that they should have refused to make vaccination optional in the case of the Nambudiris, who object to it on religious grounds, and observes that, though the Government have accepted in a modified form the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar regarding the appointment of an Indian as a Member of the Board of Revenue, the phrase "when a suitable opportunity arises" is rather indefinite, but hopes that such an opportunity will soon arise.

Manorama, Calicut, Nov. 24th, 1916.

Writing on the same subject, the Yogakshemam, of the 24th November, points out that the people will derive no benefit from the Legislative Council unless it meets more frequently than now, and that several of the replies to the interpellations were unsatisfactory, approves of a non-official member's motion for an adjournment of the Council, when the Government said that they had no information as to the extent of the damage done by the floods in the Kistna district, and wishes that the Government's zeal in the matter of vaccination had been reserved for other and worthier purposes.

Yogakshemam, Trichur, Nov. 24th, 1916.

The Nasrani Deepika, of the 24th November, draws attention to the strong opposition of a large majority of Syrian Christians to the "Christians Succession Bill," which the Select Committee have not succeeded in improving, and hopes that the Diwan will ascertain public opinion on the subject and do nothing hastily.

Nasrani Deepika, Mannanam, Nov. 24th, 1916.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The Madras Legislative Council.

The Kerala Patrika, of the 25th November, also refers to the unsatisfactory nature of the replies given by the Government to the interpellations at the last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council, points out that some of these interpellations, though unnecessary, may at times lead to certain defects being detected and removed, rejoices that the Government have accepted, though in a modified form, the resolution regarding the appointment of an Indian—a Provincial Service man —as a member of the Board of Revenue, and dwells upon the advantages of an Indian being, as heretofore, made the Registrar of Co-operative Credit Societies.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Nov. 28th, 1916.

The Madras Legislative Council.

In commenting upon the proceedings of the last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council, the Keralodayam, of the 28th November, points out that the motion for the adjournment of the meeting which the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao brought forward, because of the unsatisfactory character of the replies given by the Government to the interpellations regarding the damages caused by the recent flood in the districts of Kurnool and Guntūr, and which may with advantage be had recourse to on future occasions, and the discussions thereon, make it clear to the Government that the strength of the non-official Members in the Council will no longer allow them to easily dispose of their interpellations with evasive or unsatisfactory answers, deplores the rejection by the Council of the resolution on the subject of increased facilities being given in High Schools, as well as of that relating to the transfer of Tahsildars and Sub-Magistrates every three years, and observes that the result of the resolution demanding the appointment of an Indian as a Member of the Board of Revenue, makes it desirable that the Honourable Members should not, as they sometimes do now, withdraw their resolutions, whether they be accepted or lost, as they will, if pressed, enable the people to find out those who are in favour of them and those who are not.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

VOKKALIGARA PATRIKE, Bangalore, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Baroda Representative Assembly.

96. Referring to His Highness the Gaekwar's proposal to establish a Representative Assembly in Baroda, the Vokkaligara Patrike, of the 29th November, says:—It is 35 years since an assembly of this kind was organised in Mysore, and it is in recognition of its remarkable progress and utility during this period that His Highness the Maharaja has now granted it the privilege of holding two sittings every year. The assembly not only ensures the smooth working of the machinery of Government, but, at the same time, effects a speedy redress of the grievances of the people. Baroda, which is far in advance of the other States in the matter of democratic institutions, should have formed its popular assembly long before this. The wider spread of education in Baroda must have rendered the assembly more of a necessity among those people. That it is being formed there so late as this can only be explained by the fact that His Highness the Gaekwar wanted to watch the working and progress of these assemblies in Travancore and Mysore. We earnestly hope that the newly-formed assembly in Baroda may prove, as in Mysore, a real boon to the public.

SAMPAD ABHYUDAYA, Mysore, Nov. 25th, 1916.

The local fund administration in Mysore.

97. Referring to the annual budget relating to the administration of local funds in Mysore, the Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 25th November, says that the net surplus of Rs. 4,28,327 shows that the authorities concerned are not sufficiently mindful of the necessity of utilising these available funds for the purpose of spreading technical education by the establishment of industrial schools and of improving the public health in rural areas by making more adequate provision for medical aid through Ayurvedic dispensaries. The paper observes that persons who have had a four to five years' complete medical course in Ayurvedic colleges are seen to seek service as schoolmasters for want of openings as medical practitioners and that it behoves the authorities to escape the obloquy that even in a Native State, where, from the ruler down to the officers as well as members of local bodies, all are Indians, there is no sufficient encouragement to indigenous systems of medicine.

98. In a leading article giving a summary of the changes proposed by the Mysore Government in regard to municipal administration in their State, in order to provide for a further extension of local self-government, the Vrittanta Patrike, of the 30th November, remarks:—The Government are prepared to give the city and town municipalities a much larger measure of control over their finances than at present, and they propose not to interfere with the details of the administration so long as it is ensured that the revenue in each year is not less than that in the previous year, the surplus does not fall short of a prescribed minimum and the expenditure on establishment charges, etc., is not unreasonably high, and the orders of Government are promptly obeyed. Arrangements will be made for a half-yearly audit of accounts through auditors appointed by Government. If the municipalities so desire, local primary education, vaccination, dispensaries and other similar work will also be left to their control. We hope that the proposed amendments in the municipal regulation will be carefully worded so as not to be inconsistent with the other existing provisions of the law. These changes will effect an enormous increase in the civic responsibilities of the people. Are the people sufficiently cognisant of their rights and duties in this connection? Are they prepared to spend their time on honorary work? We are afraid that they are not advanced far enough to make these sacrifices for the public good. For a prompt and satisfactory execution of these duties, it is necessary that along with educational qualifications there must be a strong spirit of self-sacrifice among popular leaders. There will no doubt be keen contest always for the honour of municipal councillorship. But once this honour is gained, they seldom give thought to the duties connected with it, unless some private ends are likely to be served thereby. For conscientious work brings no personal gain with it. On the other hand, it entails a heavy demand on the valuable time of the worker and creates an awkward situation when the interests of friends and relations are involved. Have we such selfless men? If men of the requisite intelligence, integrity and patriotism are available, our municipal affairs may no doubt be entrusted to non-official management with advantage. Else it is better that the Government keep the control in their own hands, as they do in regard to the other branches of the administration. We shall know before long whether men of the requisite type will be available in sufficient numbers for these increased responsibilities.

The Municipal administration in Mysore.

Vrittanta Patrike, Mysore, Nov. 30th, 1916.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 50 of 1916.

REPORT
ON ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS EXAMINED BY THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT, MADRAS,
AND ON
VERNACULAR PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS
for the Week ending 9th December 1916.

District Magistrates and Political Agents are requested to send to the Chief Secretary to Government, Judicial Department, a brief report of any local complaint which appears to them to call for notice, explaining whether the facts are as stated; what action, if any, is being taken; and, if the facts alleged are incorrect, what is believed to be the origin of the report and what the correct facts are.

CONTENTS.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

I.—Foreign Politics. PAGE

The probable reconstruction of the Cabinet 2161
The Cabinet crisis .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—
A "Bhadralog" dacoity 2162

(b) Courts—
The District and Sessions Court, North Arcot 2163

(d) Education—
The Convocation address .. .. ib.
Poisoning the young mind 2164
The Patna University .. .. ib.
Youthful offences .. .. ib.
The education of Indian girls 2165
The Principal of the Central Hindu College .. .. ib.
Free and compulsory elementary education .. .. ib.
An educational inquisition 2166

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—
Tahsildars and revenue inspectors 2167

(i) Public Works—
The Public Works Department Committee .. .. ib.

(j) Salt and Abkari—
The drink revenue 2168

(k) General—
The Madras Legislative Council .. .. ib.
Sir Krishna Gupta 2169
The Governor-designate of Bengal .. .. ib.
Sir Sankaran Nayar 2170
The Kurnool District Conference .. .. ib.
Home Rule .. .. ib.
Dr. T. M. Nayar and British Rule 2171
The working of the Defence of India Act 2172
Misuse of the Defence Act 2173
India's great man-power .. .. ib.
Military training .. .. ib.
The beggar nuisance 2174
Lajpat Rai's book Young India .. .. ib.
The recent disasters .. .. ib.
The Government of Bombay and Mr. Tilak 2176
Mrs. Besant and Bombay Order .. .. ib.
The Government of Bombay and Sir Valentine Chirol 2177
The Indian Viceroyalty and Provincial Governorships .. .. ib.
Harassing the theosophists 2178
The Bombay Legislative Council .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration—cont. PAGE

(k) General—cont.
India's part in the war 2179
The Tinctorial Expert .. .. ib.
The British Government and Mrs. Besant's book India: A Nation 2180

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

Condition of the Indian coolies in Ceylon 2181
The war .. .. ib.
The sinking of the Hospital ship Britannic 2182
"Satisfactory results of the European war" .. .. ib.
"The burden of the war expenditure" .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—
Two persons subjected to police surveillance in Bengal .. .. ib.
A boy beaten by a Superintendent of Police 2183

(b) Courts—
Why should the Government interfere with the discretion of the magistrates? .. ib.
The Fort Station affray .. .. ib.

(d) Education—
Secondary education 2184
The Convocation address .. .. ib.
The last Senate meeting .. .. ib.
A proposed Muslim College .. .. ib.
An able address by Imad-ul-Mulk Bahadur .. .. ib.

(h) Railways—
Railways and the people's grievances 2185

(j) Salt and Abkári—
The Abkári administration .. .. ib.

(k) General—
The appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as Governor of Bengal 2186
Mr. Tilak and the authorities in Cuttack 2187
The recent storm at Pondicherry .. .. ib.
Extraordinary interest taken by the Bombay Government in certain matters .. ib.
Sir Krishna Gupta on the future of India 2188
Sir Krishna Gupta's recent speech .. .. ib.
Lord Chelmsford's policy .. .. ib.
Political reforms 2189
Floods in the Guntúr district .. .. ib.
Self-government .. .. ib.
The Madras Executive Council .. .. ib.
Flood disaster in Kaikalur .. .. ib.
The rise in the prices of wheat and yarn .. .. ib.
India after the war 2190
The enhancement of telegraphic rates .. .. ib.
The United Conference and the political aspirations .. .. ib.
The influence of Western civilization in India .. .. ib.
The Hon'ble K. S. Bhat's interpellations in the Legislative Council 2191
Indian Board Member .. .. ib.
Slave traffic in Calcutta 2192
Lord Carmichael and British freedom .. .. ib.
Paper 2193
The Soap Factory at Calicut .. .. ib.
A new order of the Mysore Darbar .. .. ib.
The Gadag incident .. .. ib.
The Madras Muslim League annual session .. .. ib.
Concerning motor-cars 2194
The story of endowments .. .. ib.

III.—Legislation.

The influence of picture-houses in the minds of children 2195
The difficulties of the word "No" .. .. ib.

IV.—Native States.

The Holkar's gift to his people 2196
Local self-government in Mysore .. .. ib.
Raffles in Cochin .. .. ib.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

The needs of our agriculturists 2197

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS PUBLISHED IN THE MADRAS PRESIDENCY, THE NATIVE STATES OF HYDERABAD, MYSORE, TRAVANCORE, COCHIN AND PUDUKKOTTAI, AND THE FRENCH TERRITORIES OF PONDICHERRY AND KARIKAL.

[NOTE.—Among the Indian-owned newspapers, those classed as dealing with politics are printed in big type. Officers, in whose jurisdiction they are published, are requested to pay special attention to these papers, and send immediate reports of any changes in them to the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Railways and Criminal Investigation Department, Madras.]

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
1	Abhinavasaraswati	Telugu.	Chandrika Press, Guntūr ..	Monthly ..	Janapati Paṭṭābhirāma Śāstri, Brahman, 45 years.	325
2	Adyar Bulletin ..	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	1,200
3	Agricultural Pamphlet.	Tamil ..	Alexandra Press, Kumbakōnam.	Do. ..	R. Srinivasa Ayyangar, 43 years, and Subrahmaniya Ayyar, 40 years, Brahmans.	600
4	Agriculture	Telugu.	Published at Ellore, printed at Scope & Co.'s Press, Cocanada, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Rao Sahib G. Nārāyanaswāmi Nayudu, B.A., Sudra, 50 years.	255
5	Agriculturist	Tamil ..	Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. R. Ranga Raju, Balija, 41 years.	1,000
6	A'in-i-Deccan	Urdu ..	A'in-i-Deccan Press, Begam Bazaar, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Maulvi Inayat Husain Khan Sahib, Afghan, 41 years.	750
7	Aksharanjali	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Sri Kantayya, Brahman, 35 years.	600
8	Al-Mazmūn	Urdu ..	Alavi Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Anar-ud-din Sahib Bakhud, Muhammadan, 35 years.	400
9	Ananda*	Canarese	Victoria Printing Works, Bantwal, South Canara district.	Fortnightly.	M. N. Kamath, Brahman ..	Not known.
10	Ananda Bodhini ..	Tamil ..	P. R. Rama Ayyar & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Muniswami Mudaliyar, Vellala, 31 years.	1,000
11	Andhra Advocate ..	English.	Basel Printing Works, Vizagapatam.	Weekly ..	Nyayapati Rangamannar, Vyshnava, 30 years.	450
12	Andhra Chandrika	Telugu.	Andhra Chandrika Press, Proddatur, Cuddapah district.	Do. ..	B. Narayanaswami, Brahman, 23 years.	600
13	Andhra Patrika ..	Anglo-Telugu.	Andhra Patrika Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and weekly	K. Nageswara Rao, Brahman, 46 years, and G. Harisarvottama Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	3,000
14	Andhraprakasika.	Telugu.	Hindu Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	A. C. Pārthasārathi Nayudu, Balija, 62 years.	500
15	Andhra Sahitya Parishad Patrika.	Do.	Published at the Telugu Academy office, 12 Arunachella Nayakan Road, Chintadripet, printed at Srinivasa Varadachari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Surria Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	300
16	Andhra Samrakshani.	Do.	Kamala Printing Works Cocanada, Godāvari district.	Do. ..	G. Harischandra Rao, Brahman, 32 years.	500
17	Anglo-Indian ..	English.	Published at the Anglo-Indian Association premises, Egmore, printed at Vest & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	Feliz Alexander D'Cruz, Anglo-Indian, 49 years.	800
18	Antiseptic	Do.	Published at No. 333, Thumbu Chetty Street, printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. Nayar, Nayar, 46 years.	4000
19	Arogyam	Telugu.	Saraswati Press, Cocanada ..	Do. ..	V. Gopala Krishna Rao, Brahman, 29 years.	800
20	Arunodayam	Tamil ..	Church of Sweden Mission Press, Tranquebar, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	Rev D. Bexell, European, 54 years.	750
21	Arya	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	Arabindo Ghose, Kayastha, 45 years, Paul Richard, 49 years, and Madame Richard, French.	750
22	Aryabala Samaj Magazine.	Do.	Krishnaraja Vani Vilas Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	G. Virupakshayya, Brahman, 23 years.	100
23	Arya Dharmam ..	Tamil ..	Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	T. K. Balasubrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 42 years.	200
24	Arya Dharma Pradīpam.	Canarese	Sri Lakshmi Vilasa Press, Nadahalli, Mysore State.	Do. ..	N. Narasappana Venkappa, Brahman, 34 years.	400

*Started, 3rd April 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
25	Arya Mahilá	Canarese	Published at Nanjangud (Mysore) and printed at the Royal Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	M. Sitarama Jois, Brahman, 22 years.	250
26	Arya Vysya ..	Anglo-Telugu	Arya Vysya Press, Guntúr ..	Weekly ..	S. Ramaswami Gupta, Vysya, 52 years.	350
27	Asha	Uriya	Asha Press, Berhampur ..	Do. ..	S. B. Rotho, Brahman, 31 years.	1,000
28	Atma Poshini ..	Malayalam	Akshararatna Prakasika Press, Kunnankulam, Cochin State	Monthly ..	Rev. P. I. Joseph, Syrian Christian, 26 years.	700
29	Bala Dutan or Children's Herald.	Tamil ..	Published at Nazareth, printed at the Darling Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Joseph A. Jesudasan, Indian Christian, 48 years.	3,000
30	Bala Mitra or Children's Friend.	Telugu.	Christain Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, European, 35 years.	9,500
31	Balamitram	Malayalam.	Nicholas Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	G. E. Thadaeus, Indian Christian, 59 years.	500
32	Baliyar Mittiran or Children's Friend.	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. R. Robertson, European ..	7,500
33	Baliyar Nesan or Children's Magazine.	Do. ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Rev. R. V. Asirvadam, Indian Christian, 45 years.	6,500
34	Bar, Platform and Pulpit.	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	J. Dartnell, Eurasian, 39 years..	200
35	Basel Mission College Magazine.*	English and Malayalam occasionally.	Norman Printing Bureau, Calicut.	Eight times a year.	W. E. Hoare, Englishman, 52 years.	300
36	Bashabhimani † ..	Malayalam.	Raja Raja Varma Press, Puthenchandai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	P. K. Kumara Pillai, Nayar, 22 years.	500
37	Bhakti Sondesha ‡ ..	Canarese	Caxton Press, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Sri Dattabreya Krishna Bharadwaja	Not known.
38	Bhanu §	Anglo-Malayalam.	Vidya Vinodhini Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. K. K. Srinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 26 years.	500
39	Bharata Kesari ‖ ..	Do.	Sarasvati Vilasam Press, Puthenchanthai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Velu Pillai, Nayar, 33 years.	1,300
40	Bharatamata ..	Telugu.	Sri Virayogindra Press, Vizianagram.	Weekly ..	Voruganti Venkata Somayajulu, Brahman, 37 years.	400
41	Bharati ¶	Tamil ..	Published at 5, Oolagappa Maistri Street, Chintadripet, and printed at the Visvakulatharana Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Do. ..	T. Krishnaswami Pavalar, Gramani, 27 years.	500
42	Bharati	Canarese	Vani Vilas Press, Bellary ..	Do. ..	K. M. Karibasavayya, Lingayat, 33 years.	200
43	Bhárati Vilás	Do	Bhuvaneswari Press, Mysore..	Monthly ..	A. Krishna Dikshit, Brahman, 30 years.	200
44	Bhuloka Vyasan ..	Tamil ..	Bhuloka Vyasan Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Muthuvira Navalar, Valluvan, 52 years.	220
45	Bible Faith Mission Standard.	English.	Hogarth Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Once in two months.	Charles R. Vedanta Achari, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
46	Bódhaka Bódhini ..	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	225
47	Bodhini	Do.	Prabhakara Press, Udipi, South Canara District.	Do. ..	T. Mangesh Rao, 40 years, and M. N. Kamath, 35 years, Brahmans.	750
48	Brothers of the Star ..	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar, Chingleput district.	Do. ..	Dr. H. Roche, English, 49 years.	5,000
49	Carlylean	Do.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Fortnightly.	T. Sriramulu, B.A., Brahman, 40 years.	200
50	Catholic Friend. 	Do.	Published at the Lux Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. M. Motha Vas, Singhalese Christian, 32 years.	..
51	Catholic Messenger ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Deepika Press, Kuruvalangad, Travancore State.	Do. ..	E. A. Nidhiri, B.A., Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,200
52	Catholic Mitramu or Catholic Friend. ¶	Telugu.	Published at the Lux Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. M. Motha Vas, Singhalese Christian, 32 years.	..
53	Catholic Nesan or Catholic Friend.	Tamil ..	... Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	..
54	Catholic Register.	English.	Published at San Thomé, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. M. Teixera, Portuguese, 36 years.	350

* Discontinued, April 1916. † Started, 8th September 1916. ‡ Started, August 1916. § Started, 21st May 1916, and discontinued in July 1916. ‖ Started, February 1916. ¶ Temporarily discontinued, April 1916  Started, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
55	Catholic Watchman.	English.	Published at the Catholic Supply Society, Popham's Broadway, Georgetown, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father Kuss, European ..	400
56	Chakravarthi ..	Malayalam.	Chakravarthi Press, Muttancherry, Cochin State	Do. ..	K. Janadhana Menon, Sudra, 30 years.	850
57	Chakravartini ..	Tamil ..	Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswaran ettah, Madras.	Monthly..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 52 years.	230
58	Childrens' Friend ..	Anglo-Tamil.	St. Mary's School Press, Cuddalore.	Do. ..	Amirdesa Mudali alias Murugesa Mudali, Vallala, 28 years.	Not known.
59	Choudari *	Telugu.	Ramamohan Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Garapati Anjaneya Choudari, Kamma, 30 years.	Do.
60	Christ Church, Madras, Monthly Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras	Do. ..	Rev. F. B. Heiser, M.A., European, 40 years.	250
61	Christian College Magazine.	Do.	Do. do.	Do. ..	S. J. Crawford, M.A., European	400
62	Christian Patriot.	Do.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	R. A. Dason, Indian Christian, 24 years.	600
63	Church Mission College Magazine.	Do.	Darling Printing Press, Tinnevelly.	Quarterly.	J. Jnanamuthu, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 50 years.	550
64	Cochin Argus ..	Do.	Cochin Argus Press, British Cochin.	Weekly ..	C. Hamilton Pereira, Anglo-Indian, 47 years.	300
65	Commercial World Advertiser. †	Anglo-Tamil—Telugu	Published at 41, Avadanam Papayya Street, Choolai, printed at the Presidency Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Chakrapani Pillai, Yadhuva, 38 years.	1,000
66	Commonweal ..	English.	Besant Press, New India Buildings, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	7,000
67	Conch ‡	Do.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore.	Do. ..	Raman Pillai, Nayar, 40 years..	400
68	Contemporary Law Review.	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	600
69	Co-operative Bulletin ..	Canarese	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Do. ..	K. S. Krishna Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	500
70	Criminal Law Reporter.	English.	Law Notes Press, Parvatipur, Vizagapatam district.	Do. ..	P. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 55 years, good.	Not stated.
71	Criminal Law Review..	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	600
72	Daily Post ..	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Daily (two editions).	T. M. Babington, European, 58 years.	3,000
73	Deccan Law Report ..	Urdu ..	Deccan Law Report Press, Troop Bazaar, Jam Bagh, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Akbar Khan Sahib, Muhammadan, 37 years.	1,000
74	Desabhimani ..	Anglo-Tamil.	Patriot Press, Cuddalore New Town.	Weekly ..	P. T. Tiruvenkata Achari, Brahman, 31 years.	465
75	Do. ..	Telugu.	Desabhimani Press, Guntúr ..	Do. ..	D. Séshachalapathi Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	300
76	Do. ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Sri Krishna Vilasam Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do. ..	T. K. Narayanan, Ezhava, 30 years.	1,000
77	Desamata	Telugu.	Manorama Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	Rayavarapu Ramamurti, Brahman, 44 years.	700
78	Desseya Missionary Prabasika.	Do.	Sujanaranjani Press, Cocanada.	Once in two months.	Rev. N. Abraham, Indian Christian, 40 years.	1,000
79	Desseya Missionary Patrike.	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Do.	H. Sumitra, Indian Christian ..	500
80	Dhanurdhari ..	Do.	Sachchidananda Press, Davangere, Mysore State.	Fortnightly.	M. Manjappa Hardaikar, Lingayat, 31 years.	400
81	Dhánvantari	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	P. Sankunni Varriar, Variyan, 46 years.	395
82	Dharma Poshini.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Manomohanam Press, Quilon, Travancore State.	Bi-monthly.	R. Madhavan Onnithan, Nayar, 38 years.	950
83	Dharma Prachara ..	English.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	A Mahadeva Sastri, Brahman, 54 years.	300
84	Dharmaprakasika. †	Telugu.	Sita Vilasa Press, Tenali, Guntur district.	Fortnightly.	B. J. Suryaprakasa, Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	250
85	Dharmasadhini ..	Do.	Scope & Co.'s Press, Cocanada.	Do.	P. Narasimham, Brahman, 39 years.	500
86	Digest of Indian Case Law.	English.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	1,500
87	Disciple	Do.	Vasantha Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Quarterly.	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	3,000
88	Divyagnana Dipika or Organ of Theosophy.	Telugu.	Victoria Jubilee Press, Chittoor.	Monthly..	P. Narasimhayya, 59 years, and J. Srinivása Rão, 64 years, Brahmans.	1,200

* Started, June 1916. † Not published for the last two years. ‡ Started, 16th August 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
89	Dravidabhimani ..	Tamil ..	Dravidabhimani Press, Salem.	Weekly ..	D. A. John Nadar, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,000
90	Educational Review.	English.	Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly..	C. Srinivasa Achari, Brahman, 61 years	600
91	Elementary School Journal.	Telugu.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	V. Narasimharayudu, Brahman, 42 years.	1,500
92	Etatkalasatyam or Present Truth.	Malayalam.	Published at the South Indian Mission of Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk, and printed at the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. S. James, European, 37 years.	Not known.
93	Everyman's Review.†	English.	Kanara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Suryanarayanamurti, Brahman, 50 years.	100
94	Findlay College, Magazine.	Do.	Published at Mannargudi, Tanjore district, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Quarterly.	S. Narayana Ayyangar, M.A., and Kadaji Rao, B.A., Brahmans.	400
95	Friendly Instructor ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah,	Monthly..	Rev. D. Pakkianathan, Indian Christian, 63 years.	1,050
96	George Gazette ..	Urdu ..	Muhammadi Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	M. Abdul Basith, Muhammadan, 39 years.	400
97	Gopala Krishnan ..	Malayalam.	M. V. Press, Palghat	Monthly..	P. Chippa Kutty Nayar, Nayar, 25 years.	400
98	Gospel Witness ..	English.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Do. ..	Rev. Victor McCauley, American, 41 years.	350
99	Grihalakshmi	Telugu.	Manjuvani Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	N. Chelapati Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
100	Harvest Field	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	645
101	Hindu	Do.	National Press, Wallajah Road, Madras.	Daily, tri-weekly & weekly.	S. Kasturiranga Ayyangar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 61 years.	6,100
102	Hindu Nesan ..	Tamil ..	South Indian Press, 13, Narasingapuram Street, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	S. Srinivasa Venkata Achari, Brahman·	1,500
103	Hindu Sundari ..	Telugu.	Vidyartini Samaj Press, Cocanada.	Monthly ..	B. Seshamma, 37 years, and M. Chaddamma, 32 years, Brahmans.	500
104	Hitakarini	Tamil ..	Published at 14, Kennedy Street, Mylapore, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	Visalakshi Ammal, Brahman, 36 years.	1,000
105	Do.	Telugu.	Hitakarini Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	M. L. Narasimha Sarma, Brahman, 33 years.	400
106	Hitavadi	Do.	Church Missionary Society, Dove Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly..	Rev. D. Anantam, B.A., Indian Christian, 65 years.	550
107	Humanity	English.	India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Punnayya, Brahman, 29 years.	400
108	Illustrated Criminal Investigation and Law Digest.	Do.	Criminal Investigation Press, Vellore, North Arcot district.	Do.	T. K. Sundara Ayyar, Brahman, 44 years.	1,400
109	Indian Advertiser.	French, English and Tamil.	Jaganatha Press, Pondicherry.	Monthly..	S. Rajalu Reddi, Reddi, 27 years.	100
110	Indian Christian.	English.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	W. C. Irvine, European, 41 years.	1,100
111	Indian Christian Endeavour.	Do.	Published in Bangalore, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Halliwell, European, 44 years.	500
112	Indian Church News and Review. ‡	Do.	Hogarth Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	D. David, Indian Christian, 43 years.	300
113	Indian Emigrant ..	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. K. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 34 years.	300
114	Indian Engineer.	Do.	Published at 2 and 3, Raja's Buildings, Armenian Street, and printed at the Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. R. Venkatesa Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	1,000
115	Indian Interpreter ..	Do.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. N. Macnicol, M.A., 47 years, and Rev. A. Robertson, M.A., 44 years, Europeans.	600
116	Indian Ladies' Magazine.	Do.	Published at "Histoy", San Thomé, Mylapore, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	Mrs. K. Sathianadhan, Indian Christian, 44 years.	300
117	Indian Law Gazette.	Tamil ..	Indian Law Gazette Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly..	C. Paramasiva Mudali, Vellala, 46 years.	130

* Started, July 1916. † Started, January 1916. ‡ Discontinued, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
118	Indian Law Quarterly ..	English.	Published at 14 and 15, Luz Church Road, Mylapore, printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Quarterly.	P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	500
119	Indian Patriot ..	Do.	Indian Patriot Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and tri-weekly.	Diwan Bahadur C. Karunakara Menon, B.A., Nayar, 56 years.	900
120	Indian Railway Journal.	Do.	Published at Triplicane, printed by Pavar & Co.'s Press, Patter's Road, Madras.	Monthly..	S. K. Subba Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	150
121	Indian Review ..	Do.	G. A. Natesan & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Natesa Ayyar, B.A., F.M.U., Brahman, 47 years.	3,000
122	International Police Service Magazine.	Do.	Ambika Press, Park Town, Madras.	Do. ..	G. Kodandaramayya, M.A., Brahman, 56 years.	500
123	Janabhimani or People's Friend.	Tamil ..	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 48 years.	750
124	Jananukulan ..	Do. ..	Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore.	Weekly ..	T. V. Krishna Das, Vellala, 57 years.	1,000
125	Janmi	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	K. C. Manavikraman Tamburan, Samantan, 47 years.	330
126	Janopakari * ..	Tamil ..	Record Press, Vellore ..	Do. ..	V. R. Vaidyananda Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	..
127	Jnana Bhanu ..	Do. ..	Published at 8, Pichu Pillai, Street, Mylapore ; printed at the Sachchidananda Press. Komaleswarapet, Madras.	Do. ..	Subrahmanya Siva, Brahman, 38 years.	350
128	Jaridah-i-Rozgar ..	Urdu ..	Hyderi Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Daily and weekly.	Muhammad Abdul Latif Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 37 years.	360
129	Journal of the Madras Agricultural Students' Union.	English.	Published at the Agricultural College, Coimbatore, printed at the Literary Sun Press, Coimbatore.	Monthly ..	D. Ananda Rao, Indian Christian, 34 years.	350
130	Journal of the Muhammadan Educational Association of Southern India.	Urdu ..	Published at 5, Francis Joseph Street, Georgetown, printed at the Islamia Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Abdul Hamid Hasan, B.A., LL.B., Muhammadan, 44 years.	500
131	Journal of the Tamil Scientific Terms Society. ‖	Anglo-Tamil.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	C. Rajagopala Achari and R. G. Venkatasubba Ayyar, Brahmans.	100
132	Kadambari Sangraha ..	Canarese	Royal Press, Mysore ..	* Do. ..	Venkataramana Sastri, Brahman, 28 years.	400
133	Kairali †	Malayalam.	Published at Ernakulam, printed at the Vidya Vinodhini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Sankara Menon, M.A., L.T., Nayar, 33 years.	300
134	Kalabhimani ‡ ..	Canarese	Caxton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Raghupati Achari, Brahman, 40 years.	1,000
135	Kala Chintamani ..	Tamil ..	Published at 4, Maliawaran Koil Street, Mylapore ; printed at the Sivakami Vilasam Press, Choolai, Madras.	Do. ..	T. V. Kaliyana Sundara Mudali, Vellala, 35 years, good.	1,000
136	Kalai Magal ..	Do. ..	Imprimerie Louis Saunaya de Saigon, Pondicherry.	Do. ..	S. Bangaru Pathar, Kammala, 42 years.	400
137	Kaliyuga Varthamani.	Do. ..	Kaviprakasa Ganeshananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly...	T. Muthuswami Chetti Vaiya, 23 years.	100
138	Kalpaka	English.	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	T. R. Sanjivi Rao, Brahman, 35 years.	730
139	Kannada Kogile § ..	Canarese	M. T. A. Sharada Press, Mangalore.	Do. ..	P. Bhoja Rao and M. Thimmappaya.	Not known.
140	Karnataka	English.	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Bi-weekly.	D. V. Gundappa, Brahman, 29 years.	350
141	Karnátaka Chandrike ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	N. Srikanta Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	600
142	Karnátaka Granthamála.	Do.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	B. Subba Rao, B.A., Brahman, 46 years.	300
143	Karnátaka Kávya Kalánidhi.	Do.	Srinivasa Press, Mysore ..	Do. ..	M. A. Ramanuja Ayyangar, Brahman, 51 years.	350
144	Karnataka Nandini ¶ ..	Do.	Published at the Sati Hitaishini office, Nanjangud, Mysore State ; printed at the Sri Krishna Press, Hubli, Bombay Presidency.	Do. ..	N. Tirumalammal	Not known.
145	Karnataka Sahitya Parishad Patrike. §	Do.	Published by the Kannada Academy, and printed at the Irish Press, Bangalore City, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	R. Raghunatha Rao, Brahman ..	Do.

* Started, January 1916.
† Started, February 1916.
‡ Ceased to exist January 1916.
§ Started, April 1916.
‖ Started in 1916.
¶ Started, October 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
146	Katha Ratnakaram.	Tamil ..	Published at 162, Coral Merchant Street; printed at the Swadesamitiran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. A. Nelliappa Mudaliyar, Vellala, 30 years good.	400
147	Kavita	Telugu.	Vidwajjana Manoranjini Press, Pithapuram, Godavari district.	Do. ..	V. Venkatarama Sastri, 30 years, and V. Ramakrishna Sastri, 27 years. Brahmans.	250
148	Kerala Deepika ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Coronation Memorial Syrian Press, Muvattupuzha, Travancore State.	Fortnightly.	Rev. P. C. John, Indian Christian, 27 years.	300
149	Keralakesari ..	Malayalam.	Perunanam, Kerala Kalpadrum Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Monthly ..	W. Ikkanda Puthuval, Ambalavasi, 35 years, good.	850
150	Keralam *	Malayalam, English, Sanskrit and Tamil.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Puthenchandai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	R. Mahadeva Sarma, Brahman, 28 years.	500
151	Kerala Patrika ..	Malayalam.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Weekly ..	C. Kunhiraman Menon, B.A., Nayar, 57 years.	1,250
152	Kerala Sanchari ..	Do.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. P. Govindan Nayar, Nayar, 58 years.	1,150
153	Kerala Vyasan † ..	Do.	Published at Lokamaleswaram, Cranganore, printed at the S. P. Press, Paravur, Cochin State.	Monthly.	N. Padmanabha Menon, Nayar, 25 years.	1,000
154	Keraleeyabhimani.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Keraleeyabhimani Press, Mavelikara, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	Jacob Kurien, Indian Christian, 30 years.	750
155	Keralodayam ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Narayana Menon, 57 years, and V. Narayana Menon, 41 years, Nayars.	865
156	Kistnapatrika ..	Telugu.	Kistna Swadeshi Press, Masulipatam.	Do. ..	Mutnuri Krishna Rao, Brahman, 38 years.	2,000
157	Kolar Gold Fields News.	English.	Kolar Gold Fields News Press, Bowringpet, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Cornelius, Anglo-Indian, 64 years.	300
158	Konkani Dirven ..	Konkani in Canarese characters.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Fortnightly.	A. J. Mascarenhas, Indian Christian, 28 years.	600
159	La Gerbe du Maduré ..	French.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	Rev. G. J. Gross, S.J., German, 45 years.	260
160	Lakshmi Bhai	Malayalam.	Vidyavinodini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	V. Narayana Menon, Nayar 39 years.	1,500
161	Lakshmi Vilasam ..	Do.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Do. ..	K. C. Manavikraman Tampuran, Samantan, 47 years.	330
162	Law Weekly	English.	Published at Vasanta Vilas, Mylapore, printed at Messrs. Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	V. C. Sesha Acharya, Brahman, 53 years.	450
163	Light of Music	Tamil ..	Sri Gana Vidya Press, Perungalam, Tinnevelly district.	Monthly ..	V. Srinivasa Ayyangar, Brahman, 36 years.	500
164	Literary Journal. ‡	English.	Published at the Young Men's Literary Association, Triplicane; printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	K. S. Venkataraman, Brahman, 24 years.	250
165	Liva-ul-Islam § ..	Tamil ..	Muhammadia Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Moulvi Haji Sheikh Mirza Muhiud-din, Muhammadan, 39 years.	750
166	Local Self-government Gazette.	English.	Published at No. 7, Badriah Garden Street, Georgetown; printed by Higginbothams, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. C. Desika Acharlya, 46 years, and P. Duraiswami Ayyangar, 44 years, Brahmans.	500
167	Loka Mitran ‖ ..	Tamil ..	Union Press, Namakkal, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	V. Govindaraja Ayyangar, Brahman, 36 years.	207
168	Lokaprakasam ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Lokaprakasam Printing Department, Janopakari Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. N. Vaidyeswara Ayyar, Brahman, 33 years.	1,000
169	Lokaranjini ¶ ..	Tamil ..	Saraswathi Vilas Press, Mayavaram, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	P. Sundarama Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	500
170	Lokopakari	Do. ..	Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswaranpettah, Madras.	Do. ..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 42 years.	1,100
171	Lutheran Sunday Lesson Book for children.	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Monthly ..	Mrs H. C. Cannaday, B.A., European.	350

* Started, January 1916.
† Started, March 1916.
‡ Discontinued, May 1916.
§ Discontinued, 19th January 1916.
‖ Ceased to exist in June 1914.
¶ Ceased to exist, 20th January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
172	Madar Bodhini	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly ..	Miss Inglis, M.A., European ..	700
173	Madar Manoranjani or Tamil and School Zenana Magazine.	Do. ..	Published at 12, Thanikachala Mudah Street, Triplicane; printed at Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Ramaswami Ayyar, Brahman, 40 years.	450
174	Madar Mitri or Tamil Woman's Friend.	Do. ..	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss Grace Stephens, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	700
175	Madhuravani ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	K. Hanuman Dass alias Hanuman, Brahman, 24 years.	250
176	Madhva Sidhanta Prakasini.‡	Do..	Published at the Madhva Sidhanta Prakasini Sabha, Mysore, and printed at the Jayalaya Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Y. Srinivasa Rao and H. Narasinga Rao, Brahmans.	Not known.
177	Madras Bulletin of Co-operation.	English, Tamil and Telugu. (separate editions).	Published by the Madras Provincial Co-operative Union, Limited, Triplicane, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Quarterly.	V. Venkata Subbayya, Brahman, 36 years.	2,000
178	Madras Church Missionary Gleaner.	English.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. Canon E. Sell, D.D. F.R.U., European, 85 years.	300
179	Madras Economic Journal.*	Do	Published at the Lady Wenlock Park, Chepauk, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Annually.	S. Krishnaswami Ayyangar, M.A. Brahman.	..
180	Madras Law Journal ..	Do.	Published at Brodie's Road, Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. Varada Achari, Brahman, 41 years.	1,750
181	Madras Law Times ..	Do.	Published at the Law Times office, Georgetown; printed at the Law Printing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	(1) T. Prakasam, Brahman, 43 years; (2) M. Devadoss, Indian Christian, 45 years; and (3) C. Madhavan Nayar, Nayar, 35 years.	800
182	Madras Mail ..	Do.	Madras Mail Press. No. 6, North Beach Road, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily, triweekly and weekly.	T. E. Welby, European, 34 years.	5,412
183	Madras Times ..	Do.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	Glyn Barlow, M.A., European, 55 years.	3,200
184	Madras Weekly Notes ..	Do.	Published at Royapetta High Road; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	N. R. K. Tata Acharya, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 35 years.	2,000
185	Madras Young Men.	Do.	Published at the Y.M.C.A., Esplanade Road, Georgetown; printed at Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	H. C. Herman, American, 34 years.	1,000
186	Magazine for Students, Teachers and Children	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Quarterly.	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	300
187	Maharaja's College Magazine.	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do.	T. Denham, M.A., European, 59 years.	900
188	Maha Vikata Dutan.	Tamil ..	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	B. A. A. Rajendram Pillai, Indian Christian, 55 years.	1,050
189	Mahilasakhi	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Mrs. Thorpe, European ..	350
190	Malabar Herald ..	English.	Union Press, British Cochin.	Weekly ..	E. W. Nigli, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	750
191	Malabar Islam ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Bharata Mitram Press, Muttancheri, Cochin State.	Do. ..	C. V. Abdur Rahman Haidros, Muhammadan, 27 years.	1,000
192	Malabar Quarterly Review (formerly the Monthly Review.)	English.	Sundara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Quarterly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 43 years.	500
193	Malayala Manorama.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Malayála Mandráma Press, Kóttayam, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. M. Mathula Mappilla, M.R.A.S., Syrian Christian, 46 years.	4,500
194	Malayali	Do.	Manamohan Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do.	K. Kalpu Pillai, B.A., Nayar, 52 years.	1,550
195	Manavaseva† ..	Telugu.	Kalavati Press, Rajahmandry.	Monthly ..	N. Krishna Rao, Vysya, 34 years.	400
196	Mangalodayam	Malayalam.	Kérala Kalpadruma Press, Trichúr, Cochin State.	Do. ..	T. K. Krishna Menon, 46 years and K. Sankara Menon, 33 years, Sudras.	650
197	Mangalore Advertiser.	English.	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Do. ..	A. A. Pereira alias Robson, Anglo-Indian, 37 years.	300

* Started, April 1916. † Not published since 7th September 1916. ‡ Started, October 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
198	Mangalore Magazine ..	English.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Annually.	E. Coelho, Indian Christian, 42 years.	600
199	Manju Bhâshini ..	Sanskrit.	Sri Sudarsana Press, Little Conjeeveram, Chingleput district.	Weekly ..	C. P. A. Ranga Acharya, Brahman, 44 years.	300
200	Manorama	Malayalam.	Kannanparaparamba, Chalapuram, printed at the Nicholas Printing Works, Calicut.	Bi-weekly.	P. Krishnan Nayar, Nayar, 26 years.	1,500
201	Meraj-i-Khiyal ..	Urdu ..	Published at No. 78, Thayar Sahib Street, printed at Nazzakia Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ghaus Sahib, Muhammadan, 63 years.	150
202	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Tamil ..	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Do. ..	Brother Joseph, Indian Christian, 61 years	3,800
203	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Brother Leo, European, 44 years.	400
204	Missionary Intelligencer	Tamil ..	Darling Press, Palamcottah ..	Do. ..	J. A. Ambudayan, Indian Christian, 47 years.	2,500
205	Mission News ..	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. Aberly, D.D., American. 51 years.	600
206	Mission News for Women.	Do.	Do. do.	Monthly ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 36 years.	300
207	Mitavadi	Anglo-Malayalam.	Mitavadi Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. Krishnan, B.A., B.L., Tiyya, 44 years.	1,000
208	Monthly Letter ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	300
209	Morning Star	English.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Six times a year.	Rev. Father L. Lacombe, S.J., Frenchman, 50 years.	1,200
210	Muhammadia Prasanga Nesan (formerly the Islamia Prasanga Nesan). *	Tamil ..	Rivayuth-ul-Islam Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. M. Mustafa Lubbai, Muhammadan, 39 years.	300
211	Mukhbir-i-Deccan.	Urdu ..	Sultani Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Do. ..	Saiyid Muhammad Abdul Qadir Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 47 years.	800
212	Mushir-i-Deccan.	Do. ..	Deccan Panch Press, Mahbubpura (Govliguda), Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Krishna Rao, Brahman, 48 years.	1,400
213	Muslim Dutan ..	Tamil ..	Shah-ul-Hamidiya Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. A. Shah-ul-Hamid, Muhammadan. 43 years.	900
214	My Mother †	English.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, printed at the St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Once in two months.	R. P. Kulandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 39 years.	Not known.
215	Mysore Patriot ..	Do.	Krishnaraja Vanivilas Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	250
216	Mysore Star ..	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	Y. Virupakshayya, Lingayat, 42 years,	3,000
217	Nagai Neelalochani.	Tamil ..	Neelalochani Press, Negapatam	Do. ..	G. Sadasivam Pillai, Kalla, 55 years.	250
218	Nalla Ayan or Good Pastor.	Do. ..	Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. R. John, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,700
219	Nalpasiriyan or Trained Teacher.	Do. ..	Caxton Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. R. Namasivayam Mudaliyar, Vellala, 40 years.	900
220	Nayar Samudaya Parishkari.‡	Malayalam.	Published at Tellicherry, printed at the Spectator Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	K. C. Narayan Nambiyar, Nayar, 41 years.	500
221	National Missionary Intelligencer.	English.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	Mrs. S. G. Heasman, M.A., Indian Christian.	2,400
222	Nattukottai Vaishyam.	Tamil ..	Pentland Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	P. S. Andiappa Pillai, Vellala, 37 years.	1,500
223	Nazrani Deepika.	Anglo-Malayalam.	St. Joseph's Press, Mannanam, Ettumanur, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Govinda Pillai, Sudra, 39 years.	1,500
224	New India ..	English.	New India Power Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	8,000
225	Newington School Magazine.	Do.	Published at "Newington," Teynampet; printed by Higginbotham's, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Half-yearly.	D. L. Blunt, European, 33 years.	50
226	New Reformer ..	Do.	Published at Georgetown; printed by Vest & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	D. Gopal Chetti, Senai Tholavar, 48 years.	500
227	Nigashkalasatyam or The Present Truth.	Tamil ..	Published at the South Indian Mission of the Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk; printed at the Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. S. James, European, 37 years.	5,000
228	Noble College Leader ..	English.	Church Missionary Society Dove Press, Masulipatam.	Do.	T. V. Narasayya, 24 years, and V. K. Viaveswara Rao, Brahmans.	300

* Temporarily discontinued, 28th September 1916. † Started June 1916. ‡ Printer declared on 6th May 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
229	Non-Brahman [formerly the Advertiser's (Free) Manual].	English.	Published at the General Advertising Co. and printed at the Mercury Press, George town, Madras.	Weekly ..	C. Sarangapani Mudaliyar, Vellala, 25 years.	2,000
230	Noor*	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Fortnightly.	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	Not known.
231	Northwick Observer ..	English	Published at the United Free Church of Scotland Mission Girls' Boarding School, Rayapuram; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Quarterly	Miss J. H. Ross, M.A., B.Sc., European, 31 years.	480
232	Our Little Paper †	Do.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, Travancore; printed at St Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly..	R. P. Kulandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 39 years.	550
233	Outlook †	Do.	Published at the Y.W.C.A., Coonoor, printed at the Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Ootacamund.	Quarterly.	Miss E. A. Waugh, British, 34 years.	Not known.
234	Pandia Nesan ..	Tamil ..	Krishna Vilasam Press, Madura.	Weekly ..	P. George,, Indian Christian, 43 years.	400
235	Penkalvi or Female Education.	Do. ..	Published at 27, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the India Printing Works, Madras.	Monthly ..	Revoo Tayarammal, Brahman, 32 years.	1,000
236	People's Opinion (formerly the People's Weekly).	English.	Sundara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 43 years.	500
237	Planters' Chronicle.	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	Fletcher Norton, European, 53 years.	1,000
238	Popular Magazine ..	Tamil ..	Guarothia Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Monthly..	Paul C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 40 years.	500
239	Popular Scientific Journal.	English.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Henry Devadas, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 32 years.	300
240	Prabandhakalpavallari. ‡	Telugu.	Published at Narasaraopet, Guntur district; printed at the Vani Press, Bezwada.	Do. ..	G. Gopalakrishnayya, Brahman, 50 years.	150
241	Prabodhini ..	Do.	Prabodhini Press, Duggirala, Guntur district.	Do. ..	V. Niranjana Sastri, Kammala, 40 years.	350
242	Prajanukulan ..	Tamil ..	Published at Srirangam; printed at the Vaijayanti Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	S. G. Ramanujulu Nayudu, Balija, 29 years.	300
243	Prapanja Mitran §	Do. ..	Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswaranpet, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. Shunmuga Mudaliyar, Vellala.	Not known.
244	Prarambha Vidya.	Telugu.	Rama Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Monthly..	E. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 34 years, and V. Sayanna Sastri, M.A., L.T., Brahman, 36 years.	600
245	Prayer Circular ..	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. R. J. Ward, European, 73 years.	1,000
246	Presentation Annual ..	English.	Published at the Presentation Convent, Georgetown; printed at Raithy & Co.'s Liberty Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Annually.	Rev. Mother Berkmans Murphy, European, 38 years.	300
247	Progress	Do.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. C. Clayton, European.	1,000
248	Promptuariam	Latin ..	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Father Ligory, European, 40 years.	1,000
249	Purna Chandrodayam.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	A. Rangaswami Ayyar, Brahman, 48 years.	1,000
250	Qasim-ul-Akhbar ..	Urdu, Tamil and English.	Chamraj Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore	Bi-weekly.	M. Abdul Hameed Sharif Sahib, Muhammadan, 38 years.	757
251	Qaumi Report ..	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Daily ..	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	750
252	Ravi	Telugu.	Anjanaranjani Press, Cocanada.	Weekly ..	Rev. M. E. Smith, European, 43 years.	1,250
253	Rayabhari	Do.	Vadrevupalle, Godavari district; printed at the Braun Industrial Printery, Rajahmundry.	Quarterly.	Rev. E. C. Adams, European, 40 years.	250
254	Roberts' Billiard Notes.	English.	Published by John W. Roberts & Co., 18, Patter's Road, Madras, printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	John W. Roberts, European, 43 years.	1,000

* Printer declared on 15th May 1914.
‡ Not published for the last two years.
† An old paper not previously reported.
§ Started, 23rd June 1914.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
255	Risála-i-Albadí ..	Urdu ..	Published at Daricha Bhowra; printed at Ansaria Press, Kasaratta, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Husain, Muhammadan, 38 years.	500
256	Risála-i-Hifázat-o-Parwarish-i-Janwaran.	Urdu and Mahrati.	Deccan Punch Press, Mahbubpura (Govliguda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	R. Ramachandra Joshi, Brahman, 41 years.	125
257	Risala-i-Ifada	Urdu ..	Akhbar-i-Deccan Press, Mahbubpura (Govliguda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Mirza Nisam Shah Sahib, Muhammadan, 30 years.	500
258	Risala-i-Málgusárí ..	Do. ..	Mahbub-ul-Nasair Press, outside the gate of Dabirpura near Alawa-i-Bibi, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Muhammad Wali-ur-rahman, Muhammadan, 33 years.	1,250
259	Risala-i-Rahbar-i-Musafirain.	Do. ..	Sahifa Press, Gun Foundry, Hyderabad, Deccan.	Do.	John Kenny, European, 54 years.	750
260	Risála-i-Táj	Do. ..	Mufid-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Abdul Wafa Ghulam Muhammad Sahib, Ansarí Wafá, Muhammadan, 23 years.	1,000
261	Risála-i-Tarak-i-Usmania.	Do. ..	Palace of Maharaja Sir Kishen Pershad Bahadur, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Sadiq Husain Sahib, Muhammadan, 54 years.	150
262	Risala-i-Zakhira ..	Do. ..	Mufid-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Nasur-ul-Husain, Muhammadan, 30 years.	500
263	Sadguru	Tamil ..	Published at 87, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the Kalaratnakara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. Somasundaram Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	500
264	Sadhvi	Canarese	Krishnaraja Vani Vilasa Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	1,200
265	Sahaya	Telugu.	Braun Industrial Mission Press, Rajahmundry.	Monthly ..	Patagam Paradesi, Indian Christian, 40 years.	300
266	Sahifa	Urdu ..	Sahifa Press, Sultanpura, Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Muhammad Akbar Ali, Muhammadan, 32 years.	1,500
267	Sahridayá or the Sanskrit Journal.	Sanskrit.	Published at No. 65, Vellala Street, Purasawakam, Madras; printed at Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Monthly ..	R. Krishnama Acharya, M.A., Brahman, 47 years.	500
268	Saiph-ul-Islam ..	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Vellore ..	Weekly ..	S. S. Maulvi Ahmed Saiyid Sahib, Muhammadan, 41 years.	500
269	Saivam	Do. ..	Published at the Chennai Sivanadiar Thirukootam, Georgetown; printed at the Saiva Vidyanupalana Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	I. Adimula Mudaliyar, Vellala, 52 years.	750
270	Sampad Abhyudaya or Wealth of Mysore.	Anglo-Canarese.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Daily ..	M.S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	500
271	Samudaya Deepika ..	Malayalam.	Edward Press, Cannanore ..	Monthly ..	K. Kuttiappa Nambiyar, Nayar, 48 years.	500
272	Samudaya Parihárini.	Do.	The Travancore Printing and Publishing Company, Limited, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	A. P. Nayar, Nayar, 32 years ..	1,000
273	Sanatana Dharmam ..	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do. ..	M. S. Rama Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years	500
274	Sangita Prakasika ..	Tamil and Telugu.	Published at 13, Manikanda Mudali Street, Georgetown; printed at the Chandra Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Audikesavulu Nayudu, Balija, 29 years.	500
275	Sangita Satsampradaya Deepikai.	Do.	Sarathi Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	S. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 39 years.	250
276	Sarva Vyapi ..	Tamil ..	Mission Press, Pondicherry ..	Weekly ..	Catholic priests	450
277	Sasilekha	Telugu.	Sasilekha Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	G. Sesha Acharlu, Brahman, 57 years.	600
278	Satyabadi	Uriya ..	The Adda Press, Berhampur, Ganjam district	Monthly ..	Gopabandu Das, Brahman,	500
279	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Telugu.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. D. Anantam, Indian Christian, 64 years.	4,200
280	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Tamil ..	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. Lazarus, B.A., B.D., Indian Christian, 66 years.	2,300
281	Satyanadam ..	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father P. M. Nilavarath, Indian Christian, 39 years.	1,000
282	Satya Sakshi	Canarese	Published at Biddepura, Chamarajanagar Taluk, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	R. E. Perkins, European ..	600
283	Savinudi	Do.	Sarada Vilasa Press, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	B. Sampangi Ramayya, Brahman, 51 years.	1,000

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
284	School Days and Holidays.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	F. H. Oakley. European, 36 years.	600
285	Scientific Manuring ..	Anglo-Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Published by Parry & Co., printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. Bernard, European, 42 years.	1,000
286	Self-culture	English and Tamil (separate editions).	Excelsior Press, Kizhanattam, Tinnevelly district.	Do. ..	K. T. Ramaswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 33 years.	700
287	Sentamil	Tamil ..	The Tamil Sangam Power Press, Madura.	Do. ..	Tirunarayana Ayyangar, Brahman, 52 years.	400
288	Sentamil Selvi ..	Do. ..	Published and printed at the Scottish Branch Press, Negapatam.	Weekly ..	K. Arunachala Tevan, Agamudaiyan, 46 years.	500
289	Shimoga Vrittanta	Canarese	Shimoga Union Printing Press, Shimoga, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Anantayya, Brahman, 40 years.	700
290	Siddhantam	Tamil ..	M. L. V. Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. P. Kalyanasundara Mudaliyar, Vellala, 61 years.	1,500
291	Sirocha Jungle Pioneer.	English.	A.E.L.M. Press, Guntur ..	Quarterly.	Miss R. E. Tailer, European ..	250
292	Sivayogi Vilasam ..	Malayalam.	Spectator Press, Calicut ..	Monthly ..	Vaghadanandam V. K. Gurukkal, Tiyya, 27 years.	1,000
293	Social Reform Advocate.	English.	Published at 264, Thumbu Chetti Street, Georgetown, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Madras.	Weekly ..	O. Kandaswami Chetti, Chetti, 48 years.	1,000
294	South Indian Mail.	Do.	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	R. Sundaram Ayyar, Brahman, 31 years.	600
295	South Indian Trade Journal.	Do.	Published at the South Indian Chamber of Commerce, Georgetown; printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road.	Monthly ..	P. N. Muthuswami Nayudu, Balija, 50 years.	1,000
296	South of India Observer.	Do.	Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Cranley Chambers, Ootacamund.	Weekly ..	J. A. Davies, European, 42 years.	600
297	Sowrashtrabhivirdhini.*	Tamil ..	Shanmugha Vilasam Press, Salem.	Monthly ..	V. K. Nannayya, Sowrashtra, 35 years.	150
298	S.P.G. College Magazine.	English.	Dodson Press, Trichinopoly.	Quarterly.	T. R. Ekambara Ayyar, Indian Christian, 37 years.	300
299	S.P.G. High School Magazine.	Do.	Published at Trichinopoly, printed by the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do.	S. K. Daivasikamani, Indian Christian, 43 years.	500
300	Sri Krishna †	Canarese	Kaheera Sagara Press, Balepet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	B. C. S. Rajagopala Sarma ..	Not known.
301	Sri Krishna Raja Vijnana Vaibhava.	Canarese and Sanskrit.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Pandit D. Gunda Sastri, Brahman, 47 years.	400
302	Sri Krishna Sookti.	Canarese	Sadananda Press, Udipi, South Canara district.	Do. ..	K. Subba Rao, 52 years, and N. Rajagopala Krishna Rao, 33 years, Brahmans.	1,000
303	Sri Narasimha Prayoga Parijata Praharanam.	Sanskrit.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Venkatesa Joia, 43 years, and Ramakrishna Bhatta, 43 years, Brahmans.	300
304	Sri Sankara Acharya.	Malayalam.	Published at Haripad, printed at the Keralesvara Atmani Press, Mavalikara, Travancore State.	Do. ..	G. Govindan Namburi, Brahman, 27 years.	410
305	Sri Savitri	Telugu.	Savitri Press, Jaganayakpur, Godavari district.	Do. ..	P. Lakshmi Narasamamba, Brahman, 35 years.	500
306	Sri Vani Vilasini.	Tamil ..	Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly dist.	Do. ..	T. K. Balasubrahmanya Ayyar, B.A., Brahman, 42 years.	1,000
307	St. Andrew's Church (The Kirk) Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. N. Meldrum, European, 34 years.	150
308	St. Mary's Magazine ..	Do.	Published at St. Mary's European High School, Georgetown, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Twice a year.	Rev. A. J. Vanderburg, European, 46 years.	300
309	Students' Own Magazine. ‡	Do.	Published at Messrs. T. S. Subrahmanya & Co., Georgetown; printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	P. Seshadri, Brahman, 24 years.	3,000

* Started, 4th May 1916. † Revived, August 1916. ‡ Revived, February 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
310	Subhashini	Anglo-Malayalam.	Srimulam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	P. K. Govinda Pillai, Nayar, 41 years.	1,240
311	Subh-i-Bahar	Urdu ..	Ahamadia Press, Mysore ..	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ali Sahib Azad, Muhammadan, 28 years.	650
312	Sudarsini	Telugu.	Sudarsini Press, Viswasarayapuram, Godavari district	Fortnightly.	Kasturi Sivasankara Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	Not known.
313	Sujanamitram ..	Malayalam.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	K. P. K. Raphael, Indian Christian, 27 years.	800
314	Sukhabi Vridhini.	Tamil ..	Sukhabi Vridhini Press, Pondicherry.	Fortnightly.	Venkatachella Nayakar, Vanniya, 50 years.	100
315	Sukhadara Bodhini	Do. ..	Mualim Abhimani Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	H. B. Muhammad 'Abd-ul-lah, Muhammadan, 60 years.	250
316	Sunday School Lessons.	Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss H[a] McGregor and Mrs. Owen, Europeans.	4,000
317	Supantha	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	A. Mahadeva Sastri, 54 years, and A. Venkatesayya, 49 years, Brahmans.	1,000
318	Suvarnalekha ..	Telugu.	Soudamini Press, Tanuku, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	D. V. Ramana Rao, Brahman, 34 years.	425
319	Svadharmaprakasini.	Do.	Chandrika Press, Guntur ..	Monthly ..	K. Keteswara Sarma, Brahman, 37 years.	500
320	Swadesamittiran ..	Tamil ..	Swadesamittiran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and Triweekly.	T. Visvanatha Ayyar, Brahman, 27 years, and A. Rangaswami Ayyangar, Brahman.	5,600
321	Swadesha Bandhu.	Do. ..	Mathukaravani Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	R. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 43 years.	600
322	Swadeshabhimani.	Canarese	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Weekly ..	V. Shrinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 34 years.	1,600
323	Swadeshi (formerly the Bhagyodayam).	Anglo-Malayalam.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	K. Palpu Pillai, Nayar, 53 years, and A. Padmanabha Ayyar, Brahman, 40 years.	800
324	Tamilian	Tamil ..	Gautama Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	C. I. Pattabhiraman, Buddhist, 31 years.	500
325	Do.	Do. ..	Bhaskara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	S. Muthuswami Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	600
326	Tamil Perumatti * ..	Do. ..	Published at 386, Mint Street, Georgetown, printed at the Sri Subrahmanya Vilasam Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	V. R. Gaekwad alias Vasudeva Rao Gaekwad, Mahratti, 30 years.	Not known.
327	Taylor High School Magazine. †	English.	Published at the Taylor High School, Narsapur, Kistna district, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	A. Jayaram Rao, B.A., L.T., Brahman, 40 years.	Do.
328	Telugu Baptist ..	Telugu.	Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. R. E. Gullison, American, 49 years.	750
329	Telugu Churchman ‡ ..	Do.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Gondi David, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 33 years.	400
330	Telugu Law Journal ..	Do.	Telugu Law Journal Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly ..	T. Purushottam Pantulu, Brahman, 50 years.	300
331	Telugu Officer	Do.	Sri Kanyakaparamesvari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district.	Do. ..	Brigadier Yesudasan, European, 45 years.	150
332	Temperance News. ‖	English.	Published at "Bonaly", Egmore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s, Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. Moffat, M.A., B.Sc., Scotch.	Not known.
333	Ten India Vyavaharachintamani.	Tamil ..	Published in Purasawalkam, printed by the Penrose & Co.'s Nurjahan Press, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 42 years.	500
334	Then and Now	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. E. E. Berry, European ..	250
335	Theological Journal ..	Grantham, Nagari and Tamil.	Kalpadruman Press, Madura ..	Monthly ..	P. J. N. Srinivasa Sarma, Brahman.	900
336	Theory and Practice in Engineering. †	English.	Horsfall & Co.'s Press, Phillips Street, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Padmanabha Mudaliyar, Vellala, 43 years.	1,000
337	Theosophist ..	Do.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	3,500
338	Travancore Abhimani.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	D. C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 30 years.	150
339	Travancore Times.	English.	Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	250
340	Trichinopoly Magazine.	Do.	Southern Star Press, Cantonment, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	The Chaplain of Trichinopoly ..	60

* Publisher declared on 29th May 1916. † Started, April 1916. ‡ Started, October 1916. ‖ Started, September 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
341	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Tamil, and Tamil.	American Mission Lenox Press, Pasumalai, Madura district.	Monthly ..	Rev. J. J. Baninga, American, 38 years.	1,800
342	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Telugu and Telugu.	Published at Pasumalai, Madura district, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. Aaron Arthur, Indian Christian, 36 years.	525
343	United India and Native States.	English.	Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. K. S. Krishnaswami Ayyar Indian Christian, 50 years.	350
344	Utkal Madupa	Uriya.	Sri Gasapati Bhima Deo Press, Digupudi, Ganjam district.	Monthly ..	Neelamoni Bidyaratno, Brahman, 49 years.	1,225
345	Uttara Tharaka.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Basha Bhooshanam Press, Parur, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	C. M. Narayana Panikar, B.A., Nayar, 37 years.	1,200
346	Vaidyakalanidhi.	Tamil ..	Published at 7, Audiappa Mudali Street, Purasawakkam; printed by Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Pandit M. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 32 years.	400
347	Vaidya Sindhu	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at Bangalore City, printed at Caxton Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Do. ..	V. D. Pandit, Brahman, 44 years.	3,000
348	Vaisya Mittiran ..	Tamil ..	Vaisya Mittiran Press, Devakottai, Ramnad district.	Weekly ..	S. T. Ramanatham Chetti, Nattukottai Chetti, 43 years.	450
349	Vannikula Mittiran	Do. ..	Published at Perambur Barracks, (Kosapet); printed at T. A. Krishna & Co.'s Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. Subrahmanya Nayakar, Vannia. 36 years.	1,000
350	Varnasrama Dharmam.	English and Tamil (separate editions.)	Published at the Varnasrama Dharma Rakshini Sabha, The Laz, Teynampet; printed at the Sivarahasyan Press, Park Town, Madras.	Do. ..	Managing Editor:—P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	1,000
351	Vartakamitran or Merchants' Friend.	Tamil ..	Commercial Press, Triplicane Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Natesa Ayyar, Brahman, 28 years.	..
352	Vedanta Dipika ..	Tamil with intermixture of Grantha types.	Kalaratnakaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Diwan Bahadur T. T. Ranga Acharya, Brahman.	600
353	Vedanta Kesari. ..	English.	Published at the Ramakrishna Mission, Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Swami Sarvananda (Bengali), Brahman, 31 years.	1,000
354	Vediar Vilakku or The Tamil Preacher's Magazine.	Anglo-Tamil.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. P. Shrimpton, B.A., European, 40 years.	400
355	Vidya Bhanu ..	Tamil ..	Dhana Vaisiyan Press, Konapet, Pudukkottai State.	Bi-weekly.	S. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 53 years, and A. R. R. M. Subramanian Chettiar, Nattukottai Chetti, 24 years.	700
356	Vidyadayini	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	B. Subba Rao, Brahman, 45 years.	1,781
357	Vidyananda	Sanskrit and Canarese	Caxton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Audinarayana Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	400
358	Vidya Nidhi	Telugu.	Published at N. Venkatarayulu & Sons, 871, Ramaswami Street, and printed at the Kalaratnakaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Appayya, Brahman, 26 years.	500
359	Vignana Chintamani ..	Sanskrit.	Vignana Chintamani Press, Kodaparamba in Perumudiyur amsam, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	P. N. Nilakantha Sarma, Mussad, 58 years.	150
360	Vijaya Vihatan. ..	Tamil ..	Vijaya Vihatan Press, Rayapuram, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	K. S. Kathirvelu Nadar, Nadar, 38 years.	700
361	Vihata Pratapa † ..	Canarese	Kolar Town Press, Kolar, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	B. M. Chakrapanayya, Balija, 36 years.	1,000
362	Vihata Vinodini ..	Do.	S.G.N. Press, Arlepet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	N. Sivarama Sastri, Brahman, 44 years.	900

* Temporarily discontinued, 28th September 1916. † Not published since 30th September 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
363	Vira Kesari ..	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at 2, Banmalayar Street near Elephant Gate Street, Georgetown; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Fortnightly.	G. Thulasi Ram Doss, Brahman, 42 years.	900
364	Visvakarma Kulopakari.	Tamil ..	Visvakulotharana Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Kanniappa Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	400
365	Visvakarman * ..	Do. ..	Published at the Visvakarma Kulotharana Sabha, Mint Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Kalyanasundra Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	600
366	Viveka Bodhini ..	Do. ..	Published at the General Supplies Co., Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	V. Kuppuswami Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	1,500
367	Viveka Chintamani.	Anglo-Tamil.	Published at Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. V. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 50 years.	700
368	Vivekavati	Telugu.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 36 years.	1,250
369	Vivekodayam	Malayalam.	Ananda Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	N. Kumaran Asan, Ezhuvan, 41 years.	600
370	Vokkaligara Patrike.	Canarese	Vokkaligara Sangha Press, Bangalore City.	Weekly ..	S. V. Venkataramayya, Vokkaliga, 37 years.	2,500
371	Vrittantamu or The News. †	Telugu.	Srinivasa Press, 185, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	S. Seshachallam Ayyar, Brahman, 35 years.	200
372	Vrittanta Patrike.	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	7,000
373	Vyasa Nesan	Tamil ..	Published at 34, Thyagaraya Pillai Street, Mint Buildings Post office; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. A Tirugnanam Sambanda Chetti, Vaisya, 30 years.	300
374	Vyavasaya Mitram	Malayalam.	Taliparamba; printed at the Edward Press, Cannanore, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	K. Ryru Nambiar, Nayar, 50 years.	400
375	Water of Life	Tamil ..	Published by the Christian Brotherhood Association, printed by the Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	G. D. Devadasan, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
376	Wealth of India ..	English.	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, Georgetown; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 48 years.	750
377	Wednesday Review.	Do.	Wednesday Review Press, Trichinopoly.	Weekly .	Rao Sahib S. M. Rajaram Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
378	Wesleyan Methodist Church Record.	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. O. Brown, European, 40 years.	350
379	West Coast Bulletin.	Do.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Alexander V. Kakrancheri, Indian Christian, 29 years.	800
380	West Coast Reformer.	Do.	Reformer Press, Calicut ..	Tri-weekly.	P. A. Sankara Sastri, Brahman, 36 years.	1,200
381	West Coast Spectater.	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do.	M. S. Damodaran Nayar, Nayar, 33 years.	800
382	Western Star ..	Do.	Western Star Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do.	C. J. Kurian, Syrian Christian, 55 years.	600
383	Yathartha Vachani	Tamil ..	Published at Kumbakonam; printed at Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore	Weekly ..	T. V. Govindaswami Pillai, Vellala, 42 years.	1,000
384	Yearly Digest of Indian and English cases.	English.	Published at Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, and the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly, Quarterly and Annually.	R. Narayanaswami Ayyar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 33 years.	650
385	Yogakshemam ..	Malayalam.	Kalpadruma Press of the Mangalodayam Company (Limited), Trichur, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Parayil Raman Namburipad, Brahman, 30 years.	1,000
386	Young Men of India.	English.	Published at No. 86, College Street, Calcutta; printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	C. Carter, American	1,700
387	Yuddha Dhvani ..	Telugu.	Sri Kanyakaparameswari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district.	Do. ..	Brigadier Yesudasan, European, 48 years.	600

* Revived, January 1916.

† Temporarily discontinued, July 1916.

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The following appears in New India, of the 7th December:— New India, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

"Shuffling the Cards.

"In our telegraphic columns yesterday will be found a forecast of the probable reconstruction of the Cabinet—Mr. Bonar Law probably going to the Admiralty and Mr. Balfour to the Colonial Office. It does not seem to matter whether the heads of great departments have any knowledge of their work. Provided party rapacities are appeased, nothing else matters. We do not know how the self-governing dominions appreciate the conditions under which they are governed, but we must confess we envy them their part in the shuffling game. If India could have joined in—perhaps there still is hope—who knows whether know-nothing Chamberlain might not have found himself out of the India Office into—anywhere else."

The probable reconstruction of the Cabinet.

2. New India, of the 7th December, states:—"Cabinet changes are of no particular interest to India, since, whatever the Government, India remains the Cinderella of the household. This special change has been worked for for a long time, and its chief interest to us is the proof it gives of the absence of patriotism in the leading men of England. They are full of their petty envies and jealousies while the empire is in danger, and Mr. Lloyd George intrigues against his chief and finally succeeds in pulling him down and taking his place, while everything depends on unity of thought and action among the handful of men in whose hands lie the Imperial destinies. They continue their personal rivalries and antagonistic ambitions, though Belgium is still in the grip of Germany, though Serbia and Montenegro are deserts, though Roumania is likely to share their fate. Mr. Lloyd George has toiled long and at last successfully, and Mr. Asquith follows Lord Haldane. New India, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

The Cabinet crisis.

"We have been told, here in India, that we must not, during the war, 'embarrass the Government,' and here is the Government tearing itself to pieces before our eyes. Why should we be more patriotic for England than are Englishmen for their own country? Nothing could be more embarrassing than to pull the whole Government edifice down about our ears in the midst of the war. Our little political discussions, and our quiet political education for the changes that are to come 'after the war'—what is this as a disturbing element compared with the dragging down of the Premier of England in the middle of a particularly anxious period, when the time wasted on one man up and one man down may mean the strangling of Roumania who trusted her honour and her fate to the Allies?

"The fact is that the bidding India to keep quiet and not embarrass the Government was just as selfish as is the present contest for place and power. India must do nothing to win her own liberty, and one pretext will do as well as another to keep her quiet. But her eyes are opening. She sees that her mentors preach but do not practise. The empire may be risked in order that Tweedledum rather than Tweedledee may come out on top. For us, we care nothing who comes out top. We cannot possibly do worse under Mr. Lloyd George than under Mr. Asquith. He has given us Lord Chelmsford, Lord Willingdon, Lord Ronaldshay, Mr. Austen Chamberlain. In the shuffling of places perhaps Mr. Austen Chamberlain may disappear. The only blessing that will follow him will be for going away."

New India, of the 8th December, writes:—"About the time that Mr. Winston Churchill resigned, a well-informed correspondent in London wrote to us that there was an intrigue against Mr. Asquith going on in the cabinet, led by Mr. Lloyd George. Nothing was to be gained by then stating New India, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

the fact, since nothing that New India could have said on the matter could have made any difference, and it might have done harm by spreading a knowledge of an unworthy and ungenerous attack on a minister who was bearing a terrible burden. Step by step the intriguers won their way; Mr. Lloyd George, a man of large abilities and small scruples, was steadily pushed to the front, and Mr. Asquith has steadily maligned. Finally the plot succeeded by putting Mr. Asquith into a position in which resignation was the only course consistent with honour. The last meanness was the suggestion that Mr. Asquith might accept a subordinate place in the new Ministry.

"India has nothing of late years for which to thank Mr. Asquith. He has made the very worst English appointments that a man could make, and has shown himself utterly indifferent to the needs of India since the Coalition Government was formed. But that does not blind us to the nature of the means used to drive him from office, nor to the type of man who has succeeded him.

"Mr. Lloyd George is the type of Democrat who readily turns tyrant; he showed his nature on the Clyde, when he confiscated a Trade Union journal which ventured to publish a true account of a meeting of which he had published a false one. Of course he did it 'for the sake of the country'. The Labour Party mistrust and dislike him; they are not deceived by his fine phrases, and see the tyrant below the democratic veneer. . . . . England will now enter on a period of unexampled repression and tyranny, and we are not sorry that she should feel that which her agents have long carried out in India without rebuke. Her press is, to a considerable extent, fettered; her sons can, no longer uncompelled, offer themselves to the service of their country; the movements of her children are hampered in every direction, her unexampled efforts to give men, women, treasure, to the war have been rewarded with conscription, with the abolition of Habeas Corpus, with undreamed of restrictions. She is no longer an example to be followed, but an ideal to be remembered. And now she is to bow her proud neck to a Premier created by an intrigue."

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

New India, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

A "Bhadralog" dacoity.

3. New India, of the 7th December, observes:—"It is a common practice with a class of critics in Bengal and their brethren in other parts of India to class every dacoity in that troubled Province among political crimes, and to ascribe it to the machinations of the Bhadralog or middle class Bengalis. Very often such descriptions have proved utterly false, and a dacoity, committed recently in the village of Rouba, throws a flood of lurid light on the mischief such misrepresentations cause. In the dacoity in question, advertised duly as political and due to the Bhadralog's a large amount of money was stolen; the dacoits were dressed in the orthodox style ascribed to anarchists; they had with them fire-arms; and they cried 'Jai Ma Kali', thus leaving no doubt as to their class in the minds of the police. The officers entrusted with the investigation tried to trace the crime for about a month, but to no result.

"Happily, about that time, an accident put them on the right track. A gun was stolen in the house of a Khan Bahadur and his grandson was suspected of the crime. Finally under pressure from the grandfather, the culprit confessed his guilt, which gave the police an opportunity to track the culprits. . . . Thus the pet theory of the police and the Anglo-Indian critics has been once more exposed. What is even more important to note is the mischief done by the Bhadralogphobia. . . . We have no information to affirm that Bhadralog people are not at all to be found among the dacoits; but even where they are connected, we suspect economic causes in most cases. However that may be, the revelations made in the course of the trial referred to here ought to be noted prominently by all who are anxious for the preservation of peace and order in Bengal."

(b) Courts.

The District and Sessions Court, North Arcot.

4. The Indian Patriot, of the 6th December, states:—"It is remarkable that having made a mistake, the Government should persistently stick to it. When the North Arcot district was bifurcated into North Arcot and Chittoor districts, the District and Sessions Court was located at Chittoor. It is an out-of-the-way place. It entails much difficulty and expense to the litigant; in a resolution that Diwan Bahadur Subbarayalu Reddiyar moved in the Legislative Council he pointed out the great disadvantage of having the District Court at Chittoor instead of at Vellore. Vellore is a central place whence communications radiate throughout the district, and must have been the place for a District Court. The Government had no answer to make to Mr. Reddiyar except that the District Court buildings had already been built at Chittoor, that Chittoor was on a high level and, therefore, had a better climate. . . . In the meanwhile, news comes that the files in the Chittoor Court having gone up, a Subordinate Court is to be opened at Chittoor. This, we should insist, comes upon us as a surprise. The District of North Arcot has four musifs' courts and we wonder why the new Subordinate Court should not be located at Vellore. A petition signed by a number of gentlemen has been addressed to the Governor of Madras, pointing out the various disabilities under which the citizens of North Arcot suffer. We sincerely hope that the Government of Madras will not fail to do justice. Having once made a mistake, it is really bad that the same spirit should be maintained. Everyone must admit that it was a mistake to have located the District Judge's Court at Chittoor. Perhaps, it is futile to cry over it. But when the necessity for a new Sub-Court is felt, the wonder is that it also should be located in a place, which is out of the way, and which entails upon the clients and upon the Government extra expense."

Indian Patriot, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

(d) Education.

The Convocation address.

5. The Wednesday Review, for the week ending 29th November, writes:—"The address which Saiyid Hussain Bilgrami, C.S.I., delivered at the Madras University Convocation held last week was befitting his reputation as a scholar and a patriot. His advice to the graduates of the University was opportune just now when conflicting ideals and ideas are assailing the youth of the country and have created an atmosphere which is far from wholesome to those who are on the threshold of their careers. False ideas of patriotism are assiduously circulated by a handful of interested agitators whose one goal in life would seem to be to disturb and destroy all that make for the peaceful progress of a people. It will not matter at all if the agitators addressed themselves to mature minds and the elders of the community. But their quarry is the youth of India and they carry on their destructive work with a freedom which must be impossible anywhere else. . . . . We welcome Mr. Bilgrami's address as affording the young graduates advice of a helpful kind and as showing them the futility of aspiring for goals which may not be within their reach for centuries to come. . . . . Such cant phrases as 'ask, and it shall be given' and 'make up your mind to have the thing, and you have it' may be handy for platform orations, but they serve no purpose in practical politics where we have to do more with stern realities and hard facts than high sounding phrases and soaring ambitions. . . . It will be more helpful to the country if our so-called public workers who do nothing more useful than talk would direct their energy to the less fascinating task of removing the patent obstacles which bar our path to progress. But the task has to be done in silence and in determination, which for that reason does not appeal to those who hunt after personal notoriety in the guise of patriotism. The work, however, is none the less urgent and the reminders of it from men like Mr. Bilgrami are welcome and needed."

Wednesday Review, Trichinopoly, Nov. 29th, 1916.

New India, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

Poisoning the young mind.

6. In a leader under this heading, New India, of the 2nd December, remarks:—"Messrs. Arnold & Sons, of Leeds, Educational Publishers, issue reading books for small English boys, and one of these is entitled Our Island Cousins. In dealing with Ceylon, it says:

> Are there any English people living on this island (Ceylon)? You ask. Yes, a great many, in towns which they have built for themselves; but there are still many more of the natives than there are of white men—though how long this may be so who can say?

"The children who read this will naturally imagine that there are only savages in Ceylon, whose numbers are being diminished so rapidly that the white men may outnumber them, and that these savages have built no towns. Cannot Messrs. Arnold find some one to write who knows his subject, and who will not make himself ridiculous by comparing the trumpery towns built by the colourless with the splendid cities built by the coloured, the ruins of which still attract the reverence and admiration of every cultured man. . . . . Why did not the writer on Ceylon remark, in the words of Reginald Farrer: 'Colombo is a modern ugly mushroom, a convenience, an invention of modern ugly races that were ravening in blue woad, when Ashoka ruled the East, that were jabbering inarticulate jargon when the Most Perfect one was incarnate for the last time on earth.' And then he might have explained to the boyish readers that the savages 'ravening in blue woad' are his ancestors, and the mighty builders of the great cities and temples are 'natives'. And he might further tell him that the coming of his people has destroyed the ancient and beautiful civilisation, and that the colourless planters and merchants have vulgarised Ceylon, and sell 'half a million rubbishes'.

"People are ever talking of railways, posts and telegraphs as though these were the proof of civilisation, and they boast that they have brought these things to India and that India should be grateful therefor. But the proofs of civilisation are art, and beauty, and culture, refinement of thought, grace of manners and courtliness, fine literature of philosophy, poetry, drama, and widespread content and comfort among the masses. All these we had before our brimming wealth brought over here the vulgar cheating merchants of the East India Company. They may have made an Empire, but they destroyed a civilisation, too ignorant to realise its priceless value to the world.

"And now their ignorant writers turn history topsy-turvy, to poison the minds of English boys, and increase their natural arrogance."

New India, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1916.

The Patna University.

7. New India, of the 4th December, observes:—"Bihar is up in arms against the reactionary Bill for the University of Patna, that Sir Harcourt Butler so unscrupulously fathered on Sir Sankaran Nayar. . . . . How deep is the feeling is shown by the extraordinary meeting of the Provincial Conference and the bold speech of Rai Bahadur Purnendu Narayan Sinha. The title of Rai Bahadur was given to him for his admirable work in reviving agriculture in Bihar. He has built and supports a large and successful high school in Bankipur, he is the leading theosophist in Bihar, a deep Sanskrit scholar, and a lawyer in large practice—a leading citizen, in fact. He was an ideal man to preside over such a conference. The Biharis will do much better for themselves if they refuse this University and remain in touch with Calcutta, and they will be doing thereby a great service to other provinces, threatened with similar Government machines."

New India, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

Youthful offences.

8. In commenting on the report of the Chief Inspector of Reformatories (in England?), New India, of the 6th December, says:—"Unfortunately, Educational and other authorities in India take the most stringent view of any youthful ebullition, and do not hesitate to visit it with the direst penalties. If bad housing be responsible for much of the juvenile crime abroad, here at home the Indian youth suffers from the chilling disapproval of any tendency to patriotic enthusiasm. Even Mrs. Besant's photograph in a student's room is often enough to arouse the ire of the bureaucrats, with the results that in the heart of the youth is sown the seed of discontent and hatred. In India, patriotism is 'dangerous,' and it is well known that a large number of 'crimes' committed by Indian youths have been but the result of patriotism, misguided because ill-directed by teachers unfit for their calling. How long shall we have to wait for that sympathy and understanding in education which the present system so deplorably lacks?"

9. New India, of the 6th December, writes:—"We know that the Government and missionary forms of education have sterilised the hitherto healthy soil of eastern hearts, so far as our men are concerned. Over against this, Government education, until lately, sowed in the boys' hearts the seeds of the love of liberty, and though the literature now given is a lower type than was enjoyed by our boys' fathers and grandfathers, yet the work done in the nineteenth century can never be destroyed.

New India, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

The education of Indian girls.

But the culture of a nation depends more on its women than on its men, for culture is very largely a question of atmosphere. Some of us think that Hindu culture is a priceless world-possession, a thing unique and precious, which humanity cannot afford to let die. It combines the loftiest philosophy with the gentlest human intimacies, the highest courage with the sweetest tenderness. It has training for every human being, high and low, rich and poor. The women of the family have done much to keep this culture vital and potent, penetrated as they are with Hindu literature. The little girls imbibe it from their elders, and pass it on to the next generation. If these children go to Government and missionary schools, they will share the fate of their brothers; the sweet Tamil, Telugu, Marathi, Hindi songs will be unlearned or forgotten, and the pure and lovely atmosphere of the home will disappear. . . . . The education of Indian girls must be in the hands of Indians, not of foreigners. Indians alone can so plan out the education of their daughters, that while they revive Gargi, they shall not slay Savitri. . . . . Let Indian men and women educate Indian girls, and not allow the touch of the foreigner to touch the sanctities of the Indian home."

10. The following appears in New India, of the 7th December:—"Vice-Principal Seshadri is not a success at the Central Hindu College. The idea of putting a man known for his free thought at the head of a profoundly religious institution jarred all who loved the Central Hindu College. Now he comes out in a new light. Some boys went to him to ask permission to celebrate the birthday of George S. Arundale, whose memory is very dear in the Central Hindu College. He said he could not consent, as Dr. Sunderlal had told him that both Mr. Arundale and Mrs. Besant had ceased to be worthy of respect since they had entered political life. It is, we think, more than doubtful whether Dr. Sunderlal said anything so silly, being a diplomatic gentleman, and having so many friends who are hot politicians. If he did, he certainly did not intend that it should be repeated."

New India, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

The Principal of the Central Hindu College.

11. New India, of the 7th December, has the following:—

New India, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

Free and compulsory elementary education.

"Lord Willingdon progresses.

"Lord Willingdon has made an astounding discovery. 'The Educational department being an Imperial department, it was constitutionally improper to oppose any particular decision or policy laid down by them'. . . . . This is 'unconstitutional' because the Supreme Council vetoed Mr. Gokhale's Education Bill. This is extending official power with a vengeance. The permanent majority in the Supreme Council is official, and according to my Lord Willingdon, any reactionary measure passed by them ties the hands of the Provincial Council. The Supreme Council vetoed raising the age of consent of little girls. No Provincial Council must raise it in deference to public decency and the protection of children from profligates!"

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

In a leader on this subject, the Hindu, of the 7th December, observes:—"The debate which took place yesterday in the Bombay Legislative Council on the resolution recommending the introduction of the system of free and compulsory elementary education in municipal areas, has raised a few important constitutional issues which deserve some attention. . . . The Hon'ble Mr. Chaubal, in opposing the resolution, made a fighting speech and by way of justifying it, he quoted the late Mr. Gokhale as saying that he deprecated official sympathy with motions which they were going to oppose. That observation was made not to make official opposition more unyielding and obstinate than it was, as Mr. Chaubal would make out, but to point to the desirability of officials looking at resolutions from the non-official point of view and not to kill them with mere sympathy. Mr. Chaubal almost regretted that the resolution was allowed to appear on the agenda paper on the ground that it should be moved in the Imperial Council and in view of the Government of India's declared opinion on the subject, and explained that the President allowed it in order that the matter may be thoroughly discussed. His Excellency the President, at the conclusion of the debate, expressed his regret at allowing the resolution, pointed to the undesirability of adopting it in view of the constitutional impropriety involved in permitting discussion on a matter on which the Government of India had pronounced their opinion and appealed to the mover to withdraw the resolution. . . . If the President had committed a blunder in allowing the resolution—we think that he did not—he did not improve matters by exhibiting such anxiety not to divide the Council on the question. In the second place, Lord Willingdon's Government should have certainly been aware of the fact that a resolution similar in terms was discussed in the Madras Legislative Council in November 1915. It was debated on at great length and was eventually lost, without any official apologist rising up to express his disagreement with the President at his having committed the unpardonable blunder of allowing Non-official Members to poach on the preserves of the Imperial Government. It is altogether a wrong view that Lord Willingdon has taken of the subject, without paying due attention to the constitutional effect of resolutions adopted by in Council. If this view were to prevail, the already restricted privileges of non-official members would become more attenuated and their influence, such as it is, reduced to a vanishing point."

New India, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

An educational inquisition.

12. New India, of the 8th December, writes:—"A correspondent in Tuesday evening's issue of the Madras Mail desires that the Government 'should appoint a committee consisting of teachers and parents to consider and formulate a scheme of punishment for school boys'. He supports this suggestion on the ground that many of the present generation of students have a most impertinent contempt for authority, and are continually rebelling against their parents and their teachers. We are told that students have become an 'intolerable nuisance at public meetings,' that they adopt an 'attitude of impertinence and disobedience to teachers, parents, and elders,' instead of treating their parents and their teachers, as they are enjoined to do by Hindu scriptures, as 'divinities'. The plain fact of the matter is that, if the student population is at all out of hand, it is because the teachers, the parents, and the elders are, for the most part, out of touch with the spirit of young India. If parents and teachers are not treated as divinities, it is simply because the present generation of parents and teachers is entirely unworthy of such an honour. As for the parents, the majority have been educated in a system under which submission and subservience have been deliberately fostered at the expense of self-respect. . . . As for the teacher, he is practically a tool, and knows full well that his future depends, to a large extent, on the remarks of his educational superiors. And since the latter have been mostly trained in the old system of subservience, they expect from their subordinates a similar characteristic. . . . The correspondent of the Madras Mail is simply inviting the authorities to cane out of Young India all impatience with the criminal negligence of their elders. . . .

There is no remedy for the present situation until India gets Home Rule, for only with Home Rule will the teacher be free from the fear of displeasing his superiors if he openly shares the national aspirations of his pupils. It is because the teacher remains afraid to share them while the student is ever-growing more fearless in their support, that the younger generation is being forced to turn elsewhere for the inspiration he finds his teacher either unwilling or unable to give."

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

13. The Non-Brahmin, for the week ending 3rd December, writes:— "We ask the Government if a graduate Tahsildar or a Revenue Inspector is of a superior order. We ask Government whether the time has not come to develop the superior features of our community—independence, dignity, willingness to starve than beg, and hatred of corruption. We want our place in the public service. We cannot tolerate any nonsense about merit and efficiency of the service suffering. What is the academical qualification of the Assistant Superintendents of Police? They have none. What are the educational qualifications of the Deputy Commissioners of Salt and Abkāri? None. If they can be appointed to high posts, we ask why not our own people? Give them facilities for training and let them rise in service. A blind belief in the capacity of B.A.'s has undermined the efficiency of public service. The sooner we get our place the better. We must have the majority of appointments, for we are the majority of the population. And if there are more graduates in some community who cannot find employment, let them go to Mesopotomia to start schools. Notify once for all that recruitment to public service is not by the standard of educational qualifications but by sheer character and capacity to do work. . . . . We must look for the day when the non-Brahmins are as numerous as the Brahmins. That day can be to-morrow, if the Government would measure education by the Molony standard and not by the University standard."

Tahsildars and revenue inspectors.

Non-Brahmin, Madras, Dec. 3rd, 1916.

(i) Public works.

14. In a leader on this subject, the Hindu, of the 5th December, observes:— "It is rather unfortunate that the Government of India should have appointed a committee to consider the organisation, methods and procedure of the Buildings and Roads Branch of the Public Works Department just at this time. We are by no means opposed to the inquiry, which is long overdue, but we must object to the starting of the investigations while yet the report of the Public Services Commission has not yet been published. . . . . Our readers are aware that Mr. F. G. Sly, C.S.I., I.C.S., Commissioner, Central Division, Nagpur, was a Member of the Public Services Commission, and the same official has been appointed as President of the Public Works Department Committee. We do not know anything about the performances of Mr. Sly in the Public Servicess Commission, except what may be gathered by his cross-examination of witnesses, and this did not certainly show him to be a person who troubled himself very much about Indian ideals and aspirations. How far he has carried the prejudice of his class in his work as Member of the Public Services Commission is yet to be seen, and we should consider it quite unsatisfactory that the Government of India should have pitchforked him as President of the Public Works Department Committee before his part in the other Commission has been made public. . . . The department, a most expensive one and which spends a good portion of the revenues of the country, has established for itself a notoriety for wasteful expenditure, for unconscionable delay in the execution of works entrusted to it and for the incomparable inaccuracy of its estimates which are revised by itself many times even before execution is begun, resulting in the works costing much more, sometimes twice and thrice, than what may have been deemed sufficient in the first instance. The department has got a habit of rushing expenditure in March, in order to spend the grants, that leads to waste, inefficiency and corruption. . . . . Again, the senseless and clumsy procedure followed in the country in regard to the execution of works belonging to local bodies and Government cannot be tolerated in any country in the world. The multiplicity of authorities responsible for execution and supervision of works leads not only to delay, but to wasteful expenditure of public money."

The Public Works Department Committee.

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1916.

(j) Salt and Abkāri.

HINDU, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

The drink revenue.

15. The Hindu, of the 2nd December, writes:—"Great attention is naturally paid to the problems of the 'drink evil' especially after the outbreak of the war and very drastic steps have been taken to check the evil in Russia and France and to some extent in England as well. Looking over the latest Administration report of the Madras Abkāri Department, we have to search in vain for any effective measures which the Government have so far undertaken to diminish intemperance, although they seem to be more or less alive to the seriousness of the problem. The Government are no doubt trying to aid temperance by various ways; but our complaint is that unless they make use of non-official public opinion more freely, much success cannot be expected."

INDIAN PATRIOT, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the Indian Patriot, of the 2nd December, says:—"The report on the administration of the Abkāri revenue in the Madras Presidency must rouse the enthusiasm of the temperance reformers throughout India. Very genuine efforts were taken to reduce drink and statistics are quoted to prove that there was less drinking last year than the years before. Of course, we do not desire to remind the official of his argument that an increase of drink meant increase of prosperity; neither would we taunt him with the confession he now makes that there were many superfluous shops, and that it was found possible to close them without any inconvenience to those who drink, and without the least damage to one of the greatest responsibilities of British rule in India, of which we have often been told, namely, to provide drink to one who wants it. . . . . We are particularly gratified to find that the reduction in consumption and the revenue have been, on the whole, most cheerfully met. The cry of illicit distillation has not been raised. No extraordinary explanation is called for and none is given. If the consumption of liquor is found to have fallen, it is as much to the credit of the Government that have taken steps to reduce consumption. . . . . Undoubtedly, the most encouraging feature in the report is, as we have said, the very earnest steps taken by the Government to further the cause of temperance. The efforts made in Russia and in France to combat drink have, evidently, not been lost on our officers. The Excise Advisory committees and the Abkāri, Police and Revenue officers in the other rural areas were always consulted whenever a new shop was opened or a change was contemplated in the site of an existing shop. . . . . We heartily congratulate the Government on this decided turn to encourage temperance, by the reduction of shops and by the offer of outside attractions, instead of throwing up their hands and saying: We have increased duty, and still the consumption increases, because of the prosperity of the people."

(k) General.

WEDNESDAY REVIEW, Trichinopoly, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Madras Legislative Council.

16. The Wednesday Review, for the week ending 29th November, observes:—We have not the space to refer at any length to the proceedings of the last session of the Madras Legislative Council. They cover, as usual, a large number of questions and answers, a score of resolutions or so, and the inevitable speeches. We have to repeat our complaint that the privilege of interpellation is exercised by the Honourable Members in a haphazard fashion and questions which the Honourable Members might have answered themselves by a reference to the Quarterly Civil List or to the files of the Fort St. George Gazette are allowed to crowd the agenda, and we have to say the same of some of the resolutions also."

The West Coast Spectator, of the 5th December, writes:—"The recent 'Rama Ayyangar incident' in the Madras Legislative Council has attracted widespread attention in the Indian press. 'If non-official members are sought to be humiliated and brow-beaten', in this fashion, says the Amrita Bazaar Patrika, 'the Legislative Council will not certainly attract the best of our people'. A certain type of official would like, we suppose, to see the best of our people out of the Councils, for, then they can have their way. The Madras Government, says our contemporary, has evidently become very sensitive—it has got not only Mrs. Besant into its head, but also the men of light and leading among the Madrasees. Comment is needless." WEST COAST SPECTATOR, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1916.

17. The Wednesday Review, for the week ending 29th November, remarks:—"We are glad to welcome back Sir Krishna Gupta who returns to India after many years of official and unofficial work in England, both as a member of the India Council and as a trusted spokesman of a large section of his countrymen. He comes here, we are told, as a representative of the British Congress Committee to attend the next session of the Congress at Lucknow. His presence at Lucknow, we may easily predict, will be fruitful of results and it is particularly opportune at the present time when through the whispering galleries of the neo-political circle the rumour is sent round, with what foundation we cannot know, that they are going to play Surat over again. We give the information for what it is worth that attempts to establish Home Rule will be made by storming the congress—which is easier to do—and that gains strength from the frantic efforts that are being made to send as many irresponsible Home Rulers as possible, by means, we believe, of public subscriptions. It was the same thing as was done before Surat and the Home-ruler is only playing a compliment to Mr. Tilak, if he thinks that by sheer display of numerical strength he can capture the Congress. We can easily believe that at least now Mrs. Besant does not want to break up the Congress by force or show of force, but the less educated countrymen of ours who have elected to follow her as their political leader cannot be blamed if they believe that the whip that is being sent to them to muster strong at Lucknow is mistaken into a conditional inducement to capture the Congress." WEDNESDAY REVIEW, Trichinopoly, Nov. 29th, 1916.

Sir Krishna Gupta.

The following appears in New India, of the 4th December:— NEW INDIA, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1916.

"Learn Self-Defence.

"So says Sir Krishna Gupta. The Home Rule movement is, he thinks, somewhat premature, because 'India should first learn to defend herself'. Quite so, but may we humbly ask how India is to learn to defend herself, with an Arms Act and with her sons shut out from all military training in the commissioned ranks? Until she has Home Rule she cannot learn to defend herself. So we have the pleasing circle:

"No Home Rule if you can't defend yourself.
"No Self-Defence till you have Home Rule.

Da Capo."

18. The West Coast Spectator, of the 30th November, writes:—"We do not know whether we are to congratulate Bengal or to condole in with her on the appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as her Governor. The noble Lord who was a member of the House of Commons used to be regarded, of course, by his friends, as an authority on India and used to intervene in the annual budget debates with his views on India, evidently drawn from Wimbledon. He is a typical hidebound Tory who regards the educated classes of India as a nuisance, and during the days of the unrest he was one of those who advocated along with the Times the application of the theory of martial-law and no d—d nonsense. WEST COAST SPECTATOR, Calicut, Nov. 30th, 1916.

The Governor-designate of Bengal.

"He was an Aid-de-Camp to Lord Curzon, and must necessarily have imbibed that prancing pro-consul's notions of imperialism (tinsel) in its application to Indian problems. We are pretty well acquainted with the noble Earl's notions of India, and that is why we are in a fix. His past history, thereof, makes us anxious. It is the cool head, the statesman's mind and far-seeing eyes that are required to deal with Bengal with her many problems. especially those relating to anarchy and unrest, and we are afraid that Lord Ronaldshay does not possess any of these attributes. The Liberal party is not barren of statesmen of the type, and the Premier has not selected one from his own party it is because as we said the other day his Cabinet is dominated by the 'Tories.'"

United India and Native States, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, United India and Native States, for the week ending 7th December, says:—"Lord Carmichael's successor in the Bengal satrapy has been announced and the choice of the Cabinet has fallen on Lord Ronaldshay We do not know what special qualifications are possessed by the Governor-Designate for this post of exceptional responsibility, and it looks as though the appointment is about as cynical and as unjustifiable as the rumoured appointment of Sir Robert Chalmers. The new Governor of Bengal is not unknown in the country. having been an Aid-de-Camp to Lord Curzon in 1900 and subsequently a member of the Islington Commission, but we must confess that the selection of Lord Ronaldshay, an embodiment of reactionary Tory statesmanship in its most intensified form, for the administration of one of the foremost provinces of India during the ensuing five years, does not inspire us with confidence."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Nov. 30th 1916.

19. The following appears in the West Coast Spectator of the 30th November:—"The Amrita Bazaar Patrika gives the interesting information that Sir Sankaran Nayar is the most hated man in Simla going by the name of 'kala counsili'—black councillor—and that he is not pulling on very well with his colleagues on the Council. Those who know Sir Sankaran's independence and moral courage, will not be surprised at the information. Sir Ali Imam, we have his own evidence, did at times find himself in awkward positions, and it is no wonder that the present Indian Member of Council, who is probably regarded as an interloper by, what Capital would call, the 'Simla gang,' should find himself in 'Queer Street.'

Sir Sankaran Nayar.

"We have always held that a single Indian Member, unless he is of the weak-kneed variety. cannot make any headway in the citadel of bureaucracy, if he does not possess the active support of the Viceroy. His position must be far from anxious having to get blows from both sides. If he opposes his colleagues he is disliked, and his countrymen fall foul of him for each and every mistake the Government might commit like the passing of the Defence Act. The Indian Member, if he is to exercise any salutary influence, must have a few more Indian colleagues and that is why we demand that half the number of seats in the Council should be reserved for Indians."

New India, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

20. New India, of the 2nd December, observes:—"We congratulate the Hon'ble Mr. K. R. V. Krishna Rao on the nature of his presidential address at the Kurnool District Conference. It is specially welcome by reason of his being the unanimously elected representative of the northern Zamindars in the local Legislative Council. Mr. Krishna Rao has spoken frankly and fearlessly throughout his speech, and his remarks on the topic of the hour, the Home Rule movement, are most noteworthy. . . . . No less frank and suggestive he was on what may be called the comparative minor topic. For instance, speaking on the Press and Defence of India Acts, he pointed out how they are used for purposes not intended by the legislators. To make matters worse, the Act is silent towards Anglo-Indian papers, however much they 'may publish articles and contributions calculated to excite racial animosity and prejudice;' and he warned the Government that these factors, taken in all, 'have caused a great deal of heart-burning even to the most loyal Indians'."

The Kurnool District Conference.

New India, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

21. New India, of the 2nd December, states:—"It is extraordinary how Home Rule is now taken everywhere for granted, and the only distinction is between 'Moderate Home Rulers' and 'Extreme Home Rulers'. . . . . Another matter that the Local and Supreme Governments would do well to recognise is that the more they persecute anyone, the more popular does that person become in the heart of the people, the only permanent judgment known to history. Mr. Tilak's quiet journeys became triumphal tours; Mrs. Annie Besant, though a foreigner, is enshrined in the Indian heart as a daughter of the motherland. The more they are struck at, the more powerful will they become, and were it not that both are sincerely desirous of a peaceful evolution to liberty, they might well wish that the various Governments would continue their harshly repressive measures."

Home Rule.

Dr. T. M. Nayar and British Rule.

22. The Cochin Argus, for the week ending 2nd December, writes:— "We commend to the thoughtful and earnest attention of all those who really care for the true moral and political welfare of this country the outspoken and sensible speech which Dr. T. M. Nayar delivered a few days ago at a large gathering of members, friends and sympathisers of the Dravidian Association. The gathering itself was unique and strikingly symbolical of the genuine benefits of British Rule, of a Rule which a certain class of political visionaries have suddenly discovered to be unsuitable, unsympathetic and subversive of the progress of India. It was a gathering composed of educated non-Brahmans of various classes and sects, and such a gathering would have been impossible under pre-British conditions, which exclusively kept all power and privilege and, above all, the precious boon of education among the Brahman class and reserved only menial occupations for the Sudras, although then, as now, these latter represented the vast majority of the population. . . . . We are glad to find that, besides advising his audience regarding the value of combination and co-operation, Dr. Nayar took the opportunity of expressing himself plainly and strongly against the unfortunately growing tendency of a class of politicians and demogogues to embitter the relations between the Rulers and the ruled. . . Advice of this sort is imperatively necessary at the present moment, when we have so many shortsighted politicians in all parts of the country, animated apparently by the belief that political concessions, even to the extent of absolute Home Rule, can be forced from the Government by threats and by a free use of violent language. We could understand a large measure of political freedom being demanded on the ground, actual or fanciful, that the people have advanced sufficiently to be entrusted with larger political rights and privileges. Unhappily the new class of extremists are not disposed to take their stand upon this ground alone, but are clearly disposed to demand Home Rule on the baseless ground that British rule is deliberately blind to the real wants, requirements and aspirations of the subject population. It is forgotten that but for British Rule, the political class who are today shouting so loudly and frantically, would not have had a square inch of standing ground in this country. It is forgotten that, under no previous system of rule, did the people of India, as a people, enjoy the freedom and liberty which the British Flag has made for them an every day and living reality. Cheap arguments in favour of absolute Home Rule are drawn from the circumstance that, even countries like China and Afghanistan, are getting along progressively under indigenous rule, but the stubborn fact is coolly ignored that, in all such self-governed countries, the State would make quick work of all professional politicians, who indulged in threats against constituted authority or who shook their fists, as it were in the face of the Government by way of coercing the latter into granting popular demands on any pretexts whatever. . . . . We trust, however, that the great Dravidian communities whom Dr. Nayar addressed will take to heart his valuable and candid advice and courageously and sensibly abstain from taking any part in a political agitation, which has already produced the most harmful result of making wider than ever the racial gulf between Ruler and ruled. . . . . The leaders and inspirers of this party, and one of them in particular, either cannot or will not see the grave injury they are doing to India, but of course, when the consequences of their folly show themselves, they will be the first to shout against what they would miscall repression, but what would merely be wholesome action necessitated in the absolute interests of the Government and the general community."

Cochin Argus, British Cochin, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

Non-Brahmin, Madras, Dec. 3rd, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the Non-Brahmin, for the week ending 3rd December, says:—"In these days, when public work has a charm and does attract our young men, the question is whether we should mistake the Besant-Aurndale combination as the source of public life, or should devote ourselves to more substantial objects. We commend to the attention of every one of our young men the admirable address of Dr. T. M. Nayar at an influential non-Brahmin meeting, noted for the influential gathering that heard him. Dr. Nayar condemned Home Rule in an explicit manner, and above all, warned the youths against immoderate and intemperate language. He appealed our youths to place themselves under natural leaders, the landed aristocrats, and not adventurers who, no doubt in sincere enthusiasm for us, are ready to spoil our cause. What is advertisement to them is death to us. . . . . We cannot afford to sing Bande Mataram and trudge behind Lieutenant-Colonel Arundale. . . . . Politics? Our politics shall not be the politics of Mrs. Besant and Mr. C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar. Who is our leader or leaders? Not the Arundales and Karandikhars. Our leaders are Mr. Tyagaraja Chettiyar, Mr. Karunakara Menon, Mr. Subbarayalu Reddiyar, Dr. Nayar, and such dignified personages, who while on the political arena do oppose the Government and are also friends of Government. . . . . Let us remember that loyalty does not mean a proclamation of 'for God, Crown and Country' and abuse, with ferocity of madness and despair, everything that Government does and at every time!. . . . . We want that there shall be no colour prejudice for we acknowledge the superiority of a European, not because he is a European, but because he is better educated. We do not want competitive examinations for higher service, for it is a special invention to keep us back. We do not want Home Rule, for it will bring about the condition of ancient India, when the Sudra was kept suppressed. . . . . Our goal is the goal of self-government, but we want to be led there by the British. They raised us from below. They have surely shown that they are marching to the goal. We know too well the selfishness, the narrowness, that are in those who lead us. Another stage must be reached in our progress. When we are patriotic where we are now find selfish and narrow we shall know to keep reliance as those who now lead us".

New India, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

23. New India, of the 2nd December, has the following:—"Is it better to be interned or to be sent to gaol? In the first you can walk farther, but may go hungry. In the second, you are most closely confined, but are given food enough. We have just received a letter from an interned person, who has served a sentence of seven years for sedition. Whether he deserved it or not we do not know, but in any case, the poor man has purged his offence. He was released in 1914, and has been earning his living honestly since. He was working as an agent for Rhodes Directory, was arrested, and kept in gaol for a month. Then he was sent to the Punjab and there interned. He can earn nothing; he has written several times to the Punjab Government, asking for an allowance as they have deprived him of his livelihood. He receives no answer. The District officer is equally deaf. He is approaching starvation. Is this slow torture legal? The Governor of Bengal proclaimed that he gave proper allowances. Is the Punjab Government under a different rule? The man has been given no charge, asked for no explanation. On the whole we think that gaol is safer than internment. In gaol after trial and sentence, one is, to a limited extent, under the protection of the law and one would have food; but who protects the hapless suspect, and who will know if he dies of starvation?"

The working of the Defence of India Act.

24. New India, of the 4th December, remarks:— New India, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1916.

Misuse of the Defence Act.

* * * *

"Both these gentlemen (i.e., Lord Willingdon and Sir Benjamin Robertson) have used the Defence Act for the most improper purpose of stopping political agitation, and while they have inflicted a gross wrong on an individual, Parliament should concern itself with the distortion of a power entrusted to them to injure an individual who cannot, by any casuistry, be brought within the clauses of the Act. Sir Benjamin has rashly confessed his motive, the fear of a section of the Political Conference that Mrs. Besant's presence would injure the Conference. The 'section' cannot be discovered, but some think that it consists of Mr. Mudholkar. Be that as it may, Sir Benjamin Robertson uses the despotic power given into his hands to defend his Sovereign in order to please 'a section' of a Conference, and interferes with the liberty of a subject of the Crown to please—some one or more persons. This is his own reason. Moreover he dislikes 'political agitation.' For a man who dislikes it, he has been marvellously successful in evoking it. Lord Willingdon is shrewder. Having no legitimate reason, he refuses to give any, and so avoids the hole into which his imitator has fallen. He tries to be tyrannical, but in Mr. Tilak's case the High Court has torn his bonds into pieces, and we hope that the High Court may release Mrs. Annie Besant from his grip."

25. New India, of the 4th December, states:—"A very remarkable leaderette occurs in the Sunday Pictorial, a London paper, under the above heading. England and Germany are both straining every nerve to find men, and England, that has the greatest reserve forces in the world, is so obstinate that neither for her own sake, nor for the sake of her Allies, will she call on India in the only way which will make those reserve forces effective . . . . There are many reasons why the Indian complement of men is not increased; one of them is that her offers, made eagerly at first by her educated classes, were refused, and her enthusiasm has thus been chilled. Another reason is that her men are prevented (socially not legally) from volunteering, and are not allowed to carry arms. Martial 'spirit' is a little damped when you are punishable if you have a revolver. What is the use of asking why India does not give more men, when her rulers hold her back? . . . . England must not ignore India when the reconstruction of the empire is concerned, as her ministers have ignored her, and imagine that India does not mark the omission. Newspapers and cables, however, carefully doctored, let some truths through. And England has given to India Lord Willingdon, Lord Chelmsford, Lord Ronaldshay, and has rejected her prayers to be left Lord Hardinge and Lord Carmichael. Moreover England has given India Mr. Austen Chamberlain and Lord Islington. She has done the things she ought not to have done, and has left undone the things she ought to have done. She is ruling India through her new men as India has not been ruled since Lord Curzon's evil days, and Mr. Gokhale said that for their like they had to go back to the time of Aurangzeb. Let England change her policy, and her way will be clear." New India, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1916.

India's great man-power.

26. In commenting on the remarks of the Lord Mayor of London at a conference regarding the formation of a cadet movement, New India, of the 4th December, says:—"If our rulers were a little more earnest in their gratitude to India for all she has done in the service of the Empire during the present conflict, and if they trusted this country in proportion to the loyalty she has shown, they would lose no time in inaugurating a sweeping policy of reform, which would send hundreds of thousands of Indians to rally round the Imperial standard. Were India to be told that if she would voluntarily offer her manhood at the crisis of the struggle, her warriors would return to an India free and autonomous, we venture to predict that not only would recruits pour into the recruiting offices, but their enthusiasm would make them fit for service in an inconceivably short time. New India, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1916.

Military training.

"Already there are signs that a few far-sighted people in England are awakening to the possibilities of the situation, for at a meeting of members of Parliament, last month, the following resolution was adopted:

That this meeting of Members of Parliament in view of the urged demands for men in the Army, calls upon the Government to take immediate steps to recruit for the Army the coloured subjects of His Majesty throughout the Empire, and more especially in Africa.

"During the course of the discussion, Sir Albert Spicer said he supported the resolution 'on the ground that the enlistment would raise the status of the black races, since we should treat them as on our own level'. This may be the reason why the Bureaucracy is presumably setting its face against the opening of voluntary recruitment to the coloured. Be this as it may, we are much inclined to the belief that until every part of our Empire is given its own Freedom, the War for Freedom will not be won.

"It is difficult to see, however, why the Africans, belonging to so very primitive a cultural stage, should be 'especially' wanted, while the Indians are left among 'the coloured subjects' in general, despite the fact that they occupy so high a cultural stage that only artificial badges of inferiority can keep them out of their rightful place. Sir Albert Spicer well knows that the black races of Africa are so racially inferior to the colourless people, that no challenge need be feared."

Indian Patriot, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1916.

The beggar nuisance.

27. The Indian Patriot, of the 4th December, writes:—"The beggar nuisance is a disgrace to the Madras city. Wherever people congregate, the dirty and the deformed go to parade their dirt and deformity. The Police, we suppose, have no power; the Municipality has not cared to interfere, and the passer-by has learnt to tolerate it. Things have been going on merrily all this while. It is a disgrace to civilisation that we should keep our beggars among us. The able-bodied among them must be forced to work. Those who are really unable to work, must be provided with work-houses. This is real social reform, and we are sorry to see that in our Social Reform Conferences, we do not find any reference to this beggar problem. It is easy to make speeches on widow remarriage, on post puberty marriage and foreign travel. We have only to speak; no action need be shown. But, where are our leaders, who will organize work-houses, who will appeal to the Police and to the Municipality to make beggary a crime, who will call the deformed beggar and tell him: 'Come here; work here; earn your wages; and keep your family alive.' . . . The Government has not tried this. Perhaps it will not try for many years to come. The people are not moving either. They are prepared to tolerate the existing conditions. We are callous to the sights by the tramcars or the crowded places. We hear the cries and if we have pies we throw them or we pass them and forget. We sincerely hope that the Magistrate who can fine the beggar could also send the poor boy to the Reformatory or the older man to the work-house."

New India, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1916.

Lajpat Rai's book Young India.

28. Referring to the comments of the New Statesman in reviewing Lajpat Rai's book Young India, New India, of the 5th December, says:—"As we all know, the Government of India does not allow the book to enter India, and it is, therefore, impossible to study its contents. When the authorities proscribe a newspaper, or books or pamphlets, there can only be one of two reasons. Either the proscribed literature makes statements inconvenient, if not impossible, to refute; or it deliberately misleads the public with untruths. From our knowledge both of Lajpat Rai and of Indian Youth, we suspect the proscription of Young India to be within the former category. We are glad it is not proscribed in England, where it is most wanted."

New India, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1916.

The recent disasters.

29. New India, of the 5th December, remarks:—"The strong protest which the members of the local Legislative Council made at the last meeting against the attitude of the Government towards the distress caused, by the floods does not seem to have had any appreciable effect on the latter. We had one other disaster since then—the devastation caused by the cyclone—and the public are yet awaiting an official statement on the havoc caused and the action Government have taken or propose to take for relieving those in distress. From the report of the Collector of South Arcot, it is clear that the cyclone was of a very destructive type; and we shall, in all probability, have further evidence of its severity as further official information is published. When that is going to be, we are not, however, in a position to say. It is more than a week since the cyclone passed over the Province; and we still seem to be far distant from having a full statement of the injury caused.

"Nor have we had a full report of the two railway calamities. In the natural course of events, the Railway Board will no doubt have an enquiry; but will it satisfy the public in the present instance? A good deal of mystery is still hanging about the two accidents; and it is necessary to remove it. . . . In this connection we wish to draw the attention of the powers that be to what the French Government did on the morrow of the disaster in its territories. We do not contend that our Government is quite indifferent. Certainly not; but even the most devout official apologist must admit that the public are being kept wholly ignorant of what has happened or is happening. And is not the secrecy wholly misplaced? We see no justification at all for it."

The following appears in the Hindu of the 6th December:—"An esteemed correspondent writes:—

Home,
Madras,
Dec. 6th, 1916.

The extent of injury and damage done by the recent cyclone in the South Arcot district seems to have far exceeded our anticipations. Official figures estimate nearly a thousand deaths and we may be sure further enquiries would reveal a greater loss of life: This is one of the heaviest tolls paid in human lives during recent years for a cyclone In these circumstances one would have expected His Excellency the Governor to visit the district and to convey to the stricken families his sympathy: What pains me more is the attitude of the Indian Member and other Members of the Executive Council. It is not a question of portfolios. Do they not realize that one thousand people have died, that many thousands have been rendered homeless and that incalculable damage has been done to property? One of the Members ought to have camped in the district for weeks and should have endeavoured to bring relief and consolation to the relatives of the deceased. I hope it is not too late to do this.

I am told that the Collector does not want relief measures to be undertaken by the Government. He has set an example by his promptitude and diligence to the Collectors from whom reports were not avilable for weeks under similar circumstances. But an Indian Collector is always unwilling to ask the Government to spend money. He thinks that the Government would not welcome any requisitions in this behalf. I hope that the Government will pay no heed to the report in this aspect of the question and start relief measures at once: The situation is very grave and no responsibility should be refused for dealing adequately with it.

"We commend the above for the consideration of the Government and the public. It is true that the Hon'ble Mr. Buckley, Member of the Board of Revenue, has been deputed to visit the distressed area and to take the necessary measures of relief. There is, however, a general feeling of disappointment that the Government has not done all that could and should be done in the case of such a grave disaster affecting the poorest classes of the people. We understand that some of the officials on the spot do not attach importance to the number of persons killed on the ground that the lives lost cannot be restored by any amount of human exertion. It is also a well-known fact that subordinate officials often mistake the attitude of the Government into thinking that the less they indent upon the Government for funds for relief, and the more they minimise the sufferings of the poor, their own position in the estimation of the Government will be the greater. The presence on the spot and the sympathy of the highest officers of the Government are, therefore, of great value in helping to realise the nature and extent of the relief required. We do not also hear reports of any organised measures of relief by non-official agencies either by themselves or in combination with official effort, as were effected recently in the districts of Salem, Kurnool, Guntūr and other places in the Northern districts. There is, we should think, good scope for useful work in this matter for some of the members of the Servants of India Society."

New India, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

30. New India, of the 5th December, has the following :—

"A Good Yarn."

The Government of Bombay and Mr. Tilak.

"The Bombay Government was asked to justify the strange and insulting 'Order' of the District Magistrate of Dharwar to Mr. Tilak not 'to make a public harangue in the streets'. Now the answer is that it was done to prevent obstruction in public thoroughfares! We hope responsible people in Gadag will come forward and show the hollowness of this answer. We cannot imagine Gadag citizens arranging a public reception of Mr. Tilak by thousands of his countrymen in a public street, much less expecting him to lecture there. Further, what about "other places open to public view' referred to in the Order? People of Gadag should take up this question. No, it would have been far better for Lord Willingdon's Government to have adopted the same answer to which we refer in the above paragraph (i e., Mrs. Besant and the Bombay Order), and say that in the interests of public safety further discussion was unwise."

New India, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

31. New India, of the 5th December, states :—"The Hon'ble Mr. Kamath has done a service to the Indian public by asking the Bombay Government to throw some light on their mysterious Order of 29th June prohibiting Mrs. Besant entering Bombay. The Bombay Government, cleverer than the Central Province one, refused to give any explanation. The reason, of course, is very simple. There is no light to be thrown, nor any explanation to offer. Mrs. Besant openly asked for the mysterious reasons which the Bombay Government refused to give, thereby saving themselves the awkwardness of facing a ludicrous situation . . . By this vagueness Lord Willingdon's Government may be endeavouring to create an impression as to the existence of some sinister happenings, some mysterious plots in which Mrs. Besant is supposed to be engaged, but no sane man can swallow that. Mrs. Besant challenges the Bombay Government to expose her sins fully to the Indian public and in the absence of this the charge levelled against Lord Willingdon stands unrefuted that he has used a war measure to put down constitutional, honest and law-abiding political work. His Government may evade a confession in the Legislative Council, will they be able to do so in the High Court of Bombay? The thing that really pains one is that a man, who would normally be an honest English gentleman, behaves in this ungentlemanly way. It may be that these questions do not promote the interests of Lord Willingdon, but we are grateful to those who speak out so boldly in the interests of a foreigner, injured by deadly secret accusations, which Lord Willingdon has not the courage to make openly, like the 'gentleman' he should be. Until he remedies the wrong he has done, his conscience will give him no peace."

Mrs. Besant and Bombay Order.

New India, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

The following appears in New India of the 6th December :—

"Such a hurry.

"Lord Willingdon considered that unless he could shut Mrs. Besant out of Bombay hot foot, some tremendous catastrophe would burst upon him. There was no time 'to ask for an explanation,' even by telegraph. It is really difficult to respect these gentlemen, overwhelmed by panic and rushing into foolish actions and becoming more bemired as they grasp feebly at weapons of defence."

New India, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

In an article under the heading "The New Statecraft" in New India of the 8th December, Mrs. Annie Besant says:—"I regret to see that the Government of Bombay stoops to falsehood in order to cover its misuse of the Defence of India Act. It has dealt with 44 persons, and they were 'freely permitted to submit any representations which they might desire after the action was taken, and all such representations received careful consideration of the Government". I cannot answer for the 43, but for the 44th I can say that this statement is false. . . . I hope to force the truth from Lord Willingdon. The real reason for his action has come to my knowledge, and I understand why he is 'unable to enter into a discussion'. None the less he may be forced to do so, and that which would have generous, uncompelled, may bear another aspect when compelled. He is threatening others with the use of his unbridled powers, holding the rod in one hand and sugar-plums in the other."

32. The following appears in New India of the 5th December :— New India, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

"Government help Sir V. Chirol.

The Government of Bombay and Sir Valentine Chirol.

"Still another question in the Bombay Legislative Council elicited the answer that in the matter of the Tilak-Chirol case coming before a London Court the Government gave leave without pay to two of their clerks belonging to the Oriental Translator's office who were employed by Sir Valentine. The Indian public might well ask: How is the Government interested in this private suit between a man against whom a serious charge of defamation is brought by an Indian subject of the Government, who moreover, happens to be one of the most trusted, beloved and honoured of leaders"

Writing on this subject, the Hindu, of the 5th December, says:—"The replies to the interpellations in the Bombay Legislative Council on matters relating to the civil suit, in England, by Mr. Tilak against Sir Valentine Chirol, and on the cases of the application of the Defence of India Act, one of which is that of Mrs. Besant, are not pleasant reading. . . . The reason for this unheard-of procedure and obliging accommodation on the part of the Government in favour of a private individual in the person of Sir Valentine Chirol, is stated to be as follows, viz., 'in order to facilitate translation of documents needed in the suit and so as to expedite the hearing of the suit.' How the Government was interested at all in the matter, is not stated. It is a purely private litigation in which neither the Government nor the public are interested. It must be remembered that the other party to the suit, Mr. Tilak, was at first refused a passport to go to England which he intended to do for the purpose of conducting his suit. It was only after public agitation in respect of its injustice, that the refusal was cancelled. We are bound to say that there is a general belief in Indian circles that Sir Valentine Chirol's articles on 'Indian Unrest' had been written under inspiration from some official quarters, and that the latter are interested in seeing that Sir Valentine comes out of the present litigation unscathed. . . . It cannot be denied that the prestige of the Government is best maintained by its agents acting in such a manner as to afford no ground for misconstruction in the popular mind. There is nothing in the reply of the Government to indicate which is much to be regretted, that the action which they took and the facilities they gave to Sir Valentine Chirol are other than normal official acts." Hindu, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

33. The West Coast Spectator, of the 5th December, has the following :— West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1916.

The Indian Viceroyalty and Provincial Governorships.

"Time was when the Indian Viceroyalty and the provincial governorships were reserved for the best men, and the Ministry were anxious to send only the best available men to India. Times have changed, and party politics and obligations now dominate these appointments. Spent up forces, politicians who have been failures and henchmen are shot on to India; they come, play into the hands of the permanent officials, bungle and muddle through imbibe bureaucratic tendencies, return home, pass off as authorities and try to clog the wheels of progress in India. . . . Any country gentleman or noble lord with vast acres, is good enough for the colonies provided he is affable and his wife is a 'brilliant hostess'—to quote a society term. The Colonies are self-governing and they want only an ornamental figure head at the top of the administration. The case is different in India, where we want real statesmen, with open minds, to sweep away with iron hands the proclivities of bastard imperialism that dominate the bureaucrat. A mere figurehead Viceroy or Governor is a positive danger, so also the weak-kneed, or the spineless; or the Tory who thinks that a subject nation having no politics should be content with what is thrown to it."

New India, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

34. Referring to the enquiries made by the Revenue authorities regarding the publications sold by the Theosophical Publishing House and branches of the Theosophical Society, for the purposes of income-tax, New India, of the 6th December, says:—"On page 3 of our today's issue will be found an interesting correspondence, which is one more indication of the policy of unnecessary harassment of theosophists adopted by the authorities. . . . . On what basis and for what purpose the branches of the Theosophical Society are harassed we do not understand, save for causing petty annoyance to peaceful and law-abiding citizens, because their spiritual leader happens to be Mrs. Besant. We hear several other branches have been bothered thus. A cursory study of the list shows how very ignorant and foolish the officials have been. . . . . Let us put aside sham and talk openly; it is perhaps with the object of finding out to what extent districts take in the literature that this enquiry is instituted; but the method adopted once again shows how very inefficient are the civilians in grasping simple business things. . . . . Meanwhile, the stupid and highly ridiculous procedure adopted is exposed, and our readers must draw their own inference. It is harassing to theosophists who are thus unnecessarily disturbed without any rhyme or reason If a certain amount of political literature is sold by them it is no crime, and these branches, like the Adyar office, are proud of their noble work in educating the Indian public in the matter of their rights and privileges. . . . . We cannot help laughing at the childishness of Government servants, who, because they cannot find anything against Mrs. Besant, adopt either petty ways to annoy, or use war measures and repressive executive action to 'break' her."

Harassing the theosophists.

Indian Patriot, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

35. In a leader under the heading "A Question of Etiquette" the Indian Patriot, of the 6th December, remarks:—"In the Bombay Legislative Council, Lord Willingdon expressed the view, in reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Patel, that His Excellency regarded the publication by a member of the Legislative Council of any question or resolution not admitted by him as a breach of etiquette. The question has been raised before, and the leaning of the President, so far as we know, has been against the freedom of honourable members, to appeal to the public from the decision of the President of the Council rejecting a question or resolution submitted to the Council. Still an opinion of this kind has not been publicly formulated except in the Punjab, where the Lieutenant-Governor is the President of the Council. In Madras rejected interpellations and resolutions have been very often published and criticised; but so far no question has been raised as to the propriety of publication. . . . . By silent acceptance of the decision of the President of the Council a member denies himself the right of appeal. The appeal in this case is to the public. The President of the Council does not regard himself as infallible, nor do we see any objection to the publication unless he is doubtful of the correctness of his decision. . . . . If a President decides to reject questions and resolutions arbitrarily, what remedy have Honourable Members, if they are dissatisfied with the decision? They have no means of protesting against it except by an appeal to the public, and an appeal to the public Lord Willingdon considers to be against etiquette. . . . . A deference to His Excellency's wishes may prevail with Honourable Members of the Bombay Council, but such deference may not invariably be possible. Since the Government have the discretion of dealing with a question or resolution as they think fit, there should, in our opinion, be no occasion ordinarily to reject it. The power vested in the President is intended to be exercised rarely, and when it is so exercised, it is not likely that the necessity will arise for general complaint."

The Bombay Legislative Council.

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the Hindu, of the 7th December, says:—"The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel put a question at the meeting of the Bombay Legislative Council held on Monday last on disallowed questions and resolutions, to which the Government returned a curious answer. . . . . We cannot sympathise with the attitude of mind of the Honourable Member which prompted him to ask such a question. If it indicates that he is inclined to respect the opinion of His Excellency the President on a matter which affects public interests prejudicially, we must protest against such a tendency. The reply of the Government is extraordinary. We fail to see how the publication of disallowed questions and resolutions is breach of etiquette. There is certainly no legal obligation on the part of Non-official Members to keep such matters secret, and the reply of the Government proceeds from a fundamental misconception of the relations between the Members and the President of the Council. . . . . Already, the President is allowed to wield enormous power in the matter of disallowing qustions and resolutions, and suppression of the kind suggested will only tend to let off objectionable decisions of the President without that necessary corrective which public discussion affords. It is difficult to see where the breach of etiquette comes. Disallowed questions and resolutions do not belong to the category of confidential information in possession of Government, and it is attempting to overawe Non-official Members into meek submission to tell them that they are guilty of breach of etiquette in publishing such matters. The public cannot afford to lose the right to criticise the President's rulings, and we hope that representatives of the people will realise their duty to their constituents before they allow themselves to be threatened in this manner."

India's part in the war.

36. In commenting on an address given by His Excellency Lord Willingdon, whom it terms as "unfortunate Bombay's Governor", on India's contribution towards the war, New India, of the 7th December, says:—"What really amuses us in Lord Willingdon's calm statement that he can speak for the Bombay Presidency. Is an individual, who temporarily resides in this country for a few years and never gets nearer the people of the country than a distant view of them, to declare that he can speak for them? If so, poor Keir Hardie, though his stay was much shorter, was not so presumptuous after all in writing a book on India, for at least while he was here he lived among the people, and, above all, sympathised with them."

New India, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

The Tinctorial Expert.

37. The Hindu, of the 8th December, observes:—"There is not much that is noteworthy in the latest quarterly report of Dr. F. Marsden, Dyeing Expert to the Government of Madras; suffice it to say that the British Dyes, Limited, on which we built up great hopes, are not going to help us in any way. Nor is this our only disappointment; for, we note that, owing to some causes, the restrictions on the export of dyes from Britain being the most notable among them, our struggling dyers are to be almost totally deprived of their work by the import into India of foreign dyed yarns instead of dyes. . . . . As regards Dr. Marsden's other spheres of activities, the report is commendably brief. In connection with the Punalur paper mills, he had no option left but to withdraw from it owing to the damaged condition of the boiler there; and when Mr. Tressler went on military duty, the Special officer in the Department of Industries directed him to control the pencil factory. These duties in addition to the assistance he rendered in the general work of the department seem to have kept him fully engaged as 'Dyeing' Expert to Government. This record of varied services—Dr. Marsden was successively engaged in endeavouring to develop first the dye industry, next the leather, then the paper and later on the pencil industry—that the Dyeing Expert was called upon to render has not, we think, been surpassed by any other officer under Government, here or elsewhere, excluding, of course, those coming under the category of the Indian Civil Servant."

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Writing of this subject, the Indian Patriot, of the 8th December, says:—"The dyeing expert has published what is called his report for the quarter ending September 1916. 'I have the honour,' he begins, 'to submit my report for the quarter ending September 1916,' and one of the striking features of the report is that Dr. Marsden is at present the pencil expert. From being a dyeing expert he went over as a leather expert. We afterwards caught a glimpse of the man at the Punalur Paper Mills as a paper expert. His latest avatar, as he himself is good enough to inform us is as a pencil expert. . . . But still the dyeing expert has to keep on writing his quarterly reports, in answer to the dreaded call of red tape. He has ceased to be a dyeing expert, and has had at least half a dozen transmigrations. But 'as dyeing expert.' he has to keep it up, and we congratulate Dr. Marsden on his successful report of over one thousand five hundred words. . . . In the name of 'the report of the dyeing expert,' such valuable documents are issued from the Government Press, and perhaps, are intended to demonstrate the interest which the Government take in industry. We surely cannot congratulate the Madras Government on the work of its dyeing expert; it is too costly to pay a man all along for the mere purpose that the public may enjoy a laughter every time he publishes his report, and appears in different colours."

Indian Patriot, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

New India, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

38. The following appears in New India of the 8th December :—

"Impartiality.

The British Government and Mrs. Besant's book India: A Nation.

"The attitude of the British Government towards Indian aspirations may be judged by the fact that it allows Messrs. Nelson to publish, in 'Nelson's Shilling Library,' G. W. Steevens' abominable book entitled In India, and exercises some mysterious 'pressure' which compels Messrs. Jack to withdraw from 'Jack's Pupil's Books' Mrs. Annie Besant's India—A Nation. No objection is raised to the world-wide circulation of an atrocious libel, while a book on behalf of India is suppressed."

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

Condition of the Indian coolies in Ceylon.

39. In continuation of its comments of the 27th November 1916, on this subject, the Swadesamitran, of the 30th November, says:—It is surprising that, instead of attempting a thorough reform of the system which subject these coolies to unlimited trouble, our Government should think of adopting it in other countries also with slight changes. From what the Ceylon Times writes, the real condition of the coolies and the hidden meaning of the demand of the planters for legislation come to light. Whether the planters demand it or not, the Ceylon Government is certain to legislate on this subject. If it should do so at its own instance, the law will be very hard. If, on the contrary, legislation is undertaken at the instance of the planters, it will be merely to remove the more serious defects. It appears that if legislation sought to remove all the disabilities of the coolies, the work of plantation would become impossible. It is but a vain idea to think of adopting this Ceylon system in other countries, in seeking to remove a well known evil. Is it necessary for the Indians to subject themselves to other disabilities also for the convenience of the colonies? Is it not the duty of the colonies from considerations of humanity, and of the Government of India by virtue of its responsibility, to remove all disabilities and provide for these coolies living in Ceylon in the same way as they do in India? Except that they get more wages by going to foreign countries, there should be no defect or trouble in their condition. But it appears from a case which came up in the Kandy District Court that they are bought and sold there like articles. As it is only the British that abolished the slave trade, is it not necessary that they should prevent its existence under another name in their own territory? Though Mr. Marjoribanks and the Hon'ble Mr. Marakkayar have not been deputed to Ceylon for the purpose of removing the disabilities of the coolies, we trust that they will boldly expose the real difficulties so that there may be no need for another commission to be appointed. May our Government come forward to remove the defect now found in this system in these places before they bring it into force in other countries.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

The war.

40. In its leader on the present state of the war, the Andhrapatrika, of the 6th December, says:—Although people set about doing things after careful consideration of all the circumstances, the expected results do not always follow. All the Powers engaged in the war have had an experience of this. The Germans have worked for the last thirty years with a view to become a world power. The English believed that they could easily gain the victory by a naval blockade. The Italians hoped that they could take possession of Trieste without difficulty. The Russians thought that it was an easy matter for them to occupy East Prussia. The Austrians tried to crush Servia with one blow, and the Rumanians expected to enter Transylvania unopposed. All have failed to achieve their objects. Military experts are of opinion that it was unwise on the part of Rumania to invade Transylvania without providing for the defence of Dobrudja and the Carpathian positions. The German experts consider the victory gained by Mackensen useless unless the Rumanian army is destroyed. It is announced that the Rumanian army is retiring with their big guns from Craiova and Oreova. The guns that destroyed the forts of Antwerp can also destroy the forts of Bukharest. The Rumanians say that the Russians are doing their utmost to assist them. Although the enemy has now certain advantages over the Allies, yet there is no reason at all for any anxiety, for the Allies are now acting on a careful consideration of the whole situation.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1916.

41. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 25th November, referring to the sinking of the great Hospital ship Britannic, says that it is owing to the great naval power of Britain that notwithstanding the enormous size of the vessel and the large number of people on board no serious loss was caused. The success that attended to the efforts at rescue after the ill-fated ship sank must be attributed to Britain's naval supremacy.

The sinking of the Hospital ship Britannic.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

42. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 27th November, in contrasting the resources of Great Britain with those of British Germany says:—It is well known to the world that Britain is so vast a kingdom that her flag waves over every corner of the universe and that the present war has turned out to be favourable to her. Germany is being reduced and Austria is in a critical condition, but Great Britain and her Allies will assume an entirely different aspect after the war. We cannot say that peace and tranquility will prevail throughout the world immediately the war ends, but this is certain: many obstacles will be put in the way of a recurrence of such wants. War and bloodshed will be almost impossible. Perhaps, nay, probably Germany and Austria will not be left free and independent. The Allied Kingdoms, on the other hand, will endeavour to secure good administration, progress and permanent peace. Great Britain will surpass all the others in strength, power and civilization and she will be regarded as the first empire. Just as the British supremacy was established in India after the dreadful events of the Great Mutiny, the power of Britain will exceed that of all others after the termination of the most dreadful, terrible and shocking events of this war; and such measures will be adopted by her as will tend towards the progress of the world which will, in consequence, be grateful and thankful to her. When this happy day comes for Britain, our Indian soil, which forms a part of the British Empire, will, according to the saying,

"Even the companion of the perfumer is fragrant", share the good things and its sleepy fortune will be aroused for; such royal and princely favours will be shown us that our desires will be realised all at once. Then no more will the cry be heard either for Home Rule, or self-government and people of all nationalities will be more contented under our benign Government than they could otherwise be.

"Satisfactory results of the European war."

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1916.

43. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 4th December, referring to the statement of Lord Montague in the House of Commons regarding the war expenditure observes that his Lordship stated that the people should help the Government by giving up half their income to it. As a matter of fact it is our duty at the present moment to render pecuniary aid to Government in every possible way and to support the gallant and devoted men who are laying down their lives for King and country.

"The burden of the war expenditure."

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

44. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th November, says:—From the way in which two persons were brought under the surveillance of the Police recently in Bengal, it can be easily understood whether this was done after full inquiry. Though about the end of last month, the Government of Bengal subjected to this surveillance Mr. Prémánanda Doss who commands a high reputation for his learning, from the very fact of his being let off now, does it not appear that full inquiry was not made before he was kept under surveillance. When a Bengali named Suchéndra Lal Mitra, who had been sentenced to transportation for seven years for having been implicated in a case of conspiracy, returned home recently, after his release, the Police arrested him for being kept under surveillance. About this Bengali writes:—Have any charges been framed against him? What are the new grounds on which he was kept under surveillance? There is none whatever, so far as we know. Though one might have committed an offence seven years ago, is one's personal liberty such an insignificant thing that it should be curtailed even after he had been awarded an adequate punishment for it? Should he not be left to himself for the future at least, so that he might lead a blameless life?" If we consider these two facts, it is necessary to repeat here the remarks that before one is kept under surveillance, full enquiry should be made and that the Defence Act should be enforced here also in the same manner as in England."

Two persons subjected to police surveillance in Bengal.

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

A boy beaten by a Superintendent of Police.

45. The Prapanchamitran, of the 1st December, reports the case of a boy of seven years having been beaten by the Superintendent of Police, Tanjore, and observes:—When the father of the boy took up the case before the District Magistrate, the Superintendent also admitted having beaten the boy. But the Magistrate dismissed the case on the ground that the offence was trivial. What can we do? The police who have all powers can do anything they please.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

Why should the Government interfere with the discretion of the magistrates?

46. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd December, says:—In addition to the fact that the law has prescribed the minimum and the maximum punishments to be awarded for each offence, the presiding Magistrates are permitted to exercise their discretion in the matter. We have heard frequent complaints that sometimes the Government and often the District Magistrates issue circulars forbidding the award of lenient punishments and thus interfere with the independence of the Magistrates.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

The Fort Station affray.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st December, criticises the judgment of the Magistrate of the Georgetown Court, as follows:—The judgment delivered yesterday in this case which was heard for several days does not seem to be satisfactory. It is surprising that the Magistrate has observed that the publication of a pamphlet regarding the reservation of a separate compartment for the Anglo-Indians in the South Indian Railway was the cause of the affray. In the judgment delivered by the High Court lately, in the New India security case, it was stated that there was nothing wrong in inducing the people to see whether the Railway authorities had the right to do so, by bringing up a test case in Court and by other peaceful measures. The Magistrate has said that the Indians who gave evidence in the case were mostly students, and that as they were largely influenced by racial differences, their evidence could not be relied upon. As Mr. Richards, the Railway Traffic Inspector, who is the first accused, has been found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine, we trust that the higher authorities of the Railway will take proper measures to prevent a recurrence of such misconduct on the part of responsible Railway officers. Though it has been held by the Magistrate that Mr. Chanters, the Traffic Superintendent, was not involved in the case, it has been found that he made no attempt to put down the affray. It is necessary that the higher authorities should take note of this also.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

The Fort Station affray.

In commenting on the sentences passed in the fort station affray case, the Andhrapatrika, of the 1st December, says:—When the official position, the age, and the malicious intent of the Travelling Inspector are taken into consideration, the punishment awarded to him is quite inadequate. It is unfair on the part of the Magistrate to award the Anglo-Indians who evidently came with the object of beating the Indians and the Indians who retreated on being beaten, almost equal punishment under one and the same section. It is also unjust that Mr. Chanters, who failed to take steps to ward off the scuffle, was let off unpunished.

(d) Education.

DESAMATA, Rajahmundry, Nov. 29th, 1916.

Secondary education.

48. The Desamata, of the 29th November, refers to the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao recommending the appointment of a Committee of officials and non-officials to report on the sufficiency of accommodation in Secondary Schools, and to the opposition offered to it by the Government, and asks what objection the Government could have to appoint a Committee of the kind indicated to consider the means whereby the defects in the present system of secondary education may be remedied. It says that a similar committee is holding its sittings in the United Provinces and it is not proper on the part of the Government to say that the appointment of such a committee is unnecessary.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Convocation address.

49. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th November, points out that as an advice-giving speech Mr. Bilgrami's Convocation address has failed to serve its purpose, and that several people will disagree with the views expressed therein.

KERALODAYAM, Trichur, Dec. 5th, 1916.

The last Senate meeting.

50. The Keralodayam, of the 5th December, expresses satisfaction at the decision of the Senate to introduce the compartmental system, in the case of the Intermediate examination also, and to hold the Honours B.A. examination in centres other than Madras, and observes that the attitude of certain well-known members of the syndicate towards resolutions, relating to the appointment of a Board of Accounts, and of the University Examiners, shows that they care more for their own interests than for the welfare of the University. The paper thinks that it is not proper that those, who are to appoint examiners, should themselves be such, and that the various complaints against the examinations as well as the monetary transactions of the University, are entirely due to the members of the syndicate being examiners.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Nov. 22nd, 1916.

A proposed Muslim College.

51. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 22nd November, referring to the establishment of a Muslim College at Vāniyambādi and also to the grant made by His Highness the Nizam of the Dakhan, says:—We have already said that a Muhammadan College is absolutely necessary in Madras and some special arrangements for Muhammadan education should be made in the Presidency town. There cannot be a more suitable place than the Madrasa-i-Azam, for it is the last relic of local Islamic rule and of its greatness. Muhammadans hope that our benign Government will not ignore this fact and very soon raise it to the grade of a college. We believe that the Government of Madras will not be indifferent to the proposals for establishing national colleges. Such proposals will continue to be made until the community feels its responsibility.

No doubt colleges will be established, but our education cannot wait till then, hence it is necessary that the Government should render assistance immediately and discharge its responsibility. We hope that the Director of Public Instruction, Madras, will regard this question as a very important one and render every possible assistance to ensure its success.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

An able address by Imad-ul-Mulk Bahadur.

52. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 29th November, writes:—The Convocation of the Madras Univerity was held on Thursday last, Lord Pentland, in his capacity of Chancellor, presiding.

Of the one thousand, three hundred and fifty-five graduates, twenty-seven were absent.

Nawab Imad-ul-Mulk Maulavi Saiyid Husain Sahib Bilgrami, B.A., C.S.I., who has held several high offices in Hyderabad is well known in the literary world. His ability as an English writer is acknowledged even in Europe. On behalf of the Venerable Nawab, Mr. W. J. Prendergast, M.A., Professor of the Nizam College, Hyderabad, read the address most excellently and with great clearness of enunciation.

It has often been complained that Convocation Addresses are not read in a manner audible to those who occupy the gallery, but such were Professor Prendergast's clear enunciation, forceful expression and correct emphasis that in no part of the hall was there any cause whatever for any such complaint.

The general opinion was that Mr. Prendergast spoke the words with such expression that he correctly interpreted the sentiments of the author.

It is evident that Maulana Bilgrami takes special interest in the educational affairs of the country. His connexion with the Madras University dates from the time when he was Director of Public Instruction in the Hyderabad State.

His address is the first of its kind in the annals of the University. His experience and foresight appear to have prompted him to place a special model before the students, and he succeeded in his endeavour. The address, both as regards its significance and style of expression, was charming.

With reference to the internal affairs of India the Nawab said —

"We cannot help being filled with wonder that these institutions should have been imported into our country by an alien race who had little to gain by their liberality."

These are absolutely original views but they are correct and could not have been expressed in a better way. The loyalty of India is based on loyalty to the crown and love. Further on he said "A scholarly familiarity with their classics, be it Sanskrit or Arabic, gives all youths a perfect mastery over their vernaculars." This valuable reflection was based on foresight. Afterwards he threw light on the problem of the new Universities and finely and feelingly remarked, "We all hope and trust that the Hindu University will be a signal success and remedy some of the defects of the older Universities founded by Government."

The concluding portion of the Nawab Sahib's address was very appropriate and helpful. He gave valuable advice to the young graduates and endeavoured to disillusion them.

The editor in applauding the address says "clamour for self-government or Home Rule at present amounts to nothing more than waste of time. In the warning he gave to graduates of impending danger the Nawab proved himself to be a true patriot. Our students cannot confer any benefit on the country until they reinforce their moral and mental powers. We hope the students will lay to heart the valuable, sincere and unselfish advice given by the veteran Maulana Bilgrami.

His powerful address will be a memorable one in the realm of learning. God grant that the spirit which he has infused may live and do its work.

(h) Railways.

53. In a note under this head the Swadesamitran, of the 30th November, writes:—On the representation by the merchants of Salem of certain grievances they had in connection with the railway traffic, this subject was published in the New India some weeks ago. On this it appears that the District Traffic Superintendent met the prominent merchants of Salem at Podanur and talked over the matter with them. If the authorities meet the people and consult them soon after coming to know of their grievances, need we say what amount of good it would do to both the parties.

Railways and the people's grievances.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

(i) Salt and Abkāri.

54. In commenting upon the report on the working of the Abkāri department for the year 1915-1916, the Manorama, of the 5th December, points out that, though the Revenue Board have made some efforts to check the growth of drinking, it cannot agree with the Government in thinking that they deserve to be congratulated on it, as the decrease in the number of arrack shops and in the sale of liquors, is to be attributed more to the effect of the war than to anything else.

The Abkāri administration.

MANORAMA, Cochin, Dec. 5th, 1916.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

The appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as Governor of Bengal.

55. With reference to this appointment, the Swadesamitran, of the 30th November, publishes the following opinion of the Chronicle:—Lord Ronaldshay is a prominent member of the bureaucracy. As he belongs to a class of men like Lord Curzon, he is not one who would show sympathy for the aims and aspirations of the educated section of the Indians. He is one who has a tendency to have recourse to retrograde measures in matters relating to India. His appointment cannot be appreciated so much as the danger to Bengal attending upon it. This is an appointment made in accordance with the views of the officers in Delhi and Calcutta.

HINDU NESAN, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

On the same subject, the Hindu Nesan, of the 30th November, writes as follows:—We have to say a few words here about the views of the higher authorities being opposed to those of the public. It does not appear to us that the citizens of that province will hail with delight the news received from Delhi regarding the appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as the successor of Lord Carmichael. Whatever it may be, we cannot infer that he well be highly sympathetic towards the Indians, because, from our knowledge of him as a Member of Parliament, we cannot say that he will be very much interested in the welfare of the Indians. He cannot have the sympathy shown by Lord Carmichael for the Indians. However, as we believe that sympathy might have been invoked in him for the aims and aspirations of the Indians as a result of his having heard the evidence given by eminent Indians, when he was a Member of the Public Service Commission, we heartily wish that eis reign will be productive of good to Bengal.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 1st, 1916.

The Governor-designate of Bengal.

Referring to the announcement that Lord Ranoldshay is to succeed Lord Carmichael as the Governor of Bengal, the Manorama, of the 1st December, points out that, though it may be difficult for a successor of Lord Carmichael to earn a good name in Bengal, Lord Ranoldshay, who is young and experienced, may succeed in giving equal satisfaction to the Bengalis, who, however, look upon the appointment with some suspicion, because of his connection with Lord Curzon's administration. The paper, however, hopes that His Majesty the King-Emperor will be gratiously pleased to grant the prayer of the Bengalis to extend Lord Carmichael's term of office.

YOGAKSHEMAM, Trichur, Dec. 1st, 1916.

Writing on the same subject, the Yogakshemam, of the 1st December, observes that, though Lord Ranoldshay has given no evidence as yet of his possessing any administrative skill, this young peer may, perhaps, be able to give satisfaction to the people of Bengal.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

"The new Governor of Bengal."

The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 1st December, referring to the previous history of Lord Ronaldshay, the new Governor of Bengal, writes:—Probably the Bengalis will be delighted and gratified by the new appointment and they will not feel their failure to secure an extension of Lord Carmichael's term of office. In fact the Bengalis have reason to be pleased inasmuch as the King with the object of conferring a high appointment on Lord Carmichael has decided against an extension and selected and appointed the able, suitable and sympathetic Lord Ronaldshay as Governor of Bengal.

There is no doubt that, although the King lives far away from India, and despite the present crisis of the war, he always has the good of Indians in mind and appoints useful and suitable rulers over them.

The editor fervently hopes that Lord Ronaldshay will always endeavour to win the hearts of Indians and grant them their legitimate demands and thus prove himself to be as merciful as the gentle rain from heaven towards the Bengalis especially.

The appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as Governor of Bengal.

The Prapanchamitran, of the 1st December, after expressing regret at the term of office of Lord Carmichael coming to a close, refers to the appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as his successor and observes :—Lord Ronaldshay is said to be one who will pursue the policy of Lord Curzon and that his appointment to Bengal is therefore a matter for regret.

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

Mr. Tilak and the authorities in Cuttack.

56. The Prapanchamitran, of the 1st December, writes :—It is not known why some authorities tremble at the mention of the name of Mr. Tilak. By the action of these authorities his name and fame have risen high and he is now regarded by the Indians as an incarnation of patriotism. The arrow recently aimed against him by the Bombay Government has proved ineffectual. When he went to Cuttack recently and the people gathered in hundreds to do him honour, the Assistant Superintendent of Police and the First-class Magistrate of that town began to disperse the gathering by force and delivered to him an order from the District Magistrate that he should not deliver a lecture at any public place. Then it appears that Mr. Tilak remonstrated with the Magistrate and asked him for an order in writing preventing the people from giving him betel-nut and himself from accepting it and thanking them for the same in a speech. When the Magistrate produced an order of permission from the District Magistrate permitting him to accept it, the proceedings of the meeting were conducted without any hindrance. Is not all this ridiculous?

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

The recent storm at Pondicherry.

57. Referring to the havoc caused by the recent storm at Pondicherry, the Prapanchamitran, of the 1st December, writes :—Pondicherry belongs to the French Government. It is a republic. The Legislative Council met there on the 25th last under the presidency of the Governor and sanctioned a sum of one lakh and fifty-thousand rupees from the State funds for the relief of the thousands of people who were reduced to destitution by this storm. How quick are the French Government in taking action! May that Government last long!

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1916.

Extraordinary interest taken by the Bombay Government in certain matters.

58. Referring to the proceedings of the Legislative Council of Bombay at its meeting of the 4th instant, the Swadesamitran, of the 5th December says :—The answers given on behalf of the Government to two of the questions asked in the last meeting show that the Government takes more than necessary interest in certain matters, whether it is concerned in them or not. In reply to an interpellation by the Hon'ble Mr. Kamath, the Government Member stated that, after an order is issued to a person under the Defence of India Act, permission is accorded to him to offer any explanation he may desire to make. But Mrs. Besant was not given this permission. As soon as the Bombay Government issued an order forbidding her to enter that Presidency, she requested the Government to state the nature of the suspicion against her; but the Government refused to do so. Considering the reply given by the Government of India to an interpellation by the Hon'ble Mr. Dhadhaboy in the Imperial Legislative Council, it appears that the Bombay Government does not follow the views or methods of the Government of India, but acts according to what it thinks to be right. Mrs. Besant may be able to convince the Government of facts which are directly opposed to the information received by the Government, and the Government may think fit to cancel the order against her after hearing her explanation. In such a case, why should the Government not inform her of the suspicion against her and hear her explanation?

Similarly the interest taken by the Bombay Government on behalf of Sir Valentine Chirol was also unnecessary. It appears that it has granted leave to two Government servants and permitted them to translate certain documents for that gentleman and receive salary from him, in connection with the suit preferred against him by Mr. Tilak in the High Court at London. The Bombay Government admitted both these facts in the last meeting of its Legislative Council, and said that it did so in order that the case may be disposed of quickly. What does it matter to the Government whether that case is quickly disposed of or not? When Mr. Tilak applied for permission to proceed to England in connection with this case, the Bombay Government declined to grant him permission at first. In the Madras High Court, the Hon'ble the Advocate-General spoke at great length, attacking Mrs. Besant for writing in New India that the Bombay Government refused this permission in the interest of Sir Valentine Chirol. We do not mean to assert that Mrs. Besant was right or wrong in having written so. But who could say positively either that the delay of some months caused by the Bombay Government in granting the permission did not injure hi-cause or that the leave sanctioned and permission granted to the two Governs ment servants to do the work of Sir Valentine Chirol did not help him?

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1916.

Sir Krishna Gupta on the future of India.

59. The Lokopakari, of the 4th December, gives the following summary of the replies given by Sir Krishna Gupta to a correspondent who interviewed him at Bombay:—The object of the British Government should only be to give self-government to India. The British Government should state emphatically that it is prepared to do so in the near future. It's duty does not cease with stating so. It should train the people of this country to be fit for self-government. The Hindus should acquire practical skill in the art of self-government. The Government has not bestowed its full consideration upon the question of taking the Hindus into the army. They should acquire military skill so that they may be fit for guarding India. Every one who is a Hindu should befit himself for guarding his house and his country. As the Hindus are not taken into military service, they have lost their aptitude in this matter and are like eunuchs. Like every citizen in Europe, the Hindu has the right to guard his country. The British came to know of the existence of India only after the Indian army went to France lately. For this reason, some of the Hindus who are capable of making the Indian affairs known to the British should settle in England. If India wishes to obtain self-government, she must acquire the skill to guard herself. The Government should be constantly reminded in this matter.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 1st, 1916.

Sir Krishna Gupta's recent speech.

60. The Manorama, of the 1st December, speaks in highly eulogistic terms of Sir Krishna Gupta's recent speech at a meeting of the "Servants of India Society," and exhorts the people of India to follow his wise counsels.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 29th, 1916.

Lord Chelmsford's policy.

61. Referring to an interview between His Excellency the Viceroy and Mr. Mackenzie, the American Associated Press correspondent, the Andhraprakasika, of the 29th November, says:—His Excellency told the correspondent that he might say or write whatever he pleased. He has vouchsafed this freedom to an American. Will His Excellency do the same thing to us? No. We cannot write as we please. Nay, we cannot speak out even facts. His Excellency said that it was his duty to save India from ideas or thoughts encouraging revolution The Madras Mail recommended to the rulers that Mr. Tilak should be put to death. If the rulers should follow the advice of the Madras Mail, revolutionary ideas would certainly spring up in the country. Why should Lord Chelmsford refrain from taking action against that paper? Again the author of a certain book entitled "The West in the East" compared the Indians to beasts in a menagerie and made statements damaging to the reputation of the Indians. These statements are a thousand times more harmful to the country than the outrageous acts and writings of anarchists. All loyal subjects of His Imperial Majesty are of opinion that the abovesaid writer is fortunate in so far as he escaped being beaten by the Indians.

Why should not His Excellency the Viceroy proscribe books like the one referred to above, which stir up revolution in the country? We pray that the rulers may not observe any distinctions of race or creed in the dispensation of justice.

Political reforms.

62. The Andhrapatrika, of the 1st December, says:—Papers like the Madras Mail, which support the official view of things, condemn Government by a few persons as disastrous. Is the present government in India a government by a few or by many persons? Will not the government by the few educated persons be more useful than the present government by fewer persons? Are not the educated among the Indians fit to bear the burden of administration which the English wish to bear? Will not that which was possible after twenty years in the Philippine Islands be found possible in India after a hundred and fifty years of British rule? Self-government must be established so that the people may know the advantages of a government by the people. The Indians seek the co-operation of the British in the establishment of self-government and do not want to do without them.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

Floods in the Guntūr district.

63 Referring to the floods in the Guntūr district, the Andhrapatrika, of the 1st December, says:—In the Guntūr district, the people have rendered help to the sufferers to the extent of more than three thousand rupees, whereas the Government have spent only Rs. 550 on their behalf From this it is evident how widely different is the view presented by the Andhrapatrika of the sufferings of the people from that gathered from the orders of the Government. We hope that the Government will liberally help the sufferers in the reconstruction of their houses and in making good the loss of their crops.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

Self-government.

64. The Andhrapatrika, of the 2nd December, reports the President of the Kurnool District Conference to have said that if the Indians do not get self-government as it obtains in the Colonies, there is every reason to fear that the condition of India will grow worse than at present. It exhorts the Indians to ponder over these words of the President.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

The Madras Executive Council.

65. The Hitakarini, of the 19th November (received on the 2nd December) contains remarks similar to those contained in the Andhruprakasika of the 18th November, already abstracted on page 2075 of the Newspaper Weekly Report under the heading "The Madras Executive Council."

HITAKARINI, Ellore, Nov. 19th, 1916.

Flood disaster in Kaikalur.

66. Referring to the flood disaster in the Kaikalur taluk, the Andhrapatrika, of the 6th December, says:—We can emphatically assert that the Government are indifferent to the suffering ryots if they do not completely remit their assessment. Our special correspondent has already stated that the Government cannot but give them water for a second crop and that the cultivators cannot but contract loans to enable them to cultivate their lands. It is the opinion of everybody that the authorities should hereafter investigate carefully the question of Kollair drainage. As desired by the people, a special officer should be appointed to ascertain the extent of the damage caused by the floods. As long as the Tahsildar, who, after a long delay, spent only Rs. 50 out of a sum of Rs. 500 sanctioned for relief, and the Sub-Magistrate who went to the scene of disaster with a bag of rice but returned with it saying that no relief is necessary are relied upon, there can be no hope that justice will be done to the poor ryots in the matter of remissions. If the Government do not appoint a special officer as desired by the people, we request that a new Tahsildar may be appointed for Kaikalur.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

The rise in the prices of wheat and yarn.

67. The Andhrapatrika, of the 6th December, is in full agreement with the Civil and Military Gazette in requesting the authorities to take steps to prevent the rise in the price of wheat in India. It says that the poor are put to great inconvenience on account of the avarice of certain merchants who increase the price of wheat on the plea of war conditions, although there has been a plentiful harvest this year. The paper also refers to the rise in the price of yarn, and prays that the Government may exercise the powers vested in them by legislature to prevent it.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

SAMPAD ABHYUDAYA, Mysore, Dec. 8th, 1916.

India after the war.

68. The Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 5th December, writes:—Some Britishers are telling us that at the close of the war Indians will be placed on a footing of perfect equality with the British in the matter of political privileges. Many Indians believe this. It is necessary to remember that before we can expect any rights and liberties, we must first ensure our fitness for exercising the same. Else it is useless to expect justice to our claims. It is in the cause of justice that the British are sacrificing all their men and money. Are we capable of making such sacrifices? Are we equally resolute? Unless we do our utmost to obtain these rights and show that we are prepared even to lay down our lives if we fail to get democratic rule, we shall have none of those privileges. Our salvation lies in our own hands. God would not help those who would not help themselves.

SWADESHABHIMANI, Mangalore, Dec. 1st, 1916.

The enhancement of telegraphic rates

69. Referring to the news of the raising of the minimum rate for telegrams from As. 6 to As. 8, the Swadesh-abhimani, of the 1st December, writes:—It is very queer that the Government should have pointed out the dearth of hands on account of military requirements as an excuse for enhancing the rate. While it is possible even in the Military Department to replace losses by fresh hands, it is difficult to see how in the Telegraph Department, the work of which is much less exacting both physically and intellectually, dearth of hands can be complained of. If on the other hand, the Government were to say that the policy of the Government being to appoint only Europeans and Eurasians to the higher posts in the Telegraphic Department and as it is not possible owing to the war, to get the limited number of hands available to cope with the work, and at the same time it is desired to keep up the revenue in spite of the less work which these fewer hands are able to do, the Government were constrained to enhance the fee, the argument would have been incontrovertible. Every thoughtful citizen is bound to put up with these slight inconveniences for some time just as he has to do with the many other incommoding circumstances brought about by the war. But it is rather odd to find the true reason concealed and a lame excuse offered instead.

SWADESHABHIMANI, Mangalore, Dec. 1st, 1916.

The United Conference and political aspirations.

70. Referring to the resolutions passed at a United Conference of the Committees appointed by the Indian National Congress and the Moslem League on the present political demands of the people, the Swadesh-abhimani, of the 1st December, says:—Both parties were already agreed on the point that in the Provincial Executive Councils one half of the members should consist of popular representatives. We are now glad to find that the parties are now also agreed on the question of making a similar demand in regard to the Viceroy's Executive Council. After much discussion as to what proportion of the members of Councils should consist of Moslems, the Conference at last decided this question by fixing the number of Moslems for each province. But as there was still some difference of opinion on this point, the subject will be discussed again at the next session of the Congress and the League. This trend of events doubtless shows that the Hindus and Moslems have joined together to demand a large-instalment of swaraj. The news that the leaders of the divers creeds and cults in India are now unanimous in making their demands will serve to proclaim to the world how near India has come to her goal of a united nation.

SAMPAD ABHYUDAYA, Mysore, Dec. 6th, 1916.

The influence of western civilization in India.

India's progress under the

71. In an article contributed to the Sampad Abhyudaya of the 6th December, the writer after, dwelling on the glory of the ancient civilization of India, proceeds to remark that those who boast of influence of western civilization are apt to forget that, while it must be conceded that from a materialistic standpoint India has had some gain in the shape of railways, telegraphs, etc., with the advent of western civilization, modern education has the unwholesome effect of destroying the sweet qualities of obedience and devotion to elders and of breeding the vices of the improvidence and sensuality. "Whatever the glory of western civilization", the writer concludes, "India is precipitate in her downward path on account of the licentiousness which characterises it. How, then, is it possible to believe that India is progressing? The harm wrought by western civilization outweighs any gain we may have derived from it. It behoves all right-minded and patriotic citizens therefore to consider the desirability of sticking to our old habits, customs and manners"

SWADESHABHIMANI, Mangalore, Dec. 1st, 1916.

The Hon'ble K. S. Bhat's interpellations in the Legislative Council.

72. In an article giving a summary of the Hon'ble Mr. K. S. Bhat's interpellations in the Madras Legislative Council and the replies of Government thereto, the Swadeshabhimani, of the 1st December, writes:—The Hon'ble Mr. Bhat has amply justified the confidence reposed in him by the public in electing him as their representative. By means of his 23 questions he sought to lay before the Government the minor shortcomings concerning the educational, revenue, criminal, forest, railway, darkhast, co-operative and local board branches of the administration. In regard to the request that District Collectors may be consulted as to whether the new practice of having to resort to civil courts in respect of rent recoveries has proved satisfactory, and if not, whether the system of seeking redress in revenue courts may be revived, the Government replied that they did not think it necessary to invite the opinions of the Collectors on the subject. So long as the Government find no difficulty in collecting the revenue due to them, they will naturally be slow to inquire into the grievances of the Wargdar. The effect of the existing system is that a tenant who falls in arrears has no difficulty in evading the payment of another two years' rent by the time the landlord obtains a decree in a civil court for past arrears. The Government seem to have resorted to the present policy because they are afraid that the tenant might be ground down if the Wargdar raises the rent to an unreasonable extent. But both in South Canara and Malabar they have done nothing by way of legislation to protect the interests of the Wargdar at the same time. They find some difficulty or other whenever they take up the question. The reply to the interpellation regarding the revision of darkhast rules in South Canara shows that the Government are not prepared to inquire into the grievances of the people through the Collector, unless the people come forward and urge them on their attention. The answers in regard to the four interpellations touching co-operative societies have served to allay the apprehension that the present Registrar might be replaced by an Indian Civil Service officer as suggested by the Co-operative Committee. It was feared that such an officer unacquainted with the vernaculars would never be able to manage the department efficiently. We rejoice to learn that the present Registrar, who, besides being an Indian, is so well known for his enthusiasm and scholarship, is not likely to be disturbed from his present office. The Hon'ble Mr. Bhat's interpellations, on the whole, go to show that the minor grievances of the people of South Canara are numerous, but the Government have no knowledge of them; because public life in the district is inert and the people do not take the trouble of acquainting the Government with their wants. As the proverb goes, the child must cry if it wants its mother to give it milk; so must the people force on the attention of the Government through their representative in council the vagaries or high handedness of the officials and the other shortcomings of the administration if they wish to get redress.

SWADESHABHIMANI, Mangalore, Dec. 1st, 1916.

Indian Board Member.

73. In a leading article giving a summary of the discussion which took place in the Madras Legislative Council on the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar's resolution that at least one Member of the Board of Revenue should be an Indian, the Swadeshabhimani, of the 1st December, remarks:—The resolution was accepted with an amendment that an Indian may be appointed as a Member of the Board of Revenue "when suitable opportunity occurs." As one of the Honourable Members pointed out in this connection, the words "suitable" and "opportunity" are exceedingly vague, and the Government very opportunely made use of these terms which may either mean now or in the next generation. We are sorry to see that the objection raised to the words "suitable opportunity" was not heeded. Today, it is no longer necessary to contend that there are Indians of fitness to hold any responsible post not only in the Board of Revenue but in any branch of the administration. It must be admitted that they have the ability to be at the head of almost any department of Government. The Government is not ignorant of this. It was scarcely proper therefore that the Hon'ble Sir Cardew should have remarked that the fact of a person being an Indian was not by itself a mark of fitness. When the Indians are demanding the privileges of swarāj within the Empire, why should they be told these excuses in small matters? Nobody wants that these places should be given to a person who is unfit merely because he is an Indian. It goes without saying that what is urged is that an Indian who is fit should be appointed. Further, fitness is acquired only through exercise of power. It is strange that the Hon'ble Sir Cardew's anger should have pitched up a barrier with the words "suitable opportunity".

Sampad Abhyudaya, Mysore, Dec. 7th, 1916.

Slave traffic in Calcutta.

74. In an article in English the Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 7th December, writes:—"Slavery is an ancient institution. Our contemporary of the Bengalee says that it represents the power of the strong over the weak, and of the victor over the vanquished. It was not a monopoly of India. It existed in England, when the Saxon serf wore the collar of his Norman master. Slavery existed even among the British occupants of North America. The British planters and pioneers in the new world owned numerous Negro slaves and looked upon them as so many cattle. The heart-rending tale of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' is a faithful representation of the extent of slavery that obtained in America. The Hindu slaves were not treated so brutishly as the American Negroes were treated by the American Britishers. A perusal of the life and life-work of that God in human form, Wilberforce, will reveal to what extent even the British human nature had drifted in the matter of slave trade. Our contemporary of the Bengalee says that the evils of the slave traffic in Calcutta in the 20th century curdles our blood with horror. Young children are, it is said, brought for open sale at Calcutta. If this is so, it is a point that deserves to be carefully investigated and remedied. Our contemporary gives a horrible account of traffic in girls. It is not only in Calcutta that this traffic obtains but it is also in Bombay and other centres of business activity. If it is so, we do not want this wretched enlightenment. A moral crusade must at once be declared against practices which derogate from the dignity of both man and woman. We hope that efforts will be made in all centres of population to stem the tide of this inhuman traffic."

Sampad Abhyudaya, Mysore, Dec. 7th, 1916.

Lord Carmichael and British freedom.

75. In an article under this heading in English, the Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 7th December, writes:—"Mrs. Besant went to Calcutta. She took part in the All-India Congress Committee as well as in the conference between that body and the All-India Muslim League. She was not prevented to enter Bengal. People enquire why an order of prohibition to enter Bengal was not served upon her. The reason is not far to seek. There is Lord Carmichael, a true Britisher, in Bengal. He would never permit any un-British acts. He knows that a holy poor British woman is the last person who could be thought able to set fire to Bengal. Freedom of thought, word and action are the heritages of the British people. They know that such freedom is absolutely necessary to restrain the vagaries of men who cannot stand the alcohol of power. Lord Carmichael is a Britisher of noble traditions. One Lord Carmichael is more than sufficient to strengthen the foundations of the British Empire. This one act of his, not to say of his numerous acts of British justice and fairplay, has raised the respect and loyalty of Indians to the British throne more than any blessings that British rule has heaped upon India. It is a pity that this truth is not realised by a number of Englishmen who, with all their noble British instincts, are victims of a cowardly fear, that constitutional freedom leads to danger. It is license and not freedom that leads to danger. If freedom is well regulated, it will have the effect of killing all license. If British freedom is extended to India, the Indians will learn how to apply the lynch-law to those who abuse the freedom. Lord Carmichael knows that Mrs. Besant, with all her faults, is not an anti-British lady. She has her own religious and latterly political holiness. They are completely harmless. She was badly treated and even the most innocent of worms will turn against us when we trample upon it. What wonder if Mrs. Besant has turned against her persecutors"

Paper.

76. In commenting upon the resolution relating to the Punalur Paper Mill, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th November, points out that the output of the mill, even after its being taken charge of by the Government, has been rather disappointing, in that it has failed even to meet the requirements of Malabar, and dwells upon the necessity of freeing India from her dependence on foreign countries for her supply of paper.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Soap Factory at Calicut.

77. The Manorama, of the 5th December, congratulates Mr. A. K. Menon on the excellent quality of the soaps manufactured in the soap factory at Calicut, and the authorities concerned, on their efforts to provide for a cheap supply of them.

Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1916.

A new order of the Mysore Darbar.

78. The Manorama, of the 5th December, makes an appreciative reference to the order of the Mysore Darbar, requiring that, in all cases of petitions, enquiries, etc., from the people, replies should be sent to the parties concerned, and hopes that the Government will issue similar orders to their servants here.

Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1916.

The Gadac incident.

79. Referring to the action of the First-class Magistrate, Mr. Padbidri, in connection with Mr. Tilak's recent visit to Gadac, the Kerulodayam, of the 5th December, observes that it is now clear that Government officials may do anything and everything against Mr. Tilak, and expresses regret at such harassing of Indians by high Government officials.

Kerulodayam, Trichur, Dec. 5th, 1916.

The Madras Muslim League annual session.

80. The Qaumi Report, of the 27th November, with reference to the resolutions passed at the Muslim League meeting held at the Lawley Hall on the 26th November, writes:—It is very regrettable that the Muslim League during the whole year does not perform any work relating to educational matters. If lectures on politics be arranged in the Madras Presidency, several hundreds of Mussalmans should make themselves acquainted with the politics essential to the country and the impressions created on their minds might induce to join the league.

Qaumi Report, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1916.

Educational work is the essence of all real work. The Muslim public is in darkness. It is ignorant of its rights. It does not even know what is all being done in its name.

The editor, referring to the resolution passed at the league requesting Government that the claims of Muhammadans may be considered in filling up the forthcoming vacancy in the Executive Council of Madras, says it appears that the settlement of this problem is drawing very near. The matter has been discussed in the press with considerable heat and excitement, and probably the name of the successor who is shortly to be appointed has been settled in the confidential department of the Government. Perhaps the voice of the Muslim League can produce some effect on the Government if there is really sufficient time left. If we do not hope to realise this object, the moving of this resolution would be like striking a blow after the battle.

Adverting to another resolution of the league, that due and legitimate rights may be granted to Muhammadans in District and Taluk Boards, the editor says that if by this a separate electorate is presumably meant, the resolution needed a full discussion, for, our condition in the Presidency of Madras is not equal to that of the people of the United Provinces.

It has just now been ascertained that an amendment to the Madras Municipal Act is under the consideration of the Government of India, but we are not yet aware as to whether we shall be given even that the right which has been conceded to the Mussalmans of the United Provinces in the recent amendment.

The editor, referring to the answer given by the Hon'ble Mr. Clegg to the question put by a Hindu Honourable Member regarding public endowments, says that the answer, if not disappointing, is, at any rate, not encouraging.

Jamhur-i-Rozgar, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1916.

Concerning motor-cars.

81. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 30th November, refers to the objections raised regarding motor driving in the city of Madras and published in its issue of the 21st ultimo to the effect "that some wealthy motorists who take advantage of the good roads are a source of danger to poor pedestrians Chauffeurs drive their cars recklessly and do not realise the nuisance they are to old people and those unable to move quickly. It was further stated that on dark nights this vehicle with its powerful lights is still more terrible.

The light of the lamps is so strong that it dazzles and blinds people coming from the opposite direction.

The writer says he has learnt with much pleasure and great satisfaction, that the Commissioner as a result of this complaint has issued a circular drawing the attention of motorists to the lights now used on motor-cars in the city of Madras under the rules framed by him and suggesting, that some device should be adopted to reduce the intensity of the dazzling light. Motorists will be given a reasonable time to think it over. It is probable that a notice warning the public in this regard will be issued on December 15th. The editor suggests that it is advisable to hood the motor lamps with baize or some such material as is now done in Hyderabad.

The Commissioner of Police has also issued an order that in future motor-cars should be provided with horns of a standard pattern. Motor-cars are now fitted with horns which produce the most horrible ear-splitting sounds. The noise made by such horns makes people hair stand on end while children are scared out of their wits and scamper in every direction. The Commissioner of Police by prohibiting the use of such instruments of torture has really placed the public under a debt of gratitude.

On behalf of the public the editor thanks the Commissioner of Police for taking such prompt and considerate action to redress a public grievance.

Qaum Report, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

The story of endowments.

82. The Qaumi Report, of the 2nd December, writes:—Certain Hindu members interpellated and moved in the local council that some legal means should be adopted for the rectification and supervision of public endowments. But it is to be regretted that the Hon'ble Mr. Clegg on behalf of the Government replied that the question was a complicated one and could not at present be interfered with.

We know that the Government is averse to dealing with certain difficult problems and desires to avoid the responsibility of the rectification and supervision of public endowments and hence its answer "the time is not yet".

But the question is when and how will the time which in the view of the Government is so distant, come and who will answer for the loss of endowments until the arrival of the psychological moment. The Government itself recognises the fact that the condition of endowments in this country is not satisfactory. Certain scoundrels and villains regard charitable jagirs and inams as their hereditary legacy. The conditions of the endowments are not observed nor are the pious aims at public benevolence realised. They are stuffing their infernal maws and know full well there is no power able to snatch the golden morsel from their mouths.

Both Hindus and Muhammadans are complaining of those excuses so opposed to the terms of the endowments and they jointly desire that the strong arm of the law should put a stop to these evils. It is observed with regret, however, that the Government is content to the question with a mere verbal expression of sympathy. Probably it has in its mind some problematical apprehension of which the public have no cognisance. But is it not possible for the confidential advisers of the Government to hold a consultation on this important matter?

It is within our recollection that on the 22nd July 1914, Lord Hardinge's Government sent a lengthy despatch to the Secretary of State for India for consideration. The despatch was to a certain extent confidential and nothing has yet transpired as the decisive action if any taken in the matter. Probably the answer will be that owing to the war such papers are not placed before Government. But this reply would stultify the wisdom of the Government. Hence we cannot admit its accuracy or truth.

A law relating to endowments is not a question requiring heated discussion. Such laws have already been passed and had there been much discussion it would have taken months to get them through. When Bills open to objection and criticism have been introduced and subsequently passed in accordance with the wishes of Government, who can therefore imagine that a Bill desired by the public themselves would be a subject for a ceremonious discussion?

III.—Legislation.

The influence of picture-houses on the minds of children.

83. Vokkaligara Patrike, of the 6th December, writes:—In England it has been discovered that picture-houses have the tendency to prevent the minds of children and that boys under sixteen who have been frequenting the cinema theatres have in numerous cases become criminals. The Educational authorities are, therefore, contemplating measures to ward off this evil. The Government of India would do well to guard against this unwholesome influence of picture-houses in India in good time before their number multiplies.

Vokkaligara Patrike, Bangalore City, Dec. 6th, 1916.

The difficulties of the word "No".

84. The Qaumi Report, of the 23rd November, referring to the question put by the Hon'ble Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar regarding the passing of Hindu processions with music playing in front of mosque, says that apparently, the question is a two-sided one. On one side it refers to the respect due to mosques, and on the other it relates to human life. In support of his question the Honourable Member quoted an incident, numerous examples of which can be found in Government proceedings and the memory of which is still fresh in the minds of the public, and common-sense demands that steps should be taken to put a stop to such things. There is no law which requires that respect should be shown to mosques nor is there any order stating that the passing of processions with music playing is illegal. The consequence is that the big stick of physical law is in the hands of both Mussalmans and Hindus, and this formidable weapon alone decides their fate in matters of life and death.

Qaumi Report, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

The Government in answer to this very sensible question has simply said "No".

The astounding part of it is what does this mean? The Government, if it chooses, may decide either that mosques have nothing sacred about them or that on such occasions riots and disputes are permissible. A "No" will not remove the evil.

The Government itself has, much to its regret, knowledge of the amount of disturbance and unrest has been caused by foolish persons of both parties.

We think that the Government have not realised the complex nature of the question and because of its intricacies they have airily dismissed it with simply the word "No". The Honourable Member as well as the other members should not lose heart owing to this answer in the negative but rather resubmit their question in plain and simple terms.

It certainly can never be expected that the Government will become so callous as to stand by and look on at human lives being sacrificed of set purpose.

This is a religious question and should be tactfully and courageously introduced in the Legislative Council. If a resolution be moved or a Bill introduced and the Hindu and Mussalman members come to an understanding on the subject beforehand the Government will not hesitate to set the seal of its approval to it.

IV.—Native States.

Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1916.

The Holkar's gift to his people.

85. Referring to the gift of two lakhs of rupees by the Maharaja of Gwalior to his subjects, the Prapanchamitran, of the 1st December, says:—This sum is to be devoted to any purpose which his subjects consider to be good for them. Does it not appear from this what value the Holkar sets upon public opinion? This is how our own ancient Indian kings conducted the government. The majority of the present Indian Princes also value public opinion similarly. Ah! My mouth waters when I think of the large-heartedness of the Holkar, the Government of our ancient Hindu kings and the prosperity of the country in those times.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

Local self-government in Mysore.

86. The Andhrapatrika, of the 6th December, says that the recommendations of the committee appointed by the Government of Mysore to report as to the means whereby local self-government may be extended in that Province, go far ahead of the conditions of local self-government in British India in the matter of the financial powers exercised by the people.

Vokkaligara Patrike, Bangalore, City Dec. 6th, 1916.

Local self-government in Mysore.

Referring to the changes proposed to be effected by the Mysore Government in regard to the extension of local self-government in that province, the Vokkaligara Patrike, of the 6th December, says:—The prime object of the Government in making these changes is, evidently, to stimulate the eagerness and enthusiasm of the people in regard to municipal administration, so as to help them to undertake a larger measure of civic responsibilities. The immediate consequence of these changes, therefore, is the considerable increase in the responsibilities of municipal bodies. We are, no doubt, wont to see keen contests for membership. But these contests are, as a rule, participated in only with an eye to selfish ends. If, under these circumstances, responsible public offices such as that of Municipal President should be thrown open to such elections, there is little chance of machinery of municipal administration running satisfactorily. It is therefore necessary that responsible positions like these should continue to be filled by men of honesty, integrity and education.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Dec. 7th, 1916.

The extension of local self-Government in Mysore.

In continuation of an article in a previous issue on the extension of local self-Government in Mysore (vide Report No. 49, article 98) the Vrittanta Patrike, of the 7th December, reiterates its doubt as to whether the people are advanced far enough to undertake the heavy measure of increased responsibilities which the Government of Mysore propose to place on their shoulders.

Lokaprabhodini, Trichur, Dec. 6th, 1916.

Raffles in Cochin.

87. In an English leader, the Lokaprabhodini, of the 6th December, endorses the opinions of the Madras Times on the subject of 'raffles in Cochin', and hopes that the Government of His Highness the Raja will do the needful in the matter.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

88. Referring to this matter, the Deshabhimani, of the 25th November, writes as follows:—When the industries made no progress in foreign countries, the Governments of those countries rendered help to the people in several ways to develop them. It is regrettable that a similar thing cannot be done in India also. If cultivation is properly conducted, it will make a country advance in prosperity. Therefore more colleges than there are now should be established and knowledge in agriculture should be imparted to the young who may seek that knowledge alone. The instruction should be given in these colleges in the mother-tongue of the people. The help to be rendered may be divided into two kinds. The first is to render pecuniary help to the agriculturists through the Government agricultural loans. The agriculturists do not appear to have been benefited in the least by this system. They think that it is very difficult to get loans under this system and that even if they are obtained, they have to suffer many difficulties. The second is to establish depots for lending agricultural implements to the ryots.

The needs of our agriculturists.

Deshabhimani, Cuddalore, Nov. 25th, 1916.

Issued, 19th December 1916.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 51 of 1916.

REPORT

ON

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS EXAMINED BY THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT, MADRAS,

AND ON

VERNACULAR PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

for the Week ending 17th December 1916.

District Magistrates and Political Agents are requested to send to the Chief Secretary to Government, Judicial Department, a brief report of any local complaint which appears to them to call for notice, explaining whether the facts are as stated; what action, if any, is being taken; and, if the facts alleged are incorrect, what is believed to be the origin of the report and what the correct facts are.

CONTENTS.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

	PAGE
The British Cabinet	2215
The plucky Deutschland	2216
Peace proposals	ib.

II.—Home Administration.

(b) Courts—
The Madras Mail and the Tilak appeal case	ib.
The Calicut Bench Court	ib.
(c) Jails—
Indians in the Jail department	2217
(d) Education—
The Patna University Bill and the Madras Syndicate	ib.
Free and compulsory elementary education	2218
Students and education	ib.
Indian mathematicians	2219
(e) Local and Municipal—
Municipal and Local Board budgets	ib.
(h) Railways—
Railways and Absentee Industrialism	2220

II.—Home Administration—contd.

(b) General—

	PAGE
The Tinctorial Expert's report	2221
The forthcoming Congress and Home Rule	2222
The Madras Provincial Congress Committee and non-Brahmans	ib.
Presidency Banks and Indian enterprise	ib.
The effects of the cyclone	2223
The Industrial Conference	ib.
The Government of Bombay and Sir Valentine Chirol	2224
Mrs. Besant and the Bombay order	2225
Mrs. Annie Besant	ib.
Indian Christians and nationalism	ib.
The Basel Mission	ib.
The Madras Legislative Council	2226
Competitive Examinations	ib.
Freedom and superstition	2227
Cadet training	ib.
The Governor-designate of Bengal	ib.
The Round Table	2228
Indians in South Africa	ib.
The Defence of India Act in Bengal	ib.
Home Rule in Bengal	2229
"La Patrie"	ib.
Conscription for Europeans	ib.
The Ceylon quarantine	2230
Industry and politics	ib.
The situation in Bengal	ib.

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

The war	2232
The President of the United States	2233
Peace	ib.
The Cabinet crisis in England	ib.
America and the war	2235
The crisis at the Balkan theatre	ib.
Roumania	ib.

II.—Home Administration.

(b) Courts—

Mr. Cotton	ib.
Official Receiver, Guntûr	2236

(d) Education—

Compulsory primary education in India	ib.
The Intermediate Examination	ib.
Where has the Senate of the Madras University gone?	ib.
Compulsory primary education in Bombay	2237
Primary education and the Bombay Government	ib.
Education	ib.
National education	ib.
Free and compulsory education	2238
Instruction through the medium of the mother tongue	ib.

II.—Home Administration—cont.

		PAGE
(c) Local and Municipal—
Motor traffic in Bombay		2238
Lord Carmichael and municipalities		2239
The question of food-stuffs		ib.
(d) Railways—
Reservation of railway compartments for Anglo-Indians		ib.
The gate leading from the Calicut Railway station to Anne Hall Road		ib.
Curtailment of the train service		2240
(h) General—
The Indian Commissioners of labour in Ceylon		ib.
Reappointment of dismissed Military officers		ib.
Is it a breach of etiquette for members of Legislative Councils to publish their disallowed interpellations?		ib.
The new Governor of Bengal		2241
A public meeting in Bombay for protesting against the order of prohibition issued to Mrs. Besant		ib.
Management of public charities		ib.
The recent storm		ib.
The Madras Mail and the Indians		2242
Disloyal British subjects in Pondicherry		ib.
Mr. Tilak's case against Sir Valentine Chirol		ib.
Mr. Tilak and the police		ib.
Statistics of persons buried alive in Great Britain		2243
The Cuddapah District Conference		ib.
Operation of the Defence of India Act in the Madras Presidency		ib.
Conviction of a plantation coolie in Ceylon		ib.
The Indian Membership of the Bombay Executive Council		ib.
Publication of questions and resolutions disallowed by Presidents of Legislative Councils		2244
The recent storm in the South Arcot district		ib.
The Dyeing Expert's report for the quarter ending 30th September 1916		ib.
Free trade		2245
Home Rule		ib.
India and the new Minister		ib.
The rearing of bulls		ib.
Supplies to Collectors		2246
Gold coins		ib.
Drinking		ib.
Suggestions to the Collector of Guntûr		ib.
Adulterated ghee		ib.
The Madras Mail		ib.
Scarcity of drinking water in the Chakrapalem village, Tenali taluk		2247
Mr. Tilak at Gadag		ib.
Mr. Lutman		ib.
The recent cyclone		ib.
The salary of Governors		ib.
The voluntary system of Military service		ib.
Sir Valentine Chirol		ib.
Mr. Chamberlain		2248
The Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar		ib.
Swaraj		ib.
A harbour at Vizagapatam		ib.
Anglo-Indian papers		ib.

II.—Home Administration—cont.

(b) General—cont.

	Page
Mrs. Besant and the Central Provinces order	2249
India after the war	ib.
Sir K. G. Gupta	2250
Mr. Tilak and the Bombay Government	ib.
The Cochin Chamber of Commerce and Mattancheri	2251
Government and the selling on of coins	ib.
Supplies to touring officers	ib.
The Madras Legislative Council	ib.
The Soap Factory at Calicut	2252
Sir Sankaran Nayar and the Madras Mahajana Sabha	ib.
"Recognition of the loyalty and valour of Mussalmans"	ib.
"Indentured labour for the Colonies"	ib.

IV.—Native States.

Some recent orders of the Mysore Government	2253
The Christian Succession Bill	ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS PUBLISHED IN THE MADRAS PRESIDENCY, THE NATIVE STATES OF HYDERABAD, MYSORE, TRAVANCORE, COCHIN AND PUDUKKOTTAI, AND THE FRENCH TERRITORIES OF PONDICHERRY AND KARIKAL.

[NOTE.—Among the Indian-owned newspapers, those classed as dealing with politics are printed in big type. Officers, in whose jurisdiction they are published, are requested to pay special attention to these papers, and send immediate reports of any changes in them to the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Railways and Criminal Investigation Department, Madras.]

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
1	Abhinavacaraguvati	Telugu.	Chandrika Press, Guntur ..	Monthly ..	Janapati Pattabhirama Sastri, Brahman, 45 years.	325
2	Adyar Bulletin ..	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	1,200
3	Agricultural Pamphlet.	Tamil ..	Alexandra Press, Kumbakonam.	Do. ..	R. Srinivasa Ayyangar, 43 years, and Subrahmaniya Ayyar, 40 years, Brahmans.	600
4	Agriculture	Telugu.	Published at Ellore, printed at Sampe & Co.'s Press, Cocanada, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Rao Sahib G. Narayanaswami Nayudu, B.A., Sudra, 50 years.	265
5	Agriculturist	Tamil ..	Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. R. Ranga Raju, Balija, 41 years.	1,000
6	A'in-i-Deccan	Urdu ..	A'in-i-Deccan Press, Begam Bazaar, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Maulvi Inayat Husain Khan Sahib, Afghan, 41 years.	750
7	Abharanjali	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Sri Kantayya, Brahman, 35 years.	600
8	Al-Mamun	Urdu ..	Alavi Press, Royapettu, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Anwar-ud-din Sahib Bakhsh, Muhammadan, 35 years.	400
9	Ananda*	Canarese	Victoria Printing Works, Buntwal, South Canara district.	Fortnightly.	M. N. Kamath, Brahman ..	Not known.
10	Ananda Bodhini ..	Tamil ..	P. M. Rama Ayyar & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Muniswami Mudaliyar, Vellala, 31 years.	1,000
11	Andra Advocate ..	English.	Basel Printing Works, Vizagapatam.	Weekly ..	Nyayapati Rangamannar, Vyshnava, 30 years.	450
12	Andhra Chandrika	Telugu.	Andhra Chandrika Press, Proddatur, Cuddapah district.	Do. ..	B. Narayanaswami, Brahman, 33 years.	600
13	Andhra Patrika ..	Anglo-Telugu.	Andhra Patrika Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and weekly	K. Nageswara Rao, Brahman, 46 years, and G. Harinarayanama Rao, Brahman, 46 years.	3,000
14	Andhraprakasika.	Telugu.	Hindu Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	A. C. Parthasarathi Nayudu, Balija, 62 years.	500
15	Andhra Sahitya Parishad Patrika.	Do.	Published at the Telugu Academy office, 13 Arunachella Mayakan Road, Chintadrepet, printed at Srinivasa Varadachari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Sarma Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	300
16	Andhra Samrakshani.	Do.	Kamala Printing Works Cocanada, Godavari district.	Do. ..	G. Harischandra Rao, Brahman, 32 years.	500
17	Anglo-Indian ..	English.	Published at the Anglo-Indian Association premises, Egmore, printed at Vest & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	Felix Alexander D'Cruz, Anglo-Indian, 50 years.	800
18	Antiseptic	Do.	Published at No. 333, Thumbu Chetty Street, printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. Nayar, Nayar, 46 years.	400
19	Arogyam	Telugu.	Saraswati Press, Cocanada ..	Do. ..	V. Gopala Krishna Rao, Brahman, 30 years.	500
20	Arunodayam	Tamil ..	Church of Sweden Mission Press, Tranquebar, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	Rev D. Sewell, European, 64 years.	750
21	Arya	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	Aurobindo Ghose, Kayastha, 45 years, Paul Richard, 49 years, and Madame Richard, French.	750
22	Aryabala Samaj Magazine.	Do.	Krishnaraja Vani Vilas Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	G. Virupakshayya, Brahman, 33 years.	100
23	Arya Dharmam ..	Tamil ..	Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	T. K. Balambalmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 42 years.	300
24	Arya Dharma Pradeepam.	Canarese	Sri Lakshmi Vilasa Press, Nadahalli, Mysore State.	Do. ..	N. Narasappana Venkappa, Brahman, 31 years.	400

*Started, 3rd April 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
25	Arya Mahila	Canarese	Published at Nanjangud (Mysore) and printed at the Royal Press, Mysore.	Monthly..	M. Sitarama Jois, Brahman, 22 years.	250
26	Arya Vysya ..	Anglo-Telugu	Arya Vysya Press, Guntur .	Weekly ..	S. Rameswami Gupta, Vysya, 52 years.	350
27	Asha	Uriya	Asha Press, Berhampur ..	Do. ..	N. B. Rothe, Brahman, 31 years.	1,000
28	Atma Poshini ..	Malayalam	Abhaberaratna Prakasika Press, Kunnamkulam, Cochin State	Monthly ..	Rev. P. I. Joseph, Syrian Christian, 26 years.	700
29	Bala Dutan or Children's Herald.	Tamil	Published at Nazareth, printed at the Darling Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Joseph A. Jesudasan, Indian Christian, 48 years.	3,000
30	Bala Mitra or Children's Friend.	Telugu.	Christain Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, European, 35 years.	9,500
31	Balamitram	Malayalam.	Nicholas Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	G. E. Thadaeus, Indian Christian, 39 years.	500
32	Baliyar Mittiran or Children's Friend.	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. R. Robertson, European ..	7,500
33	Baliyar Nesan or Children's Magazine.	Do. ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Rev. R. V. Asirvadam, Indian Christian, 45 years.	6,500
34	Bar, Platform and Pulpit.	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	J. Dartnell, Eurasian, 39 years..	200
35	Basel Mission College Magazine.*	English and Malayalam occasionally.	Norman Printing Bureau, Calicut.	Eight times a year.	W. E. Heare, Englishman, 52 years.	300
36	Bashabhimani † ..	Malayalam.	Raja Raja Varma Press, Puthenchandai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	P. K. Kumara Pillai, Nayar, 32 years.	500
37	Bhakti Soudesha ‡ ..	Canarese	Canton Press, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Sri Dattatreya Krishna Bharadwaja	Not known.
38	Bhanu §	Anglo-Malayalam.	Vidya Vinodhini Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. K. K. Srinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 26 years.	500
39	Bharata Kesari ‖	Do.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Puthenchanthai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Velu Pillai, Nayar, 23 years.	1,300
40	Bharatamata ..	Telugu.	Sri Virayogindra Press, Vizianagram.	Weekly ..	Voruganti Venkata Somayajulu, Brahman, 37 years.	400
41	Bharati ¶	Tamil ..	Published at 3, Colagappa Maistri Street, Chintadripet, and printed at the Vivekabalathanam Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Do. ..	T. Krishnaswami Pavalar, Gramani, 27 years.	500
42	Bharati	Canarese	Vani Vilas Press, Bellary ..	Do. ..	K. M. Karibasavayya, Lingayat, 33 years.	200
43	Bharati Vilas	Do	Bhuvaneswari Press, Mysore..	Monthly..	A. Krishna Dikshit, Brahman, 30 years	300
44	Bhaloka Vyasan ..	Tamil ..	Bhaloka Vyasan Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Muthuviru Navalar, Valluvan, 52 years.	220
45	Bible Faith Mission Standard.	English.	Hogarth Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Once in two months.	Charles R. Vedanta Achari, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
46	Bodhaka Bodhini ..	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	725
47	Bodhini	Do.	Prabhakara Press, Udipi, South Canara District.	Do. ..	T. Mangesh Rao, 40 years, and M. N. Kamath, 38 years, Brahmans.	750
48	Brothers of the Star ..	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar, Chingleput district.	Do. ..	Dr. H. Roche, English, 49 years.	5,000
49	Carlylean	Do.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Fortnightly.	T. Sriramulu, B.A., Brahman, 40 years.	700
50	Catholic Friend. 	Do.	Published at the Lutheran Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly..	Rev. M. Motha Vas, Singhalese Christian, 32 years.	..
51	Catholic Messenger ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Deepika Press, Kuravilangad, Travancore State.	Do. ..	K. A. Nidhiri, B.A., Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,300
52	Catholic Mitramu or Catholic Friend. ¶	Telugu.	Published at the Lutheran Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. M. Motha Vas, Singhalese Christian, 32 years.	..
53	Catholic Nesan or Catholic Friend.	Tamil ..	Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	..
54	Catholic Register.	English.	Published at San Thomé, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. M. Teixera, Portuguese, 36 years.	350

* Discontinued, April 1916. † Started, 8th September 1916. ‡ Started, August 1916. § Started, 31st May 1916, and discontinued in July 1916. ‖ Started, February 1916. ¶ Temporarily discontinued, April 1916.  Started, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
55	Catholic Watchman.	English.	Published at the Catholic Supply Society, Popham's Broadway, Georgetown, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father Kuss, European ..	400
56	Chakravarthi ..	Malayalam.	Chakravarthi Press, Muttancherry, Cochin State	Do. ..	K. Janadhana Menon, Sudra, 30 years.	350
57	Chakravartini ..	Tamil ..	Sachchidananda Press, Kamaleswaran attah, Madras.	Monthly..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 52 years.	200
58	Childrens' Friend ..	Anglo-Tamil.	St. Mary's School Press, Cuddalore.	Do. ..	Amirdam Mudali alias Murugesa Mudali, Vellala, 28 years.	Not known.
59	Choudari *	Telugu.	Ramamohan Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Garapati Anjaneya Choudari, Kamma, 30 years.	Do.
60	Christ Church, Madras, Monthly Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras	Do. ..	Rev. F. B. Heiser, M.A., European, 40 years.	250
61	Christian College Magazine.	Do.	Do, do.	Do. ..	S. J. Crawford, M.A., European	400
62	Christian Patriot.	Do.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	R. A. Dason, Indian Christian, 24 years.	600
63	Church Mission College Magazine.	Do.	Darling Printing Press, Tinnevelly.	Quarterly.	J. Jnanamuthu, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 50 years.	550
64	Cochin Argus ..	Do.	Cochin Argus Press, British Cochin.	Weekly ..	C. Hamilton Pereira, Anglo-Indian, 47 years.	300
65	Commercial World Advertiser. †	Anglo-Tamil—Telugu	Published at 41, Avadanam Papayya Street, Choolai, printed at the Presidency Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Chakrapani Pillai, Yadhuva, 38 years.	1,000
66	Commonweal ..	English.	Besant Press, New India Buildings, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	7,000
67	Comoh ‡	Do.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore.	Do. ..	Raman Pillai, Nayar, 40 years..	400
68	Contemporary Law Review.	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	600
69	Co-operative Bulletin ..	Canarese	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Do. ..	K. S. Krishna Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	500
70	Criminal Law Reporter.	English.	Law Notes Press, Parvatipur, Vizagapatam district.	Do. ..	P. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 55 years, good.	Not stated.
71	Criminal Law Review..	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	600
72	Daily Post ..	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Daily (two editions).	T. M. Babington, European, 53 years.	3,000
73	Deccan Law Report ..	Urdu ..	Deccan Law Report Press, Troop Bazaar, Jam Bagh, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Akbar Khan Sahib, Muhammadan, 37 years.	1,000
74	Desabhimani ..	Anglo-Tamil.	Patriot Press, Cuddalore New Town.	Weekly ..	P. T. Tiruvenkata Achari, Brahman, 31 years.	465
75	Do. ..	Telugu.	Desabhimani Press, Guntúr ..	Do. ..	D. Sahdchalapathi Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	300
76	Do. ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Sri Krishna Vilasam Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do. ..	T. K. Narayanan, Ezhava, 30 years.	1,000
77	Desamata	Telugu.	Manorama Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	Rayavarapu Ramamurti, Brahman, 44 years.	700
78	Deccoya Missionary Prabasika.	Do.	Sujanaranjani Press, Cocanada.	Once in two months.	Rev. N. Abraham, Indian Christian, 40 years.	1,000
79	Deccoya Missionary Patrika	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Do.	H. Sumitra, Indian Christian ..	500
80	Dhanurdhari ..	Do.	Sachchidananda Press, Davangere, Mysore State.	Fortnightly.	M. Manjappa Hardaikar, Lingayat, 31 years.	400
81	Dhanvantari	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	P. Sankunni Varriar, Variyan, 46 years.	395
82	Dharma Poshini.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Manomohanam Press, Quilon, Travancore State.	Bi-monthly.	R. Madhavan Unnithan, Nayar, 38 years.	250
83	Dharma Prachara ..	English.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	A Mahadeva Sastri, Brahman, 34 years.	300
84	Dharmaprakasini. †	Telugu.	Sita Vilasa Press, Tenali, Guntur district.	Fortnightly.	B. J. Suryaprakasa, Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	250
85	Dharmasodhini ..	Do.	Sampe & Co.'s Press, Cocanada.	Do.	P. Narasimham, Brahman, 29 years.	500
86	Digest of Indian Case Law.	English.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	1,500
87	Disciple	Do.	Vasantha Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Quarterly.	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	2,000
88	Divyagnana Dipika or Gnan of Theosophy.	Telugu.	Victoria Jubilee Press, Chittoor.	Monthly ..	P. Narasimhayya, 50 years, and J. Srinivasa Rao, 24 years, Brahmans.	1,000

* Started, June 1916.

† Not published for the last two years.

‡ Started, 16th August 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
89	Dravidabhimani ..	Tamil ..	Dravidabhimani Press, Salem.	Weekly ..	D. A. John Nadar, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,000
90	Educational Review.	English	Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly..	C. Srinivasa Achari, Brahman, 61 years	600
91	Elementary School Journal.	Telugu.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	V. Narasimharayudu, Brahman, 42 years.	1,500
92	Ettinalasatyam or Present Truth.*	Malayalam.	Published at the South Indian Mission of Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk, and printed at the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. S. James, European, 37 years.	Not known.
93	Everyman's Review,†	English.	Kanara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Suryanarayanamurti, Brahman, 50 years.	100
94	Findlay College, Magazine.	Do.	Published at Mannargudi, Tanjore district, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Quarterly.	S. Narayana Ayyangar, M.A., and Kadaji Rao, B.A., Brahmans.	400
95	Friendly Instructor ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly..	Rev. D. Pakkianathan, Indian Christian, 63 years.	1,050
96	George Gazette ..	Urdu ..	Muhammadi Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	M. Abdul Basith, Muhammadan, 39 years.	400
97	Gopala Krishnan ..	Malayalam.	M. V. Press, Palghat	Monthly..	P Chippa Kutty Nayar, Nayar, 25 years.	400
98	Gospel Witness ..	English.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Do. ..	Rev. Victor McCauley, American, 41 years.	350
99	Grihalakshmi	Telugu.	Manjuvani Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	N. Cholapati Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
100	Harvest Field	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years	645
101	Hindu	Do.	National Press, Wallajah Road, Madras.	Daily, triweekly & weekly.	S. Kasturiranga Ayyangar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 51 years.	6,100
102	Hindu Nesan ..	Tamil ..	South Indian Press, 13, Narasingapuram Street, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	S. Srinivasa Venkata Achari, Brahman	1,500
103	Hindu Sundari ..	Telugu.	Vidyartini Samaj Press, Cocanada.	Monthly ..	B. Seshamma, 37 years, and B. Chaddamma, 32 years, Brahmans.	500
104	Hitabarini	Tamil ..	Published at 14, Kennedy Street, Mylapore, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	Visalakshi Ammal, Brahman, 36 years.	1,000
105	Do.	Telugu.	Hitabarini Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	M. L. Narasimha Sarma, Brahman, 33 years.	400
106	Hitavadi	Do.	Church Missionary Society, Dove Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly..	Rev. D. Anantam, B.A., Indian Christian, 65 years.	550
107	Humanity	English.	India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Punnayya, Brahman, 29 years.	400
108	Illustrated Criminal Investigation and Law Digest.	Do.	Criminal Investigation Press, Vellore, North Arcot district.	Do.	T. K. Sundara Ayyar, Brahman, 44 years.	1,400
109	Indian Advertiser.	French, English and Tamil.	Jagannatha Press, Pondicherry.	Monthly..	N. Rajalu Reddi, Reddi, 37 years.	100
110	Indian Christian.	English.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	W. C. Irvine, European, 41 years.	1,100
111	Indian Christian Endeavour.	Do.	Published in Bangalore, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Halliwell, European, 44 years.	500
112	Indian Church News and Review. ‡	Do.	Hogarth Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	D. David, Indian Christian, 43 years.	300
113	Indian Emigrant .	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. K. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 34 years.	300
114	Indian Engineer.	Do.	Published at 2 and 3, Raja's Buildings, Armenian Street, and printed at the Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. R. Venkatesa Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	1,000
115	Indian Interpreter ..	Do.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. N. Macnicol, B.A., 47 years, and Rev. A. Robertson, B.A., 44 years, Europeans.	600
116	Indian Ladies' Magazine.	Do.	Published at "Hinley", San Thomé, Mylapore, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	Mrs. K. Sathianadhan, Indian Christian, 44 years.	300
117	Indian Law Gazette.	Tamil ..	Indian Law Gazette Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly..	C. Paramasiva Mudali, Vellala, 46 years.	130

* Started, July 1916. † Started, January 1916. ‡ Discontinued, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
118	Indian Law Quarterly ..	English.	Published at 14 and 15, Lee Church Road, Mylapore, printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Quarterly.	P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	500
119	Indian Patriot ..	Do.	Indian Patriot Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and tri-weekly.	Diwan Bahadur C. Karunakara Menon, B.A., Nayar, 56 years.	900
120	Indian Railway Journal.	Do.	Published at Triplicane, printed by Pavar & Co.'s Press, Patler's Road, Madras.	Monthly..	S. K. Subba Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	150
121	Indian Review ..	Do.	G. A. Natesan & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Natesa Ayyar, B.A., F.R.S., Brahman, 47 years.	3,000
122	International Police Service Magazine.	Do.	Ambika Press, Park Town, Madras.	Do. ..	G. Kedandaramayya, M.A., Brahman, 56 years.	500
123	Janabhimani or People's Friend.	Tamil ..	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 48 years.	750
124	Janamukulan .	Do. ..	Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore.	Weekly ..	T. V. Krishna Das, Vellala, 57 years.	1,000
125	Janmi	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	K. C. Manavikraman Tamburan, Samantan, 47 years.	330
126	Janopakari* ..	Tamil ..	Record Press, Vellore ..	Do. ..	V. R. Vaidyananda Ayyar, Brahman, 36 years.	..
127	Jnana Bhanu ..	Do. ..	Published at 8, Pichu Pillai. Street, Mylapore; printed at the Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswarapet, Madras.	Do. ..	Subrahmanya Siva, Brahman, 38 years.	350
128	Jaridah-i-Rozgar ..	Urdu ..	Hyderi Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Daily and weekly.	Muhammad Abdul Latif Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 37 years.	300
129	Journal of the Madras Agricultural Students' Union.	English.	Published at the Agricultural College, Coimbatore, printed at the Literary Sun Press, Coimbatore.	Monthly ..	D. Ananda Rao, Indian Christian, 34 years.	350
130	Journal of the Muhammadan Educational Association of Southern India.	Urdu ..	Published at 8, Francis Joseph Street, Georgetown, printed at the Islamia Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Abdul Hamid Hasan, B.A., B.L., Muhammadan, 44 years.	500
131	Journal of the Tamil Scientific Terms Society.‡	Anglo-Tamil.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	C. Rajagopala Achari and R. G. Venkatesubba Ayyar, Brahmans.	100
132	Kadambari Sangraha ..	Canarese	Royal Press, Mysore ..	Do. ..	Venkataramana Sastri, Brahman, 28 years.	400
133	Kairali†	Malayalam.	Published at Ernakulam, printed at the Vidya Vinodhini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Sankara Menon, M.A., L.T., Nayar, 33 years.	800
134	Kalabhimani‡ ..	Canarese	Caxton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Raghupati Achari, Brahman, 40 years.	1,000
135	Kala Chintamani ..	Tamil ..	Published at 4, Maliwaran Koil Street, Mylapore; printed at the Sivakami Vilasam Press, Choolai, Madras.	Do. ..	T. V. Kaliyana Sundara Mudali, Vellala, 35 years, good.	1,000
136	Kalai Magal ..	Do. ..	Imprimerie Louis Simaya de Saigon, Pondicherry.	Do. ..	S. Bangaru Pathar, Kammala, 42 years.	400
137	Kaliyuga Varthamani.	Do. ..	Kaviprahma Ganeshananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly...	T. Muthuswami Chetti Vaiya, 38 years.	150
138	Kalpaka	English.	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	T. R. Sanjivi Rao, Brahman, 35 years.	700
139	Kannada Kogile‖ ..	Canarese	M. T. A. Sharada Press, Mangalore.	Do. ..	P. Bhoja Rao and M Thimmappaya.	Not known.
140	Karnataka	English.	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Bi-weekly.	D. V. Gundappa, Brahman, 29 years.	350
141	Karnataka Chandrike ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	N. Srikanta Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	600
142	Karnataka Granthamala.	Do.	Graduates Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	B. Subba Rao, B.A., Brahman, 46 years.	300
143	Karnataka Kavya Kalanidhi.	Do.	Srinivasa Press, Mysore ..	Do. ..	M. A. Ramanuja Ayyangar, Brahman, 51 years.	350
144	Karnataka Nandini¶ ..	Do.	Published at the Sati Hitaishini office, Nanjangud, Mysore State; printed at the Sri Krishna Press, Hubli, Bombay Presidency.	Do. ..	N. Tirumalamma!	Not known.
145	Karnataka Sahitya Parishad Patrike.‖	Do.	Published by the Kannada Academy, and printed at the Irish Press, Bangalore City, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	R. Raghunatha Rao, Brahman ..	Do.

* Started, January 1916.
‖ Started, April 1916.

† Started, February 1916.
‖ Started in 1916.

‡ Ceased to exist January 1916.
¶ Started, October 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
146	Kathe Ratnakaram.	Tamil	Published at 162, Coral Merchant Street; printed at the Swadesamitran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. A. Nallappa Mudaliyar, Vellala, 30 years good.	400
147	Kavita	Telugu.	Vidwajjana Manoranjini Press, Pithapuram, Godavari district.	Do. ..	V. Venkataramu Sastri, 30 years, and V. Ramakrishna Sastri, 27 years, Brahmans.	250
148	Kerala Deepika ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Coronation Memorial Syrian Press, Muvattupuzha, Travancore State.	Fortnightly.	Rev. P. C. John, Indian Christian, 27 years.	300
149	Keralabasari ..	Malayalam.	Perunanam, Kerala Kalpadrum Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Monthly ..	W. Ikkanda Puthuval, Ambalavasi, 35 years, good.	350
150	Keralam *	Malayalam, English, Sanskrit and Tamil.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Puthenchandai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	R. Mahadeva Sarma, Brahman, 28 years.	500
151	Kerala Patrika ..	Malayalam.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Weekly ..	C. Kunhiraman Menon, B.A., Nayar, 37 years.	1,250
152	Kerala Sanchari ..	Do.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. P. Govindan Nayar, Nayar, 48 years.	1,150
153	Kerala Vyasan † ..	Do.	Published at Lokamaleswaram, Cranganore, printed at the S. P. Press, Paravur, Cochin State.	Monthly.	N. Padmanabha Menon, Nayar, 28 years.	1,000
154	Keralasevabhimani.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Kerala Sevabhimani Press, Mavelikara, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	Jacob Kurien, Indian Christian, 30 years.	750
155	Keralodayam ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Narayana Menon, 57 years, and V. Narayana Menon, 41 years, Nayars.	865
156	Kistnapatrika ..	Telugu.	Kistna Swadeshi Press, Masulipatam.	Do. ..	Mutnuri Krishna Rao, Brahman, 38 years.	2,000
157	Kolar Gold Fields News.	English.	Kolar Gold Fields News Press, Bowringpet, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Cornelius, Anglo-Indian, 64 years.	300
158	Konkani Dirven ..	Konkani in Canarese characters.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Fortnightly.	A. J. Mascarenhas, Indian Christian, 26 years.	600
159	La Gerbe du Maduré ..	French.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	Rev. G. J. Gross, S.J., German, 45 years.	360
160	Lakshmi Bhai .. .	Malayalam.	Vidyavinodini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	V. Narayana Menon, Nayar 38 years.	1,500
161	Lakshmi Vilasam ..	Do.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Do. ..	K. C. Manavikraman Tampuran, Samantan, 47 years.	330
162	Law Weekly	English.	Published at Vasanta Villa, Mylapore, printed at Messrs. Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, George-town, Madras.	Weekly ..	V. C. Sesha Acharya, Brahman, 53 years.	450
163	Light of Music	Tamil ..	Sri Gana Vidya Press, Perungulam, Tinnevelly district.	Monthly ..	V. Srinivasa Ayyangar, Brahman, 36 years.	500
164	Literary Journal. ‡	English.	Published at the Young Men's Literary Association, Triplicane; printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	K. S. Venkataraman, Brahman, 24 years.	350
165	Ziya-ul-Islam § ..	Tamil ..	Muhammadia Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Moulvi Haji Sheikh Mirza Muhi-ud-din, Muhammadan, 39 years.	750
166	Local Self-government Gazette.	English.	Published at No. 7, Badrian Garden Street, Georgetown; printed by Higginbothams, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. C. Desika Acharlu, 46 years, and P. Duraiswami Ayyangar, 44 years, Brahmans.	500
167	Loka Mitran ‖ ..	Tamil ..	Union Press, Namakkal, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	V. Govindaraja Ayyangar, Brahman, 33 years.	307
168	Lokopakaram ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Lokopakaram Printing Department, Janopakari Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. N. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, Brahman, 33 years.	1,000
169	Lokaranjini ¶ ..	Tamil ..	Saraswathi Vilas Press, Mayavaram, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	P. Sundaresa Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	500
170	Lokopakari	Do. ..	Sachchidananda Press, Kumaleswarenpettah, Madras.	Do. ..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 42 years.	1,100
171	Lutheran Sunday Lesson Book for children.	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Monthly ..	Mrs H. C. Cannaday, B.A., European.	300

* Started, January 1916.
† Started, March 1916.
‡ Discontinued, May 1916.
§ Discontinued, 19th January 1916.
‖ Ceased to exist in June 1914.
¶ Ceased to exist, 30th January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
172	Madar Bodhini	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly ..	Miss Inglis, M.A., European ..	700
173	Madar Manoranjani or Tamil and School Somans Magazine.	Do. ..	Published at 19, Thanikachalam Mudali Street, Triplicane; printed at Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Ramaswami Ayyar, Brahman, 40 years.	450
174	Madar Mitri or Tamil Woman's Friend.	Do. ..	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss Grace Stephens, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	700
175	Madhuravani ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	K. Hanuman Dass alias Hanuman, Brahman, 24 years.	250
176	Madhva Siddhanta Prabasini.‡	Do..	Published at the Madhva Siddhanta Prakasini Sabha, Mysore, and printed at the Jayalaya Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Y. Srinivasa Rao and H. Narasinga Rao, Brahmans.	Not known.
177	Madras Bulletin of Co-operation.	English, Tamil and Telugu. (separate editions).	Published by the Madras Provincial Co-operative Union, Limited, Triplicane, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Quarterly.	V. Venkata Subbayya, Brahman, 36 years.	2,000
178	Madras Church Missionary Gleaner.	English.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. Canon E. Sell, D.D. F.R.U., European, 88 years.	300
179	Madras Economic Journal.*	Do	Published at the Lady Wenlock Park, Chepauk, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Annually.	S. Krishnaswami Ayyangar, M.A. Brahman.	..
180	Madras Law Journal ..	Do.	Published at Brodie's Road, Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. Varada Achari, Brahman, 41 years.	1,750
181	Madras Law Times ..	Do.	Published at the Law Times office, Georgetown; printed at the Law Printing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	(1) T. Prakasam, Brahman, 43 years; (2) M. Devadoss, Indian Christian, 45 years; and (3) C. Madhavan Nayar, Nayar, 35 years.	800
182	Madras Mail ..	Do.	Madras Mail Press, No. 6, North Beach Road, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily, triweekly and weekly.	T. E. Welby, European, 34 years.	8,412
183	Madras Times ..	Do.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	Glyn Barlow, M.A., European, 55 years.	3,200
184	Madras Weekly Notes ..	Do.	Published at Royapetta High Road; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	N. P. K. Tata Acharya, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 35 years.	2,000
185	Madras Young Men.	Do.	Published at the Y.M.C.A., Esplanade Road, Georgetown; printed at Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	H. C. Herman, American, 34 years.	1,000
186	Magazine for Students, Teachers and Children	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Quarterly.	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	300
187	Maharaja's College Magazine.	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do.	T. Denham, M.A., European, 59 years.	900
188	Maha Vikatan.	Tamil ..	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	B. A. A. Rajendram Pillai, Indian Christian, 55 years.	1,050
189	Mahilabhi	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Mrs. Thorpe, European ..	350
190	Malabar Herald ..	English.	Union Press, British Cochin.	Weekly ..	R. W. Nigh, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	700
191	Malabar Islam ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Bharata Mitram Press, Muttancheri, Cochin State.	Do. ..	C. V. Abdur Rahman Haidros, Muhammadan, 27 years.	1,000
192	Malabar Quarterly Review (formerly the Monthly Review.)	English.	Sundara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Quarterly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 48 years.	500
193	Malayala Manorama.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Malayala Manorama Press, Kottayam, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. M. Mathula Mappillai, M.R.A.S., Syrian Christian, 45 years.	4,500
194	Malayali	Do.	Manamohan Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do.	K. Kalpa Pillai, B.A., Nayar, 52 years.	1,550
195	Manavasova† ..	Telugu.	Kalavati Press, Rajahmundry.	Monthly ..	N. Krishna Rao, Vysya, 34 years.	600
196	Mangaladayam	Malayalam.	Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	T. K. Krishna Menon, 46 years and K. Sankara Menon, 38 years, Nayars.	650
197	Mangalore Advertiser.	English.	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Do ..	A. A. Pereira alias Robson, Anglo-Indian, 37 years.	200

* Started, April 1916. † Not published since 7th September 1914. ‡ Started, October 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
196	Mangalore Magazine ..	English.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Annually.	E. Coelho, Indian Christian, 42 years.	600
199	Manju Bhâshini ..	Sanskrit.	Sri Sudarsana Press, Little Conjeeveram, Chingleput district.	Weekly ..	C. P. A. Ranga Acharya, Brahman, 44 years.	300
200	Manorama	Malayalam.	Kannanparaparamba, Chalapuram, printed at the Nicholas Printing Works, Calicut.	Bi-weekly.	P. Krishnan Nayar, Nayar, 28 years.	1,500
201	Meraj-i-Khiyal ..	Urdu ..	Published at No. 78, Thayar Sahib Street, printed at Nazukia Press, Mount Road, Madras	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ghaus Sahib, Muhammadan, 64 years.	150
202	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Tamil ..	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Do. ..	Brother Joseph, Indian Christian, 61 years	3,500
203	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Brother Leo, European, 44 years.	400
204	Missionary Intelligencer	Tamil ..	Darling Press, Palamcottah ..	Do. ..	J. A. Ambudayan, Indian Christian, 47 years.	2,500
205	Mission News ..	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. Aberly, D.D., American. 51 years.	600
206	Mission News for Women.	Do.	Do. do.	Monthly ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 36 years.	300
207	Mitavadi	Anglo-Malayalam.	Mitavadi Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. Krishnan, B.A., B.L., Tiyya, 44 years.	1,000
208	Monthly Letter ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	370
209	Morning Star	English.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Six times a year.	Rev. Father L. Lacombe, S.J., Frenchman, 59 years.	1,200
210	Muhammadin Prasangam Mosam (formerly the Islamic Prasangam Mosam). *	Tamil ..	Rivayuth-ul-Islam Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. M. Mustafa Labbai, Muhammadan, 39 years.	300
211	Mukhbir-i-Deccan.	Urdu ..	Sultani Press, Mayapetta, Madras.	Do. ..	Saiyid Muhammad Abdul Qadir Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 47 years.	800
212	Muzhir-i-Deccan.	Do. ..	Deccan Punch Press, Mahbubpara (Govilguda), Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Krishna Rao, Brahman, 48 years.	1,500
213	Muslim Dutan ..	Tamil ..	Shah-ul-Hamidiya Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. A. Shah-ul-Hamid, Muhammadan 42 years.	900
214	My Mother †	English.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, printed at the St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Once in two months.	R. P. Kulandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 30 years.	Not known.
215	Mysore Patriot ..	Do.	Krishnaraja Vanivilas Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	250
216	Mysore Star ..	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	Y. Virupakshayya, Lingayat, 42 years.	3,000
217	Nagai Neela-lochani.	Tamil ..	Neelalochani Press, Negapatam	Do. ..	G. Sadasivam Pillai, Kalla, 55 years.	250
218	Nalla Ayan or Good Pastor.	Do. ..	Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly .	Rev A. R. John, Indian Christian, 44 years.	1,700
219	Nallasiriyan or Trained Teacher.	Do. ..	Canton Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. R. Namasivayam Mudaliyar, Vellala, 40 years.	900
220	Nayar Samudaya Parishkari.‡	Malayalam.	Published at Tellicherry, printed at the Spectator Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	K. C. Narayan Nambiyar, Nayar, 41 years.	500
221	National Missionary Intelligencer.	English.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	Mrs. S. G. Heasman, B.A., Indian Christian.	2,400
222	Nattukottai Vaishyam.	Tamil ..	Pentland Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	P. S. Andiappa Pillai, Vellala, 37 years.	1,500
223	Nazrani Deepika.	Anglo-Malayalam.	St. Joseph's Press, Mannanam, Ettumanur, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Govinda Pillai, Sudra, 39 years.	1,500
224	New India ..	English.	New India Power Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	3,000
225	Newington School Magazine.	Do.	Published at "Newington," Teynampet; printed by Higginbotham's, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Half-yearly.	D. L. Blunt, European, 33 years.	50
226	New Reformer ..	Do.	Published at Georgetown; printed by Vest & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	D. Gopal Chetti, Sanni Tholaver, 46 years.	500
227	Nigazhkalasatyam or The Present World.	Tamil ..	Published at the South Indian Mission of the Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk; printed at the Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. S. James, European, 37 years.	5,000
228	Noble College Leader ..	English.	Church Missionary Society Love Press, Masulipatam.	Do.	T. V. Narasayya, 24 years, and V. K. Viswesvara Rao, Brahmans.	300

* Temporarily discontinued, 26th September 1916. † Started June 1916. ‡ Printer declared on 6th May 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
229	Non-Brahmin [formerly the Advertiser's (Free) Manual].	English.	Published at the General Advertising Co. and printed at the Mercury Press, George town, Madras.	Weekly ..	C. Sarangapani Mudaliyar, Vellala, 28 years.	2,000
230	Noor*	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Fort-nightly.	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	Not known.
231	Northwich Observer ..	English	Published at the United Free Church of Scotland Mission Girls' Boarding School, Royapuram; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, George-town, Madras.	Quarterly	Miss J. H. Ross, M.A., B.Sc., European, 31 years.	400
232	Our Little Paper †	Do.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, Travancore; printed at St Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	R P. Kulandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 39 years.	550
233	Outlook †	Do.	Published at the Y.W.C.A., Coonoor, printed at the Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Ootacamund.	Quarterly.	Miss E. A. Waugh, British, 34 years.	Not known.
234	Pandia Nesan ..	Tamil ..	Krishna Vilasam Press, Madura.	Weekly ..	P. George, Indian Christian, 43 years.	400
235	Penkalvi or Female Education.	Do. ..	Published at 27, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the India Printing Works, Madras.	Monthly ..	Revee Tayarammal, Brahman, 32 years.	1,000
236	People's Opinion (formerly the People's Weekly).	English.	Mandara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 43 years.	500
237	Planters' Chronicle.	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	Fletcher Morton, European, 53 years.	1,000
238	Popular Magazine ..	Tamil ..	Gnanothia Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	Paul C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 40 years.	500
239	Popular Scientific Journal.	English.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Henry Devadas, B.A., B.T., Indian Christian, 32 years.	300
240	Prabandhakalpavalleri. ‡	Telugu.	Published at Narasaraopet, Guntur district; printed at the Vani Press, Bezwada.	Do. ..	G. Gopalakrishnayya, Brahman, 50 years.	150
241	Prabodhini ..	Do.	Prabodhini Press, Duggirala, Guntur district.	Do. ..	V. Niranjana Sastri, Kamma, 40 years.	350
242	Prajamitran ..	Tamil ..	Published at Srirangam; printed at the Vaijayanti Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	S. G. Ramanujulu Nayudu, Balija, 29 years.	200
243	Prapanja Mitran §	Do. ..	Sachchidananda Press, Kamalesvarapet, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. Shanmuga Mudaliyar, Vellala.	Not known.
244	Prarambha Vidya.	Telugu.	Rama Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Monthly ..	K. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 34 years, and V. Mayanna Sastri, M.A., B.T., Brahman, 36 years.	600
245	Prayer Circular ..	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. R. J. Ward, European, 73 years.	1,000
246	Presentation Annual ..	English.	Published at the Presentation Convent, Georgetown; printed at Raithy & Co.'s Liberty Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Annually.	Rev. Mother Berkmans Murphy, European, 36 years.	300
247	Progress	Do.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. C. Clayton, European.	1,000
248	Promptuarium	Latin ..	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Father Ligory, European, 40 years.	1,000
249	Purna Chandrodayam.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	A. Ranganswami Ayyar, Brahman, 43 years.	1,000
250	Qasim-ul-Akhbar ..	Urdu, Tamil and English.	Chamraj Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore	Bi-weekly.	M. Abdul Hameed Sharif Sahib, Muhammadan, 38 years.	787
251	Qaumi Report ..	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Daily ..	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	730
252	Ravi	Telugu.	Sujanaranjani Press, Cocanada.	Weekly ..	Rev. H. E. Smith, European, 43 years.	1,250
253	Rayabhari	Do.	Vadrevupalle, Godavari district; printed at the Braun Industrial Printery, Rajahmundry.	Quarterly.	Rev. E. C. Adams, European, 40 years.	300
254	Roberts' Billiard Notes.	English.	Published by John W. Roberts & Co., 15, Patter's Road, Madras, printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	John W. Roberts, European, 42 years.	1,000

* Printer declared on 18th May 1914.
‡ Not published for the last two years.

† An old paper not previously reported.
§ Started, 23rd June 1914.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
365	Risála-i-Albadí ..	Urdu ..	Published at Darieha Bhowra; printed at Ansaria Press, Kasaratta, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Hussin, Muhammadan, 38 years.	500
366	Risála-i-Hifázat-e-Parwarish-i-Janwaran.	Urdu and Mahrati.	Deccan Punch Press, Mahbubpura (Govligunda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	R. Ramachandra Joshi, Brahman, 41 years.	125
367	Risála-i-Ifada	Urdu ..	Akhbar-i-Deccan Press, Mahbubpura (Govligunda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Mirza Nizam Shah Sahib, Muhammadan, 30 years.	500
368	Risála-i-Málgusári ..	Do. ..	Mahbub-ul-Nasair Press, outside the gate of Dabirpura near Alawa-i-Bibi, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Muhammad Wali-ur-rahman, Muhammadan, 33 years.	1,250
369	Risála-i-Rahbar-i-Musalmán.	Do. ..	Sahifa Press, Gun Foundry, Hyderabad, Deccan.	Do.	John Kenny, European, 54 years.	750
360	Risála-i-Táj	Do. ..	Mufid-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Abdul Wafa Ghulam Muhammad Sahib, Ansari Wafa, Muhammadan, 23 years.	1,000
361	Risála-i-Tarah-i-Usmanía.	Do. ..	Palace of Maharaja Sir Kishen Pershad Bahadur, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Sadiq Husain Sahib, Muhammadan, 34 years.	150
362	Risala-i-Zahira ..	Do. ..	Mufid-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Nasir-ul-Husain, Muhammadan, 30 years.	500
363	Sadguru	Tamil ..	Published at 87, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the Kalaratnakara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. Somasundaram Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	500
364	Sadhvi	Canarese	Krishnaraja Vani Vilasa Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	1,200
365	Sahaya	Telugu.	Brown Industrial Mission Press, Rajahmundry.	Monthly ..	Patagam Paradesi, Indian Christian, 40 years.	300
366	Sahifa	Urdu ..	Sahifa Press, Saltanpura, Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Muhammad Akbar Ali, Muhammadan, 32 years.	1,500
367	Sahridayá or the Sanskrit Journal.	Sanskrit.	Published at No. 66, Vellala Street, Purasawalkam, Madras; printed at Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Monthly ..	R. Krishnama Acharya, M.A., Brahman, 47 years.	500
368	Saiph-ul-Islam ..	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Vellore ..	Weekly ..	S. S. Maulvi Ahmed Saiyid Sahib, Muhammadan, 41 years.	500
369	Saivam	Do. ..	Published at the Chennai Sivanadiar Thiruhoctam, Georgetown; printed at the Saiva Vidyanupalana Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	I. Adimula Mudaliyar, Vellala, 52 years.	750
370	Sampad Abhyudaya or Wealth of Mysore.	Anglo-Canarese.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Daily ..	M.S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	500
371	Samudaya Deepika ..	Malayalam.	Edward Press, Cannanore ..	Monthly ..	K. Kuttiappa Nambiyar, Nayar, 48 years.	500
372	Samudaya Parishkarini.	Do.	The Travancore Printing and Publishing Company, Limited, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	A. P. Nayar, Nayar, 32 years ..	1,000
373	Sanatana Dharmam ..	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do. ..	M. S. Rama Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years	500
374	Sangita Prakasika ..	Tamil and Telugu.	Published at 13, Manibanda Mudali Street, Georgetown; printed at the Chandra Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Audikesavalu Nayudu, Balija, 29 years.	500
375	Sangita Sampradaya Deepikai.	Do.	Sarathi Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	S. V. Ranganayaki Ayyangar, Brahman, 30 years.	250
376	Sarva Vyapi ..	Tamil ..	Mission Press, Pondicherry ..	Weekly ..	Catholic priests	450
377	Sastibhasa	Telugu.	Vasilabha Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	G. Sesha Acharlu, Brahman, 57 years.	600
378	Satyabadi	Uriya ..	The Adela Press, Berhampur, Ganjam district	Monthly ..	Gopalanda Das, Brahman,	500
379	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Telugu.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. D. Anantam, Indian Christian, 64 years.	4,500
380	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Tamil ..	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. Lazarus, B.A., B.D., Indian Christian, 66 years.	2,300
381	Satyavadam ..	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin state.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father F. M. Hilaverath, Indian Christian, 39 years.	1,000
382	Satya Vahini	Canarese	Published at Hiddagere, Chamarajanagar Taluk, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	R. R. Purbina, European ..	600
383	Savinudi	Do.	Sharada Vilasa Press, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	B. Sampangi Ramayya, Brahman, 51 years.	1,000

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
284	School Days and Holidays.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	F. H. Oakley. European, 36 years.	600
285	Scientific Manuring ..	Anglo-Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Published by Parry & Co., printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. Bernard, European, 42 years.	1,000
286	Self-culture	English and Tamil (separate editions).	Excelsior Press, Kishanattam, Tinnevelly district.	Do. ..	K. T. Ramaswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 33 years.	700
287	Sentamil	Tamil ..	The Tamil Sangam Power Press, Madura.	Do. ..	Tirunarayana Ayyangar, Brahman, 52 years.	400
288	Sentamil Selvi ..	Do. ..	Published and printed at the Scottish Branch Press, Negapatam.	Weekly ..	K. Arunachala Tevan, Agamudaiyan, 46 years.	800
289	Shimoga Vrittanta	Canarese	Shimoga Union Printing Press, Shimoga, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Anantayya, Brahman, 40 years.	700
290	Siddhantam	Tamil ..	M. L. V. Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. P. Kalyanasundara Mudaliyar, Vellala, 61 years.	1,500
291	Sirunaha Jungle Pioneer.	English.	A.E.L.M. Press, Guntur ..	Quarterly.	Miss M. E. Tailer, European ..	250
292	Sivayogi Vilasam ..	Malayalam.	Spectator Press, Calicut ..	Monthly ..	Vaghadanandam V. K. Gurukhal, Tiyya, 27 years.	1,000
293	Social Reform Advocate.	English.	Published at 264, Thumbu Chetti Street, Georgetown, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Madras	Weekly ..	O. Kandaswami Chetti, Chetti, 48 years.	1,000
294	South Indian Mail.	Do.	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	R. Sundaram Ayyar, Brahman, 31 years.	600
295	South Indian Trade Journal.	Do.	Published at the South Indian Chamber of Commerce, Georgetown; printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road.	Monthly ..	P. N. Muthuswami Nayudu, Balija, 50 years.	1,000
296	South of India Observer.	Do.	Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Cranley Chambers, Ootacamund.	Weekly ..	J. A. Davies, European, 42 years.	600
297	Sowrashtrabhivirdhini.*	Tamil ..	Shanmugha Vilasam Press, Salem.	Monthly ..	V. K. Nannayya, Sowrashtra, 35 years.	150
298	S.P.G. College Magazine.	English.	Dodson Press, Trichinopoly.	Quarterly.	T. R. Khambara Ayyar, Indian Christian, 37 years.	300
299	S.P.G. High School Magazine.	Do.	Published at Trichinopoly, printed by the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do.	S. K. Daivasikamani, Indian Christian, 43 years.	500
300	Sri Krishna †	Canarese	Kaheera Nagara Press, Balepet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	B. G. S. Rajagopala Sarma ..	Not known.
301	Sri Krishna Raja Vijnana Vaibhava.	Canarese and Sanskrit	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Pandit D. Gunda Sastri, Brahman, 47 years.	400
302	Sri Krishna Sookti.	Canarese	Sadananda Press, Udipi, South Canara district.	Do. ..	K. Subba Rao, 42 years, and N. Rajagopala Krishna Rao, 32 years, Brahmans.	1,000
303	Sri Narasimha Prayoga Parijata Prahasanam.	Sanskrit.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Venkatesa Jois, 48 years, and Ramakrishna Bhatta, 49 years, Brahmans.	30
304	Sri Sankara Acharya.	Malayalam.	Published at Haripad, printed at the Keralavilasini Press, Mavelikara, Travancore state.	Do. ..	G. Govindan Namburi, Brahman, 37 years.	410
305	Sri Savitri	Telugu.	Savitri Press, Jagannyakpur, Godavari district.	Do. ..	P. Lakshmi Narasamma, Brahman, 35 years.	500
306	Sri Vani Vilasini.	Tamil ..	Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly dist.	Do. ..	T. K. Balasubrahmanya Ayyar, B.A., Brahman, 42 years.	1,000
307	St. Andrew's Church (The Kirk) Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do ..	Rev. N. Meldrum, European, 34 years	150
308	St. Mary's Magazine ..	Do.	Published at St. Mary's European High School, Georgetown, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Twice a year.	Rev. A. J. Vanderburg, European, 46 years.	300
309	Students' Own Magazine. ‡	Do.	Published at Messrs. T. S. Subrahmanya & Co., Georgetown; printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	P. Seshadri, Brahman, 24 years.	3,000

* Started, 6th May 1916.

† Revived, August 1916.

‡ Revived February 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
310	Subhashini	Anglo-Malayalam.	Srimulam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	P. K. Govinda Pillai, Nayar, 41 years.	1,240
311	Subh-i-Bahar	Urdu ..	Ahamadia Press, Mysore ..	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ali Sahib Azad, Muhammadan, 28 years.	550
312	Sudarsini	Telugu.	Sudarsini Press, Viswanathapuram, Godavari district	Fortnightly.	Kasturi Sivasankara Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	Not known.
313	Sujanamitram ..	Malayalam.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	K. P. K. Raphael, Indian Christian, 27 years.	800
314	Sukhabi Vridhini.	Tamil ..	Sukhabi Vridhini Press, Pondicherry.	Fortnightly.	Venkatachella Nayakar, Vanniya, 50 years.	100
315	Sukhadara Bodhini	Do. ..	Muslim Abhimani Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	H. B. Muhammad 'Abd-ul-lah, Muhammadan, 60 years.	250
316	Sunday School Lessons.	Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss H. McGregor and Mrs. Owen, Europeans.	4,000
317	Supantha	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	A. Mahadeva Sastri 54 years, and A. Venkatamayya, 49 years, Brahmans.	1,000
318	Suvarnalekha ..	Telugu.	Soudamini Press, Tanuku, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	D. V. Ramana Rao, Brahman, 34 years.	425
319	Svadharmaprabhasini.	Do.	Chandrika Press, Guntur ..	Monthly ..	K. Kotesvara Sarma, Brahman, 37 years.	500
320	Swadesamitthiran ..	Tamil ..	Swadesamitthiran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and Triweekly.	T. Visvanatha Ayyar, Brahman, 27 years, and A. Rangaswami Ayyangar, Brahman.	5,000
321	Swadesha Bandhu.	Do. ..	Mathuharavani Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	R. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	600
322	Swadeshabhimani.	Canarese	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Weekly ..	V. Shrinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 34 years.	1,000
323	Swadeshi (formerly the Bhaggedayam).	Anglo-Malayalam.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	K. Palpu Pillai, Nayar, 53 years, and A. Padmanabha Ayyar, Brahman, 40 years.	800
324	Tamilian	Tamil ..	Gautama Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	C. I. Pattabhiraman, Buddhist, 31 years.	500
325	Do.	Do. ..	Bhaskara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	S. Mathaswami Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	400
326	Tamil Perumatti * ..	Do. ..	Published at 486, Mint Street, Georgetown, printed at the Sri Subrahmanya Vilasam Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	V. R. Gaekwad alias Vasudeva Rao Gaekwad, Mahratti, 30 years.	Not known.
327	Taylor High School Magazine. †	English.	Published at the Taylor High School, Narsapur, Kistna district, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	A. Jayaram Rao, B.A., L.T., Brahman, 40 years.	Do.
328	Telugu Baptist ..	Telugu.	Albion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. H. E. Gullison, American, 49 years.	750
329	Telugu Churchman ‡ ..	Do.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Gondi David, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 33 years.	400
330	Telugu Law Journal ..	Do.	Telugu Law Journal Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly ..	T. Purushottam Pantulu, Brahman, 50 years.	300
331	Telugu Officer	Do.	Sri Kanyakaparameswari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district.	Do. ..	Brigadier Yesudasan, European, 44 years.	150
332	Temperance News. ‖	English.	Published at "Bonaly", Kgmore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s, Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. Moffat, M.A., B.Sc., Scotch.	Not known.
333	Tan India Vyavaharachintamani.	Tamil ..	Published in Purasawalkam, printed by the Penrose & Co.'s Nurjahan Press, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 42 years.	400
334	Then and Now	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. R. E. Berry, European ..	350
335	Theological Journal ..	Grantham, Nagari and Tamil.	Kalpadruman Press, Madura ..	Monthly ..	P. J. N. Srinivasa Sarma, Brahman.	900
336	Theory and Practice in Engineering. †	English.	Herehill & Co.'s Press, Phillips Street, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Padmanabha Mudaliyar, Vellala, 43 years.	1,000
337	Theosophist	Do.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	3,500
338	Travancore Abhimani.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	D. C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 30 years.	150
339	Travancore Times.	English.	Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	250
340	Trichinopoly Magazine.	Do.	Southern Star Press, Cantonment, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	The Chaplain of Trichinopoly ..	60

* Publisher declared on 29th May 1916. † Started, April 1916. ‡ Started, October 1916. ‖ Started, September 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
341	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Tamil, and Tamil.	American Mission Lenox Press, Pasumalai, Madura district.	Monthly ..	Rev. J. J. Banings, American, 38 years.	1,000
342	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Telugu and Telugu.	Published at Pasumalai, Madura district, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. Aaron Arthur, Indian Christian, 36 years.	625
343	United India and Native States.	English.	Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. K. S. Krishnaswami Ayyar Indian Christian, 50 years.	350
344	Uthal Madupa	Oriya.	Sri Gasapati Bhima Deo Press, Digapadi, Ganjam district.	Monthly ..	Neelamoni Bidyaratno, Brahman, 49 years.	1,225
345	Uttara Tharaka.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Basha Bhooshanam Press, Parur, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	C. M. Narayana Panikar, B.A., Nayar, 37 years.	1,200
346	Vaidyakalanidhi.	Tamil ..	Published at 7, Audiappa Mudali Street, Purasawakkam; printed by Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Pandit M. Damiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 32 years.	400
347	Vaidya Sindhu	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at Bangalore City, printed at Caxton Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Do ..	V. D. Pandit, Brahman, 44 years.	3,000
348	Vaicya Mittiran ..	Tamil ..	Vaicya Mittiran Press, Devakottai, Ramnad district.	Weekly ..	S. T. Ramanatham Chetti, Nattukottai Chetti, 43 years.	450
349	Vannikula Mittiran	Do. ..	Published at Perambur Barracks, (Kosapet); printed at T. A. Krishna & Co.'s Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. Subrahmanya Nayakar, Vannia, 36 years.	1,000
350	Varnasrama Dharmam.	English and Tamil (separate editions)	Published at the Varnasrama Dharma Rakshini Sabha, The Lee, Teynampet; printed at the Sivarahasyan Press, Park Town, Madras.	Do. ..	Managing Editor:—P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	1,000
351	Vartakamitran or Merchants' Friend.	Tamil ..	Commercial Press, Triplicane Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Natesa Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	..
352	Vedanta Dipika ..	Tamil with intermixture of Grantha types.	Kalaratnakaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Diwan Bahadur T. T. Ranga Acharya, Brahman.	600
353	Vedanta Kesari. ..	English.	Published at the Ramakrishna Mission, Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Swami Sarvanandu (Bengali), Brahman, 31 years.	1,000
354	Vedisr Vilakku or The Tamil Preacher's Magazine.	Anglo-Tamil.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. P. Shrimpton, B.A., European, 40 years.	400
355	Vidya Bhanu ..	Tamil ..	Dhana Vabiyan Press, Konapet, Pudukkottai State.	Bi-weekly.	S. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 53 years, and A. R. R. M. Subramania Chettiar, Nattukottai Chetti, 34 years.	700
356	Vidyadayini	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	B. Subba Rao, Brahman, 46 years.	1,761
357	Vidyananda	Sanskrit and Canarese	Caxton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Audinarayana Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	400
358	Vidya Nidhi	Telugu.	Published at N. Venkatarayulu & Sons, 87½, Ramaswami Street, and printed at the Kalaratnakaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Appayya, Brahman, 36 years.	600
359	Vignana Chintamani ..	Sanskrit.	Vignana Chintamani Press, Kudaparamba in Perumudiyur amsam, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	P. N. Nilakantha Sarma, Mussad, 48 years.	150
360	Vijaya Vihatan.* ..	Tamil ..	Vijaya Vihatan Press, Rayapuram, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	K. S. Kathiresu Nadar, Nadar, 38 years.	700
361	Vihata Prabha † ..	Canarese	Kolar Town Press, Kolar, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	B. M. Chakrapanayya, Balija, 36 years.	1,000
362	Vihata Vinodini ..	Do.	S.C.N. Press, Arlepet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	N. Sivarama Sastri, Brahman, 44 years.	600

* Temporarily discontinued, 26th September 1916. † Not published since 30th September 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
363	Vira Kesari ..	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at 2, Banmahayar Street near Elephant Gate Street, Georgetown; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Fortnightly.	G. Thulsi Ram Doss, Brahman, 42 years.	900
364	Visvakarma Kulopakari.	Tamil ..	Viswakulotharana Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Kanniappa Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	400
365	Visvakarman * ..	Do. ..	Published at the Visvakarma Kulotharana Sabha, Mint Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Kalyanasundra Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	600
366	Viveka Bodhini ..	Do. ..	Published at the General Supplies Co., Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	V. Kuppuswami Ayyar, Brahman, 31 years.	1,500
367	Viveka Chintamani.	Anglo-Tamil.	Published at Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. V. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 50 years.	700
368	Vivekavati	Telugu.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 36 years.	1,250
369	Vivekodayam	Malayalam.	Ananda Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	N. Kumaran Asan, Ezhuvan, 41 years.	600
370	Vokkaligara Patrike.	Canarese	Vokkaligara Sangha Press, Bangalore City.	Weekly ..	S. V. Venkataramayya, Vokkaliga, 37 years.	2,500
371	Vrittantamsu or The News. †	Telugu.	Srinivasa Press, 185, Mount Road Madras.	Daily ..	S. Seshachallam Ayyar, Brahman, 35 years.	300
372	Vrittanta Patrike.	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	7,000
373	Vyasa Nesan	Tamil ..	Published at 34, Thyagaraya Pillai Street, Mint Buildings Post office; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras	Monthly ..	K. A Tirugnanam Sambanda Chetti, Vaisya, 50 years.	300
374	Vyavasaya Mitram	Malayalam.	Tellicherry; printed at the Edward Press, Cannanore, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	K. Ryru Nambiar, Nayar, 50 years.	600
375	Water of Life	Tamil ..	Published by the Christian Brotherhood Association printed by the Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	G. D. Devadasan, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
376	Wealth of India ..	English.	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, Georgetown; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 48 years.	750
377	Wednesday Review.	Do.	Wednesday Review Press, Trichinopoly.	Weekly .	Rao Sahib S. M. Rajaram Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
378	Wesleyan Methodist Church Record.	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. O. Brown, European, 40 years.	350
379	West Coast Bulletin.	Do.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Alexander V. Kakranchery, Indian Christian, 29 years.	800
380	West Coast Reformer.	Do.	Reformer Press, Calicut ..	Triweekly.	P. A. Sankara Sastri, Brahman, 30 years.	1,200
381	West Coast Spectator.	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do.	M. S. Damodaran Nayar, Nayar, 33 years.	800
382	Western Star ..	Do.	Western Star Press, Trivandrum, Travancore state.	Do.	C. J. Kurian, Syrian Christian, 55 years.	600
383	Yathartha Vachani	Tamil ..	Published at Kumbakonam; printed at Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore	Weekly ..	T. V. Govindaswami Pillai, Vellala, 42 years	1,000
384	Yearly Digest of Indian and English cases.	English.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane and the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly, Quarterly and Annually.	R. Narayanaswami Ayyar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 33 years.	650
385	Yogakshemam .	Malayalam.	Kalpadruma Press of the Mangalodayam Company Limited), Trichur, Cochin State	Weekly ..	Parayil Raman Namburipad, Brahman, 36 years.	1,000
386	Young Men of India.	English.	Published at No. 84, College Street, Calcutta; printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	C. Carter, American	1,700
387	Yuddha Dhvani ..	Telugu.	Sri Kanyakaparameswari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district	Do. ..	Brigadier Yesudasan, European 48 years.	600

* Revived, January 1916.

† Temporarily discontinued, July 1916.

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka, of the 9th December, states:—"Hardly was the ink on our last issue dry when we learnt that, contrary to the hope expressed therein, Mr. H. H. Asquith had already relinquished the office he had so long adorned with such conspicuous courage and ability, and that Mr. Lloyd George had been invited by His Majesty to form the Government. That gifted Welshman—imaginative, purposeful and of marvellous energy—has accepted the Premiership, and he is likely to be assisted by Mr. Bonar Law and Sir Edward Carson both of whom were once his antagonists . . . With Mr. Asquith, goes out of the British Cabinet all that represented the heart of old Liberalism—the principles for which Bright and Gladstone fought—their lofty moral elevation, their scrupulous regard for the freedom of the individual, their unfailing humanity, their serenity, sanity and breadth of vision. For some months past, Mr. Asquith had been the object of venomous attacks in the Harmsworth press and a kind of parvenu spirit was abroad among the younger, more hot-blooded, and less staid politicians, conspiring to set at naught the cool and cautious policy of their elders . . . His exile from office will be regretted by all who love moderation and lofty idealism in politics. . . . As for India, the recent appointments are significant enough. Not only are the successors of Lord Hardinge and Lord Carmicheal very poor substitutes; but a wave of repression seems to be passing over the land. The Government of Bombay make no secret of the fact that they are actively helping the opponent of one of the most popular patriots of India. But perhaps, if England should suffer in one way, India should suffer in another."

The British Cabinet.

Karnataka, Bangalore City, Dec. 9th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the Hindu, of the 12th December, says:—"The composition of the New British Cabinet is of such a character that, whatever may be its effect on the operations of the war, it does not promise well for a sound administration of Indian affairs based upon accurate knowledge of Indian conditions and of India's place in the empire. The recent appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as Governor of Bengal had given us a plain indication of the scant regard with which Indian public opinion was apt to be treated by Mr. Austen Chamberlain. His tenure of office as Secretary of State for India has not been hitherto fruitful of good to the interests of India in any manner. There has been no discussion of the Indian Budget in Parliament and no opportunity given for criticism of the Indian administration. The people of India have no voice in the determination of matters essential to their welfare in the internal administration, much less have they any part or lot in the shaping of Imperial policy. . . It is with a feeling akin to disappointment that the news of Mr. Chamberlain retaining the office of Secretary for India will be received in most parts of the country. We do not find the name of Lord Hardinge and Mr. Montague among the members. It is quite clear from the personnel of the Cabinet, that Mr. Chamberlain's guide and mentor in respect of Indian matters will be Lord Curzon, who is to be the Lord President of the Council and the Leader of the House of Lord. As far as we can judge Lord Curzon is the only Minister in the Cabinet who is conversant with Indian affairs, but his knowledge, experience and guiding hand in regard to Indian administration, are what people of this country would like to do without. The Leader of the House of Commons with the office of Chancellor of the Exchequer is Mr. Bonar Law, who as Secretary of State for the Colonies in the last administration blundered badly in dealing with matters arising out of the Ceylon riots."

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

New India, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

2. New India, of the 11th December, writes:—"Reuter states that the German sub-marine cargo-steamer Deutschland has safely got back to the Weser in Germany after a rapid voyage across the Atlantic One cannot but wonder at the pluck shown by this steamer, and even if it be an enemy steamer, it deserves our unstinted praise. No sane person can have any sympathy with the ruthless submarining activity shown by the Teuton Powers, but this plucky craft deserves to be congratulated on its rapid and safe voyage. It appears that the British Admiralty needs a more watchful look-out on the seas if this trans-Atlantic shipping system is to be systematically accepted by the Central Powers. It would mean practically a negation of the blockade."

The plucky Deutschland.

New India, Madras, Dec. 13th, 1916.

3. New India, of the 13th December, observes:—"A cable arrives this afternoon that the Central Powers and their Allies have addressed to the Governments composing the Entente of identical notes, expressing their willingness to enter into peace negotiations. Von Bethmann-Hollweg has announced in the Reichstag that 'Germany and her Allies, conscious of their responsibility before God, before their own Nations and humanity, propose today to the hostile Powers to enter into peace negotiations.' It is sad that fire-eating Lloyd George should have become the Premier of Great Britain in the place of Mr. Asquith just as these proposals are made. But even Mr. Lloyd George can hardly refuse to consider the proposals made, and insist on continuing the War without trying, if it be possible, to end it. It would be inhuman to insist on continuing the slaughter if there be any hope of ending it, and at least a truce might be arranged for the winter on the basis of the status quo."

Peace proposals.

II.—Home Administration.

(b) Courts.

People's Opinion, Trivandrum, Dec. 9th, 1916.

4. In an article on this subject, the People's Opinion, for the week ending 9th December, says:—"We are glad to hear that Mr. Tilak has served a notice on the Madras Mail in connection with the recent malicious attacks made by that paper. We hope that unless the Editor chooses to retract his words and make ample reparation, as the Editor of the Times of India has done, Mr. Tilak will not let slip this opportunity of teaching some of these Anglo-Indian public organs how they should speak and write of Indian Public men. It is a pity that while Indian Editors are now and then hauled up by the authorities to answer this charge or that on the ground of public safety and order, the Anglo-Indian Editors enjoy an immunity from such a fate even though they, with but few exceptions, dip their pen in gall and wormwood in speaking of Indian aspirations and Indian leaders. Not content with merely possessing superior wisdom, these catch hold of every available occasion to throw mud at those who cannot see eye to eye with the bureaucracy in the discussion and settlement of political questions affecting Indian interests. . . Unmeasured language and violent diatribes are as bad from the mouth and pen of an Anglo-Indian as from those of an Indian. In the name of amity and good will which should subsist between the two great races whose fortunes have been cast together by Providence, the Anglo-Indian writers of the rabid order should be made to feel that it is not always safe for them to transgress the bounds of law. The reply of the Madras Mail, in the present case, is scarcely one which will satisfy Mr. Tilak and put an end to this sorry episode."

The Madras Mail and the Tilak appeal case.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 9th, 1916.

5. The West Coast Spectator, of the 9th December, states:—"The President of the local Civil Bench Court would do well to exercise a little more care to permitting people to practise at his bar. All sorts and conditions of men—men with little or no status or social position and of questionable antecedents—are now permitted to appear and plead. As a result petty-fogging is going on and instances wherein these 'barristers' have swindled parties have come to our notice. The profession of a pleader is noble, and it is undesirable that it should be prostituted by ex-vagabonds ex-pan-sellers and ex-bredi wallas who have drifted on to the bench through the undue leniency of the presiding gentleman. . . We have no doubt that now that the matter has been brought to Mr. Rosario's notice, he will exercise more care in the grant of permission to the common or garden lawyer whose chamber is in the tea-shop or in tavern and who goes by the common name of 'one-anna vakil.'"

The Calicut Bench Court.

Writing on this subject, the West Coast Spectator, of the 12th December, says:—"A few vacancies on the local Bench of Magistrates have fallen vacant We think it our duty to reiterate now what we have off and on being saying on the matter of nominations. A certain type of official thinks that any chapkan walla is good enough for the Bench. We have seen Honorary Magistrates prostituting their position for a couple of eggs or a bunch of plantains. And we have known 'their worships' who regularly haunt law courts earning a handful of silver daily by attesting vakalats and affidavits. Such men not only bring the administration of criminal justice through honorary agency into contempt, but constitute a positive danger, being susceptible to the persuasive touch of the potent rupee which is potent enough to perpetrate miscarriage of justice."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 12th, 1916.

(e) Jails.

Indians in the Jail department.

6. The Indian Patriot, of the 9th December, remarks:—"In reply to an interpellation of the Hon'ble Mr. Akalla Suryanarayana Rao, the interesting information was available that we have in the Jail department only one Indian Superintendent and three jailors; if we add two acting jailors, the total number of Indians in positions of trust and responsibility comes to the magnificent number of six. We have six Superintendentships of the first class with four acting or sub. pro tem appointments, making a total of ten. Not one of them is an Indian. In the second class there are five: here again, not one is Indian; out of the five Superintendents in the third class, we have one solitary Indian, drawing a salary of Rs. 375. . . We ask the Government whether any extrordinary qualification is possessed by the Europeans and Anglo-Indians to handle criminals. If, as we believe, the ideal jail is a place where earnest efforts are made to blow into life any stray spark of the higher man among the criminals, almost the first essential in the men of authority over them ought to be knowledge of them, and facility to talk to them, and lead them aright. . . The old idea of a jailor being called upon to constantly keep the criminal in check and therefore requiring more of the military than the civil spirit, must give way. We trust the criminal to the Salvation Army, thereby acknowledging the principle that the wayward man is more amenable to love than force. . . We do not know the educational qualifications of the European and Anglo-Indian jailors and Superintendents of Jails. But we can find many an Indian graduate of character and refinement to accept those positions. Constant contact with such men would, in itself, be a stimulus for effort on the part of the criminal for improvement. Indians need not be so systematically kept out of the Jail department where we think they are most fitted. With the change in the angle of jail vision, which Sir Harold Stuart has inaugurated, we hope that the very necessary step will be taken of introducing a higher Indian element in our jails."

Indian Patriot, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

(d) Education.

The Patna University Bill and the Madras Syndicate.

7. The Hindu, of the 9th December, observes:—"The Syndicate of the University of Madras has, we are informed, replied to the Local Government who referred the Patna University Bill to it, that it has no opinion to offer. This is an amazing answer coming from a body which does not particularly practise moderation when it opposes popular views. . .

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

It is because we think that the Syndicate, which consists of a majority of Europeans, is not in disagreement with the main provisions of the Bill which gives to the people of the Behar a University only in name, with absolutely no place for popular representatives and completely bereft of independence, that it has assumed this superior attitude. The Bill, it must be remembered, is condemned universally, by Indian and influential Anglo-Indian journals, and the people of Behar who asked for bread, now indignantly refuse the gift which they find is nothing but stone. In these circumstances, if the Syndicate in Madras sympathised with this view, it should have said so. What are we to think of a body, consisting of the pick, as it is claimed, of the members of the Senate, which has decades of University administration behind it, and manages an institution which, according to its official apologists, has earned a name for aiming at higher standard of efficiency than in other Universities, should now say that it cannot express an opinion on a measure of such a retrograde character. . . To those, who have followed its doings, it is clear that the public have in the Syndicate a reactionary body, with a European majority, which is not responsive to the new ambitions surging in the breasts of Indians, treats with contempt public opinion and looks with apprehension on the spread of the University idea."

New India, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

Free and compulsory elementary education.

8. New India, of the 12th December, writes:—"The defeat of the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Patel in the Bombay Legislative Council requesting that primary education may be gradually made compulsory in municipal areas deserves more than passing attention. . . What does the attitude of the Government mean? In spite of all that has taken place in this country and in the world since Mr. Gokhale moved his resolution on that subject in the Imperial Council, the policy of the Government has remained the same. . . The fact is that so far as the present angle of vision is concerned, there is to be no change worth the name in the field of education. . . Finally, we shall refer to the plea that it rests with the Government of India to decide when education shall be made compulsory. To us that argument conveys no meaning. Are we to suppose that if the Bombay Government were resolutely in favour of the reform, the Government of India would have repressed their enthusiasm? Lord Willingdon will, perhaps, be surprised to know, in this connection, that when a similar resolution was moved last year in the Madras Council, the local Government did not put forward any such plea. The resolution was discussed mainly on its own merits. What does that indicate? The fact is that the Government of Bombay is thoroughly reactionary, and is no more inclined to encourage educational, than to encourage political, reform. Its one idea seems to be to do nothing beyond repression and War Funds. But neither of these is governing India."

Indian Patriot, Madras, Dec. 13th, 1916.

Students and education.

9. The Indian Patriot, of the 13th December, remarks:—"Nothing is a more common spectacle nowadays than students certified to be qualified for higher classes running to colleges but to find no seats. The doors of the college are closed against them. They have fully blown school-final certificates. They have got excellent character and their teachers and parents have very high hopes of their future. . . The very fact that the school-final of Madras has been changed creates a suspicion in our minds whether or not our school boys are being sacrificed for want of space in colleges or other educational institutions. Nothing is more cruel than that our youngmen, the future of the country, should be sacrificed most recklessly. . . It is meaningless torture of Indian students that they should be compelled to go through years of study in colleges, that they should be graduates before they can appear for the B.L. examination. . . The system of education in India is rotten from top to bottom. The system had its origin at the time of the East India Company, to find clerks for the European merchants. They wanted Indians who should know English. That system is being handed from father to son with some changes here and there, but the old ideal remains. This ideal must be knocked down. We educate our young men not that they should be clerks in offices, but that they should be citizens of an empire that is to rise. . . Ramanujam who was a 15 rupees clerk in the Custom-house (because he could not pass his B.A., on account of lack of knowledge of English) is now considered to be the greatest mathematician of the world. Under the Indian system of education he had absolutely no other go than to enter the Custom-house with a small salary. Such is our system. It kills intelligence; in fact, it seems to be a special system to keep back our youngmen. . . To those who want to learn science, we refuse the knowledge of science because they have not a sufficient knowledge of English; to those who want to learn mathematics, we say no, because they have not sufficient knowledge of history. In no other civilised country would this cruel sacrifice be tolerated a minute. . . We very much fear that education for a large majority of your youngmen means a fall in the standard of living. Instead of attacking this system and demanding a wholesale change, we find the Anglo-Indian papers crying that the examinations are too easy and must be made more difficult. They want that more youngmen should be kept down in the lower classes; in other words that education should be denied to them. We cry for compulsory education but here are people, who want to deny us education. To the Indian patriot there is not a more sorrowful situation than the present. We appeal to the Anglo-Indian papers not to thus openly display their animosity towards Indian aspirations."

10. New India, of the 14th December, states:—"Elsewhere will be found full extracts from the very interesting address of Dr. Ganesh Prasad, who presided at the annual meeting of the Indian Association for the cultivation of science at Calcutta. He speaks at length on the admirable research work of Indian mathematicians which compares very favourably with that of foreign researchers, once again showing how Indians can not only hold their own, but even surpass the talents of Westerners. Without meaning to do so, Dr. Prasad gives a blow to the much praised Indian Educational Service, composed of 'experts,' for he says that, except Dr. C. E. Cullis, 'in the whole of India there is at present no other permanent member of the Indian Educational Service who has done any creditable research work in mathematics.' . . Well, if a scientist like Dr. P. C. Roy does not belong to that Expert Service, if a historian like Jadu Nath Sarkar, cannot belong to it, then it is not surprising that this eminent tutor is kept out of it, as the world-famed Dr. Prasad himself is out of it. Mathematics, in spite of its unerring laws, cannot straighten the curves of a crooked administration, and so mathematicians follow the fate of scientists and historians. Sir K. G. Gupta could not become a Lieutenant-Governor, because he has colour in his skin; so have Dr. Roy and Mr. Sirkar and Dr Prasad and Mr. Hari Prasanna Bannerji, and many others; what if they have greater intellects, more capacity, wider knowledge? They cannot become 'experts'. Of course, it is in line with our local genius who failed to pass the Madras University test, and who is now referred to in the address thus:

Indian mathematicians.

New India, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

> I am glad to say Mr. Ramanujam has added fresh laurels to his brow and has published an important paper on 'Certain Arithmetical Functions'.

"Dr. Prasad's address is an excellent commentary on the colour bar."

(c) Local and Municipal.

11. The West Coast Spectator, of the 12th December, has the following:—"The executive of our local boards and municipalities have the peculiar way of springing their respective budgets on the members as surprise packets. They are not given any opportunity either to study or even to glance through the figures, but the executive expect the members to set the mark of their approval on these documents on trust. This is a procedure unheard of in any representative assembly, and Mr. Vasudevan Nambudripad was perfectly justified when he strongly protested on Saturday last against the District Board budget being literally rushed through.

Municipal and Local Board budgets.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 12th, 1916.

"The President attempted a reply. He said that the figures were intricate and unintelligible for the lay man, and therefore he did not think it necessary to circulate the draft among the members. Why then the farce of asking the members to sanction it? The Executive could draft the budget and forward it straight without the mockery of passing it 'unanimously' in meeting. On the whole, it is time the Government did away with this farce and insisted upon the executive giving the members of local bodies ample time to study the budgets and to offer criticism.

"The present procedure makes the members mere nodding nominees and assentees of a patronising executive, who think it an act of grace even to place the budget before them. It creates irresponsibility, converts the members into veritable counterparts of Madame Tussaud's exhibits animated effigies, dancing and singing to the wirepulling from behind."

(h) Railways.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 12th, 1916.

Railways and Absentee Industrialism.

12. The West Coast Spectator, of the 12th December, writes:—"It is startling news that comes from Delhi that under the direction of the Railway Board, as dictated by the recent Railway Conference, at which it must be remembered, Indian interests were not represented, the railway administrations have cut down, or are about to cut down, their train services. On this coast we are given to understand that only the mail and passenger trains will survive this cutting down and that those very useful and convenient shuttle-trains will entirely be stopped. We do not know what has led to this drastic 'reform' to be introduced at the cost of the tax-payer who has to pay colossal sums every year to maintain these railways, and in certain cases to increase the dividends of the English shareholders. . . The railways are mainly, if not entirely, constructed to serve Indian interests, and even in lean and anxious years, the Government find capital to finance existing lines and proposed ventures They never stint money for rolling stock; and in matters of railway administration they have often acted in direct opposition to the people's wishes in their anxiety to serve the interests of the European capitalist. . . The railways are practically owned by the State; almost the whole of the capital is supplied by the Government, only seven per cent being subscribed by the managing companies, and that being the case the tax-payer has every right to demand that the wishes of the administrations should be but subordinate to those of his representatives or the Government. . . It is becoming increasingly clear that the companies look first to their dividends and secondly to the convenience and comforts of those who have to pay for the show. . . The remedy lies in the complete nationalisation of railways, in the vesting of power in Boards formed and working in India, with seats reserved for purely Indian interests. The administration as represented by the Agent should have power only over the internal working of the line, without any authority to dictate policies or to disregard public opinion and convenience. The Railway Board created with a flourish of trumpets has miserably failed to justify its existence, proving itself a mere white elephant. It has failed to protect public interests, and the sooner it is done away with the better. We hope that one of the post-war problems will be the complete nationalisation of railways."

New India, Madras, Dec. 15th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, New India, of the 15th December, says:—"The decision of the Railway Board to curtail the number of trains is so much enshrouded in mystery that it has become very difficult to put forward any helpful criticism. . . It is, indeed, a misfortune that such inefficiency has been permitted to develop, specially in view of the heavy cost of the administration that has now to be borne, though indirectly, by the Indian tax-payer; but perhaps it will serve no purpose to discuss that point any further, though in these critical times, no Indian can afford to forget it.

"It will perhaps be more profitable to ask: who ought to bear the brunt of the inconvenience due to this measure of war economy? It is a matter of common knowledge that some of our trains are full of second and first class carriages. They occupy on an average at least a third of every train; and in some cases as in the Mettupalaiyam Mail, they take up more than a half. And it is well known that every such carriage reduces the number of possible passengers by forty to sixty, if not even more. For instance, if the Mettupalaiyam Mail is to have only third-class passengers, it will carry at least ten times as many as it does at present. . . Our Railway Companies are always very lukewarm in undertaking a reform for the benefit of the poorer passengers, though it is their money which contributes the bulk of the profits; secondly, it will compel the richer passengers to travel in third class. They should not grumble at it when they raised the price of even salt by twenty-five per cent to the poor; but even in these days of war, sacrifices are asked from those who are least able to bear them. We would, however, add one other suggestion to make our proposals less preposterous in the eyes of the rich. Let them, if they require the comforts of the first-class travel, pay as much as their poorer fellow-passengers pay for the space they secure. In other words, our suggestion is that the first and second class passengers ought to pay at least twice. if not thrice, as much as they are paying now. If that be done, fewer people will so travel, and that will, as we have indicated, be an advantage to the company. . . It is most cruel that the poorer passengers are to be put to greater inconveniences than they have to tolerate at present. If, in addition, the powers that be should add insult to injury by permitting the present arrangements to continue, no further testimony is needed that the persons responsible for the changes ought, in the interests of the people and Government, to make room at once for more sensible people. So far as the public are aware, the affairs of our railways have never been administered with conspicuous statesmanship. That could be tolerated in ordinary times; but in these days of stress, the Government of India ought to see that mismanagement is reduced to a minimum."

(k) General.

13. New India, of the 6th December, has the following:— New India, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

The Tinctorial Expert's report.

"Indian interests.

The Hindu and the Madras Times naturally take different views of the interests of Indian dyers. . . The Hindu is disappointed. Why? That British merchants should be allowed to use the war to destroy an Indian industry while India is begged to pour out treasure and raise loans for the war should surely cause no disappointment. We are not in the least disappointed, because we expected nothing else. But we think the British traders are first-class Home Rule propagandists. Why should not the War Relief Fund be used to support the dyers, who are being ruined by British traders through the war?"

The West Coast Reformer, of the 10th December, writes:—"At a monthly expenditure of over thousand rupees, the Madras Government are maintaining a Dyeing Expert. It appears he was brought down with the laudable idea of assisting and developing the dyeing industry which is one of the ancient and important industries of South India and on which thousands of families depend for their livelihood while still larger numbers depend for their comfort in costumes. . . Dr. Marsden, the Dyeing Expert, has been surveying and reporting all these years. No public good has come out of this, and the Government have neither asked him to stop his reports nor arrived at a conclusion as to the future programme of the expert. The public have been disappointed and are wondering why the expert is still retained at increasing cost in spite of the financial stress and the cult of economy consequent on the war. . . Dr. Marsden's quarterly reports are more or less readable essays. They are the products of a critical examination of the habits and conditions of the hereditary dyers as seen through the spectacles of a western scientist. They portray the dyer as an illiterate, incorrigible, indolent, poverty-stricken and altogether hopeless entity; and the indigenous dye-stuffs as an unrealisable shadow of ancient history. . . The latest quarterly essay of Dr. Marsden is now before us. While we find in it as in the previous essays nothing of practical advantage, we are glad to find something of a wholesome change in the tone of his dissertation. Here he does not abuse the dyers; and as regards the question of reviving indigenous dyes, though he still disagrees with the United Provinces expert, he is more reasonable than the Government reply showed. . . Latterly our expert found little, rather less, scope for work in his own line. So he was directed to put his expert hand in the booming factories of the Department of Industries. He worked sometime at leather, sometime at paper. and sometime at pencils. 'And besides this' he concludes, 'I have assisted in the general work of the department'. Is this not a strange record of a dyeing expert's services? Is it not time to put a stop to these discouraging and profitless quarterly essays? Would it not be wiser to allot this thirteen thousand rupees a year for educating four scholars in Europe or for aiding a promising local industry?"

West Coast Reformer, Calicut, Dec. 10th, 1916.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 7th, 1916.

The forthcoming Congress and Home Rule.

14. The West Coast Spectator, of the 7th December, observes:—"The Congress must be up and doing. Instead of wrangling over impossible ideals and indulging in a three days' intellectual banquet enlivened by oratorical pyrotechnics it would do well to take in hand practical work and arrange a strong deputation to England. We would urge on the Congress the desirability of supporting the scheme faintly outlined by Sir Krishna Gupta, if it wants to get patient hearing in England, and unceremoniously reject the fantastic schemes drawn up by certain people. In our opinion, the scheme drawn up by the Hindu-Moslem leaders can safely be accepted. We understand that certain erstwhile Extremists have decided to press on the Congress a scheme of their own, and that is why we strike the warning note.'

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 7th, 1916.

The Madras Provincial Congress Committee and Non-Brahmans.

15. The West Coast Spectator, of the 7th December, writes:—"We are glad that our recent remarks on the Brahman preponderance and aggression in the Provincial Congress Committee have been widely quoted in the non-Brahman press. It is time we smashed this aggression and asserted our rights. We know there are several Brahman leaders in Madras above party feelings, but they have been pushed on to the back ground by a few busy bodies. These people should be sent about their business, and if they are not prepared to give sufficient representation to non-Brahmans, we would suggest that the latter should not contribute a pie to the funds of the Provincial Committee and the Mahajana Sabha

"We hope that dominated by the Brahman clique these two bodies will not make fools of themselves by passing resolutions against the Madras Mail for its attitude towards Mrs. Besant and Mr. Tilak. They may pass any number of resolutions, but how are they going to give effect to them? Surely, the Madras Mail will not put down shutters, pull down the sign board and break up the establishment to please a handful of patriots. We condemn the Madras Mail's violent writings, but a newspaper has every right to ventilate its own views and we can only appeal to its good sense. . . Salem Vijayaraghava Achariya, C. Karunakara Menon, Kesava Pillai, T. M. Nayar and others of the old school have been thrown over board, because they have refused to beat the big drum of Home Rule, to cry for the moon, and to pander to the vanity of a few younger men obsessed with the idea that the old men are fools and they alone infallible. There was a time when the Presidency was glad to follow their lead, but it is now the idealist who bosses the show, the mere nobodies of yesterday who, outside their immediate surroundings exercise the least influence and carry no weight whatever."

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

Presidency Banks and Indian enterprise.

16. The Hindu, of the 9th December, remarks:—"The same old tale of woes with regard to the financial help rendered by the Banks to Indian enterprise which has so keenly been felt in this Presidency comes also from Bengal. . . There are practically no indigenous Banks in Bengal except one small institution. The Exchange Banks are interested in the financing of foreign exports and imports. Looking to the Bank of Bengal we find the history of the Bank of Madras in this Presidency repeated exactly in several particulars. On the authority of our contemporary Capital, the leading organ of the Anglo-Indian community, the Directorate of the Bank of Bengal is 'a very close borough confined to certain favoured firms.' Like the Bank of Madras it has made a speciality of excluding Indians from the Board of Directors. The Bank of Bengal was established in 1806, but so far as we know, has never had an Indian Director. We hope when the Secretaries and Directors of the Bank of Bengal and Madras appear as witnesses, the Industries Commission will try to ascertain why this European monopoly is created on the Board of these two Presidency Banks, as we hear these complaints mostly from the parts of the country served by them. Certain witnesses at Delhi and Lucknow have made a similar complaint before the Commission and the memorial of the Southern India Chamber of Commerce is yet fresh in our memory and the recent letter of Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya in which he has shown clearly what little help Indian enterprises get in this Presidency owing to the absence of Indians on the Board of the Bank. The Indian Industrial Commission as Sir Dorab Tata has truly remarked 'ought to go into the matter fully in order to remove the abuse'".

17. New India, of the 9th December, writes:—"The Press Note published elsewhere gives the report of the Hon'ble Mr. Buckley who was deputed by the Government of Madras to ascertain what measures are necessary to relieve distress in the regions affected by the recent cyclone. . . The immediate attention of the Government ought, no doubt, to be directed towards the prevention of starvation; but that will certainly not end their responsibility. In the first place they ought to take a more manlike view of the situation than Mr. Buckley seems inclined to do. We do not at all understand his attitude towards the destruction of irrigation works. Are we to suppose that the Government of this Province, employing thousands of hands, are not able to find men enough to supervise the repair of a few irrigation works in four taluks? If they are not able to do this, the only conclusion possible is that the Public Works Department has been administered most inefficiently. Secondly, the Government ought to take prompt measures to supply cattle to the ruined villages. If the matter be left to the people themselves, unassisted in any way by the State, the economic result to the district as a whole will be disastrous. . . If the havoc had been confined to a few villages, such procrastination would perhaps be pardonable. But the distress is now spread over too vast an area and is too acute to be handled on any hasty or ill-considered plan."

New India, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The effects of the cyclone.

18. In a leader on this subject, New India, of the 9th December, says:—"On account of the war, the steady propaganda of the Indian public in favour of our industrial progress, which did not produce any tangible results in the past many years, is bearing fruit, and the Government have sent out a Commission which is now busy in the country. It is but natural therefore that the promoters of the Industrial Conference should be more alive to their duty, and we are not surprised that the office of the General Secretary, the Hon'ble Rao Bahadur R. N. Mudholkar, at Amraoti, should have issued a circular letter to the Press and the Indian publicists, asking for advice and suggestions. It is our intention to examine this document somewhat carefully in the interests of the conference itself. We regret that in doing so we have to point out the defects in the working of this conference, but the matter is too important to be allowed to drag on from year's end to year's end in this fashion. It is a well-known fact that the Industrial Conference is more or less a one-day show, and its work throughout the year is nil. It has no representative local committees in our cities, and all its proceedings are guided by the Amraoti office, with the help of a Standing Committee scattered over the whole of India, which need not be, and most likely is not, consulted . . . This kind of negligence in the General Secretary's office is most deplorable, especially as the Industrial Conference ought to be run on strictly business lines. The Special Committee appointed to draft the constitution was to have reported by 31st March last, and we are in the second week of December and know nothing about it. On making enquiries we find that nothing has been done. Who is responsible for this? . . . A hint is dropped in clause (d) of the circular as to collecting funds, and yet if we turn to the latest report made available for the year 1914 we find only the 'Summary of accounts' submitted by the General Secretary and it is not even audited. We turn to previous volumes and we find that the accounts of the conference have never been audited. We do not suggest the slightest lack of honesty on the part of anyone, but certainly the unbusinesslike way of not having audited accounts cannot but be condemned by the thoughtful public. We will give but one instance to show the value of auditing the accounts.

New India, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The Industrial Conference.

"The last report which came to hand only a few weeks ago is that of the Madras Session of 1914; the Bombay Session Report is not yet out, though we are within a month of meeting of the next Conference. Casually looking at this 'Summary of Accounts' we find this entry—

"Closing balance at the end of 1909 inadvertently omitted to be brought forward in 1910, Rs. 3,766-14-7.

"What does this mean? It means that nearly four thousand rupees remain unaccounted for in the Conference reports for five years. This item of Rs. 3,766-14-7 did not appear in the accounts published in the Reports for 1910, 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1914. Surely this should have been impossible. To be lenient in our strictures, we will say that this was due to mere carelessness in the General Secretary's office; but that supports our contention that in the absence of a constitution and a reliable and responsible body to guide the affairs of the Conference, things have come to such a pass. This last account shows a balance of Rs. 7,192-12-1, but the report does not tell us where this amount is invested? What rate of interest is it getting? In fact, we do not find any realisation of interest. This again is a matter that needs the attention of the Conference. A constitutional body with a Central Government would never have allowed its balance to be thus treated, and what of the interest since 1910 of the Rs. 3,766-14-7?

"We do not see the meaning of the General Secretary's office issuing this circular letter when they have singularly failed in doing their legitimate duty and attending in a proper manner to the wishes of the Madras and Bombay Conferences. It will be the paramount duty of the Lucknow Session to put the affairs of the Industrial Conference straight. Business habits and methodical ways are essential parts of industrial concern, and the Industrial Conference above all should carry on its work in a thoroughly business-like manner. This has not been done in the past."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The Government of Bombay and Sir Valentine Chirol.

19. The West Coast Spectator, of the 9th December, states:—"It was an astonishing statement the Bombay Government made the other day in the Legislative Council in reply to a question by the Hon'ble Mr. Kamath. They had the courage to state that they had lent the service of two clerks to Sir Valentine Chirol to translate certain documents in connection with Mr. Tilak's case against that valiant knight of the pen. It is not often that the Government give such facilities to private parties in suits, and the generosity of the Bombay Government, and their anxiety to help Sir Valentine against their own subjects, must necessarily give room for adverse comment.

"The action of the Bombay Government lends colour to the widespread belief that they are behind Sir Valentine Chirol. And we can now understand why that person has been hovering about the Imperial and Bombay Government Houses. It is most regrettable--not to say impolitic—that the Local Government should have mixed themselves up in the business, that does not concern them in any way. The widespread condemnation the announcement has elicited must, at least now, lead the Government to back out of the transaction."

20. The West Coast Spectator, of the 9th December, remarks:—"Asked about the Annie Besant affair, the Government of Bombay said that further discussion of the matter was not, in the opinion of the Government, 'conducive to public interest'. By public interest we suppose they meant 'Government's interest'. The Central Provinces Government were more candid than their Bombay compeers, and they attempted to justify their position. We think that public interests would better have been served by a candid disclosure of the reasons that led Lord Willingdon to take an extraordinary step towards an harmless old lady."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 9th, 1916.

Mrs. Besant and the Bombay order.

21. Referring to the remarks of the Modern Review that Mrs. Besant's speeches and writings do not endanger public safety or the British Government New India, of the 12th December, says:—"For twenty-three years Mrs. Besant has lectured all over India, and in the two places in which she has made her home—Benares and Madras—she has been the centre of ceaseless activities. But these activities have done harm to none. For the first thirteen years, Government was hostile, and suspected her, and the great educational movement embodied in the Central Hindu College was branded by Sir Antony Macdonnell as seditious, because it struck out a new line of independence. With Lord Minto's coming, things changed and suspicion went underground. Under Lord Hardinge it revived. It is all very childish, this suspicion, and more or less annoying. The persecution of New India, the exclusion orders of Bombay and the Central Provinces are all foolish. Mrs. Besant can only visit a certain limited number of places if left alone; but the Local Governments stir up hundreds of places, set on foot and maintain widespread agitation all over India, and create big waves where Mrs. Besant could only have created ripples. She sits quietly at home, and watches them doing her work. With so little wisdom is India misgoverned."

New India, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

Mrs. Annie Besant.

22. The West Coast Spectator, of the 9th December, observes:—"Some of our contemporaries are publishing interesting letters on Indian Christians and their place in nationalism. . . . The pernicious advice has gone round that the Indian Christians should assume an attitude of isolation, and that they should have nothing to do with either Hindus or Mussalmans who are alleged to look to their own interests and have subscribed to a propaganda of self-aggrandisement. This is an old, old clap-trap intended to delude people, used with a certain amount of success to keep Hindus and Moslems apart from each other. Time has exposed the utter hollowness of this theory, and our Moslem friends have now come round to see through the tactics and to join forces with the much maligned Hindu. We are unable to see how Indian Christians will be gainers by assuming an attitude of splendid isolation and refusing to have anything to do with national movements or organisations. They have before them the example of the Eurasians. These latter have neither advanced in influence nor improved their material or communal prospects by the sort of special treatment they get from the Government probably as the reward for keeping aloof from the Congress and Conferences. Europeans and Anglo-Indians receive a few crumbs of office thrown to them by a patronising administration, they have content themselves with subordinate positions in the public service, and we know that as a community their influence either on the administrative or its general policy is practically negligible. . . . He is an enemy to the interests of the motherland who attempts to keep the Indian Christian away from the other communities, and it will be a very good and happy day for India when Christian and Hindu, Moslem and Buddhist, are merged into one common nationality, all looking forward to the early realisation of the goal looming in the distance, and the individual announcing with pride that he is a son of India."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 9th, 1916.

Indian Christians and nationalism.

23. The West Coast Spectator, of the 9th December, remarks:—"We continue to receive communications on the Basel German Mission, especially on the vagaries of some of its Missionaries who have been left to roam about by reason of their nationality. From the letters we have already published, it will be seen that our Indian Christian brethren feel rather very keen on the situation. It is not good policy that the subjects of His Majesty should be left to the tender mercies of people who though not Germans actually must have imbibed their tendencies by close association and comradeship with the Huns. We think the time has come for the Collector of Malabar to interfere.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The Basel Mission.

"We do not suggest that these Swiss Missionaries should be removed. All that we demand is that the allegations raised by our correspondents being of a serious nature should not be allowed to pass unnoticed. The Indian Church is strong and wide enough, we suppose, to supply men to replace these alien Missionaries whose spiritual government and Kaiser-spirit is resented by a very large section of the congregation. The Lord Bishop of Madras is shortly expected on a pastoral visit, and it is to be hoped that his Lordship will hold a thorough and searching enquiry."

Non-Brahmin, Madras, Dec. 10th, 1916.

The Madras Legislative Council.

24. The Non-Brahmin, for the week ending 10th December, remarks:—"We have closely followed the criticisms of Lord Pentland by newspapers. We have heard that His Excellency was impatient in the Council. We have heard that he wanted to stiffle discussion. In fact we are surprised that His Excellency should have preserved his equanimity under the desultory speeches of members like the Hon'ble Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar or the Hon'ble Mr. K. R V. Krishna Rao. It is impossible to make out what these gentlemen have to say. We have our own doubts whether the speakers themselves understand what they speak about. It is impossible for any man to preserve temper under such circumstances, especially for the President of the Council who has to see the business through. . . It seems as if the standard of one's work in the Council is the length of the speeches he has made or the quantity of the interpellations that he has asked. This false notion must cease to be. . . If Mr. Narasimha Ayyar and Mr. K. R. V. Krishna Rao would take a lesson from the non-Brahman members of the Council, we are sure that more work could be done in the Council. We sincerely appeal to some of our honourable members to take a vow of silence and rise to speak only when they have anything pointed to say."

Non-Brahmin, Madras, Dec. 10th, 1916.

Competitive Examinations.

25. In a leader under the heading "what is Public opinion?" the Non-Brahmin, for the week ending 10th December, states:—"A large school of thought want competitive examinations. We, surely, do not want competitive examinations, for the simple reason that we are not advanced enough, and because we do not get as many marks as the foremost youth, we will never get any employment at all. Can it be said that public opinion in India is for competitive examination.

We do not know what the Public Service Commission has recommended in this direction. We would, far better, prefer selection by officials who know how to appreciate character than by mere examinations. . . Selection has given us some of our best men. Competitive examination is good enough when we want to select from a number of equally capable and equally qualified men. It prevents favouritism; but Government has to look from a higher altitude. . . Non-Brahman communities do feel that they have not had their place under the sun. They do feel that because they are backward in literary education, that is to say, because they have not passed examinations, they are left in the cold. . . Where technical knowledge is necessary, by all means insist upon technical knowledge, but where it is not necessary, it is highly unjust that men of capacity and spirit should be debarred from service. This is always the burden of our song. We appeal to the Government to take us up. We tell them: 'Do not be carried away by the University qualifications; do not think that only graduates are men of higher education.' Higher education does not mean a possession of the diploma of the Madras University. When in England a matriculate can appear for the Barrister-at-Law examination, why should it be in India that he should be a graduate? Even the Indian Civil Service examination is open to any man; it is not necessary he should be a graduate.

This false ideal of education has stood against us as a community. . We will continue to protest against it until the Government reserve a large proportion of the employments to the people who form forty out of forty-one millions of the population. The Government must change its policy."

Freedom and superstition.

New India, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

26. Writing under this heading, New India, of the 11th December, observes:—"In India, up till quite recently, public opinion has been conspicuous by its absence, and owing to the mischievous system of recruitment to the Indian Civil Service, intellect has been valued above character. Intellect while invaluable is also a dangerous quality, for it leads to pride, and when pride is allied to power the result may be exceedingly harmful.

"The danger in the present situation lies, therefore, in the fact that on the one side public opinion is rapidly growing, and is demanding that Freedom which is at once the heritage of the past and the gift of the West, while, on the other hand, the rulers of the country, as a whole, have been gradually losing sight of the ideals of British Government in India and have, therefore, begun to lose touch with the people as the latter have become increasingly permeated with the ideals the Western Government exists to foster. We are not concerned, for the moment, with the means whereby the strain of this unfortunate situation may be relieved. We desire rather to emphasise the fact that the habitual forms of Freedom, as common in the West, need not, necessarily, be the forms most appropriate to the East. When we consider the question of self-government for India, we are too apt to imagine that the self-government which we desire for this country must be of the form obtaining in the West. We think, for example, that as there is the party system in the West, so we must have a party system in India; and the fact that we appear at present to be far from the possibility of such a system inclines us to the belief that India is not yet ready for self-government. Again, we imagine that self-government is not possible unless every individual has a vote and knows how to use it, and when we look upon the enormous masses of the population in India, and when we realise that only a bare one per cent is educated, we seem, once more, to be a long way from self-government. . . It does not matter whether the Government is Government by party or Government by the few. What is of essential importance is that those who govern, whether they be few or many, shall partake of the spirit of the governed, and thus, out of their own natures, fashion suitable conditions for the growth of those who, with themselves, share a common National life. We must shake off the superstition that Freedom can only be ours through western methods of growth and in western forms. The gratitude we owe to England is that she has summoned us from our lethargy once more to worship at the shrine of Freedom. Our gratitude will be shown—indeed, has been shown—in our steadfast loyalty to that Empire of which she is the Mother. But, if only for the sake of a better service to the Empire, we demand to be allowed freedom to worship at the shrine of Freedom."

Cadet training.

New India, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

27. In commenting on the remarks of the Daily Telegraph (London) on the value of the National Organisation of Cadet Training, New India, of the 11th December, says:—"'All who care for their country.' But how heart-breaking it is that where the country is India, those who love her are shut out of all these movements for the good of youth taking place elsewhere. They are looked on with suspicion, with hatred, and work for students, except in Government leading strings, is a brand of disgrace Every day, lovers of India are made to feel that they belong to a subject people, and that freedom of action and the helping of the young is not for an enthralled race."

The Governor-designate of Bengal.

New India, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

28. New India, of the 11th December, has the following:—

"Are we unfit?

"It is encouraging to read day after day the emphatic protests of the Indian press against the appointment to the Governorship of Bengal of Reactionary Ronaldshay. The Indian people is tired of submitting to appointments to the highest Indian offices under the Crown by ignorant statesmen abroad whose only object is to adjust the supply of post to the needs of their political supporters. Reactionary Ronaldshay's views about India are by this time well known; and we hope that those responsible for this most unfortunate nomination will, if their intuition permits them to grasp the signs of the times, withdraw it before it is too late and an era of dangerous unrest is entered."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 12th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the West Coast Spectator, of the 12th December, says:—"The Bengal papers, we mean of course, the native Indian papers, are still exercised in mind over the Ronaldshay appointment. The Amrita Bazar Patrika has unearthed a passage from one of his lordship's books wherein he gives vent to opinions not at all complimentary to the Bengalees. In another passage he goes into ecstacies over the civil service for whom he advocates unlimited powers and unfettered hands. It is no wonder that the appointment has caused consternation in Bengalee circles.

"An apostle of the jack-boot theory, a worshipper at the Civil Service shrine, to whom it is more than a fetish, and the 'agitator' is the bete noir, it will be readily agreed that Lord Ronaldshay is not the sort of administrator who is most needed at this stage of our evolution, especially for Bengal which has given rise to problems that can best be tackled only by the born statesman of broad and enlightened sympathies who brings an open and unprejudiced mind to the solution of these problems. Let us hope that Lord Ronaldshay will have the good sense and the keenness of perception to realise that the Bengal of to-day is not the Bengal of the company days."

New India, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

29. The following appears in New India of the 12th December:—"It is very regrettable that Mr L. Curtis, of the Round Table, should be travelling round India with Sir Valentine Chirol, the enemy of all that is noblest and best in India, and the pet of Indian Governments and of Anglo-Indians. It is evident that he is subpœnaed on the hostile side, and is not seeking facts on which to base an honest opinion, but is merely submitting himself to be tutored with doctored evidence, to present the case for the defence.. We may regard the Round Table as a serious enemy in the path of justice to India, as indeed, is patent from Mr. Curtis' crude views as expressed in his Problem of the Commonwealth."

The Round Table.

New India, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

30. New India, of the 12th December, has the following:—

Indians in South Africa. "Why invite them and then illtreat?"

"Commenting on Mr. Polak's statements in his last interview, the Madras Times hopes that South African Indians 'will be reasonable in their demands' after the War. For, writes our contemporary, 'it can never be forgotten that it was Europeans who founded South African Cities; that the pioneers had difficult work, and sometimes had to encounter danger and hardships'. Quite so; but why were the Indians invited to the Colony, if it were to be a paradise only for Europeans? Why again does the union jack fly there, if any British subject were not to be allowed to live decently? Moreover, if it were a matter of deciding the relative work done in the Colony, the Kaffirs and the Indians together have certainly done more than the European settlers. It is true that the latter have built cities and invested capital; but that was done at the sacrifice of the blood of the coloured more freely than that of the colourless."

New India, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

31. The following appears in New India, of the 12th December:—

The Defence of India Act in Bengal. "Untrue to British Tradition."

"Lord Carmichael, in his profoundly interesting and rather pathetic speech on the state of Bengal, speaking of the Defence of India Act, said that it was meant to put down conspiracy to overthrow the Government by criminal means. That is undoubtedly so, and the Governments do rightly to use it for that purpose. He went on:—

"No British Government can complain if the people whom it governs wish to modify its form or to take any legal steps to bring about the change. The Government may regret such a wish; it may oppose changes in every legal way, but it will not be true to British tradition if it does more.

"Quite so, and that is exactly what we complain of. The Governments of Bombay and the Central Provinces have used the Defence Act to check legal and constitutional efforts by pen and tongue to modify the form of Government. In so doing they have been 'untrue to British tradition,' and have done incalculable harm to the Empire in the hearts of the people. They have turned active sympathy into sullen indifference, and are regarded as having betrayed the British ideal of justice and fair play. We are grateful to Lord Carmichael for his bold rebuke of the misuse of the Act."

32. New India, of the 13th December, writes:—"We are not as strong as we ought to be in Bengal, because the revolutionary movement is strong there, and our law-abiding and constitutional agitation seems pale and dull to those who know where arms are secreted, and who are drilling for a hoped-for revolt. . . Everyone who knows Bengal has known for years of the growth of undergronnd conspiracy there, and has known, as Lord Carmichael knows, that the underground organisation is even more complete than that of the Government. Every move of the Criminal Investigation Department is known beforehand and is countered; the journeys of officers are notified, and their plans betrayed. Both sides carry their lives in their hands. The public looks on and helps neither side. It will not help the Government, because the Government is tyrannical, and it regards anarchism as created by it. It will not help the anarchists, because it disapproves of them, regarding their methods as evil. But it very much doubts if legal and constitutional ways will ever win liberty, and so it stands sullen and despairing. If England had the courage to be true to her old traditions, to repeal every coercion Act, to restore liberty to the Press, and definitely promise Home Rule to India in the reconstruction of the Empire after the war, then all would change. The public would rally to the cause of order, would make anarchism impossible, would put an end to the underground conspiracy, and relieve Lord Carmichael's Government of all anxiety."

Home Rule in Bengal.

New India, Madras, Dec. 13th, 1916.

33. In concluding an article under this heading, New India, of the 13th December, states:—"We hear on every side that Indians have been emasculated by the British Raj. That is one of the half-truths that are more dangerous than lies. The Indians are emasculated because they have lost their grip of their own great National ideals. The British lack imaginative insight—true, but they do not lack intelligence; and when Indians make it perfectly clear that they are determined to have self-government they will get it. No nation that is fulfilling its part in the Divine Economy can be destroyed by any other Nation—the Gods are stronger than men. But if it is untrue to itself, what then? The Gods must then destroy it.

"If we could forget that there are Central Provinces and the Madras Presidency, that there are Muhammadans and Hindus, that there are castes, sexes, and creeds, and remember only that there is 'La Patrie' India, the motherland, then India, like France, would find herself, like France, in a single night; she would find the secret of governing herself. For this is the sign of a great spiritual awakening: there is no violence, there is no disorder, each man instinctively knows his duty and does it."

"La Patrie".

New India, Madras, Dec. 13th, 1916.

34. Referring to the article headed "The new Menace to India" by Charles R. Harvey, in New India of the 9th instant, the West Coast Reformer, of the 13th December, says:—A fair minded Englishman writes strong and frank article in a Madras contemporary against the proposal arising from a certain section of the European community, India, for introducing compulsory in military service amongst the community. The wicked agitation has been already condemned by the leading Indian papers and it is understood that the Government of India have disapproved of the proposal. . . The object of this European scheme is not clear. They cannot reasonably claim a monopoly for loyalty or warlike qualities. On the other hand the people of India have been demanding their right to take part in the defence of India and many Indian races have proved their military qualities in the present war. . . Their demand under the circumstances is liable to be construed as an insinuation against and insult to the people among whom they live and prosper. It cannot be condemned too strongly, and the proposal ought not to be considered seriously by Government. They can do better service to the empire by joining the army in Europe."

Conscription for Europeans.

West Coast Reformer, Calicut, Dec. 13th, 1916.

Indian Patriot, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

35. The following appears in the Indian Patriot of the 14th December:—

The Ceylon quarantine.

"We published yesterday a letter from that indefatigable worker in the cause of the poor Indian passengers to Ceylon, Mr. Karamuthu Thiagaraja, who reverts to the brutalities of the quarantine and to the weakness of the Government of Madras in the handling of this problem which has created and does continue to create intense feeling. We draw the attention of the Government to the article, and appeal to them to deal with the Government of Ceylon with becoming roughness. Little Ceylon cannot be permitted to play Smutts with us at our very heels. . . We feel that the Madras Government have failed to adequately gauge popular feeling on this subject! We sincerely hope that the spirit of Lord Hardinge is still in our officials when they come to deal with questions affecting the self-respect of the people."

New India, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

36. New India, of the 14th December, writes:—His Excellency the Viceroy is well-known to smile upon Industry and to frown upon politics, and the last example of this attitude is to be seen in the interview accorded by him to a Mr. Mackenzie, who seems to be touring among the nations on behalf of the 'Associated Press of America,' to pick up information and to obtain interviews with the great ones of the earth for the satisfaction of the American public. . . But the British experts on the Industrial Commission are steadily setting their faces against the encouragement of any industries here which would compete with those of Great Britain, and they wish to carry off our raw materials and to sell us in return the manufactured articles made from them, a policy which condemns India to a future of perpetual poverty. The Viceroy regards industry as a more vital channel of progress than politics. That is a natural view for a ruler to take, but it is not one that a free man can endorse. Even from the standpoint of trade and industrial progress, it is necessary that a country should control its own fiscal policy. India needs protection for her nascent industries from the competition of Great Britain; she needs financial assistance such as the English Governn.ent here has freely given to English promoters of railways. The guarantee interest on railway capital, but would not hear of such a thing in relation to Indian enterprises. Here, they protect foreign as against Home enterprise, as in the countervailing duties on cotton. Only when India has fiscal autonomy and a Government responsible to her own elected legislatures will her industries be placed on a stable foundation. Until that is done the British merchants here will do all they can to cripple their Indian rivals, and to counteract all the moves made by Indian merchants on their own behalf.

Industry and politics.

"Apart from this, industrial bribes to submit to political thraldom are in themselves revolting to every free man. Would Lord Chelmsford be satisfied that England should be industrially great under German rule, or would he not rather have her under English rule, even if thereby she were industrially less prosperous? Would he sell her freedom for a German mess of pottage, or would he fling back the pottage in the Kaiser's face? So feels everyone who is free in soul, even if his body be shackled. Political freedom is necessary for national self-respect, for national dignity, for the development of all noble qualities in man and woman. Luxury without freedom is a brute's life, not a man's; and even the nobler brutes break their hearts in captivity. India has not yet lost her soul, though her body is unfree, and the expression of her thoughts is muted. When her soul dies, she perishes as a nation, and from that fate may Mahadeva preserve her."

New India, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

37. In commenting on His Excellency Lord Carmichael's speech on the political situation in Bengal, New India, of the 14th December, observes:—"When trouble first arose in Bengal and the Bengal leaders drew attention to it, they were laughed at, and later on when the wiseacres of the Anglo-Indian press realised their blunder, repression was advocated and unfortunately followed. Today we find the Governor of Bengal, a sympathetic and broad-minded British gentleman, speaking pathetically of the situation. In 1910, Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson complained of the economic situation and, speaking against additional taxation, said: 'I did not sow the storm, but I am reaping the whirlwind.' That is exactly the position of poor Lord Carmichael. He is paying for the follies of Lord Curzon and his associates. After several years of repression, Bengal is worse today than it ever has been. Does it not occur to the experts who always prate about efficiency and prestige, that their policy and their work in Bengal show not much of efficiency and a great deal of loss of prestige? For a number of years past anarchy has been growing in Bengal; repression has been advocated and used; greater repression has been demanded and once again utilised, till such a war measure as the Defence Act had to be brought into force; and all to what purpose?

The situation in Bengal.

"What is palpable is being ignored. The repressive policy of the Government has failed, as it was bound to fail. Indian leaders and the Indian press had warned the officials, and what they said has come to pass. What does it indicate? That neither civilians nor the Anglo-Indian press know India and Indians, as they claim to do. The true leaders of India are educated Indians who are congressmen, and their advice ought to have been sought and accepted. The Government did not choose to do so, and the result may be read between the lines of Lord Carmichael's speech. Is it too late? We do not think so. Let the Government give up repression, ask the help of the National Congress, accept the advice they proffer, and not mind what those who oppose national progress say. Those who advocated repression have failed, and they have nothing better to offer. Let the Government give up the suggestions of these blind leaders of the blind, one of whom belonging to this city, closed its comment on Lord Carmichael's speech thus: 'With this political putrefaction going on, what is required is less discourse on psychology of the educated criminal and more resolute action.' Perhaps the best move would be to ask Lord Ronaldshay to resign and give his place to this champion of 'resolute action' and see what happens!"

New India, of the 15th December, remarks:- "In our yesterday's issue we indicated the change in policy necessary for the handling of the serious position in Bengal which Lord Carmichael described as being influenced by 'a wide-spread and well-organised conspiracy'. . . . The Government do not intend to alter their policy of repression and act on the wise advice of congress leaders; nay further, they do not even agree to the appointment of an Advisory Board for the purposes of using the drastic clauses of a war measure. Under the circumstances, while the Indian public regrets the situation, it finds itself helpless and can do nothing but sit with folded arms, witnessing the sorry spectacle where wrong-doing is more or less triumphant, and where Bengali youths, many innocent, others not, must go the way of shame and degradation. With such a position no sane Bengali, no Indian patriot, can rest content. Therefore the appeal made by even a sympathetic Governor will produce but little result, for not many Indians will grant on faith the confidence Lord Carmichael wants for himself and his Government. . . . If the Government of Bengal cannot find half a dozen Indian leaders trusted by the people in whom they also can confide, then they should not expect 46 millions of people to trust them and believe them on mere faith. It is a pity that Lord Carmichael has not been able—perhaps once again he is in a minority in his own Executive Council—to accept the co-operation of Bengal leaders, for, as the Bombay Chronicle points out, with the arrival of Lord Ronaldshay situation will grow more acute; it is right in affirming that Bengal is even now putting up with things which 'under the mild and restraining influence of a Governor of the Carmichael type is the maximum which any Province can be expected to tolerate'. Will Lord Ronaldshay prove another Curzon?"

New India, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

Kistnapatrika, Masulipatam, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

38. The Kistnapatrika, of the 2nd December, says:—The enemy has occupied the western part of Rumania, but the Rumanians have not suffered a heavy loss in their army. The greater portion of the army in the Oxova Valley has escaped. The kerosine-oil springs in the Carpathian valley have fallen into the hands of the enemy. The Germans have crossed the Danube and are advancing by the Bukharest railway. The Germans say that they seized a large quantity of grain here. The enemy is fighting with some severity in the region of Prabhova in the north. Perhaps a portion of the region to the east of the river Altu has also to be surrendered. A large Russian army is going to join the Rumanians.

The war.

Sasilekha, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The following appears in the Sasilekha of the 8th December, as having been given out by Marshal Von Hindenburg as his view of the present war:—Up to this time the course of the war is favourable to Germany. I never intended to shorten the war front. Our men are fighting in the western front without retreating. Our enemies had spent a great deal of artillery and ammunition and were able to gain a little ground. Even though they continue for another 30 years, they cannot break our line and enter Germany. They have no sufficient men to continue the offensive for such a long time. They lost many hundreds of thousands of men in the battle of the Somme. The French are fighting with great tenacity, but they are destroying themselves by their method of fighting. By this method of fighting none of them will be left in the end. They will meet this fate on account of Britain. The French had to perish through the assistance of the British. I regret that the French do not realize how much loss they suffer through England. There is none in England to give expert advice about war.

* * * * * * *

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Andhrapatrika, of the 13th December, says:—The sad plight that has overtaken Roumania and other small States is due to the valour of the Germans. People may doubt how Bukarest has fallen so soon. But it will be seen that the chief reason of its fall is the power of thorough organisation on the part of the Germans. When a German General undertakes a big task, he spares no pains to accomplish it. It is in this way that they subdued Servia, Belgium and Poland. Though the occupation of the enemy's country entails some loss, the Germans will naturally have many an advantage. The people and the army will become overjoyed and enthusiastic. The genius of the Germans will shine all the greater in the neutral countries and in the world. The war news announces that the Roumanians have not been able to destroy foodstuffs entirely. The German army has occupied Roumania in a very short time. It was not possible to secure the grain and the oil mines. Though a certain portion might have been protected, the greater portion should have passed into the hands of the enemy. The defeat of the Roumanians has encouraged the King of Greece. It is a matter for gratification that the Roumanian army has been saved. The responsibility of maintaining it rests on the Allies, especially the Russians. When the situation of the Russians in the past is considered, it would appear that though they have a large army, they lack war materials The British have to supply this want. Though Great Britain and France have plenty of these materials, there are no facilities to transport them to Russia. The situation in Greece is unfavourable to the Allies. There are signs indicating that the Germans will turn their attention to Salonika. If they do so, the situation will be critical. It is to cope with this that Lloyd George has become the Prime Minister. If his plans are carried out, the Allies will be on their way to success. There are indications that the war will continue much longer. The longer it continues, the greater will be the loss of men and the waste of money to both the parties. Men cannot know what there is in the womb of time. Count Tolstoy's words may come to pass.

The war.

39. The Desabhimani, of the 19th November (received on 11th December), says:—The conduct of Mr. Wilson, the President of the United States of America, who has given up all high ideals and looks upon the present war in which innumerable lives are sacrificed, with indifference, is not worthy of commendation. On the one hand the Americans make immense wealth by sending war materials to the Allies, and on the other afford to the Germans commercial facilities in America and give room for German mischief. Mr. Wilson makes his country prosperous by lending money to the belligerents and prolonging the war.

Desabhimani, Calicut, Nov. 19th, 1916.

The President of the United States.

40. In its leader on "peace", the Kistnapatrika, of the 9th December, has the following remarks:—Though the British nation is determined to fight it out to a thoroughly successful conclusion, the idea has been dawning upon statesmen like Sir Edward Grey whether other means cannot be devised to put down the unrestrained aggression of the enemy, that does not involve so much destruction of life and economic commotion. When can Germany be reduced to a condition when she would acknowledge a defeat and lay down her arms? . . . This question has been troubling the statesmen. It may be said that all parties are agreed that such an end cannot be brought about in a year, nor even till several years roll by. Mr. Lloyd George has openly recognised this, and is adapting his war preparations to it. The allies have been carrying on the offensive on the Somme front, for the last five months, and have recovered 150 out of 30,000 square miles overrun by the enemy. The courage and valour shown by the British and the French are most admirable. They have not retraced a step, nor tasted defeat, these five months. They have not met with a single reverse during these five months. They captured fort after fort and trench after trench. The Germans unable to withstand their onset have had to relinquish strongholds fortified and strengthened by them for two years. But when we consider the blood the allies had to shed and ammunitions they had to consume, at every step of this victorious march, it will be clear how much more sacrifice of blood and money they have to be prepared for fighting it out to a complete victory. According to telegrams published in Australian newspapers, it appears that the British killed, wounded or captured on the Somme offensive, number about a million and a half. It appears that a hundred and fifty thousand were lost during the course of twenty-four hours. The French losses must also be considerable. It is not possible to estimate how many millions of tons of ammunitions had to be spent. . . The allies may not have to meet with in future the same loss as they had to incur during these five months; but it is certain that they must be prepared for great losses. It is impossible to drive out the enemy without drenching every yard before them with streams of blood.

The fight on the Russian front is not so satisfactory. . . . Great hopes were entertained by the entrance of Roumania into the arena. . . They have all been shattered to the ground now. . . The present plight of Roumania has given rise to the unsatisfactory state of things in Greece. Roumania has instead of lightening the burden of the allies, has only been increasing it. On Russia, devolves the preservation of the independence of Roumania.

While all these circumstances have been strengthening the union, and steeling their resolution to win a victory, the question of peace has been engaging the attention of some statesmen. . .

Kistnapatrika, Masulipatam, Dec. 9th, 1916.

Peace.

41. In a leading article giving a summary of the reports on the Cabinet crisis in England, the Mysore Star, of the 10th December, writes:—In a country like England where the leaders are wont to forget all party bias where national interests are concerned, we may be sure that the clouds that are now hanging over the political horizon will disappear in no time. The leaders of the British press are strongly criticising the management of affairs under the existing ministry. We may, therefore, expect that the new ministry will throw greater vigour and activity into the prosecution of the war and thus hasten the conclusion of peace which will be glorious alike to England and her allies.

Mysore Star, Mysore, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Cabinet crisis in England.

Sampad Abhyudaya, Mysore, Dec. 15th, 1916.

The Cabinet crisis in England.

In a leading article dwelling on Mr. Asquith's admirable power of organisation, the Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 15th December, writes:—To Mr. Asquith primarily belongs the credit of having stemmed the tide of German onslaught, until at last the enemy is forced to be content with a defensive and now welcomes peace. Now is the time to profit by these gigantic efforts of the Prime Minister and to avoid the shortcomings of the past by a more united attempt. Instead of this, the British public, we are pained to see, have created a situation resulting in the resignation of Mr Asquith. Fault-finding is no difficult matter. Mr. Bonar Law refused to take Mr. Asquith's place even when requested by His Majesty the King. Is this right? He who refuses to fight is shot down. Does not this refusal to obey the King's request to accept the burden of the Prime Minister's office in the present crisis deserve capital punishment? Let that pass. Mr. Bonar Law has gone down in our estimation. In the task of crushing German militarism none has served so vigorously as Mr. Lloyd George. We rejoice to learn, therefore, that he is to be our Prime Minister. His patriotism is unparalleled. He is an orator of the type of Gladstone. He does not hanker after personal fame. His sole aim is to promote national interests. We are glad that such a person is our Prime Minister. Mr. Asquith never fights for personal distinction. It is possible that he and Lloyd George may work hand in hand. We hope that these distinguished personages will overlook all considerations of past status and emoluments and ensure the triumph of the allies and the vindication of justice.

Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The Cabinet crisis in England.

In expressing regret at Mr. Asquith's resignation at this juncture the Manorama, of the 8th December, points out that it might have been due to the non-acceptance of Mr. Llyod George's memorandum, regarding the assistance to be rendered to Roumania, and that, if so, the change of Ministry will tend to remove all the defects in the conduct of the war, and bring it to a successful conclusion.

Yogakshemam, Trichur, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Writing on the same subject, the Yogakshemam, of the 8th December, points out that the Roumanian reverse has, as when the Allies had similar reverses in Belgium, Turkey, Servia and Asia Minor, brought about a crisis in the British Cabinet, and refers to the unfair attacks, though natural in such circumstances, on Mr. Asquith, than whom no other statesman could have carried on the administration so successfully at this juncture.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The Cabinet crisis in England.

Referring to the change of ministry in England, the Kerala Patrika of the 9th December, hopes that under the direction of the new Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George, of whose firmness and boldness there are no two opinions, the war will soon be brought to a successful conclusion.

Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 12th, 1916.

The English cabinet.

The Manorama, of the 12th December, approves of the constitution of the war cabinet, composed of extremely capable members, who, with the exception of Mr. Lloyd George, can devote the whole or most of their time to questions relating to the war; and thinks that Mr. Lloyd George may be trusted to leave no stone unturned to bring the war to a successful issue, and that, as all persons between the ages of sixteen and sixty are to be enlisted in the army, and as the people are prepared to place all their savings at the disposal of the Government for the prosecution of the war, it may be hoped that it will soon end favourably to His Majesty the King-Emperor.

42. Referring to President Wilson's re-election, the Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 9th December, dwells on the accusations of his rivals regarding his inaction in protesting against the enormities committed by Germany, and on the arguments adduced by Wilson's party in support of America's present attitude towards the belligerents, and thereupon remarks:—However that may be there can be no question that it behoves America and the other neutrals to compel the belligerents to submit to the decision of a peace tribunal. A nation which looks on at the devastation of the world, because it conduces to its own aggrandisement, is hardly worth the name, and its wealth too deserves only contempt. These lookers-on forget their duty. Their guilt is great. They are directly responsible for the devastation and bloodshed which proceeds from their apathy and indifference. We do not say that America should enter the war. But she must compel the belligerents to submit to the terms of a peace tribunal. Either party not agreeing to the terms should be proceeded against by the other powers. If they do not do this, they are worse than dead. The truth is that the neutrals, equally with the belligerents, are bent on their own personal gain. It is futile to expect true peace unless these ideas of self-aggrandisement are abandoned.

America and the war.

Sampad Abhyudaya, Mysore, Dec. 9th, 1916.

43. Referring to the present crisis at the Balkan theatre, the Keralesabhimani, of the 6th December, points out that, if the Allies had taken immediate action against the treacherous king of Greece, when they came to know of his wicked intentions, the Balkan States would have been in their possession long ago and that they would have been in a position to render material assistance to Roumania by advancing more rapidly on Bulgaria without any fear of molestation by the Greeks in their rear, rejoices, however, that the troubles in Greece are, though somewhat belated, likely to come to an end, and consoles itself with the thought that, inasmuch as only a portion of Roumania has fallen into the hands of the enemy, and as the other parts, which are well protected and defended, cannot be occupied by him, she will never share the fate of Belgium and Servia.

The crisis at the Balkan theatre.

Kerala Abhimani, Mavelikara, Dec. 6th, 1916.

44. Referring to the progress which Germany has made in Roumania, a correspondent in the Lokaprakasam, of the 11th December, expresses surprise that the enemy, who, it was believed, had been considerably weakened by the Allies' offensive, should still prove himself to be so strong, and thinks that the prolongation or termination of the war depends upon the defeat or success of Roumania.

Roumania.

Lokaprakasam, Trichur, Dec. 11th, 1916.

II.—Home Administration.

(5) Courts.

45. The Kistnapatrika, of the 2nd December, makes the following remarks on Mr. Cotton, the District Judge of Kistna:—He peruses the decision of the Lower Court, says that it is very good and that the pleaders can have nothing to say and thus discourages them. While the pleaders argue notwithstanding, he seems to listen to them, and generally confirms the Lower Court's decision. Thinking that it will not be fair to confirm all the decisions, he will now and then change some in the matter of costs. He would not and could not reverse the long judgments of the Lower Courts. He is stated to say to the appellant pleader that his pleading is of no use and to the respondent pleader that he need not say anything. We are at a loss to know why this poor country should pay him Rs. 2,500 a month. It must be deemed that by appointing such men, the Government have dishonoured the people and the pleaders of the Kistna district. He generally comes to the bench at 12-30 p.m. and tries to finish his work by 4 p.m. He sends cases and petitions, in which many witnesses have to be examined, to the Sub-Court. Whatever judgment he may give, the pleaders will be satisfied if he listens patiently and appears to understand them. It is better that a Court does not exist at all than that it should exist presided over by a Judge who could not inspire any confidence in the minds of the people. What is the use of the presence of a Judge who never takes what the pleader says into his consideration, but says that the Lower Court has answered every point rised by the pleader. It is said that in the middle of a hearing, he would write private letters and send them to post. He appears to have said on the bench that he could not contain in his head lengthy pleadings, and that the less said by the pleaders the better it is for them. When an appeal is argued at length, he tells the pleader that he has many appeals to dispose of that very day and that he will not allow him more than two minutes. He is naturally intelligent, but he is not disposed to be industrious. It is said that he would again go to the Gōdāvari district at the end of December. The parties fear that in the meantime all good appeals will be spoiled by him. He prepares his orders on petitions beforehand and reads them in the Court even before the hearing is finished. Old age has, perhaps, affected the concentration and firmness of his mind. It is our opinion that he will do well to retire soon.

Mr. Cotton.

Kistnapatrika, Machilipatam, Dec. 2nd, 1916.

ARYAVYSIA, Guntur, Nov. 16th, 1916.

Official Receiver, Guntūr.

46. The Aryavysia, of the 16th November (received on the 11th December), refers to the office of Official Receiver in the Guntūr district, now vacant and to the many irregularities of which the late Official Receiver was guilty, and prays that the District Judge may recommend for the office one who can spend his whole time in Guntūr itself in the discharge of his duties as Official Receiver, so that the creditors may not be put to unnecessary trouble in realising their moneys.

(d) Education.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916

Compulsory primary education in India.

47. Referring to the introduction of free and compulsory primary education in the Western countries and in Baroda, and of secondary education also in Wales, and speaking in praise of the endeavours now being made in Wales to make University education also free, the Swadesamitran, of the 7th December, says:—While such things are taking place in the countries of the west, and while the number of illiterate persons in India is exceedingly high, the long-felt need for the introduction of free and compulsory primary education in India ought to speak for itself. If we compare the obstacles raised and the delays caused in this matter in India with the activity and zeal of the western countries, it will be clearly seen how far the Government and the people of this country have realised their duty in this matter and what interest they should take in the future at least.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The Intermediate Examination.

48. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th December, writes:—On a reference made to the Syndicate of the Madras University by some of the candidates who failed in the last examination, as to whether the resolution of the Senate requiring them to appear for this examination only in the subjects in which they have failed, would apply to the examination to be held in March 1917, the Registrar of the University has requested us to state that the Senate has decided that the resolution is not applicable to this examination. The resolution itself does not specify the year in which it is to come into force. It is, therefore, reasonable that it should be applicable to the next examination, but the Senate has decided against the interests of the candidates for the mere reason that it has chosen to do so.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

The Intermediate examination.

The Andhrapatrika, of the 11th December, prays that, when the Government issue their order sanctioning the introduction of the compartmental system in the Intermediate examination, they may also direct that the system should come into force from this year forward.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

Where has the Senate of the Madras University gone?

49. Referring to the draft bill for establishing a University in Patna, copies of which have been circulated to the Provincial Governments for opinion, the Swadesamitran, of the 8th December, observes:—The Government has called on the Syndicate of the Madras University to express its views on this Bill, but the Syndicate has resolved that there was no need for it to express any opinion and that the University Members might communicate their views, if they wish to do so. Would not the Senate of this University have expressed its views if it had been consulted by the Government? The Senate of the Bombay University which has been consulted is to meet on the 21st instant for the purpose of expressing its views. The Government should have consulted the Senate and not the Syndicate which is only an Executive Branch of that body. Perhaps the Syndicate will grow stronger day by day and the Senate will cease to be except in name.

Compulsory primary education in Bombay.

50. Referring to the resolution on this subject moved by the Hon'ble Mr. V. P. Patel at the last meeting of the Bombay Legislative Council, the Hindu Nesan, of the 8th December, says:—The majority of the representatives of the people on the Council spoke in support of this resolution. But what is the use of this? The Government replied to it only in the way in which we expected it to do. The Government Member said that the resolution could not be accepted, and Lord Willingdon merely repeated the statement of the Government Member and said that it was a mistake for him to have permitted this resolution to be moved, and that it might be withdrawn by the Hon'ble Mr. Patel. But as the Honourable Member was not disposed to withdraw the resolution, it was put to vote and lost.

Hindu Nesan, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Primary education and the Bombay Government.

51. In its leading article, the Swadesamitran, of the 11th December, contrasts the attitude of the Bombay Government in regard to this subject with the resolution of the Russian Government to make primary education compulsory in the midst of the enormous loss of life and money it is undergoing every day and observes:—The resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Gokul Doss Patel in the last meeting of the Legislative Council was merely to the effect that a beginning might be made in the municipalities. All but one Honourable Member representing the people spoke fully supporting the resolution. When a similar resolution was moved in the Imperial Legislative Council, some years ago, the Government Member replied that it would be better if the Provincial Government paid attention to this subject and took action The Hon'ble Mr. Choubal would seem to have forgotten this fact when he stated that a question dismissed by the Imperial Legislative Council could not have the support of the Provincial Government. Apart from this, the Hon'ble Mr. Choubal says that if the municipalities took any action in the matter without asking for pecuniary support, the Government would not stand in their way. Should not the Government bear a share at least of the burden? When the Government hesitates to accept the present resolution itself, how can it be expected that it would accept more definite and detailed propositions, if, as suggested by the Honourable Member for Government, such propositions were moved by the representatives of the people. Again when the Hon'ble Mr. C. V. Mehta proposed that a committee might be appointed to consider and report upon the question, it is surprising that Lord Willingdon should have refused his consent to that proposition also.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

Education.

52. In connection with the spread of education in Japan, the Hindu Nesan, of the 12th December, writes:—For the advancement of Japan in education, the support given by its Government is very great. It is only by this that a country can make progress in this matter. Is not education the basis of advancement in all directions? But in spite of all our requests for primary education being made compulsory, the Government has evinced no interest in the matter.

Hindu Nesan, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

National education.

53. The following is an extract from the summary of a lecture delivered by Mr. G. S. Arundale on this subject in the Pachaiyappa's College on the 10th December 1916 and published in the Swadesamitran of the 12th December:—If Europeans are appointed as Heads of the Department of Education, it will be impossible for the Indians to adopt the ancient principles of education in accordance with the scheme laid down by Manu. The Indians should therefore urge for the Department of Education being left entirely in their hands. Indian languages should be taught to the Indian children and the teachers should cultivate a great love for India and the Indian children. Religious instruction and military training should be given to the students and they should learn the history of the past heroes of their country. The students should join the leaders in acquiring self-government and work for the cause until the object is gained.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Free and compulsory education.

54. Referring to the resolution moved in the Bombay Legislative Council regarding free and compulsory elementary education, the Andhrapatrika, of the 8th December, says:—It is disappointing to the public, who, finding that the municipalities and Local Boards Acts are about to be amended, are requesting the Government to make provision in them for the imparting of free and compulsory education, at least within the limits of Municipalities and Local Boards, that the Government have opposed the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Patel. The Hon'ble Mr. Chaubal said that the Government of India were opposed to giving free and compulsory education. Are they really opposed? In answer to Mr. Gokhale, Sir H. Butler said that the foundations of such education should be laid in the Municipalities and Local Boards, and that the Government of India had no objection if the Local Governments introduce a system of free and compulsory education in their respective Provinces. The Government of India have thus hinted that the Local Governments should take the initiative in the matter. Mr. Chaubal has stated that in no country which has not advanced sufficiently has a system of compulsory education been introduced. Has not British India progressed as much as Baroda? Mr. Chaubal has been inconsiderate in his remarks. The remark of His Excellency Lord Willingdon that it was a mistake on his part to have allowed the introduction of the resolution in question, which according to him was opposed to the policy of the Imperial Government, is, in our opinion, improper. If the proceedings of the Council are conducted in this fashion, our unofficial members cannot introduce resolutions which have for their aim the welfare of the country. The resolutions of non-officials do not now carry any weight. Even if they are passed by a majority, the Government are not bound to carry them out. If under such circumstances, it is resolved not to allow the introduction of resolutions opposed to the policy of the departments of Government, the powers that will then remain in our hands will be nil. It does not become any statesman to speak so shortsightedly in administrative matters as did Lord Willingdon about the resolution in question. That a Governor of a Province and President of a Legislative Council should have spoken thus is not satisfactory at all. We hope that such things do not recur in future.

Swadesabhimani, Mangalore, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Instruction through the medium of the mother tongue.

55. A correspondent of the Swadesabhimani of the 8th December, referring to an order said to have been issued by the Educational authorities that the mother tongue should be used as the medium of instruction in elementary schools, complains of the danger of accentuating sectarian differences by giving undue importance to the dialects belonging to the numerous sects in the district of South Canara, and urges that the vernacular language of the district, namely, Canarese, which is equally advantageous to all, should be used as the only medium of instruction. The writer reproduces the arguments used by a previous writer on this subject (vide Report No. 42, article 30).

(e) Local and Municipal.

Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Motor traffic in Bombay.

56. Referring to a resolution recently brought forward at a meeting of the Bombay Municipal Corporation for prohibiting motor traffic in certain streets in Bombay in the mornings and evenings, the Prapanchamitran, of the 8th December, observes:—No doubt it is a good thing to prohibit motor traffic in those streets where the people's traffic is heavy. But if I had the power vested in me, I would order that motor cars should be driven very slowly like bullock-carts and impose severe punishments on those who transgress this order. You see how much I wish to wield authority! It is in the same manner that my people also wish for swaraj. I do not know when the Madras Government and the Corporation of Madras will attend to the regulation of motor traffic.

57. The Andhrapatrika, of the 12th December, says that His Excellency Lord Carmichael has laid the foundation of the entire independence of municipalities in Bengal by accepting the principle that officials should not be appointed as their Presidents, and that he resolved that in the municipalities which have the power to elect their own presidents, officials should not be members. It prays that Lord Pentland will introduce similar reforms in Madras, for what was possible in Bengal will be possible in Madras also.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

Lord Carmichael and municipalities.

58. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 8th December, in expressing its appreciation of the facilities afforded by Government in the matter of water and food-stuffs in India, regrets that the Local Corporation, which should take the question of food-stuffs and the public into consideration, is very indifferent and indolent in the matter. It does not in the least care to ascertain the various difficulties the poor people experience in the matter of purchasing the food-stuffs and necessaries and the high rates at which the merchants, great and small, sell their commodities. The way they make the most of their opportunities is beyond description.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The question of food-stuffs.

Formerly if rice was sold at 4 measures per rupee, it was considered to be at famine prices. How can a man in receipt of a salary of Rs. 8 per mensem maintain a family of five or six souls? The matter calls for the attention of the Commissioners of the Corporation.

It is patent to all that prices of articles from rice to matches and of other necessaries have doubled and even trebled. We wish to point out that the people are starving because of the exorbitant rates at which imported articles are being sold.

We fervently hope that the officers and Commissioners of the Corporation will adopt measures similar to those our British Government intends to adopt in England with regard to the fixing of prices of food so that the poor people here may not experience any difficulty whatever in the matter of living.

(h) Railways.

59. The Prapanchamitran, of the 8th December, makes the following observations on this subject:—We cannot consider it an act of justice for the Railway authorities to huddle up the Indian passengers in third-class compartments like cattle and to subject them to torture, while they reserve certain compartments for the convenience of those who wear hats. So long as the Indians were devoid of all self-respect and allowed themselves to be treated like cattle, unjust actions like these, based on class distinction, reigned in the land. In the recent case of affray in Madras which was the result of this class distinction, the Magistrate passed over this question without any remark. But the Sub-Magistrate of Penukonda has decided that the reservation of compartments for a particular class is illegal. Unless this question is decided in any of the High Courts in India, the people are bound to be discontented.

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Reservation of railway compartments for Anglo-Indians.

60. The Kerala Patrika, of the 9th December, deplores the closing again of the gate leading from the Calicut Railway Station to Anne Hall Road, and hopes that the matter will receive the attention of the District Traffic Superintendent of Railways.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The gate leading from the Calicut Railway station to Anne Hall Road.

Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 12th, 1916.

Curtailment of the train service.

61. Referring to the proposed curtailment of the "train service" throughout India, the Manorama, of the 12th December, says:—Even as it is, the train service is not satisfactory, so far as Malabar is concerned. Hence, the curtailment must necessarily cause considerable inconvenience to the people.

(k) General.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

The Indian Commissioners of labour in Ceylon.

62. In regard to the inquiries being made in Ceylon by Messrs. Marjoribanks and Ahamad Thambi Maracayar on the Kangani system, the Swadesamitran, of the 6th December, writes:—We hoped that the Commissioners would take the evidence of the coolies and the public and also that of the planters in this matter and would be able to ascertain the evils of this system. But our correspondent in Ceylon says that apart from the evidence taken from those who are connected with the plantations, such as the Secretary and the Chairman of the Planters' Association, the Commissioners do not seem to have examined any of the disinterested persons who know well the disabilities of the coolies and are in sympathy with them, and that the coolies are illiterate and too much in dread of their masters to represent their grievances to the Commissioners boldly.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

Reappointment of dismissed Military officers.

63. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th December, writes:—It will be seen from a question asked in the House of Commons on the 2nd November last that Brigadier-General Rowe, one of the three Military officers who were dismissed some months ago, has again been appointed as a Royal Engineer in the army stationed in Lucknow. The 'India', which is published in London, says that it was perhaps impossible for the Government to appoint any other person to that place and expresses its surprise that none was available. Further this paper asks who knows what influence Brigadier-General Rowe has with the Government of India and observes that the ways of that Government should be rectified.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

Is it a breach of etiquette for Members of Legislative Councils to publish their disallowed interpellations?

64. Referring to the practice obtaining in the Legislative Councils under which the Members have to submit to the President for approval the questions which they propose to ask in the meetings, the Swadesamitran, of the 7th December, observes:—His Excellency Lord Willingdon seems to have lost his temper when a question was asked in the Bombay Legislative Council by the Hon'ble Mr. Gokul Doss as to whether it would be a breach of etiquette for a member to publish an interpellation which has been disallowed by the President; for His Excellency stated in reply, that the question of the Honourable Member had been replied to as fully as possible and that he might make what meaning he liked of the reply. The Members as well as the President discharge their duties as they deem fit, in exercising the powers granted to them, and there is no question of etiquette in their doing so. The President also is only one of the members of the Council. How can it be said that the views of the President cannot be wrong at all? When the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar brought up a tentative resolution to the effect that an Indian should be appointed as one of the Members of the Board of Revenue, His Excellency Lord Pentland disallowed it at first. But on the subject being discussed in the newspapers, he allowed this resolution. Seeing that he did so, how can it be said that disallowed interpellations should not be published? Will the reply of Lord Willingdon to the question of the Hon'ble Mr. Gokul Doss show the respect that His Excellency has for the Honourable Members? It is not by providing a room for taking rest that the Legislative Councils can be made to resemble the Houses of Parliament. It is when the liberty of speech given to the Members of Parliament is allowed to the Members of Legislative Councils that the Parliamentary system can take root in these Councils.

65. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th December, publishes the following telegram which is said to have been sent to the Secretary of State for India by Mr. Surendranath Banerjee, the Secretary to the Indian Association at Calcutta:—This Association objects to the appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as the new Governor of Bengal. The books written by him as well as his utterances are not such as to accord with the aims and aspirations of the Indians. He has no faith in the reforms introduced by Lord Minto and Lord Morley. He has formed the opinion that the men in the East are devoid of respect and ignorant of the value of truth.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The new Governor of Bengal.

The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 6th December, referring to Lord Carmichael's administration of Bengal, says: "We know that Lord Carmichael governed Bengal very excellently, sympathetically and with due regard for the welfare of the country. In these respects he gave no cause for any complaint. It is also admitted that he is a masterful statesman and a sympathetic ruler well acquainted with popular sentiments. His departure is noted with great regret and sorrow by Bengalees in particular and by Indians in general.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

"The new Governor of Bengal."

As regards the appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as the Governor of Bengal, the editor observes that the news of his appointment has been received with dissatisfaction in Bengal, and there appear to be two parties, one favouring the appointment and the other opposed to it. In our opinion however a discussion of the matter at this stage is premature, for we do not know the line of policy he will adopt, whether he will walk in the foot-steps of Lord Curzon or not, what is his personal opinion regarding the policy and affairs of India and in what estimation does he hold this country. But we can confidently assert this much that Lord Ronaldshay is a statesman and a man of affairs. It is hoped that he will act in Bengal with a feeling of enthusiastic sympathy and for the well-being of the Presidency.

The Prapanchamitran, of the 8th December, expresses its disapproval of this appointment and says:—All the Indian papers unanimously express their regret at this appointment, while the Anglo-Indian papers rejoice over it. From this fact alone we can guess how the wind blows. It is indeed surprising that all persons who are now appointed to offices connected with India are drawn out of the class of politicians who refuse to take a step in advance.

PRAPANCHAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as Governor of Bengal.

66. The following telegraphic report of the Proceedings of a public meeting held at Bombay under the auspices of the Home Rule League on the 7th December, in connection with this matter is published in the Swadesamitran, of the 8th December:—A resolution was passed at this meeting protesting against the order of prohibition issued to Mrs Besant by the Government of Bombay and the Central Provinces. Mr. Tilak who moved this resolution observed that the Defence of India Act should be used only against the enemies of the Empire, and not against peaceful subjects like Mrs Besant and that the people should endeavour in all loyal ways to obtain equal privileges with the Englishmen. If only the Government assures us that it is taking measures to give self-government to India, we have no objection to sit quiet, without doing anything. In supporting the above resolution, Mr. Joseph Baptista observed that the Government should communicate to the leaders of the public the quarters from which danger is apprehended and have recourse to stringest measures, only if these leaders fail to help the Government in the matter and that if the Government does not realise this fact, it must be supposed that it has no faith in the loyalty of the people.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

A public meeting in Bombay for protesting against the order of prohibition issued to Mrs. Besant.

67. The following remarks on the management of public charities by the Government appear in the Swadesamitran, of the 8th December:—The management of public charities other than temples was entrusted by the Government to the

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Management of public charities.

Board of Revenue in 1817, and the Board of Revenue has recently admitted that it is not doing this work properly, and has reported so to the Government. The misappropriation of several charitable endowments is due to this fact. This formed a subject of discussion in the Legislative Council and the Conferences on certain occasions and consequently the Government promised to devote its attention to it, and some months ago issued an order authorising the Revenue Divisional Officers to act as Agents to the Board of Revenue in this matter. Another order has now been issued by the Government extending this power to Deputy Tahsildars also. Many difficulties are bound to arise in ascertaining the particulars which have been neglected for a hundred years. Already there is a complaint that Deputy Tahsildars hold their offices until 10 p.m., owing to their being burdened with the two-fold duties of a Revenue Officer and a Magistrate. It is, therefore, certain that they cannot satisfactorily discharge this additional duty. Apart from what they may be able to ascertain from the Revenue Inspectors, and what the Revenue Inspectors may be able to learn from the village headmen, the Deputy Tahsildars will scarcely be able to make personal enquiries and prepare the accounts. Unless, therefore, other arrangements are made, no great good can be effected in this matter.

Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The recent storm.

68. The Prapanchamitran, of the 8th December, writes:—Was it not known to the authorities at 10-30 a.m. on the day of the storm that it would occur on that day? The flag indicating 'great danger' was hoisted in the harbour. While such was the case, why should not the Government have given warning of it by tom-tom to the people living between Cuddalore and Madras, where the storm was expected to be severe? It is surprising and regrettable that even after hearing of the serious losses, none of the Members of Government have thought of proceeding to the South Arcot district and speaking words of sympathy to the suffering population.

Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The Madras Mail and the Indians.

69. The Prapanchamitran, of the 8th December, writes against the Madras Mail as follows:—The paper known as the Madras Mail shows great interest in decrying the wishes of the Indians and ridiculing and abusing the Indian patriots. Of late it has made it all the more its duty to find fault with the Indians. And yet how many Indians are senselessly giving their support to this paper! It is only when these people acquire sense, this paper will begin to love the Indians.

Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Disloyal British subjects in Pondicherry.

70. Referring to the recent storm and the troubles caused by it in Pondicherry, the Prapanchamitran, of the 8th December, says:—Messrs C. Subramania Bharati, V. V. Subramaniya Ayyar and Srinivasachariar, who were accused of being disloyal subjects of British India and who have sought refuge in Pondicherry, have forgotten their own troubles and are distributing conji to the starving population out of their slender means and with the money they could raise by subscriptions from the public. It is perhaps a sign of the times that such kind-hearted men should be regarded by the Government as disloyal people.

Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Mr. Tilak's case against Sir Valentine Chirol.

71. The Prapanchamitran, of the 8th December, writes:—It is said that, in this case, the Bombay Government has granted leave on loss of pay to two persons employed in the office of the Oriental Translator and given them permission to work under Sir Valentine Chirol for a time. We cannot see any connection between that gentleman and the Bombay Government. When two persons are opposed to each other in a suit, it is very wrong for the Government to lend its support to one of them.

Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Mr. Tilak and the Police.

72. Eulogising Mr. Tilak as a victorious patriot, the Prapanchamitran, of the 8th December, writes:—The unfortunate incidents connected with his recent visit to Cuttack are known to all. But things have not stopped there. It appears that at Hubli, the Police have ascertained and noted down the names of all who paid a visit to Mr. Tilak. God alone knows their object in doing so. Besides this, it appears that the Headmaster of a school in that place put up a notice forbidding the teachers and pupils of the school even to go near the place where Mr. Tilak was putting up. This Headmaster was once a sub-editor of the Kesari and the Mahratta of which Mr. Tilak is the editor. Ah! how our countrymen have fallen from righteous ways!

Statistics of persons buried alive in Great Britain.

73. The Prapanchamitran, of the 8th December, says:—In Great Britain which comprises England, Scotland and Ireland, it is stated that seven lakhs of people die yearly. One per cent of this number, i.e., 7,000 persons are said to be buried before life becomes extinct in them. The same may be the case in the other European countries also. It appears that some one has invented a mechanism which projects out of the coffin. When the body of a person buried alive moves, it is known outside by means of this contrivance and immediately wholesome air gets into the coffin.

Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The Cuddapah District Conference.

74. The Vaisyamitran, of the 27th November, publishes the following report of the Fifth Cuddapah District Conference:—The Hon'ble Mr. Meer Asadh Alikhan Bahadur who presided over this conference referred in his speech to:

(1) the Anglo-Indian officials being in the way of the just and lawful wishes of the Indians;

(2) the need for closer intimacy between the officials and the people;

(3) the lack of interest on the part of the Government in matters of education, local self-government, etc., and above all;

(4) the great need for union between the Hindus and the Muhammadans.

Resolutions were passed regarding the management of the District Board, scarcity of water, medical aid, evils prevailing in the Forest Department, Education, Village Panchayats, formation of Volunteer Corps, the Defence of India Act, the Press Act, self-government, etc.

Vaisyamitran, Bezwada, Nov. 27th, 1916.

Operation of the Defence of India Act in the Madras Presidency.

75. The Vaisyamitran, of the 27th November, says:—It appears from the reply given to a question on this subject in the last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council, that only one person was brought under the operations of this Act here. It was also stated that his name and other particulars would be made known in confidence to the Honourable Members. While the names of persons similarly brought under the operations of this Act in Bengal are published, why should the Madras Government keep this matter a secret?

Vaisyamitran, Bezwada, Nov. 27th, 1916.

Conviction of a plantation cooly in Ceylon.

76. A special correspondent of the Swadesamitran writes to that paper of the 9th December:—A cooly named Lakshmanan, aged 18 years, was charged with stopping away from and neglecting his work in a plantation in Ceylon. He pleaded that his wife, his mother, his brother and himself, after paying the debts due by them, applied to the Superintendent of the Plantation for a "Chit" for leaving the place, and that in consequence of this, the Superintendent was angry and brought this complaint. Yet the cooly was sentenced to undergo two months' rigorous imprisonment.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The Indian Membership of the Bombay Executive Council.

77. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th December, has the following:—A correspondent of the Message, a paper published in Bombay, writes that Rao Bahadur Setalvad, the Chief Presidency Magistrate, may be appointed to succeed the Hon'ble Mr. Choubal as the Indian Member of the Bombay Executive Council. The appointment of this gentlemen is objectionable for the reason that, though there is nothing to be said against his ability or fitness for the place, his tendency as an officer of the Government will be to incline to the side of the Government and his views are not likely to be in accordance with the wishes of the people. It has to be pointed out that as there is only one place in the Executive Council open to the Indians, the person appointed to it should be one who is not an officer of the Government but one who commands the support of the bulk of the population.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

Publication of questions and resolutions disallowed by Presidents of Legislative Councils.

78. Adverting to Lord Willingdon's statement in the Legislative Council of Bombay that the publication of such questions and resolutions was a breach of etiquette, the Swadesamitran, of the 9th December, observes:—Unlike the speaker in the House of Commons, who is a neutral person in the midst of the various political parties in it, the person who has the authority in India to admit or disallow questions and resolutions intended by an Honourable Member to be brought up for discussion in the Legislative Council is, in addition to being its President, also the head of the Government. If therefore it is inconvenient for the Government to take up any question or resolution for discussion, he can easily disallow it as not tending to public good. The circumstances connected with the recent case of such a resolution proposed to be moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar in the Madras Legislative Council show clearly how the Government may change its views with reference to the remarks made thereon in the newspapers. If the publication of these questions and resolutions is not permitted, how can there be room for public opinion to have any influence with the Government? Questions disallowed by the President of a particular Legislative Council are sometimes allowed by the President of another Legislative Council. It was clever on the part of Lord Willingdon to have thought of raising an objection not based on law, but on etiquette.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The recent storm in the South Arcot district

79. With reference to the report of the Hon'ble Mr. Buckley who was deputed to enquire into the after-effects of the recent storm in this district, the Swa esamitran, of the 9th December, complains of the insufficiency of the sum of Rs. 5,000 sanctioned by the Government for the relief of the sufferers and says:—The Hon'ble Mr. Buckley says that, as there is a mutual interest between the owners of land and the workmen, the owners are feeding their men with as much solicitude as is expected of them. Are the owners of land the only persons who are benefited by the labour of the workmen? Is not the Government also benefited by the revenue derived from the lands? Should they not spend money liberally now and relieve the people of their difficulties?

Hindu Nesan, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

The Dyeing Expert's report for the quarter ending 30th September 1916.

80. Reviewing the report of the Dyeing Expert for this quarter, the Hindu Nesan, of the 11th December, observes:—It does not appear to us from this report that the troubles of the dyers can have any relief. The condition of the dyers of Kumbakōnam, Salem and Madura, bad as it is, seems likely to grow worse. The Dyeing Expert says that it does not appear to be proper that dyed yarns should be imported from England and sold here in such large quantities as to stifle the supply of the same by the Indian dyers, and that obstacles should be thrown in the way of dyeing products being exported from England. While the Dyeing Expert of the United Provinces maintains that the natural dyeing products of India can make their stand against the artifical dyes of foreign countries, and is endeavouring to find out the ways in which they can be largely made use of, the expert of the Madras Presidency says that the indigenous products cannot flourish at all. It appears that Dr. Mareden is an expert in four industries, viz., leather, paper, pencil and dyeing. We do not think it possible for him to be an expert in so many matters. The Government has made him one expert after another according to its needs.

Writing on the same subject, the Swadesamitran, of the 12th December, says:—The paper industry in Punalur has now passed into the hands of the owners, after remaining under the management of the Government for two years. But no particulars have been given regarding the work turned out by the Government during these two years, when the moneys of the public and the owners were spent on it. We would urge that some questions be asked about this by the Honourable Members of the Legislative Council.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

81. In an article on this subject, apparently written by a correspondent, the Hindu Nesan, of the 12th December, says:—In India there is no such support from the Government as there is in Japan. As our Government consists of foreigners, it will care more for the profits of its own countrymen. Though on account of the war, the imports of western products have mostly gone down, the swadeshi spirit has not yet sprung up among the Indians. We have not attempted to revive our old industries which are dying out or to introduce new ones. We are yet wearing and using foreign articles and strutting about with an outward show of civilization. May our countrymen realise that there is no salvation for India, unless they adopt the methods of Japan.

Free trade.

HINDU NESAN, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

82. A correspondent of the Hindu Nesan, of the 12th December, writes:—It is this subject that one hears everywhere. Men of all ranks including the school-going boys, have been enlisted in this cause, so as to alarm the authorities in vain in the midst of the troubles brought on by the war. But diverse opinions prevail in regard to this subject. We fear that they may prove injurious to us.

Home Rule.

HINDU NESAN, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

83. The Hindu Nesan, of the 13th December, contains a leader under this head, in the course of which it says:—In the formation of the new Cabinet, the only office that has not changed hands is that of the Secretary of State for India. As Mr. Chamberlain was never interested in the welfare of India, there is no reason to think that India will be benefited to any extent under the new Ministry. Mr. Chamberlain might at least have arranged for the Indian budget estimate being discussed and the defects in the methods of the Indian Government being made known in the Parliament. He has not even shown any desire to understand the affairs of India. If he had any thought of conducting the Indian affairs with due regard to the wishes of the Indians, he would not have recommended Lord Ronaldshay for the Governorship of Bengal. Nor is there any one in the new Ministry who can be said to be sympathetic to the Indians. Neither Lord Hardinge nor Mr. Montagu nor any one of that class of men is to be found in this Ministry. But Lord Curzon is there as the leader of the House of Lords, and he is most likely to be consulted by Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Chamberlain, if they wish to know anything about India. We know very well the sort of sympathy Lord Curzon has for India. Nor is there room for us to expect any good from Mr. Bonar Law as the leader of the Commons; for we know of one great evil he has done when he was the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

India and the new Ministry.

HINDU NESAN, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

On the same subject, the Lokopakari, of the 11th December, writes:—The cause of all these changes in the ministry is said to be the prevalence of jealousy and spite among the Ministers during this critical period. Those who have followed these extraordinary proceedings of the Ministry cannot complain against the Indians making known their grievances to the Government in constitutional ways.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

84. The Andhrapatrika, of the 7th December, feels gratified that the rulers have recognised the necessity of rearing bulls of the strongest breed in an agricultural country like India, but remarks that the sum of Rs. 1,000 sanctioned for that purpose in the Madras Presidency is very little. With this sum, it says, some ten bulls may be reared, but in every district there is need for one bull for every four or five villages.

The rearing of bulls.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

Supplies to Collectors.

85. The Andhraprakasika, of the 6th December, refers to the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar in the Legislative Council and remarks:—The conduct of the Government in dealing with this question was very regrettable. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew scolded the mover of the resolution stating that it amounted to a personal attack. We pray that the Government will patiently consider which is reproachable of the two, namely, to move a resolution which seeks to remove a hardship experienced in every district and to scold an Honourable Member who has sought to remove such a hardship. It is the misfortune of this Presidency that the Government have taken such a serious view of the resolution. They would not have been so hard if they had with their own eyes seen what hardship the ryots are put to by the village officers and taluk peons, when big officers go out on circuit. We are sorry that His Excellency also, who should look upon both the official and non-official members with equal regard, had sided with the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew. The leaders of society feel that it ill becomes the high position occupied by His Excellency Lord Pentland to say "aye" to whatever the officials say and "nay" to what the non-officials say. The people suspect that the rules allow such partiality. We submit that it is undesirable that Lord Pentland's Government should administer the country with indifference at a time when they ought to reform the administration in a peaceful manner.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

Gold coins.

86. The Andhraprakasika, of the 6th December, says that sovereigns for which the Government will not pay more than Rs. 15 each are sold in the market at Rupees 16-10-0 each, and prays that the authorities will enact a law prohibiting the selling of these gold coins at such a high price.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1916.

Drinking.

87. The Andhraprakasika, of the 6th December, contains a farce in which a certain character is made to say:—Brahmins drink under the impression that they will be considered as Europeans if they drink, because all Europeans drink. Our men have begun to drink saying: "When Brahmins drink, what if we also do so?"

ARYAVELA, Guntur, Nov. 9th, 1916.

Suggestions to the Collector of Guntur.

88. The Aryavela, of the 9th November, (received on the 11th December), requests the Collector of Guntur to take steps to get information from each village as to which lands do not get a sufficient supply of water and which villages have been affected by the lack of a proper system of drainage, and remedy the defects. It remarks that divisions and taluks are not properly administered by Divisional officers and Tahsildars, and the people are unhappy. It prays that the Collector may recommend their transfer. The paper suggests that Nallamada vàgu should be broadened to prevent damages by floods, and that part of the cost may be met from the sale-proceeds of the tumma trees in the stream, the Government contributing the remainder. It also requests that the Collector may permit the villagers to broaden the stream in their respective villages at their own cost.

ARYAVELA, Guntur, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

Adulterated ghee.

89. Aryavela, of the 23rd November, invites the attention of the Collector of Guntur to the export to Calcutta of adulterated ghee from Guntur and requests him to take steps to prevent such adulteration and export.

ARYAVELA, Guntur, Nov. 23rd, 1916.

The Madras Mail.

90. The Aryavela, of the 23rd November, refers to the article in the Madras Mail on Mr. Tilak's appeal and says:—As it is against law to make comments on the decision of a High Court, it is hoped that the Madras Government will take action against that paper. We are of opinion that nobody should pay any regard to the writings of this paper.

91. A correspondent to the Andhrajyoti, dated the 30th November, says that the people of Chakrayapalem village suffer very much from scarcity of drinking water, and requests the authorities to arrange to repair the tank in the west of the village, which is the only source of drinking water in the village but which is now in disrepair.

Scarcity of drinking water in the Chakrayapalem village, Tenali taluk.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Guntur, Nov. 30th, 1916.

92. Referring to the order of a District Magistrate in the Bombay Presidency prohibiting Mr. Tilak who went to Gadag on private business from making any public speech there, the Hitakarini, of the 3rd December, asks if it is proper on the part of the authorities to pain the minds of good men by issuing an unreasonable order without consideration, simply because they have authority in their hands.

Mr. Tilak at Gadag.

HITAKARINI, Eluru, Dec. 3rd, 1916.

93. The Hitakarini, of the 3rd December, says that although the District Magistrate of Kistna recommended the Public Works Department authorities the free grant of reed for thatching purposes to the sufferers from floods, and requested them to allow cattle to graze free of charges, Mr. Lutman, the Superintending Engineer, stated in reply that he did not see any reason to give reed to the ryots gratis, and that there was no lack of fodder with the ryots for their cattle. It remarks: It needs no saying what the condition of the people would be if each district should have three men like Mr. Lutman. The God of Death will make his appearance before the people even while they are alive. . . It is the duty of the Government to allow remissions in those villages which have been submerged by floods.

Mr. Lutman.

HITAKARINI, Eluru, Dec. 3rd, 1916.

94. The Andhrapatrika, of the 9th December, feels gratified that Mr. Buckley has taken great pains to ascertain the extent of the loss of life and property caused by the recent cyclone that blew over the South Arcot district and to afford relief to the sufferers, and hopes that restrictions will not be imposed on his discretion, such as those imposed on the discretion of the Collector of Kurnool by the Hon'ble Mr. Bedford, Secretary to Government. It says:—If the higher authorities take interest and work, there can be no room for the contention that Government help should not be given unless there is danger to life. The nominated members of the Legislative Council will not then shut the mouths of the well-wishers of the people under the impression that that is the policy of the Government. Whatsoever may befall the Andhra country, it is gratifying that, by reason of Mr. Buckley's purity of heart, the South Arcot district at least has found some relief in its sad plight.

The recent cyclone.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec 9th, 1916.

95. In an article contributed to the Modern Review, Mr. Sudhindra Bose is reported by the Andhrapatrika, of the 9th December, to have stated as follows:—The difference between the Governors in the United States and in India is that although the cost of living in the latter country is much less than in the former, the Governors in India are paid more than in America. The Governors of Madras, Bengal and Bombay receive every year a sum greater, I believe, than one hundred and twenty thousand rupees. This is an extraordinary means to empty the already meagre Indian treasury.

The salary of Governors.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

96. In its leader on the volunteer system of military service, the Andhrapatrika, of the 11th December, says:—The Indians cannot but serve as soldiers one day. Why should not the Government train them even from this day? Is it not difficult to train them when an urgency arises? It is our belief that no more delay should be made in making ready regiments in India. We feel it our duty to request the Government to take early steps in this matter.

The voluntary system of Military service.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

97. The Andhrapatrika, of the 11th December, has a leaderette on Sir Valentine Chirol, in which it says:—As a Member of the Public Services Commission, Sir Valentine Chirol.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

Sir Valentine Chirol was found to be partial to the authorities. On account of the splendour of the reception extended to him by the Viceroy, the Governors and the Lieutenant-Governors he comes to India in the winter. It is said that he was instrumental in the appointment of Lord Chelmsford and Lord Ronaldshay. The Bombay Government lent him the services of two official translators in connection with the suit brought against him by Mr. Tilak. It is hard to understand why that Government should show so much concern in a matter affecting him, while they first refused a passport to Mr. Tilak to go to England, but gave it after great hesitation. By such improper conduct the Government of Bombay have brought some discredit on themselves. May they at least now discontinue the official help they render to Sir Valentine Chirol in translating documents! If Sir Valentine Chirol goes back to his native country, the people of India and also the high officials will be relieved of a great burden and be happy.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 13th, 1916.

The Andhrapatrika, of the 13th December, says that the Madras Mail also condemned the action of the Bombay Government in lending Sir Valentine Chirol the services of two officials to help in the translation of certain papers connected with the suit brought against him by Mr. Tilak, and remarks that when a paper like the Madras Mail, which is partial to the authorities condemns an action of the rulers, that action must certainly be unlawful.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

98. The Andhrapatrika, of the 11th December, says:—English papers say that in consequence of the change in the Cabinet, Mr. Chamberlain, the Secretary of State for India, will take up some other appointment. If he does so, India will be most fortunate. He used to say that he knew nothing in answer to questions affecting India, so much so that he has come to be known as the "know-nothing Chamberlain". It is now disappointing to learn that he will continue in his present post, because of his illness. But is it the unhealthy and the sick that should be Secretaries of State for India?

Mr. Chamberlain.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1916.

The Andhrapatrika, of the 12th December, says:—It is unfortunate that Mr. Chamberlain is to continue in his present appointment. Three-fourths of the ministers are Unionists. They may not do us any good, but we should be happy if they do not do us any harm. It however remains to be seen if the change in the angle of vision and our incessant activity will give the lie to our fears.

DESABHIMANI, Guntur, Nov. 26th, 1916.

99. In the course of its comments on the rumour that Sir Shamsul Huda will be appointed to succeed the Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar as Indian Member of the Madras Executive Council, the Desabhimani, of the 26th November, says:—Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar's administration has not been satisfactory at all. In his regime, the difficulties of patriotic Indians have increased.

The Hon'ble Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar.

DESABHIMANI, Guntur, Dec. 3rd, 1916.

100. The Desabhimani, of the 3rd December, reports the President of the Kurnool District Conference to have said that if the Indians do not now ask the Government for swaraj, it may happen that they will find themselves subjected to the authority of even the Colonies.

Swaraj.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 13th, 1916.

101. Referring to the proposal to construct a harbour at Vizagapatam, the Andhrapatrika, of the 13th December, says:—There is no port on the east-coast better suited for the construction of a harbour than Vizagapatam. It cannot be hoped that the work will be properly carried on if it is entrusted to a Railway Company. A separate body of men appointed by the Government will do it better. By such an arrangement the proposed harbour will be made more useful.

A harbour at Vizagapatam.

DESABHIMANI, Guntur, Nov. 19th, 1916.

102. The Desabhimani, of the 19th November (received on the 11th December), says:—The Anglo-Indian papers do not like that Mr. Tilak should have been declared innocent. High Court decisions are not agreeable to them. The acts of persons like Tamerlane and Chengiskhan are perhaps their ideals. It is perhaps their aim to put an end to all political reformers and govern the country themselves. They will not become wise until they are punished by the Government for their mischievous writings.

Anglo-Indian papers.

Sampad Abhyudaya, Mysore, Dec. 11th, 1916.

Mrs. Besant and the Central Provinces order.

103. Referring to a resolution passed at a meeting of the Theosophical Society, Mysore, protesting against the order of the Government of Central Provinces and Berar prohibiting Mrs. Besant to enter their provinces, the President and Secretary of the Mysore Theosophical Society writes to the Sampad Abhyudaya of the 11th December as follows:—"The political leaders of India are mostly men of strong religious opinion. The Lord Bishop of Madras has lately written an article condemning the present system of Government and containing sentences as strong, if not stronger, than anything written by Mrs. Besant. Is he therefore to be forbidden to enter into or preach in his diocese? The action of the Chief Commissioner against Mrs. Besant, in her work as President of the Theosophical Society, opens up a vista of trouble and danger. Not only have the Governments of Bombay and Madras pronounced the Home Rule propaganda to be legitimate, but the High Court of Madras has emphasised Mrs. Besant's loyalty to the Crown, and the constitutional and law-abiding character of her work. Under these circumstances, we feel that the interference with the religious work of our President is unjustifiable, and the pretence that she acts, or is going to act, in a way prejudicial to the public safety is untenable and preposterous. We, therefore, hope that the Government of India will express its disapproval of this interference with her religious work, and thus stop the widespread alarm and dismay caused by the action of the Chief Commissioner."

Sampad Abhyudaya, Mysore, Nov. 12th, 1916.

India after the war.

104. The Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 12th December, in a leading article in English, dwelling on India's help to the empire in the present war, writes:—"Only the other day in the House of Lords, Lord Islington confirmed Mr. Harcourt's statement that at the time when peace is settled, the premiers of the Imperial Dominions would be gathered at a conference and their views taken on the best terms of peace settlement. We are aware that it is a long, long way to the Tipperary of peace and that for it to prevail in the world perhaps months or even years have to elapse. . . . But we do not like that India's inferiority should be hinted at, though indirectly, by the ministers at home, when they make no mention of India while talking upon matters involving Imperial status and position. Under these circumstances, Lord Islington's statement should not be left to remain without a suggestion—a suggestion which, if carried out, would greatly enhance the prestige of India and bring it on to a respectable level in the scale of nations. . . . Under these circumstances, it is but natural for Indians to say that there is nothing more undesirable than this insulting exclusion of Indian statesmen from Imperial politics. India is not wanting in diplomatic wisdom. Brilliant statesmen there are in plenty, and it is no exaggeration to say that she has got distinguished administrators in great numbers. The excellent results of native rule in Feudatory States prove the points to the hilt. We are quite sure that Ruling Chiefs, like His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore and His Highness the Gaekwar of Baroda, and Indian statesmen and politicians of the type of Sir K. G. Gupta, Sir Sankaran Nair, Sir M. Visveswaraya and others will fully deserve the honour of membership of the Imperial Conference that would meet to discuss peace terms and that they will earn distinction for keen diplomacy. The British Ministers will do well to utilise the services of such intellects. We hope that they will consider this aspect of the question carefully and respect Indian feeling and sentiment in the matter by giving Indians an assurance like the one Lord Islington has given, without any hesitation or without being influenced by the reactionary notions of heartless Toryism."

Swadesabhimani, Mangalore, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Sir K. G. Gupta.

105. In a leading article commenting on Sir K. G. Gupta's recent public utterances in India on the political aspirations of the country, the Swadesabhimani, of the 8th December, observes:—Our ancestors were never tired of dilating upon the truth of the maxim that union is strength. It augurs well for the future of the country that the leaders of the divers political parties among us are beginning to realise the force of this great truth, with the result that the differences between what were termed the extremist and moderate sections of the Congress are fast disappearing. The increasing unanimity among the several parties in regard to the goal of Swaraj is evident from the recent utterances of Sir K. G. Gupta who has come from London as the representative of the British Congress Committee at the forthcoming session of the Congress. The weight to be attached to his words can well be estimated from the fact that Sir Gupta held the highest appointment under Government short of a Lieutenant-Governorship and was even Vice-President of the Council of the Secretary of State. Sir Gupta rightly suggested that a vernacular term like Swaraj was a more appropriate one than the words "Home Rule" in indicating the country's claims to self-government. Sir Gupta said that we must obtain a distinct assurance that we shall be given the necessary training in the art of self government, and under the auspices of the Servants of India Society he reiterated that we must obtain a definite promise that we shall be granted self-government at the end of a stated period and at the same time he emphasised the duty that devolves on the Indians to do their part of the work in this connection. These words of advice will doubtless be welcomed by all classes of people. We would now request that those moderates among us who were hitherto keeping in the dark, because they were frightened at the mere mention of Swaraj, would now at least come into the open and enjoy the light that has been thrown upon the situation by so eminent a personage as Sir Gupta in such clear and unmistakable language. Give up party differences! Work with the principle that for national advancement the national party is the only party. Trust in God and do your duty!

Mahrabha, Calicut, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Mr. Tilak and the Bombay Government.

106. Referring to the loan of two clerks of the Oriental Translator's office to Sir Valentine Chirol, which was the subject of an interpellation in the Bombay Legislative Council, the Mahrabha, of the 8th December, points out that the Government, being in no way concerned in the dispute between Mr. Tilak and Sir Valentine Chirol, their action in rendering assistance to the latter is worthy of condemnation, and hopes that the Government of India will not countenance it.

Yogakshemam, Trichur, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Writing on the same subject, the Yogakshemam, of the 8th December, says:—It is widely talked that it was on this account (partiality for Sir Valentine Chirol) that Mr. Tilak was at first refused a passport to proceed to England. Ordinarily the Government take the side of the aggrieved. We have no hesitation in saying that similar actions cannot fail to root out the people's confidence in the Government.

Kerala Sanchari, Trichur, Dec. 12th, 1916.

Mr. Tilak and the Bombay Government.

Referring to the loan of the services of two clerks in the Oriental Translator's Office to Sir Valentine Chirol, the Keralasanchari, of the 12th December, says:—What will the people think, if at a time when they criticise the action of the Government of India in entertaining Sir Valentine Chirol in an undesirable manner, he is thus helped by the Government in a case between Mr. Tilak and himself, whom they sincerely believe to be unsympathetic towards them. We cannot help observing that the Government's action in utter disregard of all this, was a blunder of the first water. How does it affect the Government, whether the case is ended sooner or later? Are they in any way bound to bring it to a speedy conclusion?

Yogakshemam, Trichur, Dec. 8th, 1916.

The Cochin Chamber of Commerce and Mattancherri.

107. Referring to the telegraphic news circulated by the "Associated Press", that the European Chamber of Commerce in British Cochin has, in view of the increase in the volume of trade in Cochin requested the Government to annex Mattancherri to British Cochin, the Yogakshemam, of the 8th December, says that it fails to understand why the European merchants could not have tried to improve the trade of Cochin by demanding that the Cochin port should be handed over to the Raja, thinks that though the change may not affect the native merchants one way or the other, it will be ridiculous for the Raja of Cochin to bear this title, after ceding Cochin to the British, and invites the attention of the Cochin Mahajana Sabha to this matter.

Government and the selling on of coins.

108. The Yogak-hemam, of the 8th December, fails to understand how the Madras Government could permit the selling of a sovereign for Rs. 16 or Rs. 17, while the French Governor of Mahé has issued an order, making it penal to sell French coins for more than their value.

YOGAKSHEMAM, Trichur, Dec. 8th, 1916.

Supplies to touring officers.

109. Referring to the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar regarding the supply of articles to touring officers, the Bharata Kesari, of the 6th December, writes in English as follows:—

BHARATA KESARI, Trivandrum, Dec. 6th, 1916.

"* * * * * *

As regards the resolution, there was, as we stated above, an animated discussion, and eventually on an assurance given by Sir Alexander Cardew, the Hon'ble mover withdrew the resolution. Though, thus, the resolution was not accepted, the moral effect of it and of the discussion that followed, as well as of the interpellation on a subject connected with it, is not small. Our object in referring to this resolution and interpellation at some length is to draw a comparison between conditions in British India and in Travancore. It is a notorious fact that what is complained of in the Madras Presidency exists in Travancore to a scandalous extent, and there have been loud and insistent demands in the press for an enquiry into the whole question. Had the Travancore Legislative Council been reorganized on the lines of British Indian Councils, several facts connected with this matter would have been brought to the notice of the Government by interpellations and resolutions and it would have become imperative on the part of the Government to make some definite statement on this important subject. As it is, the agitation is carried on almost solely by the press, whose cries have so far not had the desired effect. There are several officers in Travancore, some of whom travelling with large retinues, who insist on supplies being made to them during their tours by the subordinate officers of each locality. These supplies are most often not paid for, though, it must be mentioned, there are some officers who condescend to pay a very small percentage of the price of such supplies. A low-paid subordinate who has to meet these extra items of expenditure periodically can hardly be expected to resist the temptation of making good his loss by some shady transaction on his part. Not only, therefore, is corruption thus encouraged among the lower ranks of the service but also honest and conscientious officers are placed in the awkward predicament of having either to arrange for supplies at any inconvenience and loss, or incur the disfavour of their superiors with all the results attending on it. Several complaints reach us regarding this matter, and we are emphatically of opinion that the whole question demands the serious consideration of the Government."

The Madras Legislative Council.

110. In continuing its comments on the proceedings of the last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 6th December, thinks that in Malabar, where the Judge's time is mostly taken up with Sessions work, the duties of the Public Prosecutor and the Government vakil should not be entrusted to one and the same person, points out that it will be hard and improper, if Government coins had no fixed value, that, if a sovereign can be sold for more than Rs. 15, there is no reason why a rupee should not fetch more than sixteen annas, and that the legality or otherwise of such transactions is a matter for courts of justice to settle, and approves of the order of the Governor of Mahé, making it penal to sell French gold coins for a higher value than that fixed by the Government. It then takes exception to the circular of the District Magistrate of South Canara, which was the subject of an interpellation in the council, regarding the punishment to be awarded for certain offences under the Abkari Act, and dwells upon the injustice of the low-paid village accountants who travel on official business, being refused batta, while such is allowed to Amsam Adhicaris as well as to high Government officials.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 6th, 1916.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The Soap Factory at Calicut

111. The Kerala Patrika, of the 9th December, points out that the soaps, manufactured at the Soap Factory at Calicut, are of excellent quality, and pays a tribute to Sir F. Nicholson and Mr. A. K. Menon for their efforts in this direction.

Kerala Sanchari, Trichur, Dec. 12th, 1916.

Sir Sankaran Nayar and the Madras Mahajana Sabha.

112. Referring to the memorandum presented by the Madras Mahajana Sabha to Sir C. Sankaran Nayar, the Keralodayam, of the 12th December, hopes that he will, as far as possible, carry out the suggestions contained therein.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1916.

"Recognition of the loyalty and valour of Mussalmans."

113. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 5th December, writing on the loyalty of Mussalmans and of their devotion to the British Crown and throne, says:—During the present war wealthy Mussalmans have generously contributed their share, valiant Mussalmans have given proof of their devotion and self-sacrifice by taking part in the war and literary men by writing able articles have infused into the country the spirit of loyalty. The Jaridah has always been prompt in the performance of its duty and never has it been behindhand in spreading the spirit of loyalty and in refuting false reports. What could give it greater pride than the facts that the public have appreciated the importance of its articles on loyalty and that the authorities have shown appreciation of its merit. It is tantamount to its services to the country being publicly recognised.

The editor adds that Dr. Smith, who is now in Salonika and who is attached to the 137th Indian Field Ambulance, writes to a Professor regarding Muhammad Umer, eldest son of the editor of the Jaridah, who is ill:—

"The uncle of Muhammad Umer, i.e., the brother of the editor of the Jaridah, who is my senior Sub-Assistant Surgeon, has rendered me great assistance in the present war, for which I am thankful. Therefore in return for this kindness I must treat his relations in the same way. Do all you can to cure the boy."

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, Dec. 6th, 1916.

Indentured labour for the colonies.

114. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 4th December, writes:—The Government of India, with a view to framing regulations beneficial to Indian emigrants, has issued a circular letter to all Local Governments calling for an expression of their opinion on the subject.

This is certainly a step in the right direction, but we would ask where is the necessity for allowing emigrants to proceed of their own accord? Has India no obligation in regard to her labourers who proceed to Jamaica, Trinidad, British Guiana, Fiji, etc., to the Dutch Settlements and Surinam, or should she furnish them with labour?

Indian labourers are, as a rule, illiterate and simple minded and so are easily duped. But when they arrive in a colony, they are treated in a manner which is at once degrading and detestable, and no Imperial enactment can put a stop to it. They have a thousand and one ways of evading the regulations.

When our laws and the press are powerless to ameliorate the wretched condition of labourers in Assam which is an Indian Province, what influence can they be expected to exercise on behalf of labourers in colonies remote from India?

They may, however, be allowed to go on one condition, viz., they are not worried in any way.

The editor requests His Excellency Lord Chelmsford to consider this question from the Indian point of view; and it is believed His Excellency will then arrive at the final decision that the best thing for India is to absolutely stop the practice of indentured labour.

IV.—Native States.

115. The Vrittanta Patrike, of the 14th December, in a leading article, writes:—Our Mysore Government exhibits, inordinate interest in the matter of publishing reports, journals and the like. The latest instance of this activity is found in their proposal to publish a quarterly magazine which will be known as the "Mysore Blue Book journal", and which will contain abstracts of Government orders, descriptions of Government publications and other important matters which are engaging the attention of Government. So far as we are aware, the Government have already an organisation to this very end. We fail to see therefore why they should undertake to publish a new quarterly journal instead of merely reorganising the existing establishment. The people are complaining that their petitions to Government do not receive prompt attention. We hope the recent orders of Government to remedy this grievance will be strictly observed and the officers of Government will not only send an immediate acknowledgment on receipt of every petition but also show greater interest and vigour regarding their disposal. Another order recently issued by Government is as regards the medical examination of school children. It is nine months since the order was made. The order was to come into operation from June last. Are the prescribed registers at least ready for this work? How many schools were examined so far under these rules? Were the results entered in the registers? We understand that the Government are not prepared to employ any additional staff for the purpose. If the existing staff alone should undertake these additional duties, we are afraid that this insistence might prove detrimental to the regular daily duties of the medical officers. We had all along doubts as to whether the figures relating to agricultural statistics were at all reliable. As no purpose would be served by unreliable statistics, we hope that the recent orders of Government proposing some changes in the method of preparing these returns are being strictly carried out, so as to ensure the absolute reliability of the figures for future years. It is no doubt an easy thing to enact measures and issue orders, but the same cannot be said in regard to the ensuring that these measures or orders are being strictly enforced. We feel oppressed by the thought that our Government have not been strict in the enforcement of their orders. Has there been a single instance in which the responsible authorities were asked to explain why their orders were not obeyed? We have never known the Government to take any officer severely to task for failing to enforce their orders. The utmost they do is to express their dissatisfaction in a mild, feeble tone. The root principle of good Government is, to our mind, the strict enforcement of every law and regulation. When the officers themselves are not strict in carrying out their orders, how is it possible to expect the people to obey them? The truth is that we have among us officers of Government who are wont to think that the rules and regulations concern the people and not them. It is useless to expect any real progress so long as these ideas prevail. It is far better not to make any laws and regulations at all, rather than that the Government should fail to enforce them with firmness.

Some recent orders of the Mysore Government.

Vrittanta Patrike, Mysore, Dec. 14th, 1916.

116. Referring to the Christian Succession Bill, the Nasrani Deepika, of the 9th December, thinks that it would be a pity if the Bill be rejected in toto, but that it should be passed with the necessary modifications.

The Christian Succession Bill.

Nasrani Deepika, Dec. 9th, 1916.

Errata.

Report No. 49.

Page 2124, paragraph 44, line 9, substitute "foe" for "friend".
" 2124 " 44 " 11, substitute "word" for "words".
" 2124 " 44 " 36, substitute "looks" for "works".
" 2125 " 44 " 7, substitute "Chauffeurs" for "Chaffeurs".
" 2125 " 44 " 22, insert "been" after "and".
" 2130 " 44 " 2, substitute "City" for "city".

Report No. 50.

Article 83, line 3, for "prevent" read "pervert".

Issued, 19th December 1916.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 52 of 1916.

REPORT
ON ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS EXAMINED BY THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT, MADRAS, AND OF
VERNACULAR PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS
for the Week ending 23rd December 1916.

District Magistrates and Political Agents are requested to send to the Chief Secretary to Government, Judicial Department, a brief report of any local complaint which appears to them to call for notice, explaining whether the facts are as stated; what action, if any, is being taken; and, if the facts alleged are incorrect, what is believed to be the origin of the report and what the correct facts are.

CONTENTS.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

I.—Foreign Politics. PAGE

The British Cabinet 2271

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—
Grave crime in Malabar .. 2272

(b) Courts—
The outgoing District Judge of Mamnad .. 2272
Trial by jury in Bengal .. 2273

(d) Education—
The Zamorin's College .. 2273
A National College in Bombay .. 2274
The Indian Institute of Science .. 2274

(e) Local and Municipal—
An Engineer's insolence .. 2275

(h) Railways—
The curtailment of Railway traffic .. 2275

(k) General—
The Governor-Designate of Bengal .. 2276
Lord Carmichael's apologia .. 2276
A new future for India .. 2277
The emigration enquiry .. 2278
Indians in British East Africa .. 2278
The Pictorial Expert .. 2279
The Round Table and India .. 2279
The Congress and the angle of vision .. 2279
Home Rule and the non-Brahman .. 2280
The Acting Postmaster-Generalship of Madras .. 2281
Mrs. Besant and the Defence of India Act .. 2283
The situation in South Arcot .. 2284
The South Indian People's Association .. 2284
Liberal politicians and Provincial Governorships .. 2285

IV.—Native States.

Indians at Travancore State functions .. 2285
The Travancore Christian Succession Bill .. 2285
The Pudukottai Assembly .. 2286
Mysore Police administration .. 2287

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

The war .. 2288
Bukharest .. 2288
The German dream .. 2289
The German peace proposals .. 2289
The new Ministry in England .. 2289
The Turks in Persia .. 2290
The British Ministry .. 2290
The consequence of the peace note .. 2290
"Even Russia is a step ahead" .. 2291
"The atmosphere of the whole garden is now vitiated" .. 2291
The cry for peace .. 2292
The peace proposals of Germany .. 2292

II.—Home Administration.

		Page
(b) Courts—
Vendhinatahams		2292
The Vendhinatahams case		2293
(c) Jails—
Indian officers in the Jail department		ib.
(d) Education—
An instance of claims overlooked		ib.
The Intermediate Examination		ib.
The Patna University		ib.
Compulsory primary education		2294
The enhancement of school fees in the Zamorin's College		ib.
Education in India		ib.
Religious education		ib.
Secondary schools in the Madras Presidency		2295
(e) Local and Municipal—
The Beswada municipality		ib.
(h) Railways—
Curtailment of train service		2296
A proposal to reduce the number of trains		ib.
(j) Salt and Abkári—
The Abkári Department		ib.
(k) General—
Lord Carmichael's speech on the Defence of India Act		ib.
Answers to questions in Legislative Council		2297
The severity of Judges against coolies in Ceylon		ib.
Six persons interned under the Defence of India Act in Bengal		ib.
The Defence of India Act in Travancore		ib.
India and the Colonies		2298
Advancement of the Indian industries		ib.
Status of non-official members in Legislative Councils		ib.
Condition of trade in India after the war		ib.
The new Governor of Bengal		ib.
India and the empire		2299
The Defence of India Act		ib.
Sir James Meston's warning to the Congress		ib.
Lord Carmichael		ib.
Proposals for peace		2300
Sir Valentine Chirol and the Bombay Government		ib.
The Nation		ib.
The Congress		2301
Trust funds and Co-operative Societies		ib.
Mr. Chamberlain		ib.
Lord Ronaldshay		ib.
Sugar trade		2302
The Cabinet		ib.
The Congress and the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces		ib.
Home Rule Leagues		ib.
Sedition in Bengal		ib.
Floods		2303
Fodder for cattle		ib.
Permanent Revenue Settlement		ib.
Seditious leaflets		ib.
The Madras Legislative Council		ib.
Hawker's licenses in South Africa		2304
Supplies to Collectors		ib.
The Advocate-General, Madras		ib.
The necessity of a dispensary at Payyanur		ib.
The Madras Legislative Council		ib.
Lord Carmichael's recent speech		ib.
The Governor-designate of Bengal		2305
India and the new Cabinet		ib.
Trade after the war		ib.
The Indian National Congress		ib.
The Membership of the Madras Executive Council		ib.
A summary of the war news		2306
The Madras Executive Council and a Muhammadan		ib.

III.—Legislation.

The Panchayat Bill	ib.
The necessity of introducing a law regulating hurics in Malabar	2307
"Defence of India"	ib.

IV.—Native States.

Revenue Survey in Mysore	ib.
The administration of Pudukkóttai	ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS PUBLISHED IN THE MADRAS PRESIDENCY, THE NATIVE STATES OF HYDERABAD, MYSORE, TRAVANCORE, COCHIN AND PUDUKKOTTAI, AND THE FRENCH TERRITORIES OF PONDICHERRY AND KARIKAL.

[NOTE.—Among the Indian-owned newspapers, those classed as dealing with politics are printed in big type. Officers, in whose jurisdiction they are published, are requested to pay special attention to these papers, and send immediate reports of any changes in them to the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Railways and Criminal Investigation Department, Madras.]

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
1	Abhinavasaraswati	Telugu.	Chandrika Press, Guntur ..	Monthly ..	Janapati Pattabhirama Sastri, Brahman, 45 years.	225
2	Adyar Bulletin	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 66 years.	1,200
3	Agricultural Pamphlet.	Tamil ..	Alamandra Press, Kumbakonam.	Do. ..	R. Srinivasa Ayyangar, 43 years, and Subrahmaniya Ayyar, 40 years, Brahmans.	600
4	Agriculture	Telugu.	Published at Ellore, printed at Sanga & Co.'s Press, Cocanada, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Rao Sahib G. Narayanaswami Nayudu, B.A., Sudra, 50 years.	255
5	Agriculturist	Tamil .	Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. R. Ranga Raju, Balija, 41 years.	1,000
6	A'in-i-Deccan	Urdu ..	A'in-i-Deccan Press, Begum Bazaar, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Maulvi Inayat Husain Khan Sahib, Afghan, 41 years.	750
7	Akshayanjali	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Sri Kantayya, Brahman, 35 years.	600
8	Al-Mamun	Urdu ..	Alavi Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Anwar-ud-din Sahib Bahadur, Muhammadan, 35 years.	400
9	Ananda*	Canarese	Victoria Printing Works, Bantwal, south Canara district.	Fortnightly.	M. N. Kamath, Brahman ..	Not known.
10	Ananda Bodhini ..	Tamil ..	P. R. Rama Ayyar & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Muniswami Mudaliyar, Vellala, 31 years.	1,000
11	Ananda Chandrika.†	Canarese	Guruvilas Printinting Works, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	K. Sivarama Das	Not known.
12	Andhra Advocate .	English.	Basel Printing Works, Vizagapatam.	Weekly ..	Nyayapati Rangamannar, Vyshnave, 30 years.	450
13	Andhra Chandrika	Telugu.	Andhra Chandrika Press, Proddatur, Cuddapah district.	Do. ..	B. Narayanaswami, Brahman, 33 years.	600
14	Andhra Patrika ..	Anglo-Telugu.	Andhra Patrika Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and weekly.	K. Nageswara Rao, Brahman, 46 years, and G. Harisarvottama Rao, Brahman, 46 years.	3,000
15	Andhraprabhasika.	Telugu.	Hindu Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	A. C. Parthasarathi Nayudu, Balija, 62 years.	500
16	Andhra Sahitya Parishad Patrika.	Do.	Published at the Telugu Academy office, 12 Arunachalu Mayalan Road, Chintadripet, printed at Srinivasa Varadachari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Sarada Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	300
17	Andhra Samvahini.	Do.	Kamala Printing Works Cocanada, Godavari district.	Do. ..	G. Harischandra Rao, Brahman, 32 years.	500
18	Anglo-Indian ..	English.	Published at the Anglo-Indian Association premises, Egmore, printed at Vest & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	Felix Alexander D'Cruz, Anglo-Indian, 50 years.	500
19	Antiseptic	Do.	Published at No. 332, Thumbu Chetty Street, printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. Nayar, Nayar, 46 years.	400
20	Arogyam	Telugu.	Saraswati Press, Cocanada ..	Do. ..	V. Gopala Krishna Rao, Brahman, 30 years.	500
21	Arunodayam	Tamil ..	Church of Sweden Mission Press, Tranquebar, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	Rev D. Sandi, European, 54 years.	750
22	Arya	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	Ambinde Ghose, Kayastha, 45 years, Paul Richard, 42 years, and Madame Richard, French.	750
23	Aryabala Samaj Magazine.	Do.	Krishnaraja Vani Vilas Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	G. Virupakshayya, Brahman, 33 years.	100
24	Arya Dharman ..	Tamil ..	Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	T. K. Balasubrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 45 years.	300
25	Arya Dharma Pratikam.	Canarese	Sri Lakshmi Vilasa Press, Nallahalli, Mysore State.	Do. ..	N. Narasappaiya Venkappa, Brahman, 35 years.	400

* Started, 3rd April 1916.

† Started, November 1916.

No. (1)	Name of publication. (2)	Language of publication. (3)	Where published. (4)	Edition. (5)	Name, caste and age of editor. (6)	Circulation. (7)
26	Arya Mahila	Canarese	Published at Nanjangud (Mysore) and printed at the Royal Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	M. Sitarama Jois, Brahman, 22 years.	250
27	Arya Vyasya ..	Anglo-Telugu	Arya Vyasya Press, Guntur .	Weekly ..	S. Ramaswami Gupta, Vyasya, 52 years.	350
28	Asha	Uriya	Asha Press, Berhampur ..	Do. ..	S. B. Rotho, Brahman, 31 years.	1,000
29	Atma Poshini ..	Malayalam	Abhayanandha Prabhakha Press, Kunnamkulam, Cochin State	Monthly ..	Rev. P. I. Joseph. Syrian Christian, 26 years.	700
30	Bala Dutan or Children's Herald.	Tamil ..	Published at Nazareth, printed at the Darling Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Joseph A. Jesudasan, Indian Christian, 48 years.	3,000
31	Bala Mitra or Children's Friend.	Telugu.	Christain Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, European, 35 years.	9,500
32	Balamitram	Malayalam.	Nicholas Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	G. E. Thadaeus, Indian Christian, 30 years.	500
33	Baliyar Mittiran or Children's Friend.	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Robertson, European ..	7,500
34	Baliyar Nesan or Children's Magazine.	Do. ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Rev. R. V. Asirvadam, Indian Christian, 45 years.	6,500
35	Bible, Pilgrim and Psalms.	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	J. Dartmell, Russian, 30 years..	200
36	Basel Mission College Magazine.*	English and Malayalam occasionally.	Norman Printing Bureau, Calicut	Eight times a year.	W. E. Hearo, Englishman, 52 years.	300
37	Bashabhimani † ..	Malayalam.	Raja Raja Varma Press, Puthenchanthai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	P. K. Kumara Pillai, Nayar, 22 years.	500
38	Bhakti Sandesha ‡ ..	Canarese	Canton Press, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Sri Duttatreya Krishna Bharadwaja	Not known.
39	Bhasha §	Anglo-Malayalam.	Vidya Vinodhini Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. K. K. Srinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 26 years.	500
40	Bharata Kesari ‖	Do.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Puthenchanthai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Velu Pillai, Nayar, 33 years.	1,300
41	Bharatamata ..	Telugu.	Sri Virayogindra Press, Vizianagram.	Weekly ..	Veruganti Venkata Sannyasulu, Brahman, 37 years.	400
42	Bharati ¶	Tamil ..	Published at 5, Colegapya Maistri Street, Chintadripet, and printed at the Vivekabulatheram Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Do. ..	T. Krishnaswami Pavalar, Gramani, 27 years.	500
43	Bharati	Canarese	Vani Vilas Press, Bellary ..	Do. ..	K. M. Karibasavayya. Lingayat, 33 years.	200
44	Bhavati Vilas	Do	Bhuvaneswari Press, Mysore..	Monthly ..	A. Krishna Dikshit, Brahman, 30 years	200
45	Bhuloka Vyasan ..	Tamil ..	Bhuloka Vyasan Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Muthuvira Savalar, Valluvan, 52 years.	250
46	Bible Faith Mission Standard.	English.	Hogarth Press, Royapettia, Madras.	Once in two months.	Charles R. Vedanta Achari, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
47	Bodhaka Bodhini ..	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	725
48	Bodhini	Do.	Prabhakara Press, Udipi, South Canara District.	Do. ..	T. Mangesh Rao, 40 years, and M. N. Kamath, 38 years, Brahmans.	750
49	Brothers of the Star ..	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar, Chingleput district.	Do. ..	Dr. H. Roche, English, 40 years.	5,000
50	Carlyleau	Do.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Fortnightly.	T. Srinivasulu, B.A., Brahman, 40 years	200
51	Catholic Friend. 	Do.	Published at the Lee Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. M. Mathe Vas, Singhalese Christian, 32 years.	..
52	Catholic Messenger ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Deepika Press, Kuravelangad, Travancore State.	Do. ..	M. A. Nithiri, B.A., Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,200
53	Catholic Mitrasan or Catholic Friend. ¶	Telugu.	Published at the Lee Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. M. Mathe Vas, Singhalese Christian, 31 years.	..
54	Catholic Nesan or Catholic Friend.	Tamil ..	Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	..
55	Catholic Register.	English.	Published at San Thomé, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. M. Tuscon, Portuguese, 36 years.	350

* Discontinued, April 1916. † Started, 8th September 1916. ‡ Started, August 1916. § Started, 21st May 1915, and discontinued in July 1916. ‖ Started, February 1916. ¶ Temporarily discontinued, April 1916.  Started, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
56	Catholic Watchman.	English.	Published at the Catholic Supply Society, Popham's Broadway, Georgetown, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father Kuss, European ..	400
57	Chakravarthi ..	Malayalam.	Chakravarthi Press, Muttancherry, Cochin State	Do. ..	K. Janadhana Menon, Sudra, 30 years.	850
58	Chakravartini ..	Tamil ..	Sachchidananda Press, Kamaleswaran ettah, Madras.	Monthly..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 52 years.	200
59	Childrens' Friend ..	Anglo-Tamil.	St. Mary's School Press, Cuddalore.	Do. ..	Amirdam Mudali alias Muruges Mudali, Vellala, 28 years.	Not known.
60	Choudavi *	Telugu.	Ramamohan Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Garapati Anjaneya Choudari, Kamma, 30 years.	Do.
61	Christ Church, Madras, Monthly Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras	Do. ..	Rev. W. E. Heiser, M.A., European, 40 years.	250
62	Christian College Magazine.	Do.	Do. do.	Do. ..	S. J. Crawford, M.A., European	400
63	Christian Patriot.	Do.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	R. A. Dason, Indian Christian, 24 years.	600
64	Church Mission College Magazine.	Do.	Darling Printing Press, Tinnevelly.	Quarterly.	J. Jnanamuthu, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 50 years.	850
65	Cochin Argus ..	Do.	Cochin Argus Press, British Cochin.	Weekly ..	C. Hamilton Pereira, Anglo-Indian, 47 years.	300
66	Commercial World Advertiser. †	Anglo-Tamil—Telugu	Published at 41, Avadanam Papayya Street, Choolai, printed at the Presidency Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Chakrapani Pillai, Yadhava, 38 years.	1,000
67	Commonweal ..	English.	Besant Press, New India Buildings, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 69 years.	7,000
68	Conch ‡	Do.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore.	Do. ..	Raman Pillai, Nayar, 40 years..	400
69	Contemporary Law Review.	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	600
70	Co-operative Bulletin ..	Canarese	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Do. ..	K. S. Krishna Ayyar, Brahman, 39 years.	500
71	Criminal Law Reporter.	English.	Law Notes Press, Parvatipur, Vizagapatam district.	Do. ..	P. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 55 years, good.	Not stated.
72	Criminal Law Review..	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	600
73	Daily Post ..	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Daily (two editions).	T. M. Babington, European, 53 years.	3,000
74	Deccan Law Report ..	Urdu ..	Deccan Law Report Press, Troop Bazaar, Jam Bagh, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Akbar Khan Sahib, Muhammadan, 37 years.	1,000
75	Desabhimani ..	Anglo-Tamil.	Patriot Press, Cuddalore New Town.	Weekly ..	P. T. Tiruvenkata Achari, Brahman, 31 years.	465
76	Do. ..	Telugu.	Desabhimani Press, Guntúr ..	Do. ..	D. Sikhichalapathi Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	300
77	Do. ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Sri Krishna Vilasam Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do. ..	T. K. Narayanan, Ezhava, 30 years.	1,000
78	Desamata	Telugu.	Manorama Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	Rayavarapu Ramamurti, Brahman, 44 years.	700
79	Desaya Missionary Prabandha.	Do.	Sujanaranjani Press, Coonada.	Once in two months.	Rev. N. Abraham, Indian Christian, 40 years.	1,000
80	Desaya Missionary Patrike	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Do.	H. Sumitra, Indian Christian ..	500
81	Dhanurdhari ..	Do.	Sachchidananda Press, Davangere, Mysore State.	Fortnightly.	M. Manjappa Hardaikar, Lingayat, 31 years.	400
82	Dhánvantari	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	P. Unnirami Varriar, Variyan, 46 years.	305
83	Dharma Pochini.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Manomohanam Press, Quilon, Travancore State.	Bi-monthly.	R. Madhavan Unnithan, Nayar, 38 years.	950
84	Dharma Prachara ..	English.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	A Mahadeva Sastri, Brahman, 54 years.	300
85	Dharmaprabhanidhi. †	Telugu.	Sita Vilasa Press, Tenali, Guntur district.	Fortnightly.	B. J. Suryaprakasa, Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	250
86	Dharmasadhini ..	Do.	Snipe & Co.'s Press, Cocanada.	Do.	P. Narasimham, Brahman, 29 years.	500
87	Digest of Indian Case Law.	English.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 35 years.	1,500
88	Disciple	Do.	Vasantha Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Quarterly.	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 69 years.	2,000
89	Divyagnana Bodhini or Organ of Theosophy.	Telugu.	Victoria Jubilee Press, Chittoor.	Monthly..	P. Narasimhayya, 50 years, and J. Srinivasa Rao, 24 years, Brahmans.	1,300

* Started, June 1916. † Not published for the last two years. ‡ Started, 16th August 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
90	Dravidabhimani ..	Tamil ..	Dravidabhimani Press, Salem.	Weekly ..	D. A. John Nadar, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,000
91	Educational Review.	English.	Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly..	C. Srinivasa Achari, Brahman, 61 years	600
92	Elementary School Journal.	Telugu.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	V. Narasimharayudu, Brahman, 42 years.	1,500
93	Sathalaseatyam or Present Truth.	Malayalam.	Published at the South Indian Mission of Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk, and printed at the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. S. James, European, 37 years.	Not known.
94	Everyman's Review,†	English.	Kanara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Suryanarayanamurti, Brahman, 50 years.	100
95	Findlay College, Magazine.	Do.	Published at Mannargudi, Tanjore district, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Quarterly.	S. Narayana Ayyangar, M.A., and Kadaji Rao, B.A., Brahmans.	400
96	Friendly Instructor ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly..	Rev. D. Pakkianathan, Indian Christian, 63 years.	1,000
97	George Gazette ..	Urdu ..	Muhammadi Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	M. Abdul Basith, Muhammadan, 39 years.	400
98	Gopala Krishnan ..	Malayalam.	M. V. Press, Palghat	Monthly..	P Chippa Kutty Nayar, Nayar, 28 years.	400
99	Gospel Witness ..	English.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Do. ..	Rev. Victor McCauley, American, 41 years.	350
100	Grihalakshmi	Telugu.	Manjuvani Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	N. Cholapati Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
101	Harvest Field	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years	645
102	Hindu	Do.	National Press, Wallajah Road, Madras.	Daily, triweekly & weekly.	S. Kasturiranga Ayyangar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 51 years.	6,100
103	Hindu Nesan ..	Tamil ..	South Indian Press, 13, Narasingapuram Street, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	S. Srinivasa Venkata Achari, Brahman	1,500
104	Hindu Sundari ..	Telugu.	Vidyartini Samaj Press, Cocanada.	Monthly ..	S. Seshamma, 37 years, and M. Chaddamma, 33 years, Brahmans.	500
105	Hitaharini	Tamil ..	Published at 14, Kennedy Street, Mylapore, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	Vimalambi Ammal, Brahman, 36 years.	1,000
106	Do.	Telugu.	Hitaharini Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	M. L. Narasimha Sarma, Brahman, 33 years.	400
107	Hitavadi	Do.	Church Missionary Society, Dove Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly..	Rev. D. Anantam, B.A., Indian Christian, 65 years.	550
108	Humanity	English.	India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Punnayya, Brahman, 30 years.	400
109	Illustrated Criminal Investigation and Law Digest.	Do.	Criminal Investigation Press, Vellore, North Arcot district.	Do.	T. K. Sundara Ayyar, Brahman, 44 years.	1,400
110	Indian Advertiser.	French, English and Tamil.	Jagunatha Press, Pondicherry.	Monthly..	N. Rajalu Reddi, Reddi, 27 years.	100
111	Indian Christian.	English.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	W. C. Irvine, European, 41 years.	1,100
112	Indian Christian Endeavour.	Do.	Published in Bangalore, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Haliwell, European, 44 years.	500
113	Indian Church News and Review. ‡	Do.	Hogarth Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	D. David, Indian Christian, 43 years.	300
114	Indian Emigrant .	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. K. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 34 years.	300
115	Indian Engineer.	Do.	Published at 2 and 3, Raja's Buildings, Armenian Street, and printed at the Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. R. Venkatesa Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	1,000
116	Indian Interpreter ..	Do.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. N. Macnicol, M.A., 47 years, and Rev. A. Robertson, M.A., 44 years, Europeans.	600
117	Indian Ladies' Magazine.	Do.	Published at "History", San Thomé, Mylapore, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	Mrs. K. Sathianadhan, Indian Christian, 44 years.	300
118	Indian Law Gazette.	Tamil ..	Indian Law Gazette Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly..	C. Paramasiva Mudali, Vellala, 46 years.	130

* Started, July 1916. † Started, January 1916. ‡ Discontinued, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
119	Indian Law Quarterly ..	English.	Published at 14 and 15, Law Church Road, Mylapore, printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Quarterly.	P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	500
120	Indian Patriot ..	Do.	Indian Patriot Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and tri-weekly.	Diwan Bahadur C. Karunakara Menon, B.A., Nayar, 56 years.	900
121	Indian Railway Journal.	Do.	Published at Triplicane, printed by Pavar & Co.'s Press, Patter's Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	S. K. Subba Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	150
122	Indian Review ..	Do.	G. A. Natesan & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Natesa Ayyar, B.A., F.M.S., Brahman, 47 years.	2,000
123	International Police Service Magazine.	Do.	Ambika Press, Park Town, Madras.	Do. ..	G. Kodandaramayya, M.A., Brahman, 56 years.	500
124	Janabhimani or People's Friend.	Tamil ..	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 48 years.	750
125	Janamukulan .	Do. ..	Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore.	Weekly ..	T. V. Krishna Das, Vellala, 57 years.	1,000
126	Janmi	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	K. Ca Manavikraman Tamburan, Sardantan, 47 years.	320
127	Janopakari* ..	Tamil ..	Record Press, Vellore ..	Do. ..	V. R. Vaidyananda Ayyar, Brahman, 36 years.	..
128	Jnana Bhanu ..	Do. ..	Published at 8, Pichu Pillai Street, Mylapore; printed at the Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswarapet, Madras.	Do. ..	Subrahmanya Siva, Brahman, 36 years.	250
129	Jaridah-i-Rengar ..	Urdu ..	Hyderi Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Daily and weekly.	Muhammad Abdul Latif Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 37 years.	300
130	Journal of the Madras Agricultural Students' Union.	English.	Published at the Agricultural College, Coimbatore, printed at the Literary Sun Press, Coimbatore.	Monthly ..	D. Ananda Rao, Indian Christian, 24 years.	250
131	Journal of the Muhammadan Educational Association of Southern India.	Urdu ..	Published at 5, Francis Joseph Street, Georgetown, printed at the Islamia Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Abdul Hamid Hasan, B.A., LL.B., Muhammadan, 44 years.	500
132	Journal of the Tamil Scientific Terms Society.‡	Anglo-Tamil.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	C. Rajagopala Achari and R. G. Venkatasubba Ayyar, Brahmans.	100
133	Kadambari Sangraha ..	Canarese	Royal Press, Mysore ..	Do. ..	Venkataramana Sastri, Brahman, 28 years.	400
134	Kairali†	Malayalam.	Published at Ernakulam, printed at the Vidya Vinodhini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Sankara Menon, M.A., L.T., Nayar, 32 years.	600
135	Kalabhimani‡ ..	Canarese	Caxton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Raghupati Achari, Brahman, 40 years.	1,000
136	Kala Chintamani ..	Tamil ..	Published at 4, Muliswaran Koil Street, Mylapore; printed at the Sivabhimani Vilasam Press, Choolai, Madras.	Do. ..	T. V. Kaliyana Sundara Mudali, Vellala, 35 years, good.	1,000
137	Kalki Magal ..	Do. ..	Imprimerie Louis Saunaya de Saigon, Pondicherry.	Do. ..	S. Rangaru Pathar, Kammala, 42 years.	400
138	Kaliyuga Varthamani.	Do. ..	Kaviprabhan Ganesha Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly...	T. Muthuswami Chetti Vaisya, 28 years.	100
139	Kalpana	English.	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	T. R. Sanjivi Rao, Brahman, 35 years.	750
140	Kannada Kogile§ ..	Canarese	M. T. A. Sharada Press, Mangalore.	Do. ..	P. Bhoja Rao and M. Thimmappaya.	Not known.
141	Karnataka	English.	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Bi-weekly.	D. V. Gundappa, Brahman, 29 years.	350
142	Karnataka Chandrike ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	N. Srikanta Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	600
143	Karnataka Granthamala.	Do.	Graduates Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	B. Nubba Rao, B.A., Brahman, 46 years.	300
144	Karnataka Kavya Kalanidhi.	Do.	Srinivasa Press, Mysore ..	Do. ..	M. A. Ramanuja Ayyangar, Brahman, 51 years.	250
145	Karnataka Nandini¶ ..	Do.	Published at the Sati Hitaishini office, Nanjangud, Mysore State; printed at the Sri Krishna Press, Hubli, Bombay Presidency.	Do. ..	N. Tirumalamma	Not known.
146	Karnataka Sahitya Parishad Patrike.§	Do.	Published by the Kannada Academy, and printed at the Irish Press, Bangalore City, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	R. Raghunatha Rao, Brahman ..	Do.

* Started, January 1916.
† Started, February 1916.
‡ Ceased to exist January 1916.
§ Started, April 1916.
‖ Started in 1916.
¶ Started, October 1916.

No. (1)	Name of publication. (2)	Language of publication. (3)	Where published. (4)	Edition. (5)	Name, caste and age of editor. (6)	Circulation. (7)
147	Kastha Ratnakaram.	Tamil	Published at 162, Coral Merchant Street; printed at the Swadesamitiran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. A. Nelliappa Mudaliyar, Vellala, 30 years good.	400
148	Kavita	Telugu.	Vidwajjana Manoranjini Press, Pithapuram, Godavari district.	Do. ..	V. Venkatarama Sastri, 30 years, and V. Ramakrishna Sastri, 27 years. Brahmans.	250
149	Kerala Deepika ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Cevention Memorial Syrian Press, Muvattupuzha, Travancore State.	Fortnightly.	Rev. P. C. John, Indian Christian, 27 years.	300
150	Keralabasari ..	Malayalam.	Perunanam, Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Monthly ..	W. Ikkanda Puthuval, Ambalavasi, 35 years, good.	350
151	Keralam *	Malayalam, English, Sanskrit and Tamil.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Puthenchandai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	R. Mahadeva Sarma, Brahman, 28 years.	500
152	Kerala Patrika ..	Malayalam.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Weekly ..	C. Kunhiraman Menon, B.A., Nayar, 37 years.	1,250
153	Kerala Sanchari ..	Do.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. P. Govindan Nayar, Nayar, 43 years.	1,150
154	Kerala Vyasan † ..	Do.	Published at Lokamaleswaram, Cranganore, printed at the S. P. Press, Paravur, Cochin State.	Monthly.	N. Padmanabha Menon, Nayar, 28 years.	1,000
155	Keralesvabhimani.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Keralesvabhimani Press, Mavelikara, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	Jacob Kurien, Indian Christian, 30 years.	750
156	Keralodayam ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Narayana Menon, 57 years, and V. Narayana Menon, 41 years, Nayars.	865
157	Kistnapatrika ..	Telugu.	Kistna Swadeshi Press, Masulipatam.	Do. ..	Mutnuri Krishna Rao, Brahman, 30 years.	2,000
158	Kolar Gold Fields News.	English.	Kolar Gold Fields News Press, Bowringpet, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Cornelius, Anglo-Indian, 64 years.	300
159	Konkani Dirven ..	Konkani in Canarese characters.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Fortnightly.	A. J. Masmarenhas, Indian Christian, 26 years.	600
160	La Gerbe du Maduré ..	French.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	Rev. G. J. Gross, S.J., German, 45 years.	260
161	Lakshmi Bhai ..	Malayalam.	Vidyavinodini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	V. Narayana Menon, Nayar 39 years.	1,500
162	Lakshmi Vilasam .	Do.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Do. ..	K. C. Manavikraman Tamparan, Samantan, 47 years.	350
163	Law Weekly	English.	Published at Vasanta Vilas, Mylapore, printed at Messrs. Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	V. C. Sesha Acharya, Brahman, 53 years.	450
164	Light of Music	Tamil ..	Sri Gana Vidya Press, Purasawalkam, Tinnevelly district.	Monthly ..	V. Srinivasa Ayyangar, Brahman, 38 years.	500
165	Literary Journal. ‡	English.	Published at the Young Men's Literary Association, Triplicane; printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	K. S. Venkataraman, Brahman, 24 years.	250
166	Live-ul-Islam § ..	Tamil ..	Muhammadia Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Moulvi Haji Sheikh Mirza Muhiud-din, Muhammadan, 39 years.	750
167	Local Self-government Gazette.	English.	Published at No. 7, Badrian Garden Street, Georgetown; printed by Higginbothams, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. O. Desika Acharlu, 46 years, and P. Duraiswami Ayyangar, 44 years, Brahmans.	800
168	Loka Mitran ‖ ..	Tamil ..	Union Press, Namakkal, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	V. Govindaraja Ayyangar, Brahman, 36 years.	307
169	Lokopakaram ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Lokopakaram Printing Department, Janopakari Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. N. Vaidyeswara Ayyar, Brahman, 33 years.	1,000
170	Lokaranjini ¶ ..	Tamil ..	Saraswathi Vilas Press, Mayavaram, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	P. Sundarama Ayyar, Brahman, 36 years.	500
171	Lokopakari	Do. ..	Sachchidananda Press, Kamalaswarapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 52 years.	1,100
172	Lutheran Sunday Lesson Book for children.	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Monthly ..	Mrs. H. C. Cannaday, B.A., European.	350

* Started, January 1916.
† Started, March 1916.
‡ Discontinued, May 1916.
§ Discontinued, 15th January 1916.
‖ Ceased to exist in June 1916.
¶ Ceased to exist, 30th January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
173	Madar Bodhini	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly .	Miss Inglis, M.A., European ..	700
174	Madar Manoranjani or Tamil and School Samaya Magazine.	Do. ..	Published at 12, Thanikachala Mudali Street, Triplicane; printed at Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Ramaswami Ayyar, Brahman, 40 years.	450
175	Madar Mitri or Tamil Woman's Friend.	Do. ..	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss Grace Stephens, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	700
176	Madhuravani ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	K. Hanuman Dose alias Hanuman, Brahman, 24 years.	250
177	Madhva Siddhanta Prabhasini.‡	Do..	Published at the Madhva Siddhanta Prabhasini Sabha, Mysore, and printed at the Jayalaya Press, Mysore.	Do. .	Y. Srinivasa Rao and H. Narasinga Rao, Brahmans.	Not known.
178	Madras Bulletin of Co-operation.	English, Tamil and Telugu. (separate editions).	Published by the Madras Provincial Co-operative Union, Limited, Triplicane, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Quarterly.	V. Venkata Subbayya, Brahman, 36 years.	2,000
179	Madras Church Missionary Gleaner.	English.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. Canon E. Sell, D.D. F.M.U., European, 88 years.	300
180	Madras Economic Journal.*	Do	Published at the Lady Wenlock Park, Chepauk, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Annually.	S. Krishnaswami Ayyangar, M.A., Brahman.	..
181	Madras Law Journal ..	Do.	Published at Brodie's Road, Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. Varada Achari, Brahman, 41 years.	1,750
182	Madras Law Times ..	Do.	Published at the Law Times office, Georgetown; printed at P. R. Rama Ayyar & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	(1) T. Prakasam, Brahman, 43 years; (2) M. Devadoss, Indian Christian, 45 years; and (3) C. Madhavan Nayar, Nayar, 36 years.	800
183	Madras Mail ..	Do.	Madras Mail Press. No. 6, North Beach Road, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily, triweekly and weekly.	T. E. Welby, European, 34 years.	5,612
184	Madras Times ..	Do.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	Glyn Barlow, M.A., European, 45 years.	3,300
185	Madras Weekly Notes ..	Do.	Published at Royapetta High Road; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. P. K. Tata Acharya, M.A., B.L., Brahman, 38 years.	2,000
186	Madras Young Men.	Do.	Published at the Y.M.C.A., Esplanade Road, Georgetown; printed at Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	H. C. Herman, American, 34 years.	1,000
187	Magazine for Students, Teachers and Children	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Quarterly.	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	300
188	Maharaja's College Magazine.	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do.	T. Denham, M.A., European, 49 years.	900
189	Maha Vikata Dutan.	Tamil ..	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. A. A. Rajendram Pillai, Indian Christian, 54 years.	1,050
190	Mahilambhi	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Mrs. Thorpe, European ..	250
191	Malabar Herald ..	English.	Union Press, British Cochin.	Weekly ..	E. W. Nigli, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	750
192	Malabar Islam ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Bharata Mitram Press, Muttancheri, Cochin State.	Do. ..	C. V. Abdur Rahman Haidros, Muhammadan, 37 years.	1,000
193	Malabar Quarterly Review (formerly the Monthly Review.)	English.	Sundara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Quarterly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 43 years.	500
194	Malayala Manorama.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Malayala Mandrisma Press, Kottayam, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. M. Mathula Mappilla, M.R.A.S., Syrian Christian, 48 years.	4,500
195	Malayali	Do.	Manamohan Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do.	K. Kalpa Pillai, B.A., Nayar, 53 years.	1,550
196	Manavasova† ..	Telugu.	Kalavati Press, Rajahmundry.	Monthly ..	N. Krishna Rao, Vysya, 34 years.	400
197	Mangaladayam	Malayalam.	Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	T. K. Krishna Menon, 44 years and K. Sankara Menon, 39 years, Nadras.	650
198	Mangalore Advertiser.	English.	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Do ..	A. A. Pereira alias Robson, Anglo-Indian, 37 years.	300

* Started, April 1916. † Not published since 7th September 1916. ‡ Started, October 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
199	Mangalore Magazine ..	English.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Annually.	E. Coelho, Indian Christian, 42 years.	600
200	Manja Bhéshini ..	Sanskrit.	Sri Sudarsana Press, Little Conjeeveram, Chingleput district.	Weekly ..	C. P. A. Ranga Acharya, Brahman, 44 years.	300
201	Manorama	Malayalam.	Kannanparaparambu, Chalapuram, printed at the Nicholas Printing Works, Calicut.	Bi-weekly.	P. Krishnan Nayar, Nayar, 26 years.	1,500
202	Mavaj-i-Khiyal ..	Urdu ..	Published at No. 78, Thayar Sahib Street, printed at Nazukia Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ghaus Sahib, Muhammadan, 63 years.	150
203	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Tamil ..	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Do. ..	Brother Joseph, Indian Christian, 61 years	3,870
204	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Brother Leo, European, 44 years.	400
205	Missionary Intelligencer	Tamil ..	Darling Press, Palamcottah ..	Do. ..	J. A. Ambedayan, Indian Christian, 47 years.	2,500
206	Mission News ..	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. Aberly, A.B., American. 51 years.	600
207	Mission News for Women.	Do.	Do. do.	Monthly ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 36 years.	300
208	Mitavadi	Anglo-Malayalam.	Mitavadi Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. Krishnan, B.A., B.L., Tiyya, 44 years.	1,000
209	Monthly Letter ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	300
210	Morning Star	English.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Six times a year.	Rev. Father L. Lacombe, S.J., Frenchman, 50 years.	1,200
211	Muhammadia Pracharga Nesan (formerly the Islamic Prachara Nesan). *	Tamil ..	Rivayuth-ul-Islam Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. M. Mustafa Labbai, Muhammadan, 39 years.	500
212	Muhibbir-i-Deccan.	Urdu ..	Sultani Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Do. ..	Saiyid Muhammad Abdul Qadir Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 47 years.	800
213	Muhibir-i-Deccan.	Do. ..	Deccan Punch Press, Mahbubpara (Govligada), Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Krishna Rao, Brahman, 48 years.	1,700
214	Muslim Dutan ..	Tamil ..	Shah-ul-Hamidiya Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. A. Shah-ul-Hamid, Muhammadan. 42 years.	900
215	My Mother †	English.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, printed at the St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Once in two months.	R. P. Kulandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 39 years.	Not known.
216	Mysore Patriot ..	Do.	Krishnaraja Vanivilas Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	250
217	Mysore Star ..	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	Y. Virupakshayya, Lingayat, 42 years.	3,000
218	Nagai Neela-lochani.	Tamil ..	Neelalochani Press, Negapatam	Do. ..	G. Sadasivam Pillai, Kalla, 55 years.	250
219	Nalla Ayan or Good Pastor.	Do. ..	Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. M. John, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,700
220	Nalkalviyan or Trained Teacher.	Do. ..	Caxton Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. R. Namasivayam Mudaliyar, Vellala, 40 years.	930
221	Nayar Samudaya Parishkari. ‡	Malayalam.	Published at Tellicherry, printed at the Spectator Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	K. C. Narayan Nambiyar, Nayar, 41 years.	500
222	National Missionary Intelligencer.	English.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	Mrs. S. G. Heneman, M.A., Indian Christian.	2,400
223	Nattukottai Vaishyam.	Tamil ..	Pentland Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	P. S. Andiappa Pillai, Vellala, 37 years.	1,500
224	Nazrani Deepika.	Anglo-Malayalam.	St. Joseph's Press, Mannanam, Kottayam, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Govinda Pillai, Sudra, 39 years.	1,500
225	New India ..	English.	New India Power Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 69 years.	5,000
226	Newington School Magazine.	Do.	Published at "Newington," Teynampet; printed by Higginbotham's, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Half-yearly.	D. L. Blunt, European, 23 years.	50
227	New Reformer ..	Do.	Published at Georgetown; printed by Vest & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	D. Gopal Chetti, Sonal Thulavar, 48 years.	500
228	Nigoshhalangatyam or The Present Truth.	Tamil ..	Published at the South Indian Mission of the Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk; printed at the Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. S. James, European, 37 years.	5,000
229	Noble College Leader ..	English.	Church Missionary Society Home Press, Masulipatam.	Do.	T. V. Narasayya, 24 years, and V. K. Viraveswara Rao, Brahmans.	300

* Temporarily discontinued, 30th September 1916. † Started June 1916. ‡ Printer declared on 6th May 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
230	Non-Brahman [formerly the Advertiser's (Free) Manual].	English.	Published at the General Advertising Co. and printed at the Mercury Press, George town, Madras.	Weekly ..	C. Sarangapani Mudaliyar, Vellala, 28 years.	2,000
231	Noor *	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Fortnightly.	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	Not known.
232	Northwich Observer ..	English	Published at the United Free Church of Scotland Mission Girls' Boarding School, Rayapuram; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, George-town, Madras.	Quarterly	Miss J. H. Ross, M.A., B.Sc., European, 31 years.	450
233	Our Little Paper †	Do.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, Travancore; printed at St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	R. P. Kalandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 39 years.	550
234	Outlook †	Do.	Published at the Y.W.C.A., Coonoor, printed at the Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Ootacamund.	Quarterly.	Miss E. A. Waugh, British, 34 years.	Not known.
235	Pandia Nesan ..	Tamil ..	Krishna Vilasam Press, Madura.	Weekly ..	P. George, Indian Christian, 43 years.	400
236	Penhalvi or Female Education.	Do. ..	Published at 27, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the India Printing Works, Madras.	Monthly ..	Revco Tayarammal, Brahman, 32 years.	1,000
237	People's Opinion (formerly the People's Weekly).	English.	Sundara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 43 years.	500
238	Planters' Chronicle.	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	Fletcher Norton, European, 53 years.	1,000
239	Popular Magazine ..	Tamil ..	Gnarothia Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	Paul C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 40 years.	500
240	Popular Scientific Journal.	English.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Henry Devadas, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 32 years.	300
241	Prabandhakalpavalli. ‡	Telugu.	Bharati Vilas Press, Narasaraopet, Guntur district.	Do. ..	G. Gopalakrishnayya, Brahman, 50 years.	150
242	Prabodhini ..	Do.	Prabodhini Press, Duggirala, Guntur district.	Do. ..	V. Niranjana Sastri, Kammala, 40 years.	350
243	Prajamukulan ..	Tamil ..	Published at Srirangam; printed at the Vaijayanti Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	S. G. Ramanujulu Nayudu, Balija, 29 years.	200
244	Prapanja Mitran §	Do. ..	Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswaranpet, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. Shanmuga Mudaliyar, Vellala.	Not known.
245	Prarambha Vidya.	Telugu.	Rama Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Monthly ..	K. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 34 years, and V. Sayanna Sastri, M.A., L.T., Brahman, 36 years.	600
246	Prayer Circular ..	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. H. J. Ward, European, 73 years.	1,000
247	Presentation Annual ..	English.	Published at the Presentation Convent, Georgetown; printed at Raithy & Co.'s Liberty Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Annually.	Rev. Mother Berkmans Murphy, European, 38 years.	300
248	Progress	Do.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. C. Clayton, European.	1,000
249	Promptuarium	Latin ..	Industrial school Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Father Ligory, European, 40 years.	1,000
250	Purna Chandrodayam.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	A. Ranganswami Ayyar, Brahman, 43 years.	1,000
251	Qasim-ul-Akhbar ..	Urdu, Tamil and English.	Chamraj Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore	Bi-weekly.	M. Abdul Hameed Sharif Sahib, Muhammadan, 38 years.	767
252	Qaumi Report ..	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Daily ..	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	700
253	Ravi	Telugu.	Sujanaranjani Press, Cocanada.	Weekly ..	Rev. S. E. Smith, European, 42 years.	1,250
254	Rayabhari	Do.	Vadrevupalle, Godavari district; printed at the Braun Industrial Printery, Rajahmundry.	Quarterly.	Rev. E. C. Adams, European, 40 years.	250
255	Roberts' Billiard Notes.	English.	Published by John W. Roberts & Co., 18, Putter's Road, Madras, printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	John W. Roberts, European, 42 years.	1,000

* Printer declared on 16th May 1916.
‡ Not published for the last two years.
† An old paper not previously reported.
§ Started, 23rd June 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
256	Risála-i-Alhadi ..	Urdu ..	Published at Darieha Bhowra; printed at Ansaria Press, Kasaratta, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Hussain, Muhammadan, 38 years.	500
257	Risála-i-Hifázat-o-Parwarish-i-Janwaran.	Urdu and Mahrati.	Deccan Punch Press, Mahbubpura (Govligoda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	R. Ramachandra Joshi, Brahman, 41 years.	125
258	Risala-i-Ifada	Urdu ..	Akhbar-i-Deccan Press, Mahbubpura (Govligoda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Mirza Nizam Shah Sahib, Muhammadan, 30 years.	500
259	Risála-i-Málguzári ..	Do. ..	Mahbub-ul-Nasair Press, outside the gate of Dabirpura near Alawa-i-Bibi, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Muhammad Wali-ur-rahman, Muhammadan, 33 years.	1,250
260	Risala-i-Rahbar-i-Musafirin.	Do. ..	Sahifa Press, Gun Foundry, Hyderabad, Deccan.	Do.	John Kenny, European, 54 years.	750
261	Risála-i-Táj	Do. ..	Mufid-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Abdul Wafa Ghulam Muhammad Sahib, Ansari Wafa, Muhammadan, 23 years	1,000
262	Risála-i-Tarah-i-Usmania.	Do. ..	Palace of Maharaja Sir Kishen Pershad Bahadur, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Sadiq Husain Sahib, Muhammadan, 54 years.	150
263	Risala-i-Zahhira ..	Do. ..	Mufid-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Nasar-ul-Hussain, Muhammadan, 30 years.	500
264	Sadguru	Tamil ..	Published at 87, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the Kalanidhara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. Somasundaram Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	500
265	Sadhvi	Canarese	Krishnaraja Vani Vilasa Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	1,200
266	Sahaya	Telugu.	Brawn Industrial Mission Press, Rajahmundry.	Monthly ..	Patagam Paradesi, Indian Christian, 40 years.	300
267	Sahifa	Urdu ..	Sahifa Press, Sultanpura, Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Muhammad Akbar Ali, Muhammadan, 32 years.	1,500
268	Sahridayá or the Sanskrit Journal.	Sanskrit.	Published at No. 65, Vellala Street, Purasawalkam, Madras; printed at Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Monthly ..	R. Krishnama Acharya, M.A., Brahman, 47 years.	500
269	Saiph-ul-Islam ..	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Vellore ..	Weekly ..	S. S. Maulvi Ahmed Saiyid Sahib, Muhammadan, 41 years.	200
270	Saivam	Do. ..	Published at the Chennai Sivanadiar Thiruhootam, Georgetown; printed at the Saiva Vidyanupalana Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	I. Adimula Mudaliyar, Vellala, 52 years.	750
271	Samped Abhyudaya or Wealth of Mysore.	Anglo-Canarese.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Daily ..	M.S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	500
272	Samudaya Deepika ..	Malayalam.	Edward Press, Cannanore ..	Monthly ..	N. Kuttiappa Nambiyar, Nayar, 48 years.	500
273	Samudaya Parishkarini.	Do.	The Travancore Printing and Publishing Company, Limited, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	A. P. Nayar, Nayar, 32 years ..	1,000
274	Sanatana Dharmam ..	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do. ..	M. S. Rama Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years	500
275	Sangita Prakasika ..	Tamil and Telugu.	Published at 13, Manikanda Mudali Street, Georgetown; printed at the Chandra Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Audikesavulu Nayudu, Balija, 39 years.	500
276	Sangita Sampradaya Deepika.	Do.	Sarathi Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	S. V. Ranganayaki Ayyangar, Brahman, 39 years.	350
277	Sarva Vyapi ..	Tamil ..	Mission Press, Pondicherry ..	Weekly ..	Catholic priests	450
278	Sastrabha	Telugu.	Sastrabha Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	G. Sesha Acharlu, Brahman, 57 years.	500
279	Satyabadi	Uriya ..	The Asia Press, Berhampur, Ganjam district	Monthly ..	Gopabandu Das, Brahman,	500
280	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Telugu.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. D. Anantam, Indian Christian, 64 years.	4,500
281	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Tamil ..	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. Lazarus, B.A., B.D., Indian Christian, 66 years.	2,300
282	Satyanadam ..	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father F. M. Hilaverath, Indian Christian, 39 years.	1,000
283	Satya Sakshi	Canarese	Published at Hiddepura, Chamarajanagar Taluk, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	R. E. Perkins, European ..	600
284	Savimudi	Do.	Harada Vilasa Press, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	B. Sampangi Ramayya, Brahman, 51 years.	1,000

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
285	School Days and Holidays.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	F. H. Oakley. European, 36 years.	600
286	Scientific Manuring ..	Anglo-Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Published by Parry & Co., printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. Bernard, European, 42 years.	1,000
287	Self-culture	English and Tamil (separate editions).	Excelsior Press, Kishanattam, Tinnevelly district.	Do. ..	K. T. Ramaswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 33 years.	700
288	Sentamil	Tamil ..	The Tamil Sangam Power Press, Madura.	Do. ..	Tirunarayana Ayyangar, Brahman, 51 years.	400
289	Sentamil Selvi ..	Do. ..	Published and printed at the Scottish Branch Press, Negapatam.	Weekly ..	K. Arunachala Tevan, Agamudaiyan, 46 years.	800
290	Shimoga Vrittanta	Canarese	Shimoga Union Printing Press, Shimoga, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Anantayya, Brahman, 40 years.	700
291	Siddhantam	Tamil ..	M. L. V. Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. P. Kalyanasundara Mudaliyar, Vellala, 61 years.	1,500
292	Sirsenha Jungle Pioneer.	English.	A.E.L.M. Press, Guntur ..	Quarterly.	Miss R. E. Tailer, European ..	250
293	Sivayogi Vilasam ..	Malayalam.	Spectator Press, Calicut ..	Monthly ..	Vaghadanandam V. K. Gurukkal, Tiyya, 27 years.	1,000
294	Social Reform Advocate.	English.	Published at 264, Thumbu Chetti Street, Georgetown, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Madras	Weekly ..	C. Kandaswami Chetti, Chetti, 48 years.	1,000
295	South Indian Mail.	Do.	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	R. Sundaram Ayyar, Brahman, 31 years.	600
296	South Indian Trade Journal.	Do.	Published at the South Indian Chamber of Commerce, Georgetown; printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road.	Monthly ..	P. N. Muthuswami Nayudu, Balija, 50 years.	1,000
297	South of India Observer.	Do.	Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Cranley Chambers, Ootacamund.	Weekly ..	J. A. Davies, European, 42 years.	600
298	Sowmahtrabhivirdhini.*	Tamil ..	Shanmugha Vilasam Press, Salem.	Monthly ..	V. K. Nannayya, Sowmahtra, 36 years.	150
299	S.P.G. College Magazine.	English.	Hodson Press, Trichinopoly.	Quarterly.	T. R. Khambara Ayyar, Indian Christian, 37 years.	300
300	S.P.G. High School Magazine.	Do.	Published at Trichinopoly, printed by the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do.	S. K. Daivasikamani, Indian Christian, 43 years.	300
301	Sri Krishna †	Canarese	Kaheera Sugura Press, Balepet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	B. C. S. Rajagopala Sarma ..	Not known.
302	Sri Krishna Raja Vijnana Vaibhava.	Canarese and Sanskrit.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Pandit D. Ganda Sastri, Brahman, 47 years.	400
303	Sri Krishna Sookti.	Canarese	Sadananda Press, Udipi, South Canara district.	Do. ..	K. Subba Rao, 52 years, and N. Rajagopala Krishna Rao, 33 years, Brahmans.	1,000
304	Sri Narasimha Prayoga Parijnta Prabaranam.	Sanskrit.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Venkatesa Joia, 42 years, and Ramakrishna Bhatta, 43 years, Brahmans.	300
305	Sri Sankara Acharya.	Malayalam.	Published at Haripad, printed at the Keralapathimani Press, Mavelikara, Travancore State.	Do. ..	G. Govindan Namburi, Brahman, 27 years.	410
306	Sri Savitri	Telugu.	Savitri Press, Jagannayakpur, Godavari district.	Do. ..	P. Lakshmi Narasamma, Brahman, 35 years.	500
307	Sri Vani Vilasini.	Tamil ..	Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly dist.	Do. ..	T. K. Subrahmanya Ayyar, B.A., Brahman, 43 years.	1,000
308	St. Andrew's Church (The Kirk) Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. N. Meldrum, European, 34 years	150
309	St. Mary's Magazine ..	Do.	Published at St. Mary's European High School, Georgetown, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Twice a year.	Rev. A. J. Vanderburg, European, 46 years.	300
310	Students' Own Magazine. ‡	Do.	Published at Messrs. T. S. Subrahmanya & Co., Georgetown; printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	P. Seshadri, Brahman, 24 years.	3,000

* Started, 6th May 1916. † Revived, August 1916. ‡ Revived February 1916

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
311	Subhashini	Anglo-Malayalam.	Srimulam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	P. K. Govinda Pillai, Nayar, 41 years.	1,240
312	Subh-i-Sahar	Urdu ..	Ahamadia Press, Mysore ..	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ali Sahib Azad, Muhammadan, 28 years.	550
313	Sudarsini	Telugu.	Sudarsini Press, Viswanarayanapuram, Godavari district	Fortnightly.	Kasturi Sivasankara Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	Not known.
314	Sujanamitram ..	Malayalam.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	K. P. K. Raphael, Indian Christian, 27 years.	800
315	Subhabi Vridhini.	Tamil ..	Subhasi Vridhini Press, Pondicherry.	Fortnightly.	Venkatachella Nayakar, Vanniya, 50 years	100
316	Subhadara Bodhini	Do ..	Muslim Abhimani Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	H. B. Muhammad 'Abd-ul-lah, Muhammadan, 60 years.	250
317	Sunday School Lessons.	Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss H. McGregor and Mrs. Owen, Europeans.	4,000
318	Supantha	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	A. Mahadeva Sastri 54 years, and A. Venkatesayya, 49 years, Brahmans.	1,000
319	Suvarnalekha ..	Telugu.	Soudamini Press, Tanuku, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	D. V. Ramana Rao, Brahman, 34 years.	425
320	Svadharmaposhini.	Do.	Chandrika Press, Guntur ..	Monthly ..	K. Kotesvara Sarma, Brahman, 37 years.	500
321	Swadesamitthiran ..	Tamil ..	Swadesamitthiran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and Triweekly.	T. Visvanatha Ayyar, Brahman, 27 years, and A. Rangaswami Ayyangar, Brahman.	5,000
322	Swadesha Bandhu.	Do. ..	Mathuhanavani Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	R. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	600
323	Swadeshabhimani.	Canarese	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Weekly ..	V. Shrinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 34 years.	1,000
324	Swadeshi (formerly the Bhagyodayam).	Anglo-Malayalam.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	K. Pulpu Pillai, Nayar, 53 years, and A. Padmanabha Ayyar, Brahman, 40 years.	800
325	Tamilian	Tamil ..	Gautama Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	C. I. Pattabhiraman, Buddhist, 31 years.	500
326	Do.	Do. ..	Bhashara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	S. Muthuswami Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	600
327	Tamil Peramatti * ..	Do. ..	Published at 486, Mint Street, Georgetown, printed at the Sri Subrahmanya Vilasam Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	V. R. Gaekwad alias Vasudeva Rao Gaekwad, Mahratti, 50 years.	Not known.
328	Taylor High School Magazine. †	English.	Published at the Taylor High School, Masulipatam, Kistna district, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	A. Jayaram Rao, B.A., L.T., Brahman, 40 years.	Do.
329	Telugu Baptist ..	Telugu.	Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. M. E. Gullison, American, 49 years.	750
330	Telugu Churchman ‡ ..	Do.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Gondi David, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 33 years.	400
331	Telugu Law Journal ..	Do.	Telugu Law Journal Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly ..	T. Purushottam Pantulu, Brahman, 40 years.	300
332	Telugu Officer	Do.	Sri Kanyakaparameswari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district.	Do. ..	Brigadier Venkatasan, European, 45 years.	150
333	Temperance News. §	English.	Published at "Bonaly", Kumasi; printed at Thompson & Co.'s, Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. Moffat, M.A., B.Sc., Scotch.	Not known.
334	Tan India Vyavaharachintamani.	Tamil ..	Published in Purasawalkam, printed by the Fenroes & Co.'s Nurjahan Press, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 43 years.	600
335	Then and Now	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. E. E. Berry, European ..	250
336	Theological Journal ..	Grantham, Nagari and Tamil.	Kalpadruman Press, Madura ..	Monthly ..	P. J. N. Srinivasa Sarma, Brahman.	900
337	Theory and Practice in Engineering. †	English.	Hemhill & Co.'s Press, Popham's Broadway, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Padmanabha Mudaliyar, Vellala, 43 years.	1,000
338	Theosophist ..	Do.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	3,500
339	Travancore Abhimani.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	D. C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 30 years.	150
340	Travancore Times.	English.	Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	250
341	Trichinopoly Magazine.	Do.	Southern Star Press, Cantonment, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	The Chaplain of Trichinopoly ..	60

* Publisher declared on 20th May 1916. † Started, April 1916. ‡ Started, October 1916. § Started, September 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
342	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Tamil, and Tamil.	American Mission Lenox Press, Pasumalai, Madura district.	Monthly ..	Rev. J. J. Banings, American, 38 years.	1,000
343	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Telugu and Telugu.	Published at Pasumalai, Madura district, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. Aaron Arthur, Indian Christian, 36 years.	825
344	United India and Native States.	English.	Albion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. K. S. Krishnaswami Ayyar Indian Christian, 50 years.	350
345	Uthal Madupa	Uriya.	Sri Ganapati Bhima Deo Press, Digapadi, Ganjam district.	Monthly ..	Neelamani Sidyaratno, Brahman, 49 years.	1,225
346	Uttara Tharaka.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Basha Bhooshanam Press, Parur, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	C. M. Narayana Panikar, B.A., Nayar, 37 years.	1,200
347	Vaidyakalanidhi.	Tamil ..	Published at 7, Audiappa Mudali Street, Purasawakkam; printed by Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Pandit M. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 32 years.	600
348	Vaidya Sindhu	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at Bangalore City, printed at Caxton Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Do. ..	V. B. Pandit, Brahman, 44 years.	3,000
349	Vaisya Mittiran ..	Tamil ..	Vaisya Mittiran Press, Devakottai, Ramnad district.	Weekly ..	S. T. Ramanatham Chetti, Nattukottai Chetti, 43 years.	450
350	Vannikula Mittiran	Do. ..	Published at Perambur Barracks, (Kosapet); printed at T. A. Krishna & Co.'s Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. Subrahmanya Nayakar, Vannia. 36 years.	1,000
351	Varnasrama Dharmam.	English and Tamil (separate editions)	Published at the Varnasrama Dharma Rakshini Sabha, The Law, Teynampet; printed at the Sivarahasyan Press, Park Town, Madras	Do. ..	Managing Editor:—P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	1,000
352	Vartakamitran or Merchants' Friend.	Tamil ..	Commercial Press, Triplicane Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Natesa Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	..
353	Vedanta Dipika ..	Tamil with intermixture of Grantha types.	Kalaratnakaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Diwan Bahadur T. T. Ranga Acharya, Brahman.	600
354	Vedanta Kesari. ..	English.	Published at the Ramakrishna Mission, Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Swami Sarvananda (Bengali), Brahman, 31 years	1,000
355	Vedar Vilakku or The Tamil Preacher's Magazine.	Anglo-Tamil.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. P. Shrimpton, B.A., European, 40 years.	400
356	Vidya Bhanu ..	Tamil ..	Dhana Vaisyan Press, Kanapet, Pudukkottai State.	Bi-weekly.	S. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 43 years, and A. R. R. M. Subramaniam Chettiar, Nattukottai Chetti, 24 years.	700
357	Vidyadayini	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	B. Subba Rao, Brahman, 45 years.	1,761
358	Vidyananda	Sanskrit and Canarese	Caxton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Audinarayana Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	400
359	Vidya Nidhi	Telugu.	Published at N. Venkatarayulu & Sons, 871, Ramaswami Street, and printed at the Kalaratnakaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Appayya, Brahman, 28 years.	500
360	Vignana Chintamani ..	Sanskrit.	Vignana Chintamani Press, Kodaparamba in Peramudiyur amsam, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	P. N. Nilakantha Sarma, Mussad, 58 years.	150
361	Vijaya Vilasam.* ..	Tamil ..	Vijaya Vilasam Press, Royapuram, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	K. N. Kathiresu Nadar, Nadar, 38 years.	700
362	Vilasa Pratapa † ..	Canarese	Kolar Town Press, Kolar, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	B. V. Chakrapanayya, Balija, 36 years.	1,000
363	Vilasa Vinodini ..	Do.	S.U.N. Press, Ariapet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	N. Sivarama Sastri, Brahman, 44 years.	600

* Temporarily discontinued, 28th September 1916. † Not published since 30th September 1915.

No. (1)	Name of publication. (2)	Language of publication. (3)	Where published. (4)	Edition. (5)	Name, caste and age of editor. (6)	Circulation. (7)
364	Vira Kesari ..	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at 2, Ramanayar Street near Elephant Gate Street, Georgetown; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Fortnightly.	G. Thulsi Ram Doss, Brahman, 42 years.	900
365	Vivekavarna Kulopakari.	Tamil ..	Vivekakulatharana Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Kanniappa Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	400
366	Vivekavarman * ..	Do. ..	Published at the Vivekavarna Kulotharana Sabha, Mint Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Kalyanasundra Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	600
367	Viveka Bodhini ..	Do. ..	Published at the General Supplies Co., Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	V. Kuppuswami Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	1,500
368	Viveka Chintamani.	Anglo-Tamil.	Published at Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. V. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 60 years.	700
369	Vivekavati	Telugu.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 38 years.	1,250
370	Vivekodayam	Malayalam.	Ananda Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	N. Kumaran Asan, Ezhuvan, 41 years.	600
371	Vokkaligara Patrike.	Canarese	Vokkaligara Sangha Press, Bangalore City.	Weekly ..	S. V. Venkataramayya, Vokkaliga, 37 years.	2,500
372	Vrittantamu, or The News. †	Telugu.	Srinivasa Press, 185, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	S. Sesachellam Ayyar, Brahman, 35 years.	300
373	Vrittanta Patrika.	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	7,000
374	Vyasa Nesan	Tamil ..	Published at 34, Thyagaraya Pillai Street, Mint Buildings Post office; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. A. Tiruganasam Sambanda Chetti, Vaisya, 30 years.	300
375	Vyavasaya Mitram	Malayalam.	Tellicherry; printed at the Edward Press, Cannanore, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	K. Ryru Nambiar, Nayar, 50 years.	400
376	Water of Life	Tamil ..	Published by the Christian Brotherhood Association, printed by the Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	G. D. Devadasan, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
377	Wealth of India ..	English.	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, Georgetown; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 48 years.	750
378	Wednesday Review.	Do.	Wednesday Review Press, Trichinopoly.	Weekly .	Rao Sahib S. M. Najaram Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
379	Wesleyan Methodist Church Record.	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. O. Brown, European, 49 years.	350
380	West Coast Bulletin.	Do.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Alexander V. Kahrancheri, Indian Christian, 29 years.	800
381	West Coast Reformer.	Do.	Reformer Press, Calicut ..	Triweekly.	P. A. Nanhara Sastri, Brahman, 30 years.	1,200
382	West Coast Spectator.	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do.	M. S. Damodaran Nayar, Nayar, 33 years.	800
383	Western Star ..	Do.	Western Star Press, Trivandrum, Travancore state.	Do.	C. J. Kurian, Syrian Christian, 35 years.	600
384	Yathartha Vachani	Tamil ..	Published at Kumbakonam; printed at Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore	Weekly ..	P. V. Govindaswami Pillai, Vellala, 42 years	1,000
385	Yearly Digest of Indian and English cases.	English.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, and the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly, Quarterly and Annually.	R. Narayanaswami Ayyar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 33 years.	650
386	Yogakshemam ..	Malayalam.	Kalpadruma Press of the Mangalodayam Company (Limited), Trichur, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Parayil Raman Namburipad, Brahman, 30 years.	1,000
387	Young Men of India.	English.	Published at No. 84, College Street, Calcutta; printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	C. Carter, American	1,700
388	Yuddha Dhvani ..	Telugu.	Sri Kanyakaparameswari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district.	Do. ..	Brigadier Yesudasan, European 48 years.	600

* Revived, January 1916.

† Temporarily discontinued, July 1916.

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The West Coast Spectator, of the 16th December, observes:—"India has every reason to be exercised in mind over the constitution of the Cabinet. There is not a single minister, except Lord Curzon, who has any knowledge of India. And we know what the great Boss-All and Bang-All's views are. This Cabinet, which is practically Tory in its composition—and Lloyd George, to use Disraeli's famous words, has caught the Tories bathing and walked away with their clothes—will have to consider Indian questions after the war!! We stand to lose much if we do not at once decide upon a strong deputation to England to plead our cause.

The British Cabinet.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 16th, 1916.

"Lloyd George is a 'Liberal' no doubt; but he has forgotten Limehouse and Dilapidated Dukes he thundered against in his democratic days. He is at best a demagogue who moves the mobs and works upon their moods. He has schemed to bring about Asquith's resignation, and we are led to think whatever his strength of mind, that India cannot expect any good turn from him. The rank and file of the Liberal Party and certain well-known Liberal statesmen are irate, and if we are clever we will try to interest them in our propaganda. Let our deputation act on this 'tip' and proceed to work."

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

2. The following appears in the Cochin Argus for the week ending 16th December:—"Systematic and partly organised lawlessness of the kind for which certain portions of this district have long been notorious, has happily not been in evidence for some little time past, and we must attribute this satisfactory circumstance in very large measure to the promptitude and firmness with which the District and Divisional authorities handled the last little conflagration, started by an ignorant and misguided religious bigot, who was successful in infecting a few other co-religionists with his own bigotry and excess of zeal. . . Indeed, so far as general peace and security are concerned, it is only fair to describe the present situation as normal and generally satisfactory. At the same time, it would be idle to deny that, of late, certain forms of grave crime, especially offences against the person, have been showing a decided tendency to increase, whilst, on the other hand, it certainly seems as though the detective acumen of our Police is hardly proving equal to the demands which criminality is making upon it. . . Here, in Malabar, there is, we maintain, no reasonable ground whatever for finding fault with the present personnel of the superior ranks of our Police force. The superior officers attached at present to the district have proved over and over again that they may be fully relied upon as regards both their professional capacity and their determination to do the right. We are afraid that we are not in a position to say the same regarding the ranks below them as a whole. Whether it is a case of unsatisfactory recruitment or not, we do not pretend to know, but we believe we are voicing the intelligent and responsible public opinion faithfully when we say that the district would look on, with dry eyes, were several of the Inspectors, Sub-Inspectors and head constables we now have, given the benefit of distant changes of air and scene. . . Perhaps, if the process of weeding out and transferring were somewhat more frequently resorted to, an improvement would soon be perceptible in both efficiency and discipline. We have said that the Circle system is far from being suited to a district of distances, hills, rivers, jungles and footpaths such as ours, but even such a system ought, with morally and professionally efficient administration, to yield much better results than we are getting provokingly accustomed to. We certainly have no desire to condemn Police administration in this district wholesale. We are happy to be able to admit that much good and solid work is being turned out under difficulties, but we cannot, at the same time, ignore the stubborn fact that much good work remains undone from one end of the year to the other. In particular, we have to draw attention to the gradually increasing list of murders and kindred grave crimes which get into the returns of undetected cases. . . For a district like Malabar, we require a very efficient Police force, especially on the criminal investigation side, and so far as this side of our force is concerned, it can hardly be said that the present degree of efficiency satisfies either public expectations or public requirements."

Grave crime in Malabar.

Cochin Argus, British Malabar, Dec. 16th, 1916.

(b) Courts.

Seven Indian Mail, Madura, Dec. 11th, 1916.

The out-going District Judge of Rāmnād.

3. The South Indian Mail, for the week ending * 11th December, writes:—"Our readers are aware that Rao Bahadur W. L. Venkataramayya, District Judge of Rāmnād, is under orders of transfer and is to hand over charge to Mr. L. G. Moore, the new incumbent. As the out-going judge is the first gentleman who was appointed under the new principle of direct recruitment from the bar as an experiment, it is only pertinent that we should scrutinize the administration of justice under the out-going gentleman's regimé, and see how far the experiment has been attended with success and how far its success or otherwise is due to the personal proclivities of the nominee. . . Speaking generally we may say without fear of contradiction that the experiment has been successful and if there have been defects here and there they should be ascribed to the particular choice rather than to the principle. . . We are not very particular about the capabilities of the judge in the civil or criminal side. But what we care more for is the general treatment meted out to the members of the bar and we regret to observe that in this respect the choice has not been an unqualified success. . . In spite of this we are informed that the learned judge was very popular among the bar especially so with those of the bar who belonged to the Indian Christian Community. We are not inclined to attach much weight to this aspect of the matter as it is only natural that the section being in a minority should deserve some encouragement.

"But what we are concerned with is the open exhibition of these particular sympathies on the administrative side, in the matter of appointments, promotions and transfers. We learn that out of about half a dozen appointments that had to be made during the regimé Christians had a lion's share and this not without overlooking the claims of senior and better men. This may be on the principle of giving encouragement to backward communities or on the principle of communal representation which oftentimes colours Government measures and even Legislative enactments. But we must protest against the extension of this principle irrespective of seniority and efficiency. One curious incident of administrative whim may be mentioned. It is said that a person who was acting for more than four years was made permanent in the morning and this order was cancelled the same afternoon in favour of a Christian. These trivialities apart, we cannot refrain from referring to the gentleman's genial habits and winning manners and in his transfer not only the Indian Christian community loses one of its kind patrons but also the town of Madura, a good, eloquent and extempore speaker."

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Trial by jury in Bengal.

4. In a leader on this subject the Hindu, of the 16th December, says:—"At the meeting of the Legislative Council of Bengal held on Wednesday last, the Hon'ble Babu Aphil Chandra Datta moved a resolution recommending that the system of trial by jury be extended to all those districts in Bengal in which it is not at present in force. . . More than twelve Indian Honourable Members supported the resolution in the council. Nawab Sir Shams-ul-Huda, the Indian Member of the Executive Council, concluded his speech, which we shall presently notice, with an invitation to the mover either to amend the resolution and only recommend that Government should take the matter into consideration, which Government would gladly do, or withdraw it taking the speaker's promise that the Government would look into the matter. . . We are emphatically opposed to the method followed on behalf of Government in dealing with resolutions moved in the council of either suggesting amendments themselves or soliciting withdrawal. It betrays, as we have often pointed out, ignorance of the constitutional position of Government in relation to the councils, and of the real effect of resolutions adopted by the councils which are merely recommendations. Instances have occurred quite recently in Madras, Bombay and Bengal which clearly show how non-official Honourable Members, recognising the correct constitutional position, decline to accept such invitations for withdrawal. The question of trial by jury is not a new one; reform in the matter has been long delayed and the efforts being made in various provincial councils to get the Government recognise the necessity of extending the system, afford an index of the popular discontent at the attitude of Government. . . We have read the reported speech of Sir Shams-ul-Huda with pain and surprise. It is provocative in tone and mischievous in parts and seeks to misinterpret the object of the resolution in a way which we should not have expected an Indian who has had unexampled opportunities of coming in close contact with the people to suggest. . . Sir S. Huda has made a number of gratuitious assumptions which are absolutely without foundation. We wonder what has made him believe that non-official classes think that the best judge was he who acquitted and the worst judge was he who convicted. There have been judicial blunders of a colossal kind about which the public have protested, and even Sir Huda cannot, we trust, bring himself to believe that Mr. Pinhey was an impartial Judge. . . The views of the public and the Government on such a matter as the administration of justice should be identical and if they are not, the phenomenon should be ascribed to peculiar notions of prestige and justice which the Executive have and which interfere with the impartial meting out of justice."

* Received on the 18th December 1916.

(d) Education.

The Zamorin's College.

4. The West Coast Spectator, of the 14th December, has the following:—"One of the blessings of the Court of Ward's management of the Zamorin's Estate:—They have raised the fees in the lower forms of the Zamorin's College. In the good old days the fee, for instance in the first form, was Rs. 1-12-0 per boy, and now it is Rs. 2-12-0 plus a stationery fee of six annas. This will drive away middle and lower class boys from the College. It was with a very good intention the Zamorin established the College, to provide cheap education for the people, and now verily, from the reports coming to us and from what passes before our own eyes we are constrained to revise our views and to exclaim that it was on a very bad day the late Zamorin was persuaded by 'ambies' and 'thumbies', to cast longing glances at the Court of Wards." West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 14th, 1916.

A National College in Bombay.

6. In a leader on this subject in New India, of the 16th December, Mrs. Annie Besant writes:—"For some weeks past I have been in communication with some friends in Bombay City, who feel very strongly the necessity of having, in the environs of the Presidency capital, a College founded on principles similar to those which made the Central Hindu College in Benares so powerful an institution, but widened so as to include on equal terms boys of all the great religions Patriotism, religion and self-sacrifice were the foundations of the Central Hindu College. Patriotism, religion and self-sacrifice are to be the foundation of the junior institution. Bombay has no such College, New India, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

although Poona possesses, in the splendid Fergusson foundation an institution conducted on national lines, and cemented together by the noblest self-sacrifice. And Bombay feels the absolute necessity of establishing an educational centre wherein the lads may be trained into the citizens of to-morrow. . . There is, of course, a certain grotesqueness in the fact that the future President of the Governing Body cannot set foot in Bombay. But that is not our fault and the disability only extends to the period of the war and six months after it. On the other hand, the indignation roused by Lord Willingdon's cruelly unjust and indefensible action against me has been a powerful factor in the choice of me for special honour from his capital city. Injustice is always a boomerang which in its return strikes its unskilful hurler. . . It is absolutely necessary that all who believe in Home Rule for India, in union with all who realise the vital importance of shaping education so as to produce the men needed by the Motherland in every branch of useful service, literary, scientific, artistic, commercial, industrial, shall immediately set to work to build up a system of national education under national control. In Mr. G. S. Arundale we have a tower of strength, and neither he nor I are amateurs, but have had long and full educational experience. We must not only move the older India for Home Rule, but must build up the Young India which will succeed to the heritage of Freedom. Our Theosophical Educational Trust has been the first step; the Bombay College is the second. The succeeding steps will be indicated in the course of a few weeks after consultation with leading Indian educationists."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Indian Institute of Science.

7. The West Coast Spectator, of the 16th December, remarks:—"Sir Sankaran Nayar has inspected the Indian Institute of Science at Bangalore. Let us hope that something useful will come out of that inspection. It was with the noblest of motives that that great patriot the late Tata endowed the institute with Rs. 30 lakhs of his hard-earned money hoping it would ultimately develop into an agency of great national importance. But officialdom has proved the dead weight, and the institute has passed into obscurity and failed, so far, to be of any use to the country.

"We think that the Rs. 30 lakhs has become a mere waste. Mr. Tata wanted to endow a polytechnic institute, but official wisdom was against it, and we have an institution with a high sounding name that is a standing monument to our helplessness even in matters vitally affecting us. Even now we believe it is not too late to give effect to Mr. Tata's original desire. We want less of red-tape and more of the true conception of India's crying needs."

(c) Local and Municipal.

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

An Engineer's insolence.

8. The Hindu, of the 19th December, remarks:—"We publish elsewhere an interesting account, from our Berhampur correspondent, of a case of insolent behaviour of the Executive Engineer of Ganjám, one Mr. Greg . . His letter to the Collector, which is printed elsewhere, does not show him to advantage. He does not appear to realise the responsibilities of the Berhampur Municipal Council in a matter of the kind that came before it, and he is, to be sure, as ignorant of the 'Council methods' which he presumes to criticise, as he is insolent in tone. The Council only stands to gain by being without such a sorry specimen of a Councillor on it. It is necessary, however, that he should be shown the error of his ways by the authorities above him. We note that the Berhampur Municipal Council has, with becoming self-respect, promptly objected to the angry effusions of the Engineer and asked him to withdraw his remarks unconditionally. Mr. Greg, perhaps, belongs to the 'Martial Law and no d-d nonsense' school, for he would, without a thought, evict the indigent Madaries, without caring to know whether that could be legally done, apart from the gross injustice involved in such a cruel step. The letter of resignation is in the hands of the Collector who will, we hope, take a proper view of his rude and unmannerly conduct, and ask him to apologise to the Council which he has vilified in such undignified language.

Such exhibition of temper and unwarranted abuse of the Council which did not care to respect Mr. Greg's notions about the amenities to his neighbourhood, should not be tolerated in an officer, who as occupying the responsible position of Executive Engineer has constantly to come in contact with the people."

(h) Railways.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The curtailment of Railway traffic.

9. The West Coast Spectator, of the 19th December, observes:—"We understand that a large number of passenger trains will be taken off the service in South India as a result of the fiat issued from Whitehall in utter disregard of the convenience and comfort of the passengers. Those useful trains called shuttle trains will have to go, and the result will be overcrowding. Even with the convenience now afforded by providing short distance trains, passengers are packed like sardines in their tins. We can therefore understand what the consequences of the short-sighted order would be. We are not told what the reasons are for this surprising order. They cannot be related to war economy, for, the railway administrations do not run these trains at a sacrifice from philanthropic motives; it is the travelling public that pay. Why then deny this public a convenience they are prepared to pay for."

(k) General.

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 14th, 1916.

The Governor-Designate of Bengal.

10. The West Coast Spectator, of the 14th December, states:—"We are told that arrangements are being made to hold a monster meeting in Calcutta to protest against the Ronaldshay affair. We cannot, we are afraid, hold out any hopes to our countrymen. The Ministry are occupied with their own pressing business, and it is not very likely that they will pay heed to the cries going up to them from India. And there will be people to tell them that the agitation in India is artificial, engineered by a handful of agitators. Colonies can reject Governors, but India cannot. She must dutifully accept any reactionary sent out from England.

"All these are blessings in disguise, thinks the Nationalist and Home Ruler. Every mistake the Government may make, every disregard of public opinion, repression and individual acts of official 'zoolum' strengthen the Home Rule movement, compel people to revise their view thereon. It is when they are denied the possible, the people demand the impossible, and it is want of sympathy that stimulates discontent. If Lord Ronaldshay is a true imperialist he will immediately resign as did Sir Henry Norman when he found that his Viceroyalty was unwelcome to some people in India."

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the Hindu, of the 18th December, says:—"The Indian public will read with pain and disgust the defence of Lord Ronaldshay's appointment as Governor of Bengal made by Mr. Chamberlain in the House of Commons. The qualifications of the Governor-designate are stated to be his wide travels, his study of Indian affairs and his Membership of the Public Services Commission and of the House of Commons. Lord Ronaldshay may be an expert globe-trotter, but that does not entitle him to be the representative of His Majesty in Bengal. His study of Indian affairs has made him look with contempt on Indians and Indian politicians, as his writings show and as his cross-examination of witnesses before the Services Commission indicate. Is not sympathy with the people whom he is appointed to govern an essential qualification for the post? Lord Ronaldshay is such a notorious opponent of Indian reforms and aspirations that we are surprised that he should have been considered to be a fit person for the Governorship of Bengal. The Imperial Government, we are told, was much gratified that Lord Ronaldshay was able to accept the post. This only shows what little attention is paid to Indian affairs and how Indian opinion is treated by the British Cabinet. We should imagine that the appointment of such a gentleman is an insult offered to the people of India, and it cannot conduce to the continuance of those happy relations that, thanks to the tact, sympathy and good feeling of His Excellency Lord Carmichael, have been established in Bengal."

New India, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

New India, of the 18th December, has the following :—

"Mr. Chamberlain on Lord Ronaldshay.

"Mr. Chamberlain's statement in the Commons on the appointment of Lord Ronaldshay will only increase popular disappointment here. The Secretary of State has now given a reason for his selection—viz., his past attitude towards India. Let us ask for it in detail. As a traveller, we know what opinion he holds of the Bengali—it has already been quoted in these columns; as a member of the Public Services Commission he showed himself to be in agreement with the Civil Service in all that its exponents said; as a student of Indian affairs and as a member of the House of Commons, his one achievement that we particularly remember is his opposition to the Minto-Morley reforms. Are these the qualifications which Mr. Chamberlain asks us to keep in mind and therefore to welcome his appointment?"

Wednesday Review, Trichinopoly, Dec. 13th, 1916.

11. The Wednesday Review, for the week ending 13th December,* states :—"Lord Carmichael is not an alarmist and does not delight in taking a gloomy view of things. And when he says deliberately that there is in Bengal a widespread well-organised conspiracy whose aim is to weaken the present form of Government and if possible to overthrow it by means which are criminal, we fancy there is more behind the observation than meets the eye. His Excellency is not given to believing in reports against men without satisfying himself in the first instance that they are well founded, and it is not therefore likely he would have referred to a conspiracy and described it as widespread and well-organised if he had not in his hands clear proofs of its existence. . . However, Lord Carmichael has been able by his statesmanship to keep down the irreconcilables as much as possible and to arrest their mischief. After all he has only partially succeeded and his speech at the Darbar held on Monday, gives a graphic account of the situation and proves the need for the repressive measures taken under the Defence of India Act to put down anarchism. Repression is an ugly word, no doubt, and arm chair critics may advise the Government to administer the province without using it. But as Lord Carmichael pointed out, the Government will not act fairly by the mass of the people if it refrains from any measures, even those which seem somewhat severe, which tend to break up that part of the organisation which helps dangerous men and which is used as recruiting ground to swell their ranks."

Lord Carmichael's apologia.

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Hindu, of the 16th December, remarks :—"The long and elaborate speech in which Lord Carmichael explained the working of the provisions of the Defence of India Act in Bengal shows that His Excellency sincerely believes in the necessity of the repressive measures which have caused widespread resentment in the country. It specifies a number of theories and hypotheses regarding a net-work of illegal conspiracy in Bengal, for proof of which we have nothing better than the belief of the Executive Government. His Excellency seems to think that there is now a state of things in Bengal in which the theory of 'Martial law and no damned nonsense' is strictly applicable. This is a most unfortunate conclusion, and it does not redound to the credit of the British administration of the Province for a century-and-a-half. It is not, however, shared by the educated Indian community in Bengal, and it is ridiculous to imagine that they are not as much interested in the due maintenance of law and order as any member of the European community, official or non-official. . . It may be asked why if, the facts cannot be published, a few non-official Indian gentlemen of position and influence cannot be taken into the confidence of the Government and made acquainted with the 'facts.' We can see no difficulty in this being done if there are really facts such as to support the conclusions of the Government. Lord Carmichael is not a Governor who is indisposed to repose confidence in the representatives of the people, and it is impossible to maintain that there are not influential Indians in Bengal worthy of his confidence. . . We find, Lord Carmichael has, we have no doubt, unconsciously imbibed the notion of civilian officers that Government by law is not suitable for India, being ignorant of the fact that it is this aspect of British administration that has conduced to its stability."

* Received on the 19th December 1916.

New India, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, New India, of the 18th December, says:—"The entire Indian press is unanimous in its expression to the effect that Lord Carmichael and his Government cannot reasonably expect the Indian public to implicitly believe without any proof what has fallen from the lips of the Governor of Bengal when the Government refuse to confide in even half a dozen Indian leaders. The Punjabee sums up the position tersely thus:

"We submit we altogether fail to see how the public can give a blank cheque to the Government in a matter of such vital importance unless the Government will at least take them into its confidence".

Indian Patriot, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

12. In a leader under this heading the Indian Patriot, of the 16th December, remarks:—"Indian public opinion is certainly unanimous that the present political condition of the country is not satisfactory, and that it will not be satisfactory until the people are enabled to exercise control over their own affairs. The degree of that control may vary; but, in any case, it must be such as will enable Indians, by a larger participation in the Government, to exercise the same rights as Englishmen do, and to make the will of the people a guiding factor of the administration. . . But the self-governing colonies claim to have a finger in the pie. India, it would appear, cannot attain self-Government until she has passed through the helpful hands of the self-governing colonies. They claim a share in the 'whiteman's burden' in India which is now borne by England alone; and they will help the mother country with their valuable services. . . We all know too much of the history of the self-governing colonies, particularly of South Africa, to be fascinated by a future under them, and we have no mind to be under their overlordship. . . South African influence has everywhere been antagonistic to Indian freedom, not only within the Union, but even beyond it. Race differentiation, says Mr. Polak, has slowly but surely characterised the methods and attitude of the administrative, unchecked by effective criticism or healthy public opinion, until, so lacking in sympathy and out of touch with the Indian community, that on the outbreak of the present war and the proclamation of Martial Law. . . India cannot forget the ill-usage to which her sons have been subjected in the Dominion of Canada, Australia, and New Zealand; and they are all of the same opinion as South Africa in regard to granting self-Government to non-white peoples, and they are still learning to govern themselves. People with such notions are the least fitted to be entrused with the problem of developing self-governing institutions in India. . . It will be an insult to the whole Indian Nation to place them under colonial direction in ever so slight a degree. It will be stunting their manhood; and it will be taking the heart out of them. It will be regarded throughout India as the greatest danger that can befall the people."

A new future for India.

New India, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

13. The following appears in New India, of the 16th December:—

The Emigration enquiry.

"The Ceylon Labour Commission!"

"We publish elsewhere a review of the work of the Labour Commission, that recently visited Ceylon, from the leading columns of the Ceylonese. Our contemporary is not at all satisfied with the way in which the investigation was conducted by either of the two members, and according to its report, the recommendations of the Commission are not likely to prove in the least useful. That fear was in the mind of many Indians when the nature of the enquiry was suggested; and it was openly expressed in the Press when it was known that a person of the type of Mr. Kesava Pillai was not to be associated with it. The criticism of our contemporary is quite opportune, since all concerned will now know in what light the recommendation of the Commission ought to be viewed. It does not seem likely that our hope of yesterday will be fulfilled, that they will lift something more of the veil than we did in our yesterday's article."

New India, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Indians in British East Africa.

14. New India, of the 16th December, observes:—"In the current issue of the Modern Review, Mr. H. S. L. Polak unfolds a heart-rending tale concerning the position of Indians in British East Africa. That Colony owes its prosperity almost solely to our countrymen, who were the pioneers in its development, and even today, Mr. Polak is convinced that 'without the Indian, the country would rapidly become insolvent and rapidly relapse into an unproductive wilderness and a state of semi-barbarism'. In spite of that, their position is most difficult and seems to be growing worse. A few South African exploiters have established themselves at all the healthy spots, and the British Indians have been sent to the insanitary lowlands. What is even more indicative of their racial insolence, one portion of Mombassa has been reserved for the colourless on the ground that our countrymen do not keep the locality in a healthy condition! . . . That is the treatment meted out to our countrymen and their European friends in a Colony the prosperity of which —even on the authority of high local officials—depends on Indians. And all this has taken place during a period when the angle of vision is advertised to have been considerably changed in our favour. What does that show? In the case of South Africa, the Imperial Government pleaded their inability to give adequate relief on the ground that the Colony was self-governing. Even that excuse is non-existent with reference to East Africa. The only people who have to be brought to their senses are a few settlers. Are we to suppose that even they ought to be permitted to treat Indians in that fashion? All these questions must be brought effectively to the notice of the Government of India, and must continue to receive public attention until justice is done. Probably we shall be told not to embarrass the Government during the war. Then why does the Government embarrass us?"

Malabar Herald British Cochin, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Tinctorial Expert.

15. The Malabar Herald, for the week ending 16th December, states:—"The Madras Dyeing Expert appointed by the Government in the person of Dr. Mareden seems to have had an extraordinary career. According to a report issued by him it would appear that he was first appointed as a Dyeing Expert and subsequently he became a Leather Expert and lastly a Pencil Expert. This process of transmigration is hardly creditable; as no man, however ingenious he might be, can be expected to be an expert in three different departments. If such a process is tolerated, the value of expert opinion will be absolutely lost with the unfortunate result that the industry which he may have to handle as an expert will suffer considerably."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 16th 1916.

The Round Table and India.

16. The following appears in the West Coast Spectator of the 16th December:—"'Height measures he in depth, peace in strife, and calls all these the poetry of life.' This could very well be said of certain English and American journalists who stump India feasted and feted by Anglo-Indians. We have already mentioned the case of one price collier, a yankee scribe, who found in the Indian official an individual whose nearest approach is found only in heaven. We are to have another such visitation shortly in the person of Mr. Cave of the Round Table. This hebdomadal is a Tory organ; but sometimes it has been writing on Indian questions with a certain amount of sympathy.

"Mr. Cave comes and moves in bad company—and that's what makes us anxious. He is to be chaperoned by Sir Valentine Chirol whose long stay in India in company of terrestrial angels who have their Olympus in Simla has severely been commented upon even in Anglo-Indian papers. We can, therefore, understand what sort of lessons Mr. Cave will get. And coupled with the Tory tendencies of Mr. Cave his new lessons are likely to do mischief.

In the good old days the East India Company was careful in letting Europeans into India. We think it is necessary to revive the bar at least against European and American journalists who go to India, return home and libel the Indian people."

New India, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

17. New India, of the 16th December, writes:—"There has, indeed, been a change in the angle of vision of the Government towards the National Congress since the outbreak of war. In 1914, Lord Pentland visited the Congress whose leaders were also invited to a party in Government House. In 1915, Lord Willingdon kept out of Bombay, and so no question of his attitude came up directly for consideration. In 1916, Sir James Meston, instead of visiting the Congress, or even keeping himself indifferent, warns the leaders against the use of strong language, threatening legal action. Has not the angle of vision really changed?

The Congress and the angle of vision.

"A warning.

"We do not think that the service of such a notice through the Deputy Commissioner or District Magistrate on the Chairman and Secretary of the Reception Committee is at all a wise or seemly proceeding. The Congress embodies the opinions of the Indian Nation, and comprises all the trusted leaders of the people. To threaten such a body with the criminal law is scarcely a proceeding likely to command popular approval, and seems to be provocative rather than peace producing. Moreover there is an increasing tendency on the part of the Executive to interfere with the political meetings of the Congress organisations. The forcing of the Criminal Investigation Department reporters at Ahmedabad, and the present notice, indicate a new policy, and strengthen the uneasy feeling that the present Viceroy wishes to check political discussion."

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Writing on this subject, the Hindu, of the 16th December, says:—"It will be seen from a telegram which appears elsewhere that Sir James Meston, the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces, has taken the quite unusual step of warning the speakers at the forthcoming session of the National Congress at Lucknow not to make any speeches transgressing the criminal law and that if any such transgression took place, the Local Government will not hesitate to take action. We think that it would have been consistent with the dignity of the Government and of the National Assembly the proceedings of which, during the last thirty years, have been conducted with remarkable moderation and in a spirit of loyalty, to have refrained from sounding the note of warning and if at all in more considerate language than that in which it is couched. It shows that the official mind is in a state of nervous tension, for which we can see no adequate justification, but our countrymen who are flocking in large numbers to the Congress this year would be well advised to take note of the matter."

Indian Patriot, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

The Indian Patriot, of the 18th December, remarks:—"For the first time in the history of the Congress, and of constitutional agitation in the country, a warning has been conveyed through the Chairman and the Secretary of the Reception Committee, to speakers at the Congress against the use of excess of language which would make them liable to prosecution under the criminal law; and the letter of the Government of the United Provinces, which we published on Saturday, will be read with a sense of humiliation by Congressmen in all parts of the country. Even in times when the Congress was in positive disfavour with the Government, such a warning had not been addressed to any officer connected with the Congress; and the only official action, which was highly resented by the Congress, was taken by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal who prohibited the attendance of officials as visitors at Congress meetings. . . . The politics of the Congress is now the politics of the country, and there can be no doubt that the letter of the United Provinces Government is a reflection on the Congress so far as it is thought possible that speeches would be delivered at it in contravention of the criminal law of the country. . . . We regret this step, and we should still more regret it if there was cause for it. The Government has apparently taken it in consequence of the tendency shown in certain quarters 'to put forward statements, arguments, and inferences which might be regarded as infringing the criminal law.' It would be a thousand times more unfortunate if any speaker at the Congress should give cause for interference with his liberty, and that the name of the Congress should be tarnished by the indiscreetness of any speaker."

New India, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

New India, of the 19th December, has the following :—

"A straightforward reply.

"We are glad to note the straightforward tone of the letter which Sir James Meston has received from the Congress authorities in reply to his threatening letter. The slur cast on the national institution was certainly unnecessary and unmerited. We hope that in the interests of the Government the incident will end there. The United Provinces Government, if it has kept its ears open, must have been by this time convinced of its mistake—such has been the tone of the criticisms passed in the whole country."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The West Coast Spectator, of the 19th December, observes:—"The invariably sober and ordinarily undemonstrative Sir James Meston seems to have fallen into panic. This is evident by His Honour's uncalled for and unjustified note, communicated through the Commissioner of the Lucknow division, addressed to the President of the Reception Committee of the Congress warning him against the consequences of making seditious speeches at the forthcoming sessions. Congress orators are asked not to transgress the criminal law and that if any such trangression took place, the local Government would not hesitate to take action.

Why this order, we can regard it in no other light, at this juncture? Was the Congress ever guilty of transgressing the criminal laws? In fact, it must be admitted that during the thirty years of its existence, the Congress has never been guilty of crossing the borderland of sedition, even during the darkest days of the Natu brothers incident and of the unrest. It has been admitted by no less an authority than Lord Morley of Blackburn that the Congress stands for orderly development and loyalty: His lordship appreciated the forces for which it stands, and it was a fine tribute he paid to the Congress in his second budget speech.

What has since then occurred to justify Sir James Meston's surprising fiat? We can only see in the incident another evidence of that panic which occasionally catches hold of the Indian official and leads him to do things which he would not have done in calmer moments. . . That such a fiat has been issued by Sir James Meston—Sir James is a Scotchman and Scotchmen are credited with possessing heads that keep cool even when the house is on fire—is truly regrettable. . . A little bird whispers in our ears, as we write this, that the note is indirectly aimed at the modern She or Ayesha (of Rider Haggard's creation), She Who Must Be Obeyed, the White Prophetess who leads by her magic wand her very large following of Home Rulers, and also at the Hero of Maharashtra, both of whom are to attend the Congress. . . It is impolitic to prohibit Mrs. Besant's entry into Lucknow after the controversy created by the Bombay and Central Provinces Orders; there may be unpleasant interpellations in the Council and bitter writings in the press. As Sir James Meston is a diplomat and a shrewd Scot to boot, the best way to achieve the desired, lies in a diplomatic note aimed at none in particular but calculated to excite the moderate into curbing the extremist forces that have the unpleasant knack of going into action helterskelter, setting up tremendous yells like the frenzied hordes of the Madhi."

Non-Brahman, Madras, Dec. 17th, 1916.

18. The Non-Brahman, for the week ending 17th December, states:—

Home Rule and the non-Brahman.

"We publish elsewhere an article from New India of November 30th. No non-Brahman can read it without the greatest indignation. There comes out in its true colours the real meaning, after all, of the Home Rule movement. It is a Brahman movement deliberately conceived by a handful of Brahmans and a lady like Mrs. Besant whom some consider as Vasishta or Viswamitra in her second or third transmigration. New India deliberately attacks Diwan Bahadur Subbarayalu Reddiyar, one of the foremost leaders of our community, one who has won laurels in the service of local self-government as Chairman of the Cuddalore Municipality, as President of the South Arcot Taluk Board, as Member of the Legislative Council, as a member of Devasthanam Committee and ever so many public and private associations. Against such a giant in public work as Mr. Reddiyar, a puny politican, an unknown figure until yesterday, one Mr. Srinivasa Acharya is recommended. It is an insult to the Indian community that we should be considered by New India as babies? We have published it fully in another page so that our community may read it for themselves and find for themselves who our greatest enemy is. As we have repeatedly said, when we speak anything of politics and Home Rule, we never go beyond our immediate wants and aspirations. We now find in this Home Rule movement, conducted by New India, the machinery that will ever trample us down. That our foremost leader should have been picked up for a mean attack is a challenge to our community. . . We insist that Home Rule as understood by New India will end in a deliberate suicide of our community. Placing Mr. Srinivasa Acharya against Diwan Bahadur Subbarayalu Reddiyar is a crime for which there is no palliation. If there is any proof that we do not deserve self-government, today it is in this fact that New India should come in our midst and play with us, lead us and drag us on its heels. . . We know that no one would deem the New India article more hellish than some of the gentlemen named. On every line there is a base personal motive written in capital letters. It is a disgrace, we insist, upon Indians in India that this kind of fooling them should not be tolerated even for a moment.

"We are amused at the appeal of New India to the voters not to be actuated by the non-Brahman feeling. It reminds us of Satan crying over sin. Here is an organ deliberately kindling the fire of caste and then appealing to them not to be carried away! Of course we have deserved it. We have shown by our blind following of aliens that we are asses. We are treated only as we deserve. The bureaucrats whom we abuse day by day ignore us altogether or treat us as unfit for self-government This is far better than to be considered, as New India surely considers us, idiots who will take it at its word, who will follow it, whatever it says. . . It drags Mr Srinivasa Acharya from the unknown apu and places him at the front, thus deliberately kicking a famous non-Brahman on the face and then turns round and says: 'Do not be actuated by Brahman or non-Brahman feeling!' And we are supposed to put up with this, to praise the donor of the advice; and to fall prostrate for the blessings? We should be very sorry indeed if any member of our community should so far forget his self-respect and not know to distinguish between friend and foe. What wonderful journalism it is that would not publish a reply!"

The Acting Postmaster-Generalship of Madras.

19. In an article headed "When will we organise?" the Non-Brahman, for the week ending 17th December, says:— "The news is published in the Indian papers of Madras without the slightest comment that one Mr. J. Monteith, I.C.S., is to be the Acting Postmaster-General of Madras. It is for the non-Brahmans to ask the question 'who is this Monteith to come here above the head of such a distinguished Indian official as Rao Bahadur K. Vaidyalingam Pillai who has risen from the lowest rung of the ladder and who is to-day acknowledged one of the authorities of the Indian Post Offices. His administration of the Presidency Post Office has procured for him the admiration and esteem of the highest postal officials throughout India. His innovations have always been conceived with an intimate knowledge of the requirements of the Indian public. We challenge that the short period he has acted as Presidency Postmaster if compared with the same period filled by any other distinguished European official, the difference would be enormous. . . We cannot help asking this question if instead of

Non-Brahman, Madras, Dec. 17th, 1916.

Rao Bahadur Vaidyalingam Pillai a Brahman had been the Presidency Postmaster and had won the appreciation and esteem of the entire public both European and Indian, and if he had been superseded as at present, what should have been the case? Telegrams would have been flying about one after another to the authorities. Meetings would have been everywhere. Agitation would have been set up from one end of the country to the other. . . We appeal in the name of higher patriotism to every public body in Madras to meet and to send up to Government an appeal that the Rao Bahadur should be appointed Postmaster-General. If he were appointed he would show the capacity of an Indian to discharge the highly responsible work of that office. It would be a sad event, indeed, if such a man should have to retire from service as Presidency Postmaster.

"We as a community are helpless. How did Mr. Justice Seshagiri Ayyar rise so suddenly into the horizon of politics and public life? Surely he was a man of merit, but men of merit there are who have not been acknowledged. He stands for the Senate of the Madras University and is returned. Although in the Congress Committee of Madras there were older men like Diwan Bahadur Karunakara Menon and Mr. Kesava Pillai he was made the President of the Congress Committee. He was made the President of the Provincial Conference. His Brahman friends urged him on. He was placed in the front as an ideal and the Government were forced to cast their eyes on him. Having pushed up Mr. Seshagiri Ayyar above, his elders like Diwan Bahadur Karunakara Menon and Mr. Kesava Pillai his community turned their eyes and backed up Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri. What is there great in him except that he is a Brahman and has Brahman friends to push him on. If we take up the list of the Presidents of the Madras Provincial Conferences we will be struck to find that Brahmans who have never made their name, when non-Brahman leaders had already made theirs, were made Presidents successively. It was only last year that Mr. Kesava Pillai could be made President of the Madras Provincial Conference, whereas Rao Bahadur Ramanuja Achari and Mr. B. N. Sarma who had never been heard of when Mr. Kesava Pillai entered politics had already been made Presidents of Conferences. Rao Bahadur Ramanuja Achari was made President long before he entered politics. Veterans, long in the service of the people, were ignored. And all this because these veterans were non-Brahmans. Is this not partial? What have the Brahmans to say to this? It makes our hearts burn that intelligent men of our community should suffer simply because they have no one to back them up. In Mr. Ethiraja Mudaliyar of the Madras Bar we have a prominent leader who can hold his own against any one in the Bar, but why is it that he has not been in the front? Why is it that his name is not at all heard of in connection with the High Court Judgeships. Simply because he has no one to back him up. We must suffer for our lack of organisation. We must learn to imitate Brahmans to rally round the leader of our race and press him on until we place him on the top. This is the tactics that have given Brahman leaders. This tactics we must also employ. Brahman abhorrence of public opinion and intolerance of non-Brahmans have reached to such a pitch that at the recent elections of the All-India Congress Committee young men like Mr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya and Mr. T. V. Muthukrishna Ayyar were elected in preference to Mr. Kesava Pillai and Mr. Karunakara Menon. This is the last straw on the camel's neck. We have to see Mr. Govindaraghava Ayyar presiding over the Madras Congress Committee. What is he when compared to Diwan Bahadur C. Karunakara Menon? He is but a child in politics. . . We have a lesson to learn from the example of the Mussalmans. They are one united body so far as their politics and social advancement are concerned. Let us imitate them now. If the Brahmans would not be more generous and more appreciative towards us let us cut ourselves away from them. Let us form our own separate associations. Let us put forward our own grievances. Let us, as far as possible, try to keep ourselves on the side of the Government. . . If the Brahman would only behave towards us as the Anglo-Indians are behaving towards the Indians, if we find in the Brahmins not people with a message of uplifting the country but bureaucrats only bureaucrats who will keep everything for themselves and make us work for them, we call upon our leaders to combine together for themselves . . We stand for ourselves. Lord Morley's call of rallying the moderates has not been taken advantage of by the Government in India. Non-Brahmans are moderates. If the Government should rally them tomorrow they will find overwhelming support. Then they can level at the Home Rule movement, we do not want to be sad, but if the Government would ignore us and if the Brahmans should also ignore us, it is our duty and we must have our own associations which will ask what we want, which shall not at all be what the Home Rulers want."

20. The following appears in New India, of the 18th December :— New India, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

"What about Mrs. Besant?

Mrs. Besant and the Defence of India Act.

"The Leader of Allahabad, commenting on Lord Carmichael's speech, asks pertinent questions on the matter of His Excellency's remarks on the use of the Defence Act :

Then why has it been used against Mrs. Besant? Is she a political criminal? Can she be classed among the ranks of "enemies"?

"Why ask the poor innocent Governor of Bengal? These questions have been asked the Bombay and Central Provinces Governments who have been culprits in the matter, and their answers are before the Indian public. Lord Willingdon and Sir Benjamin Robertson must think differently from the liberal and broad-minded Lord Carmichael."

21. The Hindu, of the 19th December, observes :—"We desire to draw the attention of the Government and the public to some of the more serious injuries brought about by the devastation wrought in the South Arcot district by the recent cyclone. There was no doubt some apprehension in the public mind at the outset that the immediate distress caused by the cyclone was acute and required prompt relief on the spot. It transpires, however, that while the immediate distress has not been as great as it might have been, the permanent injury wrought on the economic well-being of the district has been very serious and is such as to require not only a very sympathetic consideration at the hands of the Government but also a searching enquiry as to the condition of things which made it possible. . . In view of the dependence of the district for its agriculture and well-being on rain-fed tanks, we think that Government should speedily allot funds and provide a special staff, if necessary, for putting as many tanks as possible in order before the next cultivation season begins. . . Some portion of the standing crops and paddy are certain to suffer, and it is the duty of both the Government and the officers in the spot not to practise undue parsimony in the grant of remissions where distress has been so wide and general. . . It is also necessary that Government should forthwith make a liberal grant to the District Board for repairing the roads which have been so seriously damaged. In this connection, we may advert to one circumstance which has apparently not received such attention in the hands of the Government and public bodies as it ought to. Among the rules of Financial Decentralisation recently issued by the Government of India, is one which provides that the power of control of Provincial Governments over the public avenues is subject to the condition that no main artery of communication such as of trunk-roads may be abandoned or allowed to fall out of repair. Within the South Arcot district exist some of these trunk-roads and main arteries of communication, and obviously the responsibility for repairing and maintaining them belongs to the Government of India as well as the Provincial Government. In the present circumstances, at any rate, it is their duty to discharge this responsibility. On the whole, we are glad to be assured that both Mr. Asia-ud-din, the Collector, and Mr. B. Rama Rao, the Sub-Collector at Tindivanam, are handling the situation with commendable sympathy and zeal, and we only hope that the Government will rise equal to the situation and render all the assistance needed by the district."

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The situation in South Arcot.

Hindu, Madras, Dec. 20th, 1916.

The South Indian People's Association.

22. The Hindu, of the 20th December, writes:—"We print elsewhere a communication relating to the inception of a non-Brahmin movement, the reasons, objects and scope of which are set out in the prospectus which appears over the signature of Rao Bahadur P. Theagoraya Chetti. It is with much pain and surprise that we have perused this document. It gives a manifestly distorted and unfair representation of many of the matters to which it makes reference. It can serve no good purpose, but it is bound to create bad blood between persons belonging to the same great Indian community, who have been living hitherto in perfect harmony, and to whom good sense should suggest that there is nothing more suicidal at this moment and perilous to the national cause, than to create causes for mutual discord, and to play into the hands of the enemies of the national progress. We do not wish to open our correspondence columns to a discussion of this subject, as it cannot but lead to an acrimonious controversy and as it would indirectly promote the insidious objects of some of those who are engineering the movement."

West Coast Spectator, Calicut, Dec. 19th, 1916.

Liberal Politicians and Provincial Governorships.

23. The West Coast Spectator, of the 19th December, has the following:—"What is it that makes liberal politicians coming to India or connected with the India Office out-bureaucrat the bureaucrat? Lord Elgin was worse than a Tory in India, in our own times Lord Willingdon of Bombay and Lord Pentland of Madras have not demonstrated their liberal instincts. We have only to go through their Council speeches to be convinced of the change that comes over liberals in India. This is a psychological problem we are unable to solve. Perhaps Mrs. Besant can. The only liberals that proved exceptions to the rule were Lord Ripon and Lord Morley, but they were exceptionally strong minded and possessed a commanding personality.

It was the Conservatives that gave us reforms. Lord Cross gave us expanded Councils, and Lord Minto initiated the reformed Councils. And the Liberal Premier Mr. Asquith not only did away with the discussion of the Indian Budget in Parliament but did refuse to interfere with the Indian administration when his interference was appealed for. Lord Crewe sanctioned the Defence and other Acts that have curtailed the liberty of the subject in India, and refused more than once to cut down the rigors of the Press Act. As we have said, the whole thing is an interesting psychological study."

IV.—Native States.

United India and Native States, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

Indians at Travancore State functions.

24. In an article under the heading "Will this enhance the self-respect of Indians?" United India and Native States, for the week ending 14th December, observes:—A Trivandrum correspondent of New India gives some particulars of the Darbar held there recently in connection with the assumption of the Resident's appointment by Mr. A. R. Cumming, I.C.S., and we must confess that it forms painful reading. His Highness was seated in the State-chair and behind sat the Diwan in a chair. On the Maharaja's right side was the State-chair for the Resident while behind the chair occupied by the Maharaja 'the Indian officials were huddled together in the eastern verandah and allowed to peep through the doorways.' . . We think that the situation thus disclosed is a demoralising one and one which is not conducive to the enhancement of the Indians' sense of self-respect. Such things ought not to be possible in the twentieth century under the rule of an enlightened Indian Prince. In one of his poems Kipling speaks of the agony of one who is made a drudge in his own home and what shall we say of a state of affairs under which Indians are made to submit to a sense of inferiority and reminded of their awkward position in a manner which cannot but prove galling and unpleasant—and all this in one of the most progressive Indian States? The grievance is one of long standing, and we hope that Diwan Bahadur Krishnan Nayar will not hesitate to make a clean sweep of this kind of thing and introduce less objectionable arrangements in connection with future Darbars. We fail to see why the Indian officers of Government should not be placed on a footing of perfect equality with the Europeans who attend the Darbar."

Western Star, Trivandrum, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Travancore Christian Succession Bill.

25. The Western Star, of the 16th December, writes:—"The Gazette has announced a meeting of the Travancore Legislative Council for the 20th instant, and, in all probability, the business of our law makers on the occasion will include the further handling of that odious and unpopular measure—The Christian Succession Bill . . If it is the fate of the vast majority of the concerned communities to be overwhelmed by a Legislative calamity, that would mean, of course, the early passage of this iniquitous and unprecedentedly irrational and socially and economically revolutionary piece of legislation. If, on the other hand, between September and now, the Government has been in a position to correctly and faithfully gauge public opinion regarding the enactment, then, we may make certain that the further handling which the Bill will receive can only result in its being thrown out altogether. . . Unhappily for the peace of mind, the continued pacific development, the contentment and prosperity, but above everything, the harmonious domestic life of the vast bulk of the affected Christian communities, a certain measure of support has been extended to this Legislative misadventure from its very inception, but we have the fullest warrant and justification for telling the Government that the opposition to the Bill almost immeasurably outweighs the support it can boast of. . . The opponents of the measure, as the Diwan cannot possibly fail to discover from a thorough study of all the representations, have proved to the hilt that there is not a single principle or provision, but strikes at the very root of the social and domestic polity of the vast majority of the concerned classes. . . When the measure saw the light in its present form, public opinion felt alarmed and outraged, for the amended Bill only proved a miserable legislative instance of Herod being out-Heroded. Public opinion ceased from endeavouring to make itself heard only when our Diwan's immediate predecessor gave the assurance that the Bill would be dropped. We feel certain that our present astute Diwan will not for a single moment entertain the idea that public opinion has veered round in favour of the Bill during the past few months. The alarmed communities have literally exhausted themselves in their endeavours to call the Government's just and earnest attention to the deplorable consequences which the Bill will most certainly precipitate should it be passed, and yet up to the present moment meetings are being held, representations are being submitted, the gracious intervention of the Sovereign is being supplicated, and why? Only because it is painfully and abundantly clear that so far as this piece of legislation is concerned, a usually dispassionate, level-headed Legislative Council seems to be unequal to the maintenance of its equilibrium. . . In this connection, however, we feel it our bounden duty to draw attention to one aspect of the strategy favoured by those who, presumably in their own selfish interests, would like to see this iniquitous Bill disfiguring the Travancore Statute Book and destroying the peace and harmony which have hitherto characterised the home life of very nearly three-quarters of a million of the subjects of our good and gracious Sovereign. . . As the Government may know, so-called public opinion is easy to manufacture. A few sheets of blank paper, a fountain pen and a few tramps to go round procuring signatures, and you quickly have public opinion of the artificial variety. The genuine public opinion which condemns this Bill is not the result of any such synthetic process. Since September last public meetings have been held in the broad light of day. They have been attended by gatherings thoroughly representative of all the interested classes. They have submitted and are still submitting representations showing how the Bill will produce irremediable injury, moral, social and economic, and why the measure should be altogether dropped. . . Subsequent deputations included representatives of the great landholding, agricultural, commercial and industrial classes, in addition to the clergy, who have the best opportunities of knowing what genuine public opinion is with regard to this potentially dangerous legislative vampire which will suck all the harmony, contentment and prosperity out of a community, which properly, emphatically but humbly demands to know what crime it has perpetrated that the law should threaten to inflict this cruel punishment upon it. We most earnestly beg of the Diwan, when he is weighing public opinion, to exercise his great ability and perspicacity in view to separating the grain from the chaff. Let him not mistake the latter for the genuine article merely because it may be presented on an adorned and decorated sieve. Let him not reject the genuine article because it is presented soberly and in a matter-of-fact manner. The alarmed communities have already laid their deep and substantial grievances before their beloved Ruler, upon whose gracious sympathy and unerring sense of justice they rely with the fullest confidence. As, however, our Sovereign's trusted Minister will be consulted by his gracious Royal Master and as our Diwan very kindly extended to the September deputation and those that followed it the encouraging promise that the Government which is neutral in this matter, will see to it that the scales are equitably held, we have ventured to write once again and to draw the Government's serious attention to what is true and genuine public opinion and to the very grave and justifiable alarm that convulses hundreds of thousands of Travancore subjects, as they see hanging above their heads a sword, that must descend and cause havoc amidst their corporate existence, unless just and powerful hands seize hold of the sinister weapon and hurl it out of arm's reach."

Karnataka, Bangalore City, Dec. 20th, 1916.

The Pudukkōttai Assembly.

26. The Karnataka, of the 20th December, remarks:—"That a State may have a Representative Assembly and yet be official-ridden has been amply illustrated in our own State. But if the tone and tenor of the presiding Diwan's address may be taken to indicate the respective positions of the bureaucracy and the people in the State, Pudukkōttai must indeed be far more official-ridden than Mysore ever was. The extracts given elsewhere from the speech delivered by Mr. Sidney Burn, I.C.S., should suffice to show that popular representatives in Pudukkōttai are being treated,—and are content to be treated,—as a body of supplicants who have to be satisfied with what the mighty Sirkar may choose to vouchsafe, and who have no business to worry it with all sorts of inconvenient suggestions and importunate requests. The admonitory and brow-beating style of Mr. Burn is quite characteristic of the sun-dried bureaucrat; and to such a faithful pupil of the Indian Civil Service a popular political assembly is nothing more than an imposing, if somewhat inconvenient, ornament. He would tolerate its existence in order to keep up a show of constitutional Government; but he would never concede to it the right to sit in judgment over him or to interfere with his own work. Mrs. Annie Besant and her political disciples are never tired of praising the perfect Home Rule regime and the all-round progress of Native States. We wonder whether they are aware of the lot of Pudukkōttai,—its Raja spending his days and his people's funds on tours with his Australian Queen, and its Diwan ruling the State according to the most conspicuous traditions of the heaven-born service."

Karnataka, Bangalore City, Dec. 20th, 1916.

Mysore Police Administration.

27. The Karnataka, of the 20th December, states:—"Of late much has happened to weaken the confidence of the public in the efficiency and integrity of the Mysore Police, and reports coming from the mufassal make one wonder whether things could be really so bad in these days of efficiency audit and non-official upheaval. . . There is indeed no use of concealing the fact that within the past two years, the Police Department has furnished remarkable evidences of indifferent management; and Government themselves seems to be in no hurry to heed complaints and improve matters. Diwan Bahadur Mr. Srikanteswara Ayyar was, no doubt, noted for his energy as Deputy Commissioner of Kolar; and for some time after his elevation to the position of Inspector-General, his determination to remedy defects and open a brighter chapter in the history of the Police was gratefully noticed by the public. But it pains us deeply indeed to see that his administration today does not reflect that credit which, with his capacity, he could have easily earned. Either he is not properly assisted by Government, or his assistants and subordinates are not faithful in their service.. If the former be the case, we implore Government to remember that the safeguarding of life and property is as essential for the millennium as the starting of new journals or the construction of seaports. . . The people very well remember how, as Superintendents of Police, Messrs. Humza Hussain and L. Krishna Rao distinguished themselves,—how they were tireless in seeing that crime was punished and in breaking down the budmash element. Popular impression is that officers of that type have become rare; and at all events, it can confidently be asserted that the reputations of most of our present day Police Superintendents are now on their trial."

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

Bharatamata, Vizianagram, Nov. 29th, 1916.

28. The Bharatamata, of the 29th November, says:—The British Government are now directing the people of England not to consume large quantities of meat, sugar and white bread, because these foodstuffs are required for the war. This shows the inadequacy of the supply of foodstuffs and we suggest that the countries under British sway will export them even at some sacrifice.

The war.

The telegrams received of late from Roumania give us some anxiety. We fear that the Roumanian army may suffer heavily at the hands of the Germans. But we are encouraged to know that by the time the Roumanians encounter the Germans, the Russians will join the Roumanian army to enable it to gain a victory.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

29. The Andhraprakasika, of the 16th December, writes:—The Allies had done well to evacuate Bukharest. Otherwise the old defences of the city could not have stood long before the new methods of the Germans.

Bukharest.

Kistnapatrika, Masulipatam, Dec. 16th, 1916.

30. The Kistnapatrika, of the 16th December, observes that none of the Allies are going to place any faith in the German peace proposals. It says:—How can there be peace before Germany's military strength is crushed, before her navy is wiped away, and before the conquered places are recaptured? . . . The Allies are laughing at these proposals. . . They may prove a source of self-delusion to the Germans like midsummer-night's dreams.

The German dream.

Samdar Abhyudaya, Bijapur, Dec. 19th, 1916.

31. Referring to the German peace proposals, the Samyad Abhyudaya, of the 19th December, says:—It is impossible to credit them now with any thought for humanity which was so conspicuously absent from their minds till now. The truth seems to be that Germany and her Allies see that their resources are coming to an end. Only America and Japan and one or two other neutral powers have profited by this war. The loss to the rest of the world is very great. Peace is no doubt a very desirable thing. But what prompted Germany to propose it now? The reason is evident. The enemy, as a result of his long preparations for the war, had a series of successes which led to the conquest of Belgium, a part of France, Servia, Montenegro, Albania and now Roumania. Greece, under pressure from Germany, forced the Allied troops to withdraw from Salonika and withdrew all the concessions that were granted to the Allies, and is punishing heavily Venezelos, the champion of the Allies' cause. Thus when the enemy has successes on every side she is proposing peace. Her motive for this can never be humanity. Her past is sufficient to make this clear.

The German peace proposals.

The paper next proceeds to observe that it must be Germany's internal difficulties and the popular clamour for peace as well as the growing conviction that a continuance of the war with the undoubted increase of the Allies' resources must undoubtedly prove disastrous to her in the end that now prompts her to declare her readiness to conclude peace. It seems fairly certain that unless the Allies take back all the territories conquered till now and next invade Germany and compel her to pay all the expenses of the war they will not consent to peace.

Samdar Abhyudaya, Bijapur, Dec. 26th, 1916.

On the same subject, the Samyad Abhyudaya, of the 26th December, writes:—Although the details have not been published, it is easy to guess what the peace proposals will be. Germany must have consented to restore Belgium and the portion in her occupation in France, Italy and Roumania and required that Servia should be given to Austria, the remaining territory conquered by her in the Balkans should be distributed between Bulgaria and Turkey and that Poland should be constituted an independent State. Even in proposing peace terms, Germany is playing the role of a victor. President Wilson will probably refuse to have anything to do with these proposals and the Allies would never consent to these terms. England rightly answered the enemy by sanctioning the expenditure for another ten lakhs of troops. The Allies are not ignorant of the fact that Germany's sole motive for making these proposals is to bring about disunion among them. But she is mistaken to think that these tricks will succeed. It is scarcely likely that the war will be terminated unless Germany is completely vanquished and all conquered territory is got back. If Germany is really desirous of peace in the interests of humanity, she would do well to propose the terms to which she must submit on her defeat. Else she must reap the fruit of her deeds.

Mysore Star, Mysore, Dec. 17th, 1916.

32. The Mysore Star, of the 17th December, writes:—More than three-fourths of the members of the new cabinet are honest and straightforward experts in the different branches of the work entrusted to them and consequently the public and the press are unanimous in welcoming these changes. Even the German press is warm in its praise of the new ministers in England and says that if England is not defeated now under Lloyd George's leadership she will ever remain invincible (sic). It is thus clear that the changes were effected solely with the object of ensuring greater vigour in the prosecution of the war and of hastening the victory and have nothing to do with party feuds or politics. It is because the changes have the entire approval of the public that the mementous work of constituting the cabinet was effected in the admirably short space of three or four days. The vigour of the new cabinet is already indicated by the proposals regarding recruitment, food control, etc. The experience of the past two and a half years of the war has shown that in the absence of such extraordinary firmness on the part of the Government it is difficult to tide over the present crisis. All well-wishers of the Allies therefore would do well to pray for the success of the new cabinet.

The new ministry in England.

Vokkaligara Patrike, Bangalore, Dec. 20th, 1916.

The Vokkaligara Patrike, of the 20th December, reproduces the substance of the above article.

Malabar Islam, Cochin, Dec. 8th, 15th, 1916.

33. In its issues of the 8th and 15th December, the Malabar Islam, gives a summary of a leader in the Times of the 19th August last, under the heading "The Turks in Persia", and observes that those who still remember the telegram of last month regarding the entire expulsion of the Turks from the southern parts of Persia, and that to the Viceroy, dated 9th November, stating that the Russians were driving out the Turks at Sakis, seventy miles away from the river, Urumia, will not believe in the least that the Turks were making any progress there, as the article appears to show.

The Turks in Persia.

Jamiyat-i-Rozgar, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1916.

34. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 11th December, commenting on the present situation and change of the British Ministry, writes:—There is no doubt that Mr. Asquith has strenuously and energetically laboured during the present war, and this is no secret: everybody knows it. But most of the prominent Parliamentarians were of opinion that the Premier had no definite plan for bringing the struggle to a speedy termination and they, therefore, were drawn to Mr. Lloyd George who was in favour of a vigorous prosecution of the war in order to end it quickly. Mr. Lloyd George has been summoned by the King to form a National Ministry consisting of Liberals and Conservatives. This he has succeeded in doing.

The British Ministry.

The writer draws the conclusion that the struggle between the Allies and Germany, next spring, will be so formidable as to be unprecedented in the annals of warfare and sufficient to make the shades of Alexander, Hannibal and Napolean Bonaparte tremble.

From now onwards great preparations will be made and every available man will be put in the field. At any rate, all these circumstances point to the probability of the war being over by the end of next year.

Sampad Abhyudaya, Mysore, Dec. 21st, 1916.

35. The Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 21st December, writes:—The German peace proposals have produced great consternation and regret in neutral countries. Share prices are going down; and numerous merchants are afraid that they will be ruined. They fear that they will be deprived of the large profits they would be making during the continuance of the war. By giving munitions, foodstuffs and loans the people of the United States have become millionaires. The Japanese have done likewise. So also the other neutrals. Numerous Joint Stock Companies have been started with millions of capital for the manufacture of munitions. These will be without work if the war is terminated. These manufacturers are therefore extremely uneasy. They hanker after wealth. Humanity is completly lost sight of. They care nothing for the slaughter of millions if it tends to their own aggrandisement. It is deplorable that even those nations that profess to be civilized have these ideas. Nemesis will be sure to overtake these coveters of filthy lucre. They call themselves civilized. It would be better to wipe out this type of civilization altogether.

The consequence of the peace note.

Swadeshabhimani, Kumbum, Dec. 15th, 1916.

36. In a lengthy leading article, under this heading, the Swadeshabhimani, of the 15th December, observes:—Russia had till recently no place among the more advanced nations of Europe, because under an absolute monarchy education, arts, industries and other activities conducive to popular advancement were still in a rudimentary stage in that country. For these and several other reasons, Russia, though a European country, had an inferior place in the scale of nations; so backward was she that, even in India, when the popular representatives urged any reform, it was usual for the administrators to point to the conditions obtaining in Russia and ask whether it was reasonable for an Asiatic country to demand something which a European Empire like Russia did not have; and sometimes, India was spoken of as being in advance of Russia. For the future, however, we may confidently affirm, it will not be possible to cite such examples of Russia's backwardness; for Russia is progressing fast. She has organised a popular representative assembly known as the Duma the leaders of which have a place in the Cabinet. As a result of the experience gained from the war, they have proceeded to put an end to the use of intoxicants. In India, in the view of the Government such prohibition is a restriction on the liberty of the people in the matter of choosing their beverage. Let that pass. Poland obtained swaraj. Another more surprising piece of news is that the popular leader M. Trepoff who is now in power has promised to introduce a Bill to provide for the spread of technical education and compulsory primary education. Let us enquire how our British Government which is in the forefront of progressive rulers, has dealt with the above reforms in India. Leaving aside the questions regarding the demand of an effective popular voice in the administration, the prohibition of the liquor trade and swaraj, which according to them are impracticable matters, let us take for example the question of primary education. When Mr. Gokhale introduced his Bill on the subject in the Supreme Legislative Council, he was told that the Provincial Governments should first begin the reform. But recently when the subject was discussed in the Bombay Legislative Council, as (the Sanskrit dramatist) Bhartrahari said "the policy of kings, like that of prostitutes, takes many shapes," one could see the trickery underlying administrative policy. When an Honourable Member moved a resolution that free and compulsory education should be introduced in municipal areas, the Hon'ble Mr. Chaubal, in opposing the resolution on behalf of the Government gave some arguments which are not surprising; because they are in entire accord with the replies we are wont to receive from Government. The Government are always ready with the stock argument of "expense" against every reform, however useful and necessary. But when they have themselves any scheme in mind, expense is no consideration even under the stress created by the war. It is unfortunate that the question of popular education alone should have to be deferred owing to dearth of funds. The latest report for the year 1914–15 on educational administration in India shows how many secondary schools were established for the benefit of European students and what amount of money is being expended on these. Introducing the system of free primary education in municipal areas would, according to the Hon'ble Mr. Caubal, be an injustice to the rural population! Then, why should the townsfolk have hospitals, roads and street lighting and similar other comforts which are denied to those who live in villages? Thus, in the Supreme Legislative Council we are told that the movement should start from below, and to the provincial Government it does not commend itself because it has been rejected by those above! Although the observations of the Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler in discussing Mr. Gokhale's Bill did not find any support in the Bombay Council, we are glad to learn that a measure to the same effect is about to be introduced in our own province. We therefore repeat: Russia organised a popular assembly known as the Duma, put an end to the drink habit, granted swaraj to Poland and is about to introduce the system of compulsory education in the whole empire. Even Russia is one step ahead of us.

Even Russia is a step ahead.

37. The Qaumi Report, of the 10th December, writes.—The surface of the earth is not merely stained with drops of blood, it is saturated with it. The fact of the wise men of Europe making a treat of their strength is hypocrisy and enmity is a case of adding insult to injury. Roumania has been trampled under foot by the enemy, her native land is hurling her beyond the frontiers and her strength is treacherously failing her. Serbia, Belgium and Montenegro had already fallen victims to the revolution of the sky; and Heaven only knows with what weapon Roumania is going to be slain.

Qaumi Report, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

"The atmosphere of the whole garden is now vitiated."

Greece also is being incarnadined with similar drops of blood. She, too, is deceiving the friends who relied on her and is playing false with her army. All these blandishments, however, emanate from the blood red eyes of the mistress of the gun and the sword. Most deplorable of all is the dreadful mischief which originates in the mansions of European sages.

Some one has raised the standard of barbarism in the Russian Duma and openly denounced the Russian Premier as a fool. The result was that both prepared to fight a duel.

Again in the French Chamber a section wanted to move a vote of want of confidence in the Government, but having failed in its attempt it was distrusted itself in its turn.

In the third case intrigue and secret wire-pulling have done their work in the British Parliament with the result that Mr. Asquith, the venerable Prime Minister, feels compelled to resign. He himself let the secret out at a meeting in the Reform Club when he said that a conspiracy had been formed against him and Edward Grey.

Although the Mussalmans have nothing special to do with Mr. Asquith and Lord Grey, they know them, because of the ministry of the former and the foreign policy of the latter. We are consequently little disposed to care what these two companions and cronies are thinking about now, or how they will pass the remainder of their lives. Still, if we forget certain ideas of his, we feel that Mr. Asquith was a great statesman and an enlightened and sympathetic man. Their opponents may say what they like about them, they may accuse Mr. Asquith of the error of having begun and continued the war, or they may taunt Lord Grey with his failure to estimate the real strength of the Foreign Powers or to understand the actual state of affairs in the Balkans. Be this as it may, we will understand it all in the light in which the world has viewed their acts and will observe the acts of their successors.

"All is well that ends well."

Would that Mr. Lloyd George, who has removed Asquith's ministerial top-hat and donned it himself and thrust aside Lord Grey had understood this much that this is war time. If he had known at least the sacred tenets of Islam, he would have understood that genuine and real power is spiritual, and that this can never be dethroned or usurped.

Jaanum-e-Rozan, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

38. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 15th December, writes:—At last the news of an offer of peace made by the Central Powers, Germany and Austria, has reached Reuter through a reliable source from Amsterdam. The world knows that it was cruel and insolent Germany that was the originator of the war and that has brought about the ruin of other greedy Powers. Now fearing divine wrath of God she makes confession of her sins under the guise of peace proposals.

The cry for peace.

We have frequently pointed out that in every regard the power of Germany and her confederates is far inferior to that of the Allies.

In addition to this the vigorous blockade by our powerful navy has dumbfounded Germany. She is now reduced to such extremities that she has no alternative but to sue for peace. Most of her advisers also counsel her to sound the trumpet of peace as quickly as possible, otherwise she will lose what is left of her honour, dignity and prestige.

Although there may yet be but a few days or months left for the conclusion of peace, yet there is this satisfaction that means will be devised to save the world from the horrors and disastrous consequences of war, and that peace will be concluded after terms are discussed and considered.

The far-seeing British Government will put forward such conditions for peace that the independence of very small nations and States will be maintained and lawlessness eradicated from Europe.

The editor, referring to these peace proposals, says "the offer is probably the result of the reconstitution of the Cabinets of Great Britain, France, Russia and Italy, and also that they are due to the opinion which Germany has of the present Premier Mr. Lloyd George, for she knows him to be a strong and resolute man who will vigorously carry on the war until the end is reached.

It is hoped that the Allies on their part will make their own terms and endeavour with success to establish a lasting peace.

Kesaridayan, Trichur, Dec. 16th, 1916.

39. The Keraladayam, of the 19th December, pooh-poohs the peace proposals of Germany, which, it thinks, emanate from a consciousness of her weakness and of the growing strength of the Allies, from the scarcity of food-stuffs therein, and the loss of her trade, as well as from a desire to impress upon the neutrals that she is, though a victor, still for peace, and that she is not responsible for the prolongation of the war. It points out that, whatever may be the loss, the Allies should never agree to these proposals, as, in that case, another war, still bigger, will have to be waged ere long, and concludes by a reference to the extreme jealousy and animosity of Germany to England, as well as to the ambition of the Kaiser to be the Emperor of the World.

The peace proposals of Germany.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Referring to the peace proposals of Germany, the Kerala Patrika, of the 16th December, points out that she may be playing a trick, or her desire for peace may, after all, be a genuine one, because of her enormous losses in men and money, thinks that, inasmuch as the other continents have in many things to depend on Europe, the damage done to the latter cannot fail to affect the former, and that, therefore, the interests of the world demand that the war should soon be brought to an end, but that the peace concluded should be of such a nature as to make it impossible for Germany to perpetrate such diabolical atrocities in future.

The peace proposals of Germany.

II.—Home Administration.

(3) Courts.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

40. Referring to the decision of the High Court declaring Vecdhinatahamu to contain obscene expressions and convicting its publisher, the Andhrapatrika, of the 14th December, remarks:—The absence of a Telugu Judge on the High Court bench is now felt. The Judges who decided the case did so solely with the help of the translations. It is impossible to bring into the translation the artistic beauty and the classic merit of the original. The Judges were mistaken in their finding that the publisher had been selling the book in question cheap at an anna a copy in order to attract the public. This implies that his action could be tolerated if he sold it at a higher price. Those who understand and appreciate artistic beauty cannot view without pain the wiping out of existence of a book written by a renowned author, which has for a long time adorned literature and which is a highly artistic masterpiece. The Judges could not be men without artistic taste, and the ends of justice would have been met if the publisher had been warned not to sell the book except at a high price. We regret to say that their decision in the case in question has done harm to Telugu literature.

Vecdhinatahamu.

The Veedhinatakam case.

41. Referring to the decision of the High Court in the Veedhinatakam case, the Andhrapatrika, of the 19th December, says:—It must be said that the decision has done great harm to the Telugu literary world. All the works of the ancient poets are full of expressions such as those contained in this work. The publishers fear to publish any work. Under such circumstances, the Andhra leaders must interfere in the matter.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

(e) Jails.

Indian officers in the Jail department.

42. In its leader of the 18th December on this subject, the Lokopakari writes:—Out of the ten first-class Superintendents of Jails, and five of each of the second and third classes in this Presidency, there is only one Indian Superintendent of the third class. While the Indians are acquitting themselves well in such high offices as those of a member of the Executive Council, Judge of the High Court and Secretary to Government, it cannot be said that they are incapable of discharging the duties of the highest officers in the Jail department. The Indians alone can best exercise a merciful control over the convicts and improve their condition, and the Englishmen and Eurasians are not fitted for this task. If the authorities will bestow their attention on this subject, there will be no room for the disturbances which occur in jails occasionally. As a result of the perseverance of the Hon'ble Mr Kesava Pillai in urging the improvement of diet to the Indian convicts, Sir Harold Stuart removed the difference that existed between the diets of the Indian and Anglo-Indian convicts, in opposition to the wishes of the Jail authorities.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

(d) Education.

An instance of claims overlooked.

43. The Desamata, of the 13th December, regrets that the authorities have appointed a new man in the place of Mr. Sudarsana Rao Pantulu, the Headmaster of the Higher Elementary Grade Training School, Rajahmundry, overlooking the claims and qualifications of, and the long service put in by, Mr. Narasimham, who had for some time acted for Mr. Sudarsana Rao.

DESAMATA, Rajahmundry, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The Intermediate Examination.

44. Referring to the order that the Intermediate candidates for 1917 should appear in all the subjects, the Andhra-prakasika, of the 13th December, says:—This is most unbearable, unjust and merciless. The order is not one that a man having children should pass. It is not one which should be issued by one who has the welfare of the country at heart. It is not conducive to anybody's welfare that so many boys and parents should be pained. It is now not too late. The syndicate may reconsider the matter and satisfy the wishes of the Intermediate candidates.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 13th, 1916.

The Patna University.

45. In an article under this heading in English the Samyad Abhyudaya, of the 18th December, writes:—A correspondent informs us that Sir Sankaran Nayar was in Bangalore to know the details of the Mysore University. It is observed that he has been studying the details of all Indian and outside Universities to give a practically useful shape to the Patna University, which is under consideration in the Imperial Legislative Council. We are glad that the solution of this problem has fallen into the hands of a gentleman, who is animated by such enthusiasm in the solution of the University problem. A correspondent informs us that Sir Sankaran Nayar has been considering the question of paid and unpaid Vice-Chancellors. The question is not a difficult one to solve. If efficient work is to be had, it should be paid for. In unpaid and honorary work, in 99 cases out of hundred, no satisfactory and efficient work is attainable. We cannot extract work from honorary workers. At the outset at least, there should be paid Vice-Chancellors . . . It is therefore useless to think of honorary Vice Chancellors unless they can be had. It is better to find out the best and the most talented men for the purpose, pay their price and get the work done. This is the only solution of this most important problem, and Sir Sankaran Nayar has seen too much of the practical affairs of the world not to know the phase of the question. And we hope that he will solve the question practically and on business lines.

SAMYAD ABHYUDAYA, Bihar, Dec. 18th, 1916.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Dec. 13th, 1916.

Compulsory primary education.

46. Referring to the rejection by the Bombay Legislative Council of the resolution relating to compulsory primary education, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 13th December, observes that it is regrettable that, while some of the Native States too have made primary education compulsory, the Government of India should still continue to be indifferent in the matter.

Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 15th, 1916.
Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The enhancement of school-fees in the Zamorin's College.

47. The Manorama, of the 15th December, and the Kerala Patrika, of the 16th December, draw attention to the hardship that will be caused to the poor students by the proposed enhancement of the school-fees in the lower classes of the Zamorin's College at Calicut, and the Patrika doubts whether the members of the Mahajana Sabha, who recently submitted a memorandum to Sir C. Sankaran Nayar on the subject of education, are aware that the rates of fees are different in different schools.

Sujana Mitran, Cochin, Dec. 13th, 1916.

Education in India.

48. In a leader under the heading * "Education in India", the Sujana Mitran, of the 13th December, draws attention to the difference between the help given by Government to European schools and that given to Indian schools, and hopes that the latter will receive far greater help and encouragement from Government during the time of Sir C. Sankaran Nayar.

Qaumi Report, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1916.

Religious education.

49. The Qaumi Report, of the 7th December, writes:—At present a party of certain reformers is very emphatically urging that we should be most enthusiastic over religious education. These people do not care for any University, College or school. They detest western education and desire to keep their religious education within the confines of dogma.

These are excellent ideas and we support the proposal most strongly. But we regret to have to assert that they are not right in their aversion to western education and in endeavouring to prove it to be injurious.

Our time is not the time called "the golden age". Saintly persons of that age called "Imam", "Shaikh", "Scholar" and "Ruler" no longer exist among us. We have lost independence and we are now spending our days in a foreign land. Our rulers, who are not of our religion, are associated with us in all worldly affairs. We are a subject race and consequently unfit to walk in the footsteps of our ancestors in each and every matter.

But such imitation has not been divinely imposed on us. Obedience to Islam is our first duty. Whether we acquire English, Tamil, French, Russian or Chinese, the source of our ideals, the fountain-head of our aspirations, the spring of our actions and the motive of our deeds is Islam.

---

* Received this week.

No language, dress, civilization or power can deprive us of our religion. In fact nothing in the world can stand in the way of our faith.

It is a grievous error to think that those who acquire western knowledge generally give up their religion. We claim that western philosophy contains no such powerful influence. Irreligiousness or corrupt religion is due to spiritical corruption. When our spiritual power is weakened, we become indifferent to religion. Do we not see thousands of such people in the streets and alleys entirely unacquainted with western education and yet they have nothing to do with the mosque? Do we not say prayers over the remains of Mussalmans who, while they were alive, never said prayers for themselves? What made them godless? Who wrested the holy Korân from their hands? Those, who make votive offerings, call down blessings, greet each other and ejaculate "Oh Apostle of God! Oh Ali! Oh Ghous!" When sitting down and getting up, have abandoned their religion. Probably our friends will reply that they have not been taught religion. The answer is not very correct and the very answer exposes their egregious blunder that western education alone makes Mussalmans apostates and heretics. If these men can set the colleges ablaze, we are ready to congratulate them. But before doing this they should kindle the sacred fire into the houses where, in spite of the fact that religious meetings are being held, prayers are not said and Fataha parties are held but no fast is observed. Moreover our friends attend religious fairs but do not go on a pilgrimage.

The number of such Mussalmans is greater than the number of men educated in western knowledge and it is these who know but do not.

Swadeshabhimani, Bangalore, Dec. 15th, 1916.

Secondary schools in the Madras Presidency.

50. In an article giving a summary of the discussion which took place in the Madras Legislative Council in connection with the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao's resolution urging the appointment of a committee to enquire whether there is adequate accommodation in the existing secondary schools and to suggest methods for affording better facilities for secondary education in the Presidency, the Swadeshabhimani, of the 15th December, writes:—As His Excellency rightly observed, statistics should not be taken as the sole basis of a discussion. The Government's first important premise is that the school-going population of a place is only about 15 per cent. This leads to the inference that in many municipalities all children of school-going age are attending school. But we know that there are numerous children in these areas who are altogether illiterate. From the mere number of schools in any area or the number of children attending them or from the amount spent by Government on these institutions, it would be erroneous to conclude that the progress of education there is satisfactory. The enormous difference between the number of children in the infant standard and that in the fourth would show what a large number give up school before they have learnt the alphabet. Again, the aggregate strength of the First Form compared with that of the Sixth would show that not even half the number in the First Form are able to continue up to the School Final class. Would it not therefore be wrong to conclude from the mere figures relating to the strength of the schools that the progress of education is satisfactory?

(c) Local and Municipal.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

The Bezwada municipality.

51. In commenting on the review by the Government of the report of the Bezwada Municipal administration for 1915–16, the Andhrapatrika, of the 18th December, remarks:—There is nothing strange in that the Government stated that it could not be said that the administration was good, although the Collector pronounced it good. It would be strange if the Government did not say so. Had the municipal administration been in charge of an elected Chairman, the Government would have said that they would revoke all the powers vested in the people. As the present Chairman was nominated by them, they have thrown all the blame on the Councillors.

(h) Railways.

YOGAKSHEMAM, Friday, Dec. 15th, 1916.

Curtailment of train service.

52. Referring to the proposed curtailment of the train service, the Yogakshemam, of the 15th December, doubts whether, so far as the war is concerned, it will produce any good results, proportionate to the inconvenience caused to the people, and observes that it is not stated whether this step is due to the demand for Railway officials for service in the newly conquered parts of East Africa or Mesapotamia, or to the necessity of taking a large quantity of rolling stock to those parts.

MUSHIR-I-DAKHAN, Hyderabad, Dec. 14th, 1916.

A proposal to reduce the number of trains.

53. The Mushir-i-Dakhan, of the 14th December, referring to the proposal to reduce the number of trains in India from January or February next as, in consequence of English factories being engaged in making munitions, the requisite rolling stock cannot be sent out to India, says when complaints are being made of insufficient accommodation in spite of the large number now running, there will be no end of grumbling when that number is decreased.

(j) Salt and Abkāri.

YOGAKSHEMAM, Friday, Dec. 15th, 1916.

The Abkári Department.

54. In commenting upon the Abkári Administration report, the Yogakshemam, of the 15th December, points out that, considered from a financial point of view, the administration has no doubt been a success, and that a mere reduction in the number of liquor shops will not be sufficient to check the growth of drinking, but that liquor shops should be located at intervals of twenty or twenty-five miles, and rejoices that the Government have accepted some at least of the recommendations of the Temperance Association.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Abkāri department.

In commenting upon the report on the Abkāri administration for the year 1915–16, Kerala Patrika, of the 16th December, points out that it is evident that a mere reduction in the number of liquor-shops and an increase in prices of liquors, will not check the growth of drinking, and that to achieve this object the Government should, as has been done in Russia, prohibit the manufacture of liquors, which, however, the Government may not be in a position to do now, on account of the enormous loss of revenue which will result from it. It thinks that, as the price of sugar has now gone up, no obstacles of any kind should be placed in the way of tapping trees with a view to extract sweet toddy, out of which jaggery is manufactured, and invites the attention of the Government to the necessity of developing this industry.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

Lord Carmichael's speech on the Defence of India Act.

55. Referring to the speech recently delivered by Lord Carmichael on the operation of this Act in Bengal, the Swadesamitran, of the 14th December, writes: —Lord Carmichael believes in the existence of a conspiracy in Bengal. Is his belief based on true facts? Lord Carmichael himself admits that the evidence available is largely that of abetters. Is such evidence worthy of being relied on? The Secret Police Department has made him believe such evidence. No doubt the Government has a right to suspend the privileges of its subjects for a period in troublous times of war or internal commotion. But are the conditions in India or Bengal so serious as to justify such proceedings? Does not Lord Carmichael himself appreciate the loyalty and peacefulness of the bulk of the population? He says that there is sufficient evidence to show that those who are interned in the interests of public safety, are concerned in a conspiracy, but that it is not such as can stand in a court of law. If the existence of a conspiracy is proved to the people by means of public inquiries, their help can be obtained in putting this down. But the present action of the Government make the people discontented.

The Hindu Nesan, of the 15th December, has a leader on the same subject in which it observes:—It should be pointed out here that Lord Carmichael must have had his information from subordinate officers who, in all selfishness and utter disregard of public good, represent facts in false colours. — Hindu Nesan, Madras, Dec. 15th, 1916.

The Prapanchamitran, of the 15th December, also writes on this subject as follows:—This is the first time we hear of the existence of a conspiracy in Bengal from a responsible head of the Government and it was never expected of Lord Carmichael. The truth of this is not known to the people. Perhaps it is known only to Lord Carmichael and to God. — Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 15th, 1916.

Answers to questions in Legislative Councils.

56. The Prapanchamitran, of the 15th December, says:—On a resolution moved by a non-official member of the Legislative Council at Lucknow in a recent meeting, that persons convicted of offences not relating to their moral conduct should be kept in separate rooms in prisons apart from the common criminals, the Member for Government replied that those who were convicted for the first time were being so kept. How is this answer relevant to the subject to the resolution which really referred to persons convicted of disloyalty? If questions and resolutions are thus dealt with in these councils, it would be better for the Honourable Members to sit quiet like dolls, without moving any resolutions or putting any questions. — Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 15th, 1916.

In a recent meeting of the Bengal Legislative Council also, a question was asked as to whether the Government was aware of the existence of general discontent among the people regarding the enforcement of the Defence of India Act, and the Government's reply to it was that it was aware of the existence of discontent as well as appreciation. Perhaps the Anglo-Indians have this feeling of appreciation. We do not hold that the very small number of disloyal Indians who accuse the Government of being unjust, represent the people in any way, nor should the Government believe that the views of the Anglo-Indians who form a small section of the population and have no sympathy whatever for the Indians, are those of the general public.

The severity of Judges against coolies in Ceylon.

57. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th December, reports the case of a coolie who was convicted and sentenced to 14 days' rigorous imprisonment for having stayed away from work, and observes:—The coolie belonged to a batch of workmen whom the planter discharged from service on payment of a certain sum to the whole batch. On the day of discharge, the accused was not present to receive his "Chit," but applied for it some time later, when he was arrested and brought to trial. The accused appealed against the sentence of the Magistrate, but the Appellate Court also found him guilty and confirmed the sentence, on the ground that the charge was proved and the motive was out of consideration. Mr. Polak stated yesterday that in South Africa the administration was conducted properly by the Indians and that only the subordinate officers were causing trouble. The condition in Ceylon seems to be the same. When the Ceylon Government has taken steps to amend the law by which absence from duty is penalised, the courts exercise the law rigorously. — Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

Six persons interned under the Defence of India Act in Bengal.

58. The Prapanchamitran, of the 15th December, says:—Six persons, who are natives of Sindh, returned to India from America and one of them was a Barrister. As soon as they alighted at Calcutta, they were arrested and interned under the Defence of India Act, without any reason whatever. — Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 15th, 1916.

The Defence of India Act in Travancore.

59. The Prapanchamitran, of the 15th December, reports a case in which an order was issued by the Travancore Government to charge the editor of the Malayalee, a bi-weekly paper published in that State, with an offence against the Defence of India Act, and states that the reason for this order being issued was that this Editor has published in his paper that a Nayar force enlisted in Travancore and Malabar had been despatched to Mesopotamia viâ Bombay. — Prapanchamitran, Madras, Dec. 15th, 1916.

Hindu Nesan, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

India and the Colonies.

60. Referring to the speeches recently delivered on this subject by Mr. Polak in Madras, the Hindu Nesan, of the 16th December, makes the following observations:—Mr. Polak spoke of a party of politicians in England who advocate the Colonies sharing with their mother country the responsibility of governing India. Probably they are not content wit theh ill-treatment to which they are subjecting the Indians in their own countries. The Colonies have not obtained self-government by reason of their being fit for it. This privilege is enjoyed by them simply because they are Englishmen. Mr. Polak admitted this fact. While the Colonies are unable to conduct their own Governments in consonance with the responsibilities of the Imperial Government and are ill-treating the Indians who are rendering all possible help to the British people at this time of war, it is very surprising that the Colonies should seek to have a share in the Government of this country. It is Mr. Polak's opinion, and we entirely agree with him, that the Indians are better fitted for self-government than the Colonies.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Advancement of the Indian industries.

61. With reference to a recent article on this subject, written by Sir Roper Lethbridge, the Swadesamitran, of the 16th December, says:—Several industries which flourished in India in past times have died out for want of protection. It will be of advantage if at least the present restrictions which are in the way of the advancement of our industries are removed. The short-sighted policy of the Government in regard to their development has left our industries in a bad condition. If their condition should be improved at all, the policy underlying the regulation of the tariff should be thoroughly changed. There is a general discontent in the country that the Commission, which has been appointed to inquire into the condition of the Indian industries, has not been authorised to report upon the results of this policy.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Status of non-official members in Legislative Councils.

62. Adverting to a resolution recently passed in the Legislative Councils of the United Provinces and Bengal that trial by jury should be introduced in those districts also in which it is not now in force, the Swadesamitran, of the 18th December, writes:—The Government members oppose the resolutions moved by the non-official members without reference to their utility or value. Sometimes they speak without showing any regard to these members. The Honourable Member for Government who opposed this resolution in Bengal, spoke as though the non official members were interested in the criminals escaping punishment, and thus attributed bad motives to them. The Government has not apparently realised the status of these members in the Legislative Councils.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Condition of trade in India after the war.

63. With regard to the circular issued by the Government of India to the Provincial Governments, calling for opinions as to what should be the condition of trade in India after the war, the Swadesamitran, of the 18th December, says:—The Government of India has not asked for the opinions of the Provincial Governments and the commercial bodies about the revision of the tariff so as to suit the trade in India, nor has it authorised the Industrial Commission to report upon this subject. How can it be properly discussed in the Imperial Conference? How can the Indians be expected to venture freely in trade, if they do not know the nature of the policy that will be pursued by the Government with regard to the tariff?

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The new Governor of Bengal.

64. While expressing its regret at the appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as Governor of Bengal in succession to Lord Carmichael, the Swadesamitran, of the 19th December, writes:—In consequence of the unfair and unsympathetic opinions about the Indians, expressed by Lord Ronaldshay in his writings, all the journals with one voice regret his appointment. While such is the case, the Secretary of State for India has stated in the House of Commons that Lord Ronaldshay possesses special merits for occupying this post and that the British Government is well pleased with his acceptance of this office. Even if

Mr. Chamberlain did not care for the likes and dislikes of the people of Bengal, he might at least have recognised the objections raised by the people of India in general.

India and the empire

65. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th December, comments as follows on a lecture delivered on this subject by Mr. Ramsay Meyer, Professor of History in the Manchester University :—In considering the condition of India after the war, the Professor says that the British public should have regard to the mutual benefits of Great Britain and India under the empire. But this does not appear to be necessary. The question that demands immediate settlement on liberal principles and a far-sighted policy is really what the condition of India should be after the war, when judged by her deserts and her wishes. In the settlement of this question, it should be taken into consideration that India has fully realised her responsibilities during this period of war and that she has shown herself fit for self-government.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The Defence of India Act.

66. With reference to a statement made on behalf of the Government in the Bengal Legislative Council that the Government was aware of the existence among the people, not only of a feeling that they are interned under this Act without sufficient justification, but also of an exactly opposite kind of feeling, the Swadesamitran, of the 19th December, observes :—The Amrita Bazar Patrika says that if there be any at all who have such opposite kind of feeling, they must be either persons belonging to the Secret Police, or Rao Bahadurs and Khan Bahadurs who look up to Government for favours. Several of those who have been interned are young men who were studying for the M.A. and other examinations. If their educational career be broken up thus, they would become discontented. The authorities should take into consideration the fact that it is not desirable to swell the number of these discontented young men in view of the future peaceful condition of the country. The Amrita Bazar Patrika says, "There are at least 500 persons interned in Bengal. What is to be their future career? Have they the chance of continuing their studies or earning their livelihood? If not, will they not become a source of danger to the public?"

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

Sir James Meston's warning to the Congress.

67. On this subject, the Swadesamitran, of the 19th December, says :—The warning given by the Government of the United Provinces to the Executive Members of the Congress to be held at Lucknow must have hurt the feelings of all who are interested in this institution. The Congress has been doing its work for the last 30 years, and there has been no instance when intemperate language was used in its meetings, nor has any such warning been given to it by the head of any Province. Perhaps it has caused some anxiety to the authorities that the moderate and the extremist parties which have been separated for so many years past are to be united this year. Another notable feature of this Congress is that it is to consider the proposals recommended jointly by the Congress Committee and the Muslim League Committee with regard to the reforms to be introduced into the administration of India after the war. But this is only an advantage to the Government. We trust, therefore, that the Government of the United Provinces will withdraw the unnecessary warning in consideration of the objection taken to it by the Chairman and the Secretary of the Congress Reception Committee.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

Lord Carmichael.

68. In commenting on the Darbar held by Lord Carmichael, the Andhrapatrika, of the 14th December, says :—As Lord Carmichael could not but submit to the present administrative policy of the British Government in India, in spite of his high ideals, he had to justify to some extent the repressive measures now in force. All political bodies in the west have proposed to stamp out anarchism by means of the ordinary laws of the land, and none has had repressive measures enacted and police rule established. It would have been well if Lord Carmichael had considered why a different policy should be followed in this country. Possessing as he does a British heart which has accepted the principle that no evidence can be accepted as conclusive proof until it is confirmed in an open Court of Law, Lord Carmichael has, it is to be regretted, fallen into an error under the strong influence of the present administrative policy. Those who have watched the history of Bengal during the war could not bring themselves to believe that there is as much conspiracy in the country as is suspected to exist by Lord Carmichael and his colleagues. Lord Carmichael said that he did not enforce the Defence of India Act rigorously. It may be that he never intended any rigorous enforcement of the law. But what guarantee was there that his officers carried out his orders in the same liberal spirit. How many of the interned persons have not been looked upon like prisoners, and how many have not suffered for want of food and raiment? The histories of how many persons have not been published in a piteous way by the Amrita Bazar Patrika? Lord Carmichael stated that the Defence of India Act was not only applied to the evils arising out of the war, but was also made use of to grapple with the disturbances in Bengal. But did he consider the perverse results of this policy, such as the orders of the Governments of Bombay and the Central Provinces against Mrs. Besant? When a bad weapon is placed in the hands of the authorities, they are inclined to use it against somebody. It is therefore the mistake of the Government to entrust them with such a weapon.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

Proposals for peace.

69. The Andhrapatrika, of the 14th December, says:—The sad fate that has overtaken Belgium, Servia, Montenegro and Poland has overtaken Roumania also to some extent. Greece also leans to the side of Germany. The Allies have not regained even some hundreds of miles out of the sixty thousand and odd square miles of land taken from them by Germany. If, therefore, Germany makes peace proposals today, she cannot have the indignity of being considered as a nation that does so, humbled by defeat. It is plain that by issuing proposals for peace, Germany wishes to regain her honour which she has lost of late. But the Allies will certainly not make peace with her. The German militarism should first be crushed and then proposals for peace should be started. There is no other means of establishing peace.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 15th, 1916.

Sir Valentine Chirol and the Bombay Government.

70. The Andhrapatrika, of the 15th December, reports the Mahratta, to have written as follows:—Everybody who learns that the Government of Bombay have afforded facilities for the translation of some documents for the use of Sir Valentine Chirol in the suit brought against him by Mr. Tilak, to whom that Government gave a passport to go to England after great hesitation, will be led to question what reason there could exist for their helping that unscrupulous writer. The Government ought to have been indifferent in the matter, especially because they are aware that he is opposing a suit brought by Mr. Tilak who is not in their good graces. This official partiality shakes the confidence of the public in the Government and will leave an everlasting impression in their minds. If the suit is to be disposed of soon, the Government will do well to help Mr. Tilak also in a suitable manner.

ANDHRAPATRIKA, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Nation.

71. In commenting on the article in the Nation headed "the Waste of Loyalty", the Andhrapatrika, of the 16th December, says in its leader:—The Government of India have not only refrained from raising volunteer regiments for active service, but have, according to the Nation, stated that it is difficult to find British officers in sufficient numbers who know the Indian vernaculars, to give military training to the Indians. But the Nation asks whether Indian volunteer regiments cannot be formed with a few senior British officers, and English-speaking Indians and Sergeants under them. It says that it is astonishing that an empire which called forth unequalled loyalty from the Indians should be governed by officials who could not use such loyalty and who did not deserve it These officers, says the Nation, have not felt the generous attitude that the present war and crisis have engendered in the minds of the people It states that it is not possible for any empire to be wasting loyalty for ever. These are golden words.

72. Referring to the letter of the Government of the United Provinces to the Chairman of the Congress Reception Committee warning the members of the Congress not to break the law, the Andhrapatrika, of the 16th December, says :— The Congress has never allowed, during the past thirty years of its existence, any breaking of the law. When there was an altercation between the moderates and the nationalists in 1906, the Congress deferred its sessions, but never allowed any violation of law. It is difficult to understand why Sir James Meston now fears that in the forthcoming session of the Congress speeches may be delivered which violate the law of the land. In giving the warning, he perhaps wanted to bring out the rigorous nature of the repressive measures now in force. But the Courts of Law have clearly pointed out the arbitrary nature of the Press Act and the Defence of India Act, and the whole country requests that they should be enforced only with the greatest care. In asking the Reception Committee to see that the speakers do not violate law, the Government requires the committee to do an impossible thing, for under the present laws, there is scope for the Courts also condemning a speech or writing which the Government holds to be wrong. The letter in question only tends to raise a doubt that even liberal rulers like Sir James Meston are throwing obstacles in the way of public life. Unless the authorities show sympathy in matters of this sort, the unsullied fame of British justice cannot stand. The people cannot but be led to believe that the authorities are trying to restrain the enthusiasm fostered by the swaraj agitation and that, knowing that it is unlawful to prevent Mrs. Besant from going to the Congress, they have sounded a note of warning to Mrs. Besant and other advocates of self-government.

The Congress.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

73. Referring to the fear of the President of the Gōdāvari District Co-operative Conference that if trust funds be invested in Co-operative Societies, the impetus for self-help may disappear in them, the Andhrapatrika, of the 19th December, says that these funds are at present invested in some Western Railway Company Debentures at low interest and that if they are used by Co-operative Societies, not only will those Societies but also the trust funds will surely profit thereby. There is the Registrar of Co-operative Societies, it observes, to see that the Societies make a right use of the funds. The paper hopes that the Trust Act may be amended so as to enable trust funds being invested in Co-operative Banks.

Trust funds and Co-operative Societies.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

74. The Andhrapatrika, of the 19th December, refers to the replies given by Mr. Chamberlain to questions put in the Parliament regarding the raising of a war loan in India, and feels highly gratified that he at least once in his life expressed himself firmly in favour of India.

Mr. Chamberlain.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

75. Referring to the fact that Lord Chamberlain has defended the appointment of Lord Ronaldshay as the Governor of Bengal, the Andhrapatrika, of the 18th December, says :—Mr. Chamberlain does not appear to be aware of the fact that Bengal and other parts of India are protesting against the appointment. Even if he had been aware, we know that Mr. Chamberlain and his party are not in the habit of attaching any importance to Indian public opinion. Besides failing to lend a ear to the protests, he has given Lord Ronaldshay unfounded certificates. Lord Ronaldshay wrote books after visiting India, but those books are worse than those of Sir Valentine Chirol. He stated that the Indians are unfit for even ordinary self-government and that they should always be governed by others. It needs no saying what sympathy a gentleman who wrote such things can show in the administration of the country. As a member of the Public

Lord Ronaldshay.

Andhrapatrika, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

Services Commission, he did harm and no good. His services in the House of Commons were no better. He never stated even once that Indians deserved sympathy and that Indian administration required to be reformed. It is the practice to send to India as Governors persons who knew nothing of Indian affairs. This enabled them to view things impartially. By sending one who has formed his opinions on the basis of information furnished by Anglo-Indians, the authorities are fostering discontent in the country. Is it to Bengal that such a gentleman has to be sent? It is impossible to conceive how one who belongs to the party of Sir B. Fuller, and who received training under Lord Curzon will rule Bengal. No Government would have ventured to send from England to a country like Australia or New South Wales any Governor whom the people of that country disliked. The reason for the arbitrary attitude of the authorities is that India does not possess the powers that the Colonies possess. May Lord Ronaldshay resign the appointment for the sake of the peace of Bengal, the unsullied reputation of the British, and his own peace of mind!

Sadhvini, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Sugar trade.

76. In a leader under this heading, the Sasiletha, of the 15th December, writes:—There is nothing more painful than to see that India where sugarcane is cultivated abundantly should, for her sugar, depend upon such small countries as Germany, Japan, Java, Egypt and Mauritius. Alas! India has fallen farther back than even Egypt. We wish that the Government of India and her rich sons will take steps to enrich the soil, grow sugarcane abundantly, instal the required machinery for the manufacture of sugar and attempt to increase this trade.

Sadhvini, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Cabinet.

77. In an article under this heading, the Sasiletha, of the 15th December, writes:—In the new Cabinet that has been formed there is none who loves India or has understood the Indian administrative methods. Of the ministers Lord Curzon is one. It needs no saying what good he will do us.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Congress and the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces.

78. Referring to the order of the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces issued to the Secretary to the Congress Reception Committee, the Andhraprakasika, of the 16th December, writes:—It is not in keeping with the prestige of the Government of the United Provinces to warn people against offences before they are committed. It is also not a good sign that the rulers should day by day grow suspicious of the ruled.

Kistnapatrika, Masulipatam, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Home Rule leagues.

79. A correspondent to the Kistnapatrika, of the 16th December, says that India should have a Parliament of its own under the King of England who should also be crowned in India. India according to him requires a system of administration now obtaining in Austro-Hungarian Empire. He says that neither self-government as in the Colonies nor any other form of Government will do for India.

Kistnapatrika, Masulipatam, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Sedition in Bengal.

80. In a leader under this head, the Kistnapatrika, of the 16th December, states:—Lord Carmichael's generosity has won for him the loyalty of Bengal and there is only one thing that tarnishes the lustre of his rule, and it is the harsh application of the Defence of India Act, under which about 500 young men have been placed under restraint among whom are included students, teachers, pleaders, scions of noble families and editors . . . The fact that only the Police could see with their divine sight what the people were not able to find is incredible. The secret reports of the Police have somehow won the confidence of Lord Carmichael . . . A liberal statesman like him has placed under restraint 500 persons, solely confiding in the reports of the Police and not even consulting the leaders of the country; and he says that all these severe measures were taken for the safety of the country. One cannot help feeling this strange . . . It is statesmanship to grapple with the various problems that present themselves with attention and sympathy and try to remove the root-causes of sedition. It is good neither for the people nor for the Government to rely upon the reports of the Police and have recourse, even without consulting the leaders, to repressive measures calculated to afford temporary relief. The present policy of the Bengal Government has been fostering discontent instead of establishing peace. Why is Bengal dumb when the whole India is glowing with a desire for swaraj? . . . Why has its enthusiasm cooled down? The repressive measures of the Bengal Government supply the answer. Political agitation has been dreaded in Bengal. The people have grown despondent in a way, and have been overwhelmed with a kind of despair . . . There is no wonder in this. Such social conditions have supplied the soil for the sprouting of the seeds of sedition, and the Government does not seem to have rightly comprehended the present magnitude and the future developments of this danger . . . Lord Carmichael sincerely admits that in Bengal there is a widespread disaffection in the people against the Government. To remove it, is there no other means than the Defence of India Act? Repressive measures do not diminish disaffection but increase it. For sometime it may work under-ground; but as it becomes chronic it proves fatal sooner or later . . . Harsh measures only betray the fear of the Government, they cannot show their courage. To uplift Bengal now, expert statesmen are needed, who are courageous, far-sighted and conversant with the secret springs of human nature. England does not seem to possess such statesmen at present. If she did why would she, in disregard of popular opinion, appoint as Governor, Lord Ronaldshay, a reviler of Bengal?

81. The Kistnapatrika, of the 16th December, wishes that in regard to the recent floods, the Government will not merely afford temporary relief but also devise permanent means calculated to prevent a recurrence of such calamities in future.

Kistnapatrika, Machilipatam, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Floods.

82. The Ravi, of the 14th December, states:—The Secretary of the Gódávari District Association writes that the crops in the Delta tracts having been damaged by heavy rains, the ryots are anxious as to how they can maintain their cattle in the coming year, during which they cannot maintain themselves if remissions are not granted.

Ravi, Cocanada, Dec. 14th, 1916.

Fodder for cattle.

83. The Hindusthani, of the 16th December, refers to the advantages of permanent revenue settlement in Bengal, pointed out by Babu Bhupendranath Bose in his evidence before the Industrial Commission, and prays that now at least the Madras Government will introduce the system of permanent settlement in this Presidency.

Hindusthani, Bellary, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Permanent Revenue Settlement.

84. The Ravi, of the 14th December, has the following:—

Ravi, Cocanada, Dec. 14th, 1916.

Seditious leaflets.

Beware! Citizens!! Beware!!!

It appears that a distinguished citizen has learnt that some printed anonymous seditious leaflets have found their way into this town (Cocanada). Those in whose possession they may be found will come to trouble. So they must be destroyed at once. Some may keep them with an innocent mind. When the authorities find them, it will be well to kindly warn the possessors but not to harass them.

If innocent villagers should take them away from you, they may raise fantastic rumours. Therefore behave bearing in mind that care keeps off fear.

85. The Bharatamata, of the 29th November, says:—When the Morley-Minto reforms were introduced, the hope was entertained that happy relations will prevail between the rulers and the ruled and that the former will take the latter into their confidence in administering the country. But this hope has proved to Bharatamata, Pithapuram, Nov. 29th, 1916.

The Madras Legislative Council.

be illusory as has been evidenced in the recent meeting of the Madras Legislative Council. It is the misfortune of India that the peculiar political policy followed by the Government in ruling the country, their policy of punishment, and their new war policy have all combined to blight the hope. It is to be regretted that most of the answers of the Government to the questions put in the recent meeting of the Madras Legislative Council are unsatisfactory. So also are the results of the resolutions to a large extent.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

Hawkers' licenses in South Africa.

86. Referring to the refusal of hawkers' licenses to Indians in South Africa, the Andhraprakasika, of the 13th December, remarks that colour prejudice still prevails in that country in spite of the fact that the Indians there took part in the war, bravely endured many a hardship and earned the gratitude of some judicious persons in that country.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 13th, 1916.

Supplies to Collectors.

87. Referring to the question of supplies to Collectors moved in the Legislative Council, a correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 13th December, gives some instances of the hardship caused to the people on this account, and says:—It appears that the Government, who yielded when similar questions were moved in the Council by an able man of the type of Mr. Keava Pillai, are threatening a less able man, who now moved the resolution regarding supplies. Why should a Government so disposed to anger fear truth and justice? Why should they not fearlessly arrange to appoint a Committee to investigate the matter? I think it is the duty of the Government to ascertain the truth, that it is not right on their part to be high-handed, that this high-handedness creates discontent and dislike in the people, and that the Government should consider the matter deeply and make the necessary investigation.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 13th, 1916.

The Advocate-General, Madras.

88. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 13th December, expresses regret at the sudden death of the Hon'ble Mr. Corbet, Advocate-General of Madras, and hopes that the Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Ayyangar, the acting incumbent, will be confirmed in the post, instead of its being conferred on a European.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 13th, 1916.

The necessity of a dispensary at Payyanur.

89. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 13th December, dwells upon the necessity of establishing a dispensary at Payyanur, for which, besides handing over Rs. 300 and odd, the balance of the funds collected for the Delhi Darbar celebrations, the people are willing to contribute further, and hopes that the matter will receive the immediate attention of the District Board.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 13th, 1916.

The Madras Legislative Council.

90. In commenting further upon the proceedings of the Madras Legislative Council, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 13th December, dwells upon the necessity of increasing the pay of District Munsifs at the next earliest opportunity, so as to make it at least equal to that of the First-class Police Inspectors and the last grade Deputy Superintendents of Police and also the pay of Subordinate Judges and officers of other grades, regrets that though the salary of the low-paid clerks of the Registration Department has been raised, other necessary reforms should have been put off for want of funds, in spite of the fact that this department brings in considerable revenues to the Government, and pleads strongly for the introduction by Government of a measure to regulate the relations between the landlords and the tenants in Malabar, and for the appointment of a tenants' representative in the Legislative Council.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 13th, 1916.

Lord Carmichael's recent speech.

91. After pointing out that all Indians ought to read with care the recent speech of His Excellency Lord Carmichael, the Manorama, of the 13th December, regrets that such a well-wisher of the people as Lord Carmichael, should have been compelled by the ways of the anarchists, who are undoubtedly the enemies of India to have recourse to the Defence of India Act and to speak in the strain he did, and calls upon the leaders of the people to act together and do all in their power to put down anarchism, in which case alone India can have a bright future.

Lord Carmichael's recent speech.

The Keraladesam, of the 19th December, makes an appreciative and detailed reference to the recent speech of Lord Carmichael, thinks that it is a disgrace to the Bengalis that such a sympathetic Governor should have felt constrained to speak in this strain in an open assembly, and hopes that they will render every assistance to the Government to put down anarchism, and that they will ungrudgingly give any powers to the authorities which they may demand for this purpose.

Keraladesam, Tellicherry, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The Governor-designate of Bengal.

92. The Yogakshemam, of the 15th December, draws attention to the unsympathetic attitude of Lord Ronaldshay towards Indian aspirations, as revealed by his speeches and writings, and to the cablegram sent by the Bengalis to the Secretary of State, requesting him to cancel the appointment, and observes that the British Colonies seem to have the right to protest against the appointment of a Governor who is not acceptable to them.

Yogakshemam, Tellicherry, Dec. 15th, 1916.

India and the new Cabinet.

93. The Keraladesam, of the 19th December, points out that, whatever may be its effect on the conduct of the war, the change of ministry is not likely to be of any advantage to India, as Mr. Chamberlain continues to be its Secretary, with Lord Curzon as his adviser.

Keraladesam, Tellicherry, Dec. 19th, 1916.

Trade after the war.

94. The Manorama, of the 19th December, comments favourably upon the trade arrangements which the Government propose to make after the war, and thinks that the first thing to be done in this matter is to establish factories for the manufacture of articles which formerly were imported from enemy countries.

Manorama, Cochin, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The Indian National Congress.

95. Referring to the letter sent by the Deputy Commissioner of Lucknow to the Chairman of the Reception Committe of the Indian National Congress, the Manorama, of the 19th December, doubts whether such a warning was necessary at all, inasmuch as the Government have full power to do the needful, when any breach of the law is apprehended, and as most of the Indians who take part in the Congress are experienced lawyers, and thinks that the Government were wrong in thus gagging the mouths of the delegates at a time, when they have to acquaint the Government through their speeches with the views they hold on several matters connected with the administration of their country.

Manorama, Cochin, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The Membership of the Madras Executive Council.

96. The Muhibbi-i-Dakkan, of the 13th December, commenting on the impending vacancy in the Madras Executive Council, says:—We have been discussing this question ever since the resignation of the Raja of Bobbili. There now appears to be a difference of opinion among Muhammadans. One party wishes that a Muhammadan from this Presidency should be selected, as an outsider will not be acquainted with our affairs, whereas the general opinion is that any Muhammadan, irrespective of his belonging to this or any other part of the country, may be appointed, provided he is qualified. If a local man is insisted upon, the door for any other selection will be closed in future. Our Presidency is not yet in a position to furnish able Muhammadans for filling up every office in the Government. For the present, the responsibility should rest with Government alone so that it may nominate any Muhammadan fit for the office.

Muhibbi-i-Dakkan, Madras, Dec. 13th, 1916.

The editor, referring to the rumour of Sir Shamsul Huda's appointment, says that he is about to vacate a seat in the Imperial Council, and it will be better if the office is conferred on some other efficient Muhammadan. Fresh experience will produce new results, and there is no necessity for using experienced men over and over again. He further suggests the advisability of filling the vacancy by appointing an able Muhammadan from the Hyderabad State, e.g., Mr. Hyderi, B.A., or Ahmad Husain Sahib, M.A., B.L., who are closely connected with Madras. We are afraid, however, that our Government may not consider their appointment practicable or these gentlemen may not accept the offer as they are already holding responsible offices in the State.

Jasmine-e-Rozgar, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

A summary of the war news.

97. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 18th December, in giving a summary of the war news, says that King Constantine is not a reliable person. He did not remain true to the solemn promise he made to the Allies for which treachery the London Times advocates a strong line of action with regard to the King of Greece. The King of Greece has yet time to apologise and throw in his lot with the Allies, otherwise there is no knowing what commotion there will be in Greece.

Jasmine-e-Rozgar, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1916.

The Madras Executive Council and a Muhammadan.

98. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 9th December, referring to the approaching vacancy of a Membership in the Madras Executive Council, says:— When we observe the just and fair disposition of His Excellency the Governor of Madras we are led to believe that we shall be successful and our heart bears witness that some Muhammadan member will certainly be appointed on this occasion; for on previous occasions Hindûs have been successively favoured with this appointment. His Excellency the Governor will therefore not like to see the claims of Mussalmans ignored.

We here submit to His Excellency the Governor the three following names of Mussalmans, and trust that the Government will be pleased to confer the appointment on anyone of these, place the Muhammadans under a deep debt of gratitude and be sure not to disappoint us this time:—

(1) Sir Ghulam Muhammad Ali Khan Bahadur, the present Prince of Arcot, whose loyalty is admitted and whose services rendered to Government during the present war, make him more entitled to have the honour conferred upon him.

(2) The way in which the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Abdur Rahim Sahib, the pride of the nation, has performed his duties as Judge and Acting Chief Justice and the efficient manner in which he served on the Civil Service Commission needs no description.

(3) Khan Bahadur Muhammad Azizuddin Husain Sahib Bahadur, the present Collector of South Arcot, a sympathetic member of the community, has striven his utmost to efficiently perform his duties. He has earned the encomiums of all the Hindus and Muhammadans of the district and is popular among them. In bringing the above names to the notice of the authorities we trust that the Government will not defer or disappoint the hopes of Mussalmans this time."

III.—Legislation.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

The Panchayat Bill.

99. In its leader on Legislative Councils, the Andhraprakasika, of the 16th December, says:— We are pained to say that our countrymen are right in thinking that these Councils are so many theatres created to enact farces. Our Madras Government once used to treat the Honourable Members with regard. But now the Government disregard them and create discontent in the minds of the public. It is difficult to understand why the Government refused permission to introduce the Panchayat Bill. It is unfortunate that the Government have not yet realised the troubles that the subjects are put to for want of panchayats. It is undesirable that the Government should always withhold from the people all training in self-government. It is discreditable to the British Government under whom the Indians have been for about a century and a half, to say that they cannot as yet manage panchayats. However voiceless they may be, they cannot always be dependents. It is a sign of good Government and is advantageous to the Government to give the people some independence when they see proofs that they can manage their own affairs. The country that contains people without independence is always weak. English education has given rise to new aspirations which it is not proper to suppress. It is not a good policy to create discontent. It is but fair that the Government at least should introduce the Panchayat Bill.

100. The Manorama, of the 15th December, comments favourably upon the Chitty Regulation proposed to be introduced by the Travancore Darbar, and dwells upon the necessity of introducing a similar measure in British Malabar, where all sorts of people start chittics or kuries. — Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 15th, 1916.

The necessity of introducing a law regulating kuries in Malabar.

101. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 14th December, referring to Lord Carmichael's able and interesting speech regarding the Defence of India Act, writes:— — Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

"Defence of India."

There is no doubt that at first the Defence of India Act was criticised in certain circles and was strongly opposed by a few uninformed persons. But experience very soon taught them that this Act was necessary for dealing effectually with the germs of sedition with which the polluted atmosphere of certain cities was impregnated.

It proved to be extremely useful, especially in Bengal, for combating the dangers of intrigue and suppressing it. His Excellency the Governor has testified to this fact in his great speech.

The editor would strongly impress this fact on people's minds and says whatever laws our benign Government enacts are beneficial both to the country and to the people. The Defence of India Act is in itself a sufficient example of something which appeared at the outset unnecessary but turned out to be something worthy of appreciation. It is true that—.

Kings know the secrets of their own kingdoms. Loyal subjects should under all circumstances continue to be loyal and obedient to the Government. They should not take part in any intrigue against the Government, on the contrary should help Government to arrest sedition-mongers.

IV.—Native States.

102. In an article reviewing the report on the Mysore Revenue Survey department, the Vrittanta Patrike, of the 21st December, observes:—It is of the highest importance, in the interests of the Government as well as the people, that the survey demarcation and classification of land should be thorough and up to date, and to this end it must be revised every 25 or 30 years, so that all changes, such as the deterioration or improvement in the irrigation sources of any holdings and the division and sub-division of fields may be clearly entered in the records and the assessment equitably readjusted and boundary disputes easily settled. Although the work of the Revenue department in Mysore has, on the whole, been satisfactory, the Government admit that in parts of the province the work done is very limited owing to the curtailment of the establishment and the utilisation of the existing hands for other work. As this would affect the revenue of the State, it is to be hoped that the Government would provide for more adequate staff and ensure that the servants of this department who have ample opportunities for corrupt practices, do not injure the interests either of the Government or of the people and at the same time do their work vigorously and sufficiently. — Vrittanta Patrike, Mysore, Dec. 21st, 1916.

Revenue Survey in Mysore.

103. In reviewing the report on the administration of Pudukkottai during the year 1915–16, the Navarasa Dewika, of the 19th December, refers to the progress which the State has made in all directions, especially in education, agriculture, and co-operative movement, and pays a tribute to His Highness the Raja, for the care and sympathy with which he has been ruling over his subjects. — Navarasa Dewika, Pudukkottai, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The administration of Pudukkottai.

Errata.

Report No. 50.

Page 2182, paragraph 41, line 6, omit "to" after "attended".
" 2182 " 42, " 2, omit "British" before "Germany".
" 2193 " 80, " 12, omit "all" before "being".
" 2194 " 80, " 31, omit "the" after "that".
" 2195 " 80, " 3, substitute "excesses" for "excuses" after "those".
" 2195 " 80, " 6, insert "shelve" after "to" after "content".
" 2195 " 80, " 23, substitute "acrimonious" for "a ceremonious".

Report No. 51.

Article 40, paragraph 2, line 5, omit the first "has".
" 40 " 3 " 1, insert "of the Allies" between "the union" and "and".

[Issued, 27th December 1916.]

CONFIDENTIAL.

No. 53 of 1916.

REPORT

ON

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS EXAMINED BY THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT, MADRAS,

AND ON

VERNACULAR PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

for the Week ending 30th December 1916.

District Magistrates and Political Agents are requested to send to the Chief Secretary to Government, Judicial Department, a brief report of any local complaint which appears to them to call for notice, explaining whether the facts are as stated; what action, if any, is being taken; and, if the facts alleged are incorrect, what is believed to be the origin of the report and what the correct facts are.

CONTENTS.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

Nil.

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics. PAGE

European civilisation 2325
The German peace proposals .. .. id.
War and the peace proposals .. .. id.
A message of peace .. .. id.
Is peace possible? 2326

II.—Home Administration.

(c) Local and Municipal—

The milk of Madras 2327

II.—Home Administration—contd.

(b) General—

	PAGE
Damages caused by the recent storm in South Arcot	2327
The Colonies and the Empire	id.
The labour problem	id.
The Brahman-Non-Brahman split	2328
Proposed welcome to Lord Ronaldshay	id.
Employment of Indians in the Tata Iron Works	2329
India and the Prime Minister	id.
Post-war reforms in India	id.
The responsibilities of popular representatives in the Legislative Council	id.
Supplies to Government officers	2330
Thirty-first session of the Congress	id.
Slavery in Malabar	id.
British India and the Native States	2331
India's future	id.
"Financial difficulties"	id.

IV.—Native States.

The extension of the local self-government in Mysore	2332
Travancore Christian Succession Bill	id.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS PUBLISHED IN THE MADRAS PRESIDENCY, THE NATIVE STATES OF HYDERABAD, MYSORE, TRAVANCORE, COCHIN AND PUDUKKOTTAI, AND THE FRENCH TERRITORIES OF PONDICHERRY AND KARIKAL.

[NOTE.—Among the Indian-owned newspapers, those classed as dealing with politics are printed in big type. Officers, in whose jurisdiction they are published, are requested to pay special attention to these papers, and send immediate reports of any changes in them to the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Railways and Criminal Investigation Department, Madras.]

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
1	Abhinavacaraevati	Telugu.	Chandrika Press, Guntur ..	Monthly ..	Janapati Pattabhirama Sastri, Brahman, 45 years.	325
2	Adyar Bulletin .	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 66 years.	1,200
3	Agricultural Pamphlet.	Tamil ..	Alexandra Press, Kumbakonam.	Do. ..	R. Srinivasa Ayyangar, 43 years, and Subrahmaniya Ayyar, 40 years, Brahmans.	600
4	Agriculture	Telugu.	Published at Ellore, printed at Sagar & Co.'s Press, Cocanada, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Rao Sahib G. Narayanaswami Nayudu, B.A., Sudra, 50 years.	255
5	Agriculturist	Tamil ..	Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. R. Ranga Raju, Balija, 41 years.	1,000
6	A'in-i-Deccan	Urdu ..	A'ingi-Deccan Press, Begum Bazaar, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Maulvi Inayat Husain Khan Sahib, Afghan, 41 years.	750
7	Akshayanjali	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Sri Kantayya, Brahman, 35 years.	600
8	Al-Mamun	Urdu ..	Alavi Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Anwar-ud-din Sahib Bahadur, Muhammadan, 36 years.	400
9	Ananda*	Canarese	Victoria Printing Works, Bantwal, South Canara district.	Fortnightly.	M. N. Kamath, Brahman ..	Not known.
10	Ananda Bodhini ..	Tamil ..	P. R. Rama Ayyar & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Muniswami Mudaliyar, Vellala, 31 years.	1,000
11	Ananda Chandrika.†	Canarese	Gurevilas Printing Works, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	K. Sivarama Das	Not known.
12	Andhra Advocate ..	English.	Banai Printing Works, Vizagapatam.	Weekly ..	Nyayapati Ranganayakulu, Vysnava, 30 years.	450
13	Andhra Chandrika	Telugu.	Andhra Chandrika Press, Proddatur, Cuddapah district.	Do. ..	B. Narayanaswami, Brahman, 33 years.	600
14	Andhra Patrika ..	Anglo-Telugu.	Andhra Patrika Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and weekly.	K. Nageswara Rao, Brahman, 46 years, and G. Harinarayanama Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	2,000
15	Andhraprabhasini.	Telugu.	Hindu Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	A. C. Parthasarathi Nayudu, Balija, 60 years.	500
16	Andhra Sahitya Parishad Patrika.	Do.	Published at the Telugu Academy office, 12 Arunachalla Mayalian Road, Chintadripet, printed at Parthasarathi Varadachari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Sarvia Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	300
17	Andhra Samrakshini.	Do.	Kamala Printing Works Cocanada, Godavari district.	Do. ..	G. Harischandra Rao, Brahman, 32 years.	500
18	Anglo-Indian ..	English.	Published at the Anglo-Indian Association premises, Egmore, printed at Vasi & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	Felix Alexander D'Cruz, Anglo-Indian, 49 years.	500
19	Antiseptic	Do.	Published at No. 303, Thumbu Chetty Street, printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. Nayar, Nayar, 46 years	400
20	Arogyam	Telugu.	Saraswati Press, Cocanada ..	Do. ..	V. Gopala Krishna Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
21	Arunodayam	Tamil ..	Church of Sweden Mission Press, Tranquebar, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	Rev D. Sewell, European, 54 years.	700
22	Arya	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	Aurobindo Ghose, Kayastha, 45 years, Paul Richard, 49 years, and Madame Richard, French.	700
23	Arya Bala Samaj Magazine.	Do.	Krishnamma Vani Vilas Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	G. Virupakshayya, Brahman, 33 years.	100
24	Arya Dharmam ..	Tamil ..	Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	T. K. Balasubramanya Ayyar, Brahman, 48 years.	300
25	Arya Dharma Pracharam.	Canarese	Sri Lakshmi Vilas Press, Nanjanad, Mysore State.	Do. ..	N. Narasappaiya Venkappa, Brahman, 37 years.	400

* Started, 3rd April 1916. † Started, November 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
26	Arya Mahila	Canarese	Published at Nanjangud (Mysore) and printed at the Royal Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	M. Sitarama Jois, Brahman, 22 years.	250
27	Arya Vysya ..	Anglo-Telugu.	Arya Vysya Press, Guntur ..	Weekly ..	S. Ramaswami Gupta, Vysya, 32 years.	350
28	Asha	Uriya ..	Asha Press, Berhampur ..	Do. ..	S. B. Hotha, Brahman, 31 years.	1,000
29	Atma Poshini ..	Malayalam	Abaharanatma Prakasika Press, Kunnamkulam, Cochin State	Monthly ..	Rev. P. I. Joseph, Syrian Christian, 26 years.	700
30	Bala Dutan or Children's Herald.	Tamil ..	Published at Nazareth, printed at the Darling Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Joseph A. Jesudasan, Indian Christian, 48 years.	3,000
31	Bala Mitra or Children's Friend.	Telugu.	Christain Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, European, 33 years.	9,500
32	Balamitram	Malayalam.	Nicholas Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	G. E. Thadasan, Indian Christian, 30 years.	500
33	Baliyar Mittiran or Children's Friend.	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. R. Robertson, European ..	7,500
34	Baliyar Nesan or Children's Magazine.	Do. ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Rev. R. V. Asirvadam, Indian Christian, 45 years.	6,500
35	Bear, Plantation and Pulpit.	English.	Modern Press, Pondicherry ..	Do. ..	J. Dartnell, Eurasian, 39 years..	200
36	Basel Mission College Magazine.*	English and Malayalam occasionally.	Norman Printing Bureau, Calicut.	Eight times a year.	W. E. Hoare, Englishman, 52 years.	300
37	Bashabhimani † ..	Malayalam.	Raja Raja Varma Press, Puthenchandai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	P. K. Kumara Pillai, Nayar, 22 years.	500
38	Bhakti Soudesha ‡ ..	Canarese	Caxton Press, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Sri Dattatreya Krishna Bharadwaja	Not known.
39	Bhanu §	Anglo-Malayalam.	Vidya Vinodhini Press, Ernakulum, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. K. K. Srinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 26 years.	500
40	Bharata Kesari ‖	Do.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Puthenchanthai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Vela Pillai, Nayar, 33 years.	1,300
41	Bharatamata ..	Telugu.	Sri Vinayogindra Press, Vizianagram.	Weekly ..	Vorugunti Venkata Somayajulu, Brahman, 37 years.	400
42	Bharati ¶	Tamil ..	Published at 5, Colagappa Naistri Street, Chintadripet, and printed at the Vivekulathanana Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Do. ..	T. Krishnaswami Pavalar, Gramani, 27 years.	500
43	Bharati	Canarese	Vani Vilas Press, Bellary ..	Do. ..	K. M. Karibasavayya, Lingayat, 32 years.	300
44	Bhéruti Vilás	Do.	Bhuvaneswari Press, Mysore..	Monthly ..	A. Krishna Dikshit, Brahman, 30 years.	300
45	Bhuloka Vyasan ..	Tamil ..	Bhuloka Vyasan Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Muthuvira Navalar, Valluvan, 53 years.	230
46	Bible Faith Mission Standard.	English.	Hogarth Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Once in two months.	Charles R. Vedanta Achari, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
47	Bódhaka Bódhini ..	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 63 years.	725
48	Bodhini	Do.	Prabhakara Press, Udipi, South Canara District.	Do. ..	T. Mangesh Rao, 40 years, and M. N. Kamath, 38 years, Brahmans.	750
49	Brothers of the Star ..	English.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar, Chingleput district.	Do. ..	Dr. H. Roche, English, 49 years.	5,000
50	Carlylean	Do.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Fortnightly.	T. Sriramulu, B.A., Brahman, 40 years.	200
51	Catholic Friend. 	Do.	Published at the Luz Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. M. Mutha Vas, Singhalese Christian, 34 years.	..
52	Catholic Messenger ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Deepika Press, Kuravilangad, Travancore State.	Do. ..	K. A. Nidhiri, B.A., Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,200
53	Catholic Mitravanan or Catholic Friend. ¶	Telugu.	Published at the Luz Church, Teynampet, printed at the Progressive Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. M. Mutha Vas, Singhalese Christian, 34 years.	..
54	Catholic Nesan or Catholic Friend.	Tamil ..	Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	..
55	Catholic Register.	English.	Published at San Thomé, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. M. Teixeira, Portuguese, 36 years.	350

* Discontinued, April 1916. † Started, 8th September 1916. ‡ Started, August 1916. § Started, 21st May 1916, and discontinued in July 1916. ‖ Started, February 1916. ¶ Temporarily discontinued, April 1916.  Started, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
56	Catholic Watchman.	English.	Published at the Catholic Supply Society, Popham's Broadway, Georgetown, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father Kuss, European ..	400
57	Chakravarthi ..	Malayalam.	Chakravarthi Press, Muttancherry, Cochin State	Do. ..	K. Janadhana Menon, Sudra, 30 years.	350
58	Chakravartini ..	Tamil ..	Sachchidananda Press, Kamalesvaran sthb, Madras.	Monthly..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 52 years.	200
59	Childrens' Friend ..	Anglo-Tamil.	St. Mary's School Press, Cuddalore.	Do. ..	Amirdam Mudali alias Muruguan Mudali, Vellala, 28 years.	Not known.
60	Choudari *	Telugu.	Ramamohan Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	Garapati Anjaneya Choudari, Kamma, 30 years.	Do.
61	Christ Church, Madras, Monthly Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras	Do. ..	Rev. W. E. Heiser, M.A., European, 40 years.	250
62	Christian College Magazine.	Do.	Do. do.	Do. ..	S. J. Crawford, M.A., European	400
63	Christian Patriot.	Do.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	R. A. Dason, Indian Christian, 34 years.	600
64	Church Mission College Magazine.	Do.	Darling Printing Press, Tinnevelly.	Quarterly.	J. Jnanamuthu, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 50 years.	550
65	Cochin Argus ..	Do.	Cochin Argus Press, British Cochin.	Weekly ..	C. Hamilton Pereira, Anglo-Indian, 47 years.	300
66	Commercial World Advertiser. †	Anglo-Tamil—Telugu	Published at 41, Avadanam Papayya Street, Choolai, printed at the Presidency Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Chakrapani Pillai, Yadhuva, 38 years.	1,000
67	Commonweal ..	English.	Besant Press, New India Buildings, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	7,000
68	Conch ‡	Do.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore.	Do. ..	Raman Pillai, Nayar, 40 years..	400
69	Contemporary Law Review.	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 38 years.	600
70	Co-operative Bulletin ..	Canarese	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Do. ..	K. S. Krishna Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	500
71	Criminal Law Reporter.	English.	Law Notes Press, Parvatipur, Vizagapatam district.	Do. ..	P. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 54 years, good.	Not stated.
72	Criminal Law Review..	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 38 years.	600
73	Daily Post ..	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Daily (two editions).	T. M. Babington, European, 58 years.	3,000
74	Deccan Law Report ..	Urdu ..	Deccan Law Report Press, Troop Bazaar, Jam Bagh, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Akbar Khan Sahib, Muhammadan, 37 years.	1,000
75	Deenbhimani ..	Anglo-Tamil.	Patriot Press, Cuddalore New Town.	Weekly ..	P. T. Tiruvenkata Achari, Brahman, 31 years.	465
76	Do. ..	Telugu.	Deenbhimani Press, Guntur ..	Do. ..	D. Sitabchalapathi Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	300
77	Do. ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Sri Krishna Vilasam Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do. ..	T. K. Narayanan, Ezhava, 30 years.	1,000
78	Deenmata	Telugu.	Manorama Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	Rayavarapu Ramamurti, Brahman, 44 years.	700
79	Deenoppa Missionary Prabhatike.	Do.	Sujanaranjani Press, Coconada.	Once in two months.	Rev. N. Abraham, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,000
80	Deenoya Missionary Patrike.	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Do.	H. Sumitra, Indian Christian ..	500
81	Dhanurdhari ..	Do.	Sachchidanandha Press, Davangere, Mysore State.	Fortnightly.	M. Manjappa Hardikar, Lingayat, 31 years.	400
82	Dhanvantari	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	P. Sankunni Varriar, Variyan, 46 years.	305
83	Dharma Poshini.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Manomohanam Press, Quilon, Travancore State.	Bi-monthly.	R. Madhavan Gunithan, Nayar, 38 years.	250
84	Dharma Prachara ..	English.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	A Mahadeva Sastri, Brahman, 44 years.	300
85	Dharmaprakasini. †	Telugu.	Sita Vilasa Press, Tenali, Guntur district.	Fortnightly.	B. J. Suryaprakasam, Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	250
86	Dharmasodhini ..	Do	Scope & Co.'s Press, Coconada.	Do.	P. Narasimham, Brahman, 29 years.	500
87	Digest of Indian Case Law.	English.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. B. Duraiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 38 years.	1,500
88	Disciple	Do.	Vasantha Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Quarterly.	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 68 years.	2,000
89	Divyavaanee Pinthe or Organ of Theosophy.	Telugu.	Victoria Jubilee Press, Chittoor.	Monthly ..	P. Narasimhayya, 50 years, and J. Srinivasa Rao, 24 years, Brahmans.	1,200

* Started, June 1916.

† Not published for the last two years.

‡ Started, 16th August 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
90	Dravidabhimani ..	Tamil ..	Dravidabhimani Press, Salem.	Weekly ..	D. A. John Nadar, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,000
91	Educational Review.	English.	Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	C. Srinivasa Achari, Brahman, 61 years	600
92	Elementary School Journal.	Telugu.	Chintamani Press, Rajahmundry.	Do. ..	V. Narasimhamyudu, Brahman, 42 years.	1,500
93	Eththalacotiyam or Present Truth.*	Malayalam.	Published at the South Indian Mission of Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk, and printed at the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. S. James, European, 37 years.	Not known.
94	Everyman's Review,†	English.	Kanara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Suryanarayanamurti, Brahman, 50 years.	100
95	Findlay College Magazine.	Do.	Published at Mannargudi, Tanjore district, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore City.	Quarterly.	S. Narayana Ayyangar, M.A., and Kadaji Rao, B.A., Brahmans.	400
96	Friendly Instructor ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	Rev. D. Pakkianathan, Indian Christian, 63 years.	1,000
97	George Gazette ..	Urdu ..	Muhammadi Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	M. Abdul Hasith, Muhammadan, 30 years.	600
98	Gopala Krishnan ..	Malayalam.	M. V. Press, Palghat	Monthly ..	P. Chippa Kutty Nayar, Nayar, 28 years.	400
99	Gospel Witness ..	English.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Do. ..	Rev. Victor McCauley, American, 41 years.	350
100	Grihalakshmi	Telugu.	Manjugani Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Do. ..	N. Cholapati Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
101	Harvest Field	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 62 years.	645
102	Hindu . ..	Do.	National Press, Wallajah Road, Madras.	Daily, triweekly & weekly.	S. Kasturiranga Ayyangar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 51 years.	6,100
103	Hindu Nesan ..	Tamil ..	South Indian Press, 13, Namasingapuram Street, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	S. Srinivasa Venkata Achari, Brahman	1,500
104	Hindu Sundari ..	Telugu.	Vidyavatini Samaj Press, Cocanada.	Monthly ..	S. Seshamma, 37 years, and M. Chaddamma, 32 years, Brahmans.	500
105	Hitabarini	Tamil ..	Published at 14, Kennedy street, Mylapore, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	Vimalambi Ammal, Brahman, 36 years.	1,000
106	Do.	Telugu.	Hitabarini Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	M. L. Narasimha Sarma, Brahman, 33 years.	400
107	Hitavadi	Do.	Church Missionary Society, Dove Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly ..	Rev. D. Anantam, B.A., Indian Christian, 65 years.	550
108	Humanity	English.	India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Punnayya, Brahman, 29 years.	600
109	Illustrated Criminal Investigation and Law Record.	Do.	Criminal Investigation Press, Vellore, North Arcot district.	Do.	T. K. Sundara Ayyar, Brahman, 44 years.	1,400
110	Indian Advertiser.	French, English and Tamil.	Jagannatha Press, Pondicherry.	Monthly ..	N. Rajalu Reddi, Reddi, 67 years.	100
111	Indian Christian.	English.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	W. C. Irvine, European, 41 years.	1,100
112	Indian Christian Endeavour.	Do.	Published in Bangalore, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Rev. H. Halliwell, European, 44 years.	800
113	Indian Church News and Review. ‡	Do.	Hogarth Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	D. David, Indian Christian, 43 years.	300
114	Indian Emigrant ..	Do.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. K. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 34 years.	300
115	Indian Engineer.	Do.	Published at 3 and 5, Raja's Buildings, Armenian Street, and printed at the Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	T. N. Venkatesa Ayyar, Brahman, 30 years.	1,000
116	Indian Interpreter ..	Do.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. W. Meyrick, M.A., 67 years, and Rev. A. Robertson, B.A., 44 years, Europeans.	600
117	Indian Ladies' Magazine.	Do.	Published at "Hilsey", San Thomé, Mylapore, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	Mrs. E. Satthianadhan, Indian Christian, 44 years.	300
118	Indian Law Gazette.	Tamil ..	Indian Law Gazette Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly ..	C. Punnaiya Mudali, Vellala, 46 years.	150

* Started, July 1916. † Started, January 1916. ‡ Discontinued, January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
119	Indian Law Quarterly ..	English.	Published at 14 and 15, Lee Church Road, Mylapore, printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Quarterly.	P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	500
120	Indian Patriot ..	Do.	Indian Patriot Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and tri-weekly.	Diwan Bahadur C. Karunakara Menon, B.A., Nayar, 56 years.	900
121	Indian Railway Journal.	Do.	Published at Triplicane, printed by Pavar & Co.'s Press, Patter's Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	S. K. Subba Rao, Brahman, 47 years.	150
122	Indian Review ..	Do.	G. A. Natesan & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Natesa Ayyar, B.A., F.R.S., Brahman, 47 years.	3,000
123	International Police Service Magazine.	Do.	Ambika Press, Park Town, Madras.	Do. ..	G. Kodandaramayya, M.A., Brahman, 56 years.	500
124	Janabhimani or People's Friend.	Tamil ..	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 48 years.	750
125	Janamukulam ..	Do. ..	Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore.	Weekly ..	T. V. Krishna Das, Vellala, 47 years.	1,000
126	Janmi	Malayalam.	Lakshmi Sahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Monthly ..	K. C. Manavikraman Tamburan, Samantan, 47 years.	330
127	Janopakari* ..	Tamil ..	Record Press, Vellore ..	Do. ..	V. R. Vaidyananda Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	..
128	Jnana Bhanu ..	Do. ..	Published at 8, Pichu Pillai, Street, Mylapore; printed at the Sachchidananda Press, Komaleswarapet, Madras.	Do. ..	Subrahmanya Siva, Brahman, 36 years.	350
129	Jaridah-i-Rozgar ..	Urdu ..	Hyderi Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Daily and weekly.	Muhammad Abdul Latif Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 37 years.	300
130	Journal of the Madras Agricultural Students' Union.	English.	Published at the Agricultural College, Coimbatore, printed at the Literary Sun Press, Coimbatore.	Monthly ..	D. Ananda Rao, Indian Christian, 34 years.	350
131	Journal of the Muhammadan Educational Association of Southern India.	Urdu ..	Published at 5, Francis Joseph Street, Georgetown, printed at the Islamia Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Abdul Hamid Husan, B.A., LL.B., Muhammadan, 44 years.	500
132	Journal of the Tamil Scientific Terms Society.‡	Anglo-Tamil.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	C. Rajagopala Achari and R. G. Venkatesubba Ayyar, Brahmans.	100
133	Kadambari Sangraha ..	Canarese	Royal Press, Mysore ..	Do. ..	Venkataramana Sastri, Brahman, 28 years.	400
134	Kairali†	Malayalam.	Published at Ernakulam, printed at the Vidya Vinodhini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Sankara Menon, M.A., B.L., Nayar, 33 years.	600
135	Kalabhimani‡ ..	Canarese	Caxton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Raghupati Achari, Brahman, 46 years.	1,000
136	Kala Chintamani ..	Tamil ..	Published at 4, Maliswaran Koil Street, Mylapore; printed at the Sivabhimani Vilasam Press, Choolai, Madras.	Do. ..	T. V. Kalyana Sundara Mudali, Vellala, 35 years, good.	1,000
137	Kalai Magal ..	Do. ..	Imprimerie Louis Simaya de Saigon, Pondicherry.	Do. ..	S. Bangaru Pathar, Kammalan, 42 years.	400
138	Kaliyuga Varthamani.	Do. ..	Kaviprakasa Ganesha Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly...	T. Muthuswami Chetti Vaiya, 38 years.	100
139	Kalpaka	English.	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	T. N. Sanjivi Rao, Brahman, 35 years.	750
140	Kannada Kogile§ ..	Canarese	M. T. A. Sharada Press, Mangalore.	Do. ..	P. Bhoja Rao and M. Thimmappaya.	Not known.
141	Karnataka	English.	Irish Press, Bangalore City ..	Bi-weekly.	D. V. Gundappa, Brahman, 29 years.	350
142	Karnataka Chandrika ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	N. Srikanta Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	600
143	Karnataka Granthamala.	Do.	Graduates Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	B. Subba Rao, B.A., Brahman, 46 years.	300
144	Karnataka Kavya Kalanidhi.	Do.	Nrisimha Press, Mysore ..	Do. ..	M. A. Ramanuja Ayyangar, Brahman, 51 years.	350
145	Karnataka Nandini¶ ..	Do.	Published at the Sati Hitaishini office, Nanjangud, Mysore State; printed at the Sri Krishna Press, Hubli, Bombay Presidency.	Do. ..	N. Tirumalamma	Not known.
146	Karnataka Sahitya Parishad Patrike.‖	Do.	Published by the Kannada Academy, and printed at the Irish Press, Bangalore City, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	B. Raghunatha Rao, Brahman ..	Do.

* Started, January 1916.
† Started, February 1916.
‡ Ceased to exist January 1916.
§ Started, April 1916.
‖ Started in 1916.
¶ Started, October 1916.

No. (1)	Name of publication. (2)	Language of publication. (3)	Where published. (4)	Edition. (5)	Name, caste and age of editor. (6)	Circulation. (7)
147	Kotha Batmarasam.	Tamil .	Published at 162, Coral Merchant Street; printed at the Swadesamitiran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	M. A. Nallappa Mudaliyar, Vellala, 30 years good.	400
148	Kavita	Telugu.	Vidwajjana Manoranjini Press, Pithapuram, Godaveri district.	Do. ..	V. Venkatarama Sastri, 30 years, and V. Ramakrishna Sastri, 27 years, Brahmans.	250
149	Kerala Deepika ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Coronation Memorial Syrian Press, Muvattupuzha, Travancore State.	Fortnightly.	Rev. P. C. John, Indian Christian, 27 years.	300
150	Keralabasari ..	Malayalam.	Perunanam, Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Monthly ..	W. Ikkanda Puthuval, Ambalavasi, 25 years, good.	350
151	Keralam *	Malayalam, English, Sanskrit and Tamil.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Puthenchandai, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	R. Mahadeva Sarma, Brahman, 28 years.	500
152	Kerala Patrika ..	Malayalam.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Weekly ..	C. Kunhiraman Menon, B.A., Nayar, 57 years.	1,250
153	Kerala Sanchari ..	Do.	Vidya Vilasam Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. P. Govindan Nayar, Nayar, 53 years.	1,150
154	Kerala Vyasan † ..	Do.	Published at Lokamaleswaram, Cranganore, printed at the S. P. Press, Paravur, Cochin State.	Monthly.	N. Padmanabha Menon, Nayar, 28 years.	1,000
155	Keralasogabhimani.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Keralasogabhimani Press, Mavelikara, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	Jacob Kurien, Indian Christian, 30 years.	750
156	Keralodayam ..	Malayalam.	Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	K. Narayana Menon, 57 years, and V. Narayana Menon, 41 years, Nayars.	925
157	Kistnapatrika ..	Telugu.	Kistna Swadeshi Press, Masulipatam.	Do. ..	Mutnuri Krishna Rao, Brahman, 36 years.	2,000
158	Kolar Gold Fields News.	English.	Kolar Gold Fields News Press, Bowringpet, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Cornelius, Anglo-Indian, 64 years.	300
159	Konkani Dirvem ..	Konkani in Canarese character.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Fortnightly.	A. J. Mascarenhas, Indian Christian, 26 years.	600
160	La Gerbe du Maduré ..	French.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	Rev. G. J. Gross, S.J., German, 45 years.	250
161	Lakshmi Bhai .. .	Malayalam.	Vidyavinodini Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	V. Narayana Menon, Nayar, 39 years.	1,500
162	Lakshmi Vilasam .	Do.	Lakshmi Mahayam Press, Kottakkal Desam, Malabar district.	Do. ..	K. C. Manavikraman Tampuran, Samantan, 47 years.	350
163	Law Weekly	English.	Published at Vanasu Vilas, Mylapore, printed at Messrs. Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	V. C. Sesha Acharya, Brahman, 53 years.	450
164	Light of Music	Tamil ..	Sri Gana Vidya Press, Pavanasam, Tinnevelly district.	Monthly ..	V. Srinivasa Ayyangar, Brahman, 36 years.	500
165	Literary Journal. ‡	English.	Published at the Young Men's Literary Association, Triplicane; printed at the Modern Printing Works, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	K. S. Venkataraman, Brahman, 24 years.	250
166	Ziya-ul-Islam § ..	Tamil ..	Muhammadia Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	Moulvi Haji Sheikh Mirza Muhiud-din, Muhammadan, 30 years.	750
167	Local Self-government Gazette.	English.	Published at No. 7, Bentinck Garden Street, Georgetown; printed by Higginbotham, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. C. Desika Acharya, 46 years, and P. Varadaswami Ayyangar, 44 years, Brahmans.	800
168	Lokamitran ‖ ..	Tamil ..	Union Press, Namakkal, Trichinopoly district.	Do. ..	V. Govindaraja Ayyangar, Brahman, 36 years.	207
169	Lokopakaram ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Lokopakaram Printing Department, Jnanaprakasi Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	T. N. Vaidyanatha Ayyar, Brahman, 33 years.	1,000
170	Lokasangini ¶ ..	Tamil ..	Saraswathi Vilas Press, Mayavaram, Tanjore district.	Do. ..	P. Sundaresa Ayyar, Brahman, 36 years.	500
171	Lokopakari	Do. ..	Sivachidambaram Press, Kumbakonam, Madras.	Do. ..	K. Vadivelu Chetti, Vania, 42 years.	1,100
172	Lutheran Sunday Lesson Book for children.	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Monthly ..	Mrs. H. C. Cannaday, B.A., European.	350

* Started, January 1916.
† Started, March 1916.
‡ Discontinued, May 1916.
§ Discontinued, 12th January 1916.
‖ Ceased to exist in June 1916.
¶ Ceased to exist, 20th January 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
173	Madar Bodhini	Tamil ..	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly ..	Miss Inglis, M.A., European ..	700
174	Madras Manonmani or Tamil and School Lessons Magazine.	Do. ..	Published at 12, Thambuchetty Mudali Street, Triplicane; printed at Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	C. S. Ramaswami Ayyar, Brahman, 40 years.	450
175	Madras Mitri or Tamil Woman's Friend.	Do. ..	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss Grace Stephens, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	700
176	Madhuravani ..	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	K. Hanuman Dass alias Hanuman, Brahman, 34 years.	250
177	Madhva Siddhanta Prabasini.‡	Do.	Published at the Madhva Siddhanta Prabasini Sabha, Mysore, and printed at the Jayalaya Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Y. Srinivasa Rao and H. Narasinga Rao, Brahmans.	Not known.
178	Madras Bulletin of Co-operation.	English, Tamil and Telugu. (separate editions).	Published by the Madras Provincial Co-operative Union, Limited, Triplicane, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Quarterly.	V. Venkata Subbayya, Brahman, 36 years.	2,000
179	Madras Church Missionary Gleaner.	English.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. Canon E. Sell, D.D. F.R.G., European, 66 years.	300
180	Madras Economic Journal.*	Do	Published at the Lady Wenlock Park, Chepauk, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Annually.	S. Krishnaswami Ayyangar, M.A., Brahman.	..
181	Madras Law Journal ..	Do.	Published at Brodie's Road, Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. Varada Achari, Brahman, 41 years.	1,750
182	Madras Law Times ..	Do.	Published at the Law Times office, Georgetown; printed at P. R. Rama Ayyar & Co.'s Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	(1) T. Prakasam, Brahman, 43 years; (2) M. Devadoss, Indian Christian, 45 years; and (3) C. Madhavan Nayar, Nayar, 36 years.	800
183	Madras Mail ..	Do.	Madras Mail Press, No. 6, North Beach Road, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily, triweekly and weekly.	T. E. Welby, European, 34 years.	5,413
184	Madras Times ..	Do.	Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	Glyn Barlow, M.A., European, 55 years.	3,200
185	Madras Weekly Notes ..	Do.	Published at Royapetta High Road; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. R. K. Tata Acharya, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 38 years.	2,000
186	Madras Young Men.	Do.	Published at the Y.M.C.A., Esplanade Road, Georgetown; printed at Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Fortnightly.	H. C. Herman, American, 34 years.	1,000
187	Magazine for Students, Teachers and Children	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Quarterly.	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	300
188	Maharaja's College Magazine.	English.	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Do.	T. Denham, M.A., European, 59 years.	900
189	Malai Vilasa Nesan.	Tamil ..	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Weekly ..	B. A. A. Rajendram Pillai, Indian Christian, 53 years.	1,050
190	Mahilamitri	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	Mrs. Thorpe, European ..	350
191	Malabar Herald ..	English.	Union Press, British Cochin.	Weekly ..	E. W. Nigli, Anglo-Indian, 60 years.	750
192	Malabar Islam ..	Anglo-Malayalam.	Bharata Mitram Press, Muttancheri, Cochin State.	Do. ..	C. V. Abdur Rahman Haidros, Muhammadan, 37 years.	1,000
193	Malabar Quarterly Review (formerly the Monthly Review.)	English.	Sundara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Quarterly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 43 years.	500
194	Malayala Manorama.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Malayala Manorama Press, Kottayam, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. M. Mathuh Mappillai, M.R.A.S., Syrian Christian, 43 years.	4,500
195	Malayali	Do.	Manamohan Press, Quilon, Travancore.	Do.	K. Kalpa Pillai, B.A., Nayar, 32 years.	1,550
196	Manavasava† ..	Telugu.	Kalavati Press, Rajahmundry.	Monthly ..	N. Krishna Rao, Vysya, 34 years.	400
197	Mangalodayam	Malayalam.	Kerala Kalpadruma Press, Trichur, Cochin State.	Do. ..	T. K. Krishna Menon, 46 years and K. Sankara Menon, 39 years, Nayars.	650
198	Mangalore Advertiser.	English.	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Do ..	A. A. Pereira alias Robson, Anglo-Indian, 37 years.	300

* Started, April 1916. † Not published since 7th September 1914. ‡ Started, October 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
199	Mangalore Magazine ..	English.	Kodialbail Press, Mangalore ..	Annually.	E. Coelho, Indian Christian, 42 years.	600
200	Manju Bhashini ..	Sanskrit.	Sri Sudarsana Press, Little Conjeeveram, Chingleput district.	Weekly ..	C. P. A. Ranga Acharya, Brahman, 44 years.	300
201	Manorama	Malayalam.	Kannanpanammba, Chalayam, printed at the Nishcha Printing Works, Calicut.	Bi-weekly.	P. Krishnan Nayar, Nayar, 26 years.	1,500
202	Maraj-i-Khiyal ..	Urdu ..	Published at No. 78, Thayar Sahib Street, printed at Nasrabib Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ghaus Sahib, Muhammadan, 63 years.	150
203	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Tamil ..	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Do. ..	Brother Joseph, Indian Christian, 61 years	3,500
204	Messenger of the Sacred Heart.	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Brother Leo, European, 44 years.	600
205	Missionary Intelligencer	Tamil ..	Darling Press, Palamcottah ..	Do. ..	J. A. Ambudayam, Indian Christian, 47 years.	2,100
206	Mission News ..	Telugu.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. Aberly, D.D., American. 51 years.	600
207	Mission News for Women.	Do.	Do. do.	Monthly ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 36 years.	300
208	Mitavadi	Anglo-Malayalam.	Mitavadi Printing Works, Calicut.	Do. ..	C. Krishnan, B.A., B.L., Tiyya, 44 years.	1,000
209	Monthly Letter ..	Tamil ..	Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	Miss G. M. Walford, B.A., European, 46 years.	330
210	Morning Star	English.	St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Six times a year.	Rev. Father L. Lacombe, S.J., Frenchman, 50 years.	1,200
211	Muhammadin Prasangam Monthly (formerly the Islamia Prasangam News) *	Tamil ..	Riyayath-ul-Islam Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	S. M. Mustafa Labbai, Muhammadan, 29 years.	300
212	Muhibbir-i-Deccan.	Urdu ..	Sultani Press, Royapetta, Madras.	Do. ..	Saiyid Muhammad Abdul Qadir Sahib, Muhammadan, Sunni, 47 years.	800
213	Munshir-i-Deccan.	Do. ..	Deccan Punch Press, Mahbubgunj (Govilguda), Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Krishna Rao, Brahman, 48 years.	1,100
214	Muslim Dutan ..	Tamil ..	Shah-ul-Hamidiya Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. A. Shah-ul-Hamid, Muhammadan, 43 years.	900
215	My Mother †	English.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, printed at the St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Once in two months.	R. P. Kulandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 30 years.	Not known.
216	Mysore Patriot ..	Do.	Krishnaraja Vanivilas Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	250
217	Mysore Star ..	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	Y. Virupakshayya, Lingayat, 42 years.	3,000
218	Nagai Neelalochani	Tamil ..	Neelalochani Press, Negapatam.	Do. ..	G. Sadasivam Pillai, Kalla, 55 years.	250
219	Nalla Ayan or Good Pastor.	Do. ..	Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. R. John, Indian Christian, 46 years.	1,700
220	Nallasiriyan or Trained Teacher.	Do. ..	Canton Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. R. Ramanivayam Mudaliyar, Vellala, 40 years.	900
221	Nayar Samudaya Parishkari.‡	Malayalam.	Published at Tellicherry, printed at the Spectator Press, Calicut.	Do. ..	K. C. Narayan Nambiyar, Nayar, 41 years.	800
222	National Missionary Intelligencer.	English.	T. A. C. Press, Salem ..	Do. ..	Mrs. S. C. Heasman, B.A., Indian Christian.	2,400
223	Nattuchottai Vaishyan.	Tamil ..	Pentland Press, Palamcottah.	Do. ..	P. S. Andiappa Pillai, Vellala, 37 years.	1,500
224	Nazrani Deepika.	Anglo-Malayalam.	St. Joseph's Press, Mannanam, Ettumanur, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. Govinda Pillai, Sudra, 30 years.	1,500
225	New India ..	English.	New India Power Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 69 years.	6,000
226	Newington School Magazine.	Do.	Published at "Newington," Tuticorin; printed by Higginbotham's, Limited, Mount Road, Madras.	Half-yearly.	D. L. Blunt, European, 23 years.	50
227	New Reformer ..	Do.	Published at Georgetown; printed by Vest & Co., Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	D. Gopal Chetti, Sonai Thuluvar, 45 years.	500
228	Nirupakkalagattuvam or The Prudent Truth.	Tamil ..	Published at the South Indian Mission of the Seventh Day Adventists, Kilpauk; printed at the Athisian Press, Vepery, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. J. G. James, European, 37 years.	5,000
229	Noble College Leader ..	English.	Church Missionary Society Home Press, Masulipatam.	Do.	T. V. Narasayya, 24 years, and V. K. Viraswami Rao, Brahmans.	300

* Temporarily discontinued, 26th September 1916. † Started June 1916. ‡ Printer declared on 6th May 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
330	Wan-Brahman [formerly the Advertiser's (Free) Manual].	English.	Published at the General Advertising Co. and printed at the Mercury Press, George town, Madras.	Weekly ..	C. Sarangapani Mudaliyar, Vellala, 31 years.	2,000
331	Noor*	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Fortnightly.	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	Not known.
332	Northwich Observer ..	English.	Published at the United Free Church of Scotland Mission Girls' Boarding School, Royapuram; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Quarterly	Miss J. H. Ross, M.A., B.Sc., European, 31 years.	400
333	Our Little Paper †	Do.	Published at St. Joseph's High School, Trivandrum, Travancore; printed at St. Joseph's Industrial School Press, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	R. P. Kulandaiswami Pillai, Indian Christian, 39 years.	650
334	Outlook †	Do.	Published at the Y.W.C.A., Coonoor, printed at the Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Ootacamund.	Quarterly.	Miss E. A. Waugh, British, 34 years.	Not known.
335	Pandia Nesan ..	Tamil ..	Krishna Vilasam Press, Madura.	Weekly ..	P. George, Indian Christian, 43 years.	400
336	Penkalvi or Female Education.	Do. ..	Published at 27, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the India Printing Works, Madras.	Monthly ..	Revee Tayarammal, Brahman, 28 years.	1,000
337	People's Opinion (formerly the People's Weekly).	English.	Nandanam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Bi-weekly.	K. N. Sivarajan Pillai, B.A., Vellala, 43 years.	500
338	Pfleiderer's Chronicle.	Do.	Daily Post Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Weekly ..	Fletcher Norton, European, 53 years.	1,000
339	Popular Magazine ..	Tamil ..	Gnanothia Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	Paul C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 40 years.	500
340	Popular Scientific Journal.	English.	Mercury Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Henry Duvedau, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 28 years.	300
341	Prabandhakalpavalli. ‡	Telugu.	Bharati Vilas Press, Narasaraopet, Guntur district.	Do. ..	G. Gopalakrishnayya, Brahman, 50 years.	150
342	Prabodhini ..	Do.	Prabodhini Press, Duggirala, Guntur district.	Do. ..	V. Niranjana Sastri, Kammala, 40 years.	300
343	Prajamitran ..	Tamil ..	Published at Srirangam; printed at the Vaijayanti Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	S. G. Ramanujulu Nayudu, Balija, 29 years.	300
344	Prapanja Mitran §	Do. ..	Sachchidanandu Press, Kamalapuram, Madras.	Weekly ..	M. Shanmuga Mudaliyar, Vellala.	Not known.
345	Prarambha Vidya.	Telugu.	Rama Press, Ellore, Kistna district.	Monthly ..	K. Venkata Rao, Brahman, 24 years, and V. Jayanna Sastri, M.A., L.T., Brahman, 26 years.	600
346	Prayer Circular ..	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. H. J. Ward, European, 73 years.	1,000
347	Presentation Annual ..	English.	Published at the Presentation Convent, Georgetown; printed at Raithy & Co.'s Liberty Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Annually.	Rev. Mother Berkmans Murphy, European, 39 years.	300
348	Progress	Do.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. C. Clayton, European.	1,000
349	Promptuarium	Latin ..	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Do. ..	Rev. Father Ligory, European, 40 years.	1,000
350	Puna Chandrodayam.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	A. Ranganayaki Ayyar, Brahman, 43 years.	1,000
351	Qasim-ul-Akhbar ..	Urdu, Tamil and English.	Chamraj Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore	Bi-weekly.	M. Abdul Hameed Sharif Sahib, Muhammadan, 38 years.	787
352	Qaumi Report ..	Urdu ..	Qaumi Press, Pycroft Road, Triplicane, Madras.	Daily ..	M. A. Majid Sharar, Muhammadan, 41 years.	750
353	Ravi	Telugu.	Anjaneyanjani Press, Cocanada.	Weekly ..	Rev. M. E. Smith, European, 43 years.	1,250
354	Rayabhari	Do.	Vadrevupalle, Godavari district; printed at the Evans Industrial Printery, Rajahmundry.	Quarterly.	Rev. E. C. Adams, European, 40 years.	250
355	Roberts' Billiard Notes.	English.	Published by John W. Roberts & Co., 15, Patter's Road, Madras, printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Do.	John W. Roberts, European, 43 years.	1,000

* Printer declared on 16th May 1916.
‡ Not published for the last two years.

† An old paper not previously reported.
§ Started, 23rd June 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
266	Risala-i-Albadi ..	Urdu ..	Published at Darisha Bhowra; printed at Ansaria Press, Kamratta, Hyderabad.	Monthly ..	Ghulam Husain, Muhammadan, 38 years.	800
267	Risala-i-Hifzat-e-Parwarish-i-Janwaran.	Urdu and Mahrati.	Deccan Punch Press, Mahbubpura (Govligunda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	R. Ramachandra Joshi, Brahman, 41 years.	125
268	Risala-i-Ifada	Urdu ..	Akhbar-i-Deccan Press, Mahbubpura (Govligunda), Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Mirza Nizam Shah Sahib, Muhammadan, 30 years.	800
269	Risala-i-Mulgundri ..	Do. ..	Mahbub-ul-Nazir Press, outside the gate of Dabirpura near Alawa-i-Bibi, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Muhammad Wali-ur-rahman, Muhammadan, 33 years.	1,250
270	Risala-i-Rahbar-i-Musalmin.	Do. ..	Sahifa Press, Gun Foundry, Hyderabad, Deccan.	Do.	John Kenny, European, 54 years.	750
271	Risala-i-Taj	Do. ..	Musfd-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Abdul Wafa Ghulam Muhammad Sahib, Ansari Wafa, Muhammadan, 28 years.	1,000
272	Risala-i-Tarah-i-Usmanin.	Do. ..	Palace of Maharaja Sir Kishen Pershad Bahadur, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Sadiq Husain Sahib, Muhammadan, 54 years.	150
273	Risala-i-Zahhira ..	Do. ..	Musfd-i-Deccan Press, Kalikaman, Hyderabad.	Do. ..	Saiyed Nasur-ul-Husain, Muhammadan, 30 years.	800
274	Sadguru	Tamil ..	Published at 87, Ramaswami Street, Mannadi, printed at the Kalaratnakara Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	C. Somasundaram Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	800
275	Sadhvi	Canarese	Krishnaraja Vani Vilasa Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	M. S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	1,200
276	Sahaya	Telugu.	Braun Industrial Mission Press, Rajahmundry.	Monthly ..	Patagam Paradesi, Indian Christian, 40 years.	300
277	Sahifa	Urdu ..	Sahifa Press, Sultanpura, Hyderabad.	Daily ..	Muhammad Akbar Ali, Muhammadan, 32 years.	1,500
278	Sahridayi or the Sanskrit Journal.	Sanskrit.	Published at No. 65, Vellala Street, Purasawakam, Madras; printed at Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly district.	Monthly ..	S. Krishnasva Acharya, M.A., Brahman, 47 years.	500
279	Saiph-ul-Islam ..	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Vellore ..	Weekly ..	S. S. Maulvi Ahmad Saiyid Sahib, Muhammadan, 41 years.	500
280	Saivam	Do. ..	Published at the Chennai Sivanadiar Thiruhoctam, Georgetown; printed at the Saiva Vidyanupalana Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	I. Adimula Mudaliyar, Vellala, 53 years.	750
281	Sampad Abhyudaya or Wealth of Mysore.	Anglo-Canarese.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Daily ..	M.S. Lakshmana Rao, Brahman, 40 years.	500
282	Samudaya Deepika ..	Malayalam.	Edward Press, Cannanore ..	Monthly ..	K. Kuttiappa Nambiyar, Nayar, 43 years.	500
283	Samudaya Parishkarini.	Do.	The Travancore Printing and Publishing Company, Limited, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	A. P. Nayar, Nayar, 32 years ..	1,000
284	Sanatana Dharmam ..	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do. ..	M. S. Rama Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	500
285	Sangita Prakasika ..	Tamil and Telugu.	Published at 13, Manibanda Mudali Street, Georgetown; printed at the Chandra Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	M. Audikesavulu Nayudu, Balija, 30 years.	500
286	Sangita Sampradaya Deepikai.	Do.	Sarathi Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	S. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 30 years.	250
287	Sarva Vyapi ..	Tamil ..	Mission Press, Pondicherry ..	Weekly ..	Catholic priests	450
288	Sastrabha	Telugu.	Nasilekha Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	G. Sesha Acharlu, Brahman, 37 years.	600
289	Satyabadi	Uriya ..	The Asha Press, Berhampur, Ganjam district	Monthly ..	Gopalandu Das, Brahman,	500
290	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Telugu.	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. D. Anantam, Indian Christian, 64 years.	4,000
291	Satya Dutan or Messenger of Truth.	Tamil ..	S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. Lazarus, B.A., B.D., Indian Christian, 66 years.	2,300
292	Satyavandam ..	Malayalam.	Industrial School Press, Ernakulam, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Rev. Father F. M. Hilaverath, Indian Christian, 39 years.	1,000
293	Satya Vahini	Canarese	Published at Hiddegere, Chamarajanagar Taluk, printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	R. H. Perkins, European ..	600
294	Savinudi	Do.	Sharada Vilasa Press, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	B. Sampangi Ramayya, Brahman, 61 years.	1,000

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
285	School Days and Holidays.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	F. H. Oakley. European, 36 years.	600
286	Scientific Manuring ..	Anglo-Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Published by Parry & Co., printed by the Ananda Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. Bernard, European, 42 years.	1,000
287	Self-culture	English and Tamil (separate editions).	Excelsior Press, Kishanattam, Tinnevelly district.	Do. ..	K. T. Ramaswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 33 years.	700
288	Sentamil	Tamil ..	The Tamil Sangam Power Press, Madura.	Do. ..	Tirunarayana Ayyangar, Brahman, 50 years.	600
289	Sentamil Selvi ..	Do. ..	Published and printed at the Scottish Branch Press, Nagapatam.	Weekly ..	K. Arunachala Tevan, Agamudaiyan, 46 years.	500
290	Shimoga Vrittanta	Canarese	Shimoga Union Printing Press, Shimoga, Mysore State.	Do. ..	A. Anantayya, Brahman, 40 years.	700
291	Siddhantam	Tamil ..	M. L. V. Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. P. Kalyanasundara Mudaliyar, Vellala, 61 years.	1,000
292	Sirsuba Jungle Pioneer.	English.	A.E.L.M. Press, Guntur ..	Quarterly.	Miss N. E. Tailer, European ..	250
293	Sivayogi Vilasam ..	Malayalam.	Spectator Press, Calicut ..	Monthly ..	Vaghedanandam V. K. Gurukkal, Tiyya, 37 years.	1,000
294	Social Reform Advocate.	English.	Published at 264, Thumbu Chetti Street, Georgetown, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Madras	Weekly ..	O. Kandaswami Chetti, Chetti, 48 years.	1,000
295	South Indian Mail.	Do.	Victoria Press, Madura ..	Do. ..	R. Nundanam Ayyar, Brahman, 31 years.	600
296	South Indian Trade Journal.	Do.	Published at the South Indian Chamber of Commerce, Georgetown; printed at the Madras Times Press, Mount Road.	Monthly ..	P. N. Muthuswami Nayudu, Balija, 50 years.	1,000
297	South of India Observer.	Do.	Ootacamund and Nilgiri Press, Cranley Chambers, Ootacamund.	Weekly ..	J. A. Davies, European, 42 years.	600
298	Sowrashtrabhivirdhini.*	Tamil ..	Shanmugha Vilasam Press, Salem.	Monthly ..	V. K. Nannayya, Sowrashtra, 26 years.	150
299	S.P.G. College Magazine.	English.	Dodson Press, Trichinopoly.	Quarterly.	T. R. Rhambara Ayyar, Indian Christian, 37 years.	300
300	S.P.G. High School Magazine.	Do.	Published at Trichinopoly, printed by the S.P.C.K. Press, Vepery, Madras.	Do.	S. K. Daivasikamani, Indian Christian, 43 years.	600
301	Sri Krishna †	Canarese	Kshetra Sagara Press, Balepet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	B. C. S. Rajagopala Sarma ..	Not known.
302	Sri Krishna Raja Vijetana Vaibhava.	Canarese and Sanskrit.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Do. ..	Pandit D. Ganda Sastri, Brahman, 47 years.	400
303	Sri Krishna Sookti.	Canarese	Sadananda Press, Udipi, South Canara district.	Do. ..	K. Subba Rao, 52 years, and N. Rajagopala Krishna Rao, 32 years, Brahmans.	1,000
304	Sri Narasimha Prayoga Parijata Prabaranam.	Sanskrit.	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore City.	Do. ..	Venkatesa Jois, 43 years, and Ramakrishna Bhatta, 43 years, Brahmans.	300
305	Sri Sankara Acharya.	Malayalam.	Published at Haripad, printed at the Keralapachimani Press, Mavelikara, Travancore State.	Do. ..	G. Govindan Namburi, Brahman, 27 years.	410
306	Sri Savitri	Telugu.	Savitri Press, Jagannayakpur, Godavari district.	Do. ..	P. Lakshmi Narasamma, Brahman, 38 years.	500
307	Sri Vani Vilasini.	Tamil ..	Sri Vani Vilas Press, Srirangam, Trichinopoly dist.	Do. ..	T. K. Subrahmanya Ayyar, B.A., Brahman, 43 years.	1,000
308	St. Andrew's Church (The Kirk) Magazine.	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. N. Maldrum, European, 34 years	150
309	St. Mary's Magazine ..	Do.	Published at St. Mary's European High School, Georgetown, printed at the Good Pastor Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Twice a year.	Rev. A. J. Vanderburg, European, 44 years.	300
310	Students' Own Magazine. ‡	Do.	Published at Messrs. T. S. Subrahmanya & Co., Georgetown; printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	P. Seshadri, Brahman, 24 years.	3,000

* Started, 6th May 1916. † Revived, August 1916. ‡ Revived February 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
311	Subhashini	Anglo-Malayalam.	Srimulam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	P. K. Govinda Pillai, Nayar, 41 years.	1,240
312	Subh-i-Bahar	Urdu ..	Ahamadia Press, Mysore ..	Monthly ..	Muhammad Ali Sahib Asad, Muhammadan, 26 years.	450
313	Sudarsini	Telugu.	Sudarsini Press, Viswanathapuram, Godavari district	Fortnightly.	Kasturi Sivasankara Rao, Brahman, 42 years.	Not known.
314	Sujanamitram ..	Malayalam.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	K. P. K. Raphael, Indian Christian, 27 years.	600
315	Sukhabi Vridhini.	Tamil ..	Sukhabi Vridhini Press, Pondicherry.	Fortnightly.	Venkatachella Nayakar, Vanniya, 50 years.	100
316	Sukhadaya Bodhini	Do. ..	Muslim Abhimani Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	H. B. Muhammad 'Abd-ul-lah, Muhammadan, 60 years.	250
317	Sunday School Lessons.	Tamil and Telugu (separate editions).	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Miss H. McGregor and Mrs. Owen, Europeans.	4,000
318	Supantha	Canarese	Crown Press, Mysore	Do. ..	A. Mahadeva Sastri, 54 years, and A. Venkatamayya, 49 years, Brahmans.	1,000
319	Suvarnalekha ..	Telugu.	Soudamini Press, Tanuku, Kistna district.	Weekly ..	D. V. Ramana Rao, Brahman, 34 years.	625
320	Swadharmaparipalini.	Do.	Chandrika Press, Guntur ..	Monthly ..	K. Kotesvara Sarma, Brahman, 37 years.	500
321	Swadesamitthiran ..	Tamil ..	Swadesamitthiran Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Daily and Triweekly.	T. Visvanatha Ayyar, Brahman, 27 years, and A. Rangaswami Ayyangar, Brahman.	5,000
322	Swadesha Bandhu.	Do. ..	Mathuharuvani Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	R. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	600
323	Swadeshabhimani.	Canarese	Sharada Press, Mangalore ..	Weekly ..	V. Shrinivasa Kamath, Brahman, 34 years.	1,000
324	Swadeshi (formerly the Bhaggodayam).	Anglo-Malayalam.	Saraswati Vilasam Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	K. Palpu Pillai, Nayar, 53 years, and A. Padmanabha Ayyar, Brahman, 46 years.	800
325	Tamilian	Tamil ..	Gautama Press, Royapettah, Madras.	Do. ..	C. I. Pattabhiraman, Buddhist, 31 years.	500
326	Do.	Do. ..	Bhashara Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Monthly ..	S. Muthuswami Pillai, Vellala, 36 years.	600
327	Tamil Peramatti * ..	Do. ..	Published at 486, Mint Street, Georgetown, printed at the Sri Subrahmanya Vilasam Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	V. R. Gaekwad alias Vasudeva Rao Gaekwad, Mahratti, 30 years.	Not known.
328	Taylor High School Magazine. †	English.	Published at the Taylor High School, Narsapur, Kistna district, printed at Srinivasa Varada Achari & Co.'s Press, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	A. Jayaram Rao, B.A., L.T., Brahman, 40 years.	Do.
329	Telugu Baptist ..	Telugu.	Albinion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. M. E. Gullison, American, 49 years.	700
330	Telugu Churchman ‡ ..	Do.	American Evangelical Lutheran Mission Press, Guntur.	Quarterly.	Gondi David, B.A., L.T., Indian Christian, 33 years.	400
331	Telugu Law Journal ..	Do.	Telugu Law Journal Press, Masulipatam.	Monthly ..	T. Purushottam Pantulu, Brahman, 50 years.	300
332	Telugu Officer	Do.	Sri Kanyakaparameswari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district.	Do. ..	Brigadier Tweedman, European, 45 years.	150
333	Temperance News. †	English.	Published at "Bonaly", Nungambakkam; printed at Thompson & Co.'s, Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. A. Moffat, M.A., B.Sc., Scotch.	Not known.
334	Ten India Vyavaharachintamani.	Tamil ..	Published in Purasawalkam, printed by the Fencers & Co.'s Nurjahan Press, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Subrahmanya Ayyar, Brahman, 42 years.	400
335	Then and Now	English.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Quarterly.	Rev. R. S. Berry, European ..	250
336	Theological Journal ..	Grantham, Nagari and Tamil.	Kalpadruman Press, Madura ..	Monthly ..	P. J. N. Srinivasa Sarma, Brahman.	900
337	Theory and Practice in Engineering. †	English.	Horsfall & Co.'s Press, Popham's Broadway, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	A. Padmanabha Mudaliyar, Vellala, 43 years.	1,000
338	Theosophist ..	Do.	Vasanta Press, Theosophical Society Buildings, Adyar.	Do. ..	Mrs. Annie Besant, European, 66 years.	3,500
339	Travancore Abhimani.	Tamil ..	Victoria Press, Nagercoil, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	D. C. Joseph, Indian Christian, 30 years.	150
340	Travancore Times.	English.	Do. do.	Do. ..	Do. do.	250
341	Trichinopoly Magazine.	Do.	Southern Star Press, Cantonment, Trichinopoly.	Monthly ..	The Chaplain of Trichinopoly ..	60

* Publisher declared on 29th May 1916. † Started, April 1916. ‡ Started, October 1916. § Started, September 1916.

No.	Name of publication.	Language of publication.	Where published.	Edition.	Name, caste and age of editor.	Circulation.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)
342	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Tamil, and Tamil.	American Mission Lesser Press, Pasumalai, Madura district.	Monthly ..	Rev. J. J. Banings, American, 38 years.	1,000
343	United Church Herald.	Anglo-Telugu and Telugu.	Published at Pasumalai, Madura district, printed at the Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. Aaron Arthur, Indian Christian, 36 years.	625
344	United India and Native States.	English.	Albion Press, Vepery, Madras.	Weekly ..	Rev. K. S. Krishnaswami Ayyar Indian Christian, 50 years.	350
345	Uthal Madupa	Uriya.	Sri Ganapati Bhima Deo Press, Digapadi, Ganjam district.	Monthly ..	Neelamoni Sidyaratna, Brahman, 49 years.	1,225
346	Uttara Thavaka.	Anglo-Malayalam.	Basha Bhooshanam Press, Parur, Travancore State.	Weekly ..	C. M. Narayana Panikar, B.A., Nayar, 27 years.	1,200
347	Vaidyakalanidhi.	Tamil ..	Published at 7, Audiappa Mudali Street, Purasawalkam; printed by Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Pandit M. Damiswami Ayyangar, Brahman, 32 years.	400
348	Vaidya Sindhu	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at Bangalore City, printed at Canton Press, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.	Do. ..	V. D. Pandit, Brahman, 44 years.	3,000
349	Vaisya Mittiran ..	Tamil ..	Vaisya Mittiran Press, Devakottai, Ramnad district.	Weekly ..	S. T. Ramanatham Chetti, Nattukottai Chetti, 43 years.	450
350	Vannikula Mittiran.	Do. ..	Published at Perambur Barracks, (Koorpet); printed at T. A. Krishna & Co.'s Press, Vepery, Madras.	Monthly ..	A. Subrahmanya Nayakar, Vannia, 36 years.	1,000
351	Varnasrama Dharmam.	English and Tamil (separate editions.)	Published at the Varnasrama Dharma Rakshini Sabha, The Law, Teynampet; printed at the Sivanchariyan Press, Park Town, Madras.	Do. ..	Managing Editor:—P. R. Ganapati Ayyar, Brahman, 41 years.	1,000
352	Vartakamitran or Merchants' Friend.	Tamil ..	Commercial Press, Triplicane Madras.	Fortnightly.	K. Ratna Ayyar, Brahman, 38 years.	..
353	Vedanta Dipika ..	Tamil with intermixture of Grantha types.	Kalaratnakaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly ..	Diwan Bahadur T. T. Ranga Acharya, Brahman.	600
354	Vedanta Kesari. ..	English.	Published at the Ramakrishna Mission, Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	Swami Sarvananda (Bengali), Brahman, 31 years.	1,000
355	Vedisr Vilabha or The Tamil Preacher's Magazine.	Anglo-Tamil.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Rev. J. P. Shrimpton, B.A., European, 40 years.	400
356	Vidya Bhanu ..	Tamil ..	Dhana Vaisyan Press, Konapet, Pudukkottai State.	Bi-weekly.	S. Swaminatha Ayyan, Brahman, 53 years, and A. R. R. M. Subramania Chettiar, Nattukottai Chetti, 24 years.	700
357	Vidyadayini	Canarese	Graduates' Trading Association Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	B. Subba Rao, Brahman, 45 years.	1,761
358	Vidyananda	Sanskrit and Canarese	Canton Branch Press, Fort, Bangalore City.	Do. ..	Anantanarayana Sastri, Brahman, 31 years.	400
359	Vidya Nidhi	Telugu.	Published at N. Venkatarayulu & Sons, 271, Ramaswami street, and printed at the Kalaratnakaram Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	N. Appayya, Brahman, 36 years.	600
360	Vignana Chintamani ..	Sanskrit.	Vignana Chintamani Press, Kodaparamba in Paramadiyur amsam, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	P. N. Nilakantha Sarma, Musad, 58 years.	150
361	Vijaya Vilasam.* ..	Tamil ..	Vijaya Vilasam Press, Rayavaram, Madras.	Bi-weekly.	K. R. Kathiravelu Nadar, Nadar, 36 years.	700
362	Vihata Pratapa † ..	Canarese	Kolar Town Press, Kolar, Mysore State.	Quarterly.	B. M. Chakrapanayya, Balija, 36 years.	1,000
363	Vihata Vinodini ..	Do.	S.G.N. Press, Avlepet, Bangalore City.	Monthly ..	N. Sivarama Sastri, Brahman, 44 years.	600

* Temporarily discontinued, 30th September 1916. † Not published since 30th September 1916.

No. (1)	Name of publication. (2)	Language of publication. (3)	Where published. (4)	Edition. (5)	Name, caste and age of editor. (6)	Circulation. (7)
364	Vira Kesari ..	Anglo-Canarese.	Published at 2, Ramanayar Street near Elephant Gate Street, Georgetown; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Fortnightly.	G. Thulasi Ram Dass, Brahman, 42 years.	900
365	Virabharma Kulopakari.	Tamil ..	Virabhadrapuram Press, Chintadripet, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. Kanniappa Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	400
366	Vivekaraman * ..	Do. ..	Published at the Vivekaraman Kalothsava Sabha, Mint Street, printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	P. Kalyanasundra Asari, Kammala, 44 years.	600
367	Viveka Bodhini ..	Do. ..	Published at the General Supplies Co., Mylapore; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Do. ..	V. Kuppuswami Ayyar, Brahman, 32 years.	1,000
368	Viveka Chintamani.	Anglo-Tamil.	Published at Mylapore; printed at Thompson & Co.'s Minerva Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	J. V. Swaminatha Ayyar, Brahman, 60 years.	700
369	Vivekavati	Telugu.	Christian Literature Society Press, Memorial Hall Compound, Madras.	Do. ..	Mrs. E. S. McCauley, American, 36 years.	1,250
370	Vivekodayam	Malayalam.	Ananda Press, Trivandrum, Travancore State.	Do. ..	E. Kumaran Asan, Ezhuvan, 41 years.	600
371	Vokkaligara Patrike.	Canarese	Vokkaligara Sangha Press, Bangalore City.	Weekly ..	S. V. Venkataramayya, Vokkaliga, 37 years.	2,500
372	Vrittanta Patrike, or The News. †	Telugu.	Srinivasa Press, 196, Mount Road, Madras.	Daily ..	S. Seshachallam Ayyar, Brahman, 35 years.	200
373	Vrittanta Patrike.	Canarese	Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Weekly ..	Rev. H. Gulliford, European, 62 years.	7,000
374	Vysya Nesan	Tamil ..	Published at 34, Thyagaraya Pillai Street, Mint Buildings Post office; printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, Madras.	Monthly ..	K. A Tirugnanam Sambanda Chetti, Vaisya, 30 years.	300
375	Vysyasanya Mitram	Malayalam.	Tellicherry; printed at the Edward Press, Cannanore, Malabar district.	Weekly ..	K. Ryru Nambiar, Nayar, 50 years.	600
376	Water of Life	Tamil ..	Published by the Christian Brotherhood Association printed by the Palamcottah Printing Press, Palamcottah.	Monthly ..	G. D. Devadasan, Indian Christian, 31 years.	1,500
377	Wealth of India ..	English.	Published at 3 and 4, Kondi Chetti Street, Georgetown; printed at the Guardian Press, Georgetown, Madras.	Do. ..	G. A. Vaidyaraman, B.A., Brahman, 46 years.	750
378	Wednesday Review.	Do.	Wednesday Review Press, Trichinopoly.	Weekly .	Rao Sahib S. M. Najarum Rao, Brahman, 39 years.	500
379	Wesleyan Methodist Church Record.	Do.	Methodist Publishing House, Mount Road, Madras.	Monthly ..	Rev. A. O. Brown, European, 46 years.	350
380	West Coast Bulletin.	Do.	Orion Press, Mattancherri, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Alexander V. Kaikaraheri, Indian Christian, 30 years.	800
381	West Coast Reformer.	Do.	Reformer Press, Calicut ..	Tri-weekly.	P. A. Sankara Sastri, Brahman, 30 years.	1,000
382	West Coast Spectator.	Do.	West Coast Press, Calicut ..	Do.	M. R. Damodaran Nayar, Nayar, 33 years.	800
383	Western Star ..	Do.	Western Star Press, Trivandrum, Travancore state.	Do.	C. J. Kurian, Syrian Christian, 34 years.	600
384	Yatharthavachani	Tamil ..	Published at Kumbakonam; printed at Sri Krishna Vilas Press, Tanjore	Weekly ..	T. V. Govindaswami Pillai, Vellala, 42 years	1,000
385	Yearly Digest of Indian and English cases.	English.	Published at Mylapore, printed at the Commercial Press, Triplicane, and the India Printing Works, Georgetown, Madras.	Monthly, Quarterly and Annually.	R. Narayanaswami Ayyar, B.A., B.L., Brahman, 33 years.	650
386	Yogakshemam ..	Malayalam.	Kalpadruma Press of the Mangalodayam Company (Limited), Trichur, Cochin State.	Weekly ..	Pamyil Raman Nambutipad, Brahman, 30 years.	1,000
387	Young Men of India.	English.	Published at No. 96, College Street, Calcutta; printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, Mysore.	Monthly ..	C. Carter, American	1,700
388	Yuddha Dhvani ..	Telugu.	Sri Kanyakaparameswari Press, Bapatla, Guntur district.	Do. ..	Brigadier Venkatam, European 45 years.	600

* Revived, January 1916.

† Temporarily discontinued, July 1916.

ENGLISH PAPERS OWNED BY INDIANS.

Nil.

VERNACULAR PAPERS.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. In a leading article under this heading purporting to draw a contrast between the modernities of civilized life and the simplicity of rural folk, the Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 27th December, says that although the western nations are to be admired for their wonderful inventions, some of which are as destructive to human life as others are conducive to its comforts, the huge devastation caused by the present war, which is the outcome of an inordinate thirst for dominion, shows how western civilization at the present day is totally bereft of the spiritual side of human nature, which is so conspicuously present in the unlearned rustic mind. The paper finally exhorts the Indians to guard against this fault of being too materialistic like the west.

European civilization.

Sampad Abhyudaya, Mysore, Dec. 27th, 1916.

2. Referring to the attitude of the leading statesmen among the Allies towards the German peace note, the Mysore Star, of the 24th December, says:—Seeing that the Allies are determined to carry on the war to a victorious end and fearing the consequences that would follow her defeat, Germany, in order to take advantage of the impression that she has been victorious hitherto, is now offering to make peace of her own accord with great pretensions to magnanimity so as to win the sympathy of the neutral world and make the Allies seem responsible for the continuance of the war. Those who know Germany's past can scarcely believe that these ideas of humanity have really dawned upon her so suddenly. When the whole world knows that she is a tiger in a cow's skin it is impossible that the Allies can be taken in by this trick to gain time for further equipment. It is impossible that peace will be concluded at this juncture. Germany will find herself compelled to prepare for further fighting during the ensuing summer.

The German peace proposals.

Mysore Star, Mysore, Dec. 24th, 1916.

3. Most of the Malayalam papers refer to Germany's peace proposals which they think have been made with a view to gaining time and creating an impression among the neutrals that she is only fighting in self-defence and that she wishes for peace, and rejoice at the resolution of the Allies to carry on the war till Prussian Militarism is completely crushed. The Malayala Manorama, of the 20th December, adds that by these proposals Germany hopes to weaken Russia by making Poland and Lithuania independent kingdoms, and to bring all the Balkan States and Turkey under her control, so that after becoming practically the mistress of all the territories as far as the Indian Ocean, and with a few years' preparation, she may fight England and wrest from her the British Empire—the only obstacle to the achievement of the Kaiser's ambition which is to become the Emperor of the world.

War and the peace proposals.

Malayala Manorama, Kottayam, Dec. 20th, 1916.

4. The Qaumi Report, of the 19th December in a leader on Germany's peace proposals says:—There is no doubt that peace is a precious thing worthy of being purchased even at the cost of destruction, ruin and defeat. But how can the people of that world over whose homes the black pall of mourning has spread, whose populated places have been devastated, whose eyes shed tears of blood, whose hearts ache for clan and country and who are giving their lives for national existence, be pleased with such a peace?

A message of peace.

Qaumi Report, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1916.

The world is changing its garb. It is restless. It is revolutionising its civilization in order to lighten its burden and its material and temporal pride is becoming etherealised. Eventually there will remain that rare principle which was evolved for the world; for the world is for it, and that is the principle of Truth, and Truth is the spirit. The sovereignty of the spirit in every guise, hue and shape will be supreme. But until then, peace is impossible and friendship out of the question.

In the end all this obscuring of the blue vault heaven over vast expanses of the world, all this raging of sea and ocean, all this tumult and turmoil in the civilised places of the earth will cease and a peaceful calm will prevail. Then, in the words of Zafar, will real peace be established.

"Thousands of birds will tune their lays and pass away
"But this paradise will abide for ever."

Qasim Report, Madras, Dec. 26th, 1916.

Is peace possible?

5. The Qasmi Report, of the 20th December, writes:—The mention of the word "peace" is sending the blood coursing along the veins of the world and every one acquainted with the events of the war asking the question: "Is peace possible"? This is a coquettish question which can only be answered by having recourse to a little amorous presumption.

He who now makes an offer of peace and says that it is possible, is like a lover whose friendship is not devoid of enmity.

Germany proudly thinks, because she has France, Russia and Italy by the throat and because Serbia, Belgium and Roumania are under her heel and she is unable to reach Britain. She can spread her peaceful snare and make an end of her sanguinary hunt.

If indeed the fiend of selfish greed is speaking in Germany that country ought to have been content with the sacrifices of so many hundreds of thousands of lives and the devastation of thousands of cities and towns. If she is fighting for God, as she claims to be, this much of bloodshed should give her sufficient assurance.

But, after all, she is not fighting for the propagation of a particular faith, or for the demolition of a heathen temple, or for the purpose of civilising some savage nation.

The men whose heads are being cut off by her sword are her brethren. Who can this God be that wishes to lay waste his whole world?

God knows which unfortunate creature's prayers are strengthening her hands and arms with a power not to be found in either her clergy or her churches.

Supposing the Allies accept her iron conditions, what will it mean? Will the former prosperity, wealth, freedom for care and happiness be possible in the future? Even after peace is made, the ruin of Belgium, the desolation of France, the devastation of Serbia, the catastrophe of Montenegro, the calamity of Russia, and the agony of Roumania will not be changed all at once. These are the wounds of the heart which time alone can heal.

Therefore where is the necessity for the people to make peace in haste? They are cowards who tremble after the first blow and dread the second. In ruin or devastation, in hardships or calamity, the distinction between more or less affords little satisfaction. A brave man prefers honourable death to dishonourable life. After the initial calamity the extreme calamity is a blessing to the hero.

"Happiness is but a drop which is lost in the ocean of delight,
"Excessive pain is its own remedy."

If Germany desires to destroy the whole world, she may do so with pleasure. It will simply mean the ruin of a few countries and the destruction of a few families, but Germany's soul will not obtain eternal consolation thereby. Eternal consolation belongs to the soul; but, at the present moment, Europe's body seems to be soulless. The idols of science are destroying the earthly temples. An Iconoclastic Mahmud is needed to destroy that chief idol, which is the real tyrant and wicked one, and to break the talismanic charm of selfishness.

God's promise is sure and that day will surely come.

II.—Home Administration.

(e) Local and Municipal.

6. The Juridah-i-Rozgar, of the 18th December, referring to the lecture delivered by Major Hingston at a meeting held under the presidency of His Excellency the Governor of Madras, regarding the increase of infant mortality in India and Madras City compared with that of Great Britain in which the lecturer attributed the principal cause to the want of good milk, cordially appreciates the remarks made by the learned President who said that in fact it was the dishonest milkmen who sold adulterated milk and were responsible for the death of so many children.

The milk of Madras.

Jaridah-e-Rozgar, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1916.

The editor observes that the Health Officer should act energetically in the matter and he hopes that this long standing grievance will very soon be removed.

(k) General.

7. The Leswasul Islam, of the 14th December, writes on this subject:—More damages than we are aware of have been caused by the recent storm in this district. But not one Member of the Executive Council went there to find out the extent of the damages and the relief needed. As the Collector is an Indian, he is afraid of asking the Government for money. We trust the Government will now at least take steps to afford sufficient relief to the people.

Damages caused by the recent storm in South Arcot.

Leswasul Islam, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1916.

8. Referring to the recent speeches of Mr. Polak in Madras on the condition of the Indians in South Africa, the Swadesamitran, of the 15th December, observes in its leading article as follows:—Among the more important points which Mr. Polak has been urging for consideration is the fact that South Africa seeks to bear a share in the administration of India by England. South Africa has been given self-government before it was able to realise its responsibilities as a self-governing Colony of the British Empire. It, therefore, fails to see to what extremities the Imperial Government might sometimes be reduced. While it is thus unable to understand the Imperial responsibilities, how can it hope to be entrusted with greater responsibilities. Do those that advocate this increase of power to the Colonies think that India is unfit for self-government, or that the Colonies themselves have understood their responsibilities well? How can they be given a share in the administration of India when they fail to act in consonance with the Imperial policy and hinder the Indians, who are as much British subjects as the Colonists themselves, from the enjoyment of just rights and equal privileges? Are they fit for self-government who subject India to ill-treatment even in the present time of war? Or are the Indians fit for it when they have so far realised their responsibilities as to come forward to serve England in all ways, forgetting their own wrongs? May the British Cabinet and the Colonial Governments answer this question of Mr. Polak!

The Colonies and the Empire.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 15th, 1916.

9. In a leader on this subject, the Swadesamitran, of the 21st December, says:—The Government is contemplating to replace the system of indentured labour by that of impressment now in force in India. According to a report published by the Behar Government on the working of this system in that province, the number of labourers impressed for service during the last twelve months was more than double the number impressed during the previous year, and more than three times that of the year before it. The Bombay Chronicle argues that this increase is due chiefly to the rigorous way in which the Government collects the land revenue. That the "sirdars" of this system, who correspond to the kanganis, have recourse to improper ways in impressing labourers is apparent from the fact that 91 of them have been convicted and punished, in spite of the fact that they are controlled by the agents of the planters and the supervisors appointed by the Government. It appears that the planters made representations to the Government against the orders of certain magistrates that the planters should send back the coolies to their own places. In consequence of this, the Behar Government has warned the Magistrates to assure themselves in such cases as to whether the coolies do not bring false complaints in their own interests, as they are likely to change their mind and wish to get out of a genuine contract. Some Magistrates may interpret this warning as a hint that the Government does not wish them to decide the cases in favour of the coolies. Why should the Government issue such a warning, instead of leaving the Magistrates free to act as seems just to them? If it be true, as the Government says, that the coolies go to distant places, because they have no means of livelihood at home, why should they change their mind after entering into a contract with the planters, and wish to go back to their homes to be starved? The best course that can be adopted by the Government is to open an office of inquiry in each district or taluk for giving information to those that seek it, regarding the places where the coolies can find employment and under what conditions. All other methods are bound to show a one-sided interest in favour of the planters.

The labour problem.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1916.

Hindu Nesan, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1916.

10. Under this head the Hindu Nesan, of the 21st December, has a leading article in the course of which it observes:—A manifesto has been issued by Rao Bahadur P. Theogaraya Chettiyar containing an advice to the Non-Brahman sections of the people of this Presidency that they should endeavour to improve their condition. We see no reason why such a movement should be started at this juncture when the Hindus and the Muhammadans have united together to ask for self-government for India, and the Government has begun to respect their wishes and to recognise that it is bound to fulfil them. We wish to lay stress on the fact that this agitation is not conducive to the welfare of the country.

The Brahman-Non-Brahman split.

Sampad Abhyudaya, Mysore, Dec. 27th, 1916.

The Sampad Abhyudaya, of the 27th December, writes:—Some people are raising an outcry that in the event of the grant of Home Rule to India the Brahmans would be all-powerful. Those who raise this controversy about Brahman and Non-Brahman interests in political matters can scarcely be credited with any sense of patriotism. Millions of non-Brahmans are on the most friendly terms with the Brahmans in the field of politics. It is deplorable therefore that caste considerations should have any place in the public s . Do rulers and Governments belong to any particular caste? Have ll castes an equal claim to their protection? Does God make any differ between caste and caste? Does He not bestow His gifts of rain and shi.. and wind equally on all? It is most regrettable that this sense of equality should be lost sight of, and that third parties should be helped to profit by these caste differences. There can be no doubt that those who create these differences are our enemies.

Brahmans and Non-Brahmans.

Desabhimani, Trichur, Dec. 22nd, 1916.

The Desabhimani, of the 22nd December, refers to the rivalry between the Brahmans and the non-Brahmans, as revealed by the manifesto of the non-Brahmans and by the speech of Dr. T. M. Nayar at a meeting of the Dravidians, and doubts whether there is any leader in Madras who is capable and influential enough to reconcile "Home Rule" and this sectarian quarrel.

Brahmans and Non-Brahmans in Madras.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 22nd, 1916.

11. The Swadesamitran, of the 22nd December, has the following:—We learn from the Bengalee that the British Indian Association of Calcutta has resolved to present an address of welcome to Lord Ronaldshay. The Bengalee observes that the resolution of this association to do honour to Lord Ronaldshay deserves no recognition, considering that it was started by eminent patriots of the province and that it now pretends to be ignorant of the strong feeling prevailing among the general public against the appointment of this gentleman as the Governor of Bengal.

Proposed welcome to Lord Ronaldshay.

12. In suggesting the employment of the Indians on a larger scale to the higher posts in this institution, the Swadesamitran, of the 22nd December, observes:—Whenever the Indians apply for industrial training being given to the educated section of them, it is usual for the Europeans to say that the Indians consider such work to be disrespectable, and to take the necessary measures for keeping the industries a close secret.

Employment of Indians in the Tata Iron Works.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 22nd, 1916.

13. With reference to the message sent to the Viceroy by Mr. Lloyd George, expressing the hope that India will continue to give its co-operation and help to England until the war is brought to a successful issue, the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd December, says:—It will not suffice to state merely that Mr. Lloyd George who spoke ever so much in praise of the help rendered by the colonies has caused disappointment and regret to the people of India by forgetting to say a few words to the Members of Parliament and to the British public about India which has helped England with men and money beyond its means. It was not expected by anyone that India would be forgotten so soon as this. The words of the Premiers sufficiently show that he does not bear in mind that, like the colonies, India also deserves to take its place in the re-modelling of the British Empire. It is the duty of the Indians to work hard for self-government under any circumstance.

India and the Prime Minister.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 23rd, 1916.

14. In a lengthy leading article under this heading, in English, the Samyad Abhyudaya, of the 26th December, dilating upon the reforms urged in the memorandum recently submitted to His Excellency the Viceroy by the non-official members of his Council, observes:—"The termination of the war is bound to be followed by a great advance in the ideals of Government all over this world. We have no reason to think that the British Indian Empire will not have her own share in them. India entered into the struggle in defence of the liberties of the weak and smaller nations of Europe, and has been pouring forth its richest blood and treasure in upholding the cause of justice and humanity in the international interests of the world. India has borne her part so splendidly and has acted so loyally that her claim for a large share in the political blessings that follow can never be denied . . . The Indians have no real part in the direction of the government of the country. They are placed under very great and galling disabilities from which the other members of the British Empire are exempt. They are reduced to a state of utter helplessness. . . . She has a right to expect that the want of confidence on the part of the Government should now be a thing of the past and that she should no longer occupy a position of subordination. They want an assurance that England is ready and willing to help them to attain self-government under the ægis of the British Crown and thus discharge the mission which she had undertaken, and to which she has so often given voluntary expression through her Ruler and her statesmen. What is wanted is not merely good Government but Government that is acceptable to the people. This is the great object of the educated Indians. If the position of India remains the same after the war, it will cause bitter disappointment and great discontentment in the country."

Post-war reforms in India.

Samyad Abhyudaya, Bombay, Dec. 26th, 1916.

15. The Swadeshabhimani, of the 22nd December, in an article under this heading, observes:—Those officers of Government who were wont to exercise unrestrained power are very much put out by the interpellations criticising their administration. Further, it is generally presumed that the Indian Civil Service is infallible. Any attempt therefore to expose their shortcomings evokes their anger. Hence the replies to the interpellations are sometimes unsatisfactory. Again, many of the appointments monopolised by the Civil Service slip out of its hands as a result of popular clamour. This causes a deal of heart-burning. Many of these officers think that this agitation for higher appointments is like the children's clamour for toys and can never cease. The Civil Service would not be convinced that these popular demands are only the outcome of a natural desire in every nation, as in the west, to have some share in the administration of their country. This accounts for the haughty replies which are given to some of the interpellations that the "Government have no information on the point" or that "the Government do not think it advisable to give the information," etc. There was an answer of this kind at the last sitting of the Council. In reply to the enquiry as to the extent of the damage done by the floods in the Kistna and the Tungabhadra rivers the Government first answered that they had no information on the point, and when asked whether they would get the information, they replied that they did not think it necessary to do so. In giving this reply on behalf of the Government the Honourable Member does not, in truth, seem to have realised the consequences of such an answer. The popular leader, the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao, then stood up and moved a resolution for the adjournment of the Council till the necessary information was obtained. The main object of this resolution was to make it clear to Government that it was regrettable that they had not found time to enquire into the extent of damage done even after so many days after the flood. This opened the eyes of the member. When he immediately assured that he would speedily get and publish the information, the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao withdrew his resolution for adjournment.

The responsibilities of popular representatives in the Legislative Council.

Swadeshabhimani, Bangalore, Dec. 22nd, 1916.

Swadesabhimani, Mangalore, Dec. 22nd, 1916.

Supplies to Government officers.

16. Referring to the discussion which took place in connection with the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar's resolution on the subject of supplies to Government officers, the Swadesabhimani, of the 22nd December, writes:—We wonder what harm there could be in accepting the resolution. In many cases, it is well known that if the supplying officer fails to grease the palm of the duffedar and the butler, the supplies don't reach the officer or their quality is loudly decried. Sometimes the officer is confident that his subordinate will arrange for the supplies unasked and is annoyed if he should be asked about his particular requirements. In other cases, the officer never thinks of paying, because he believes that the supplies were got from the people for nothing and that the price thereof even if it is paid would not reach the hands of the true owners of the articles. There are also cases where the officer, having correct information regarding the current prices, pays according to his own account disallowing excessive charges, and even this the subordinate is deprived of by the duffedar. Though there has been some improvement in the state of things of late, we can confidently affirm that the evil has not disappeared altogether. But if anyone should ask us to prove this grievance, we must answer that it can never be possible. Instead of making Government servants take the responsibility of providing supplies and giving room for complaints, it would be well to consider the advisability of appointing licensed contractors for supplies wherever this can be done. Travelling allowance, in that event, will have been used for the purpose for which it is granted instead of being made an addition to the pay. Payment according to prescribed rates will leave the contractors no room for deceiving.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Dec. 20th, 1916.

Thirty-first session of the Congress.

17. In a long leader under the heading "The thirty-first session of the Congress", the Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th December, dwells upon the importance of this year's congress due to various causes, the hearty co-operation between the Hindus and Muhammadans among others, rejoices at the assistance given to it by Government officials, but regrets that the Deputy Commissioner or the District Magistrate should have felt it necessary to inform the Chairman of the Reception Committee that legal proceedings would be taken against those who employed violent language in their speeches.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Dec. 20th, 1916.

Slavery in Malabar.

18. Referring to the conviction and sentence by the Sessions Judge of North Malabar of two Mappillas who had been charged with slave trade, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th December, points out that such cases do not come to light, because the people do not care to take action thereon and congratulates the authorities concerned on their successful efforts in the present case.

Yogakshemam, Trichur, Dec. 22nd, 1916.

19. In its leader under the heading "British India and the Native States", the Yogakshemam, of the 22nd December, points out that inasmuch as the Native States form one-third of India and their population one-fifth thereof, any changes in the administrative machinery which ignore the claims of these States, are neither practicable nor advisable, and that when "Home Rule" is granted to India and when the Viceroy and the Governors as His Majesty's Representatives begin to carry on the administration according to the wishes of the people, an "Upper House" composed of the Rulers of these States, will have to be constituted, for otherwise a Viceroy with a large staff will have to be appointed solely for the supervision of the affairs of these States. It then refers to the existence of three classes of Native States and to the treaties between them and the British Government, and says—

British India and the Native States.

"It remains to be seen how these treaties and 'Home Rule' can be reconciled and the administrations carried on. The views of Indian leaders may, perhaps, be revealed at the sittings of the ensuing congress."

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1916.

20. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 16th December in drawing the attention of its readers to an article on this subject published in a previous issue writes:—We are proud of our nation and assert with pride that the people have proved themselves to be worthy sons of India. The foolish Kaiser and his accomplices were under the impression that, as soon as the war began, there would be unrest in India and accordingly spies were sent out in all directions to stir up the people. But we remained firm on the path of loyalty.

India's future.

We may be sure we shall receive a very valuable reward for our services. Britain is observing our conduct with appreciative, affectionate, admiring and kindly eyes and in the words of the Bishop of Madras, "after the war our every wish will be granted by the Imperial Government. We must patiently and manfully wait."

Qaumi Report, Madras, Dec. 23rd, 1916.

21. The Qaumi Report, of the 23rd December, writes:—War is the parent of all sorts of difficulties which are fed with its dreadful nourishment. Its evil offspring does not hesitate to plunder peaceful homes.

"Financial difficulties."

At present the mart of financial difficulties is brisk and many people are greatly concerned as to what is going to happen in the future, but we have no hesitation in saying that all will be well, provided we make use of our spiritual power.

In the present financial difficulties the fact is, India is a borrowing country and our trade is dependent upon the Bank of England. For example we export cotton and hides to Japan and America and these countries pay their payments to England which, in turn, pays us through the Bank of England, sometimes in advance and sometimes in arrears.

But this unfortunate war has upset everything. Japan and America purchase cotton and hides from India and pay England in munitions. The result is that England has to pay us our dues.

This difficulty has ruined our trade. England cannot pay promptly as the supply of gold, silver and paper is limited. The export of gold has already been prohibited. The Government of India made a mistake in not buying more silver in time, currency notes being mere vouchers for money have also become limited owing to the scarcity of gold and silver.

The Secretary of State, with a view to dealing with this difficulty, has remitted Council Bills which are Exchequer bonds, and it is a well-known fact that British paper fetches a good price in the financial world.

Thus it is evident that the financial difficulty which now confronts us will very soon be removed. Some people suggest the issuing of one or two rupee notes, but this proposal is the outcome of their not understanding the situation. The British Government would never make such a mistake, for, in the first place, it would mean denuding the country of cash and, in our opinion, the country people would begin to suspect that the Government had become insolvent. The difficulty will not last long, and we hope the commercial problem will soon be solved.

IV.—Native States.

Mysore Star, Mysore, Dec. 24th, 1916.

The extension of local self-government in Mysore.

22. Referring to the changes proposed to be introduced by the Mysore Government regarding the extension of local self-government in Mysore, the Mysore Star, of the 24th December in an article congratulating the Government on their solicitude for associating the people more closely with the administration of the State, laments the dearth of selfless public-spirited men even among townsfolk to undertake the larger responsibilities proposed to be entrusted to local bodies and tries to bring home to the minds of the public the necessity of realising the advantages accruing to the people from a conscientious discharge of these duties.

Mitavadi Malayala Manorama, Kottayam, Dec. 23rd, 1916.

Travancore Christian Succession Bill.

23. The Malayala Manorama, of the 23rd December, rejoices at the passing of the Travancore Christian Succession Bill into law, and observes that though there are no doubt some portions to which exception may be taken, it is far better to have passed it in its present shape than to have left things as they are.

Deshabhimani, Quilon, Dec. 23rd, 1916.

Writing on the same subject the Deshabhimani, of the 23rd December, also approves of the passing of the Bill into law.

Errata.

Report No. 52.

Article 36, line 24 for "Government" read "Government".
Page 2291, article 36, line 4, for "Caubal" read "Chaubal".
" 2294 " 45 " 17, for "know the phase" read "know this phase".

[Issued, 2nd January 1917.]